HANNA TO THE RESCUE

To Try and Save Life of American Filibuster.

Sets State Department at Work For Dr. Wilson.

Washington, July 22.—The state department has taken active steps to save the life of Dr. Russell Wilson, a young Ohio physician who is held under arrest at Bluefields by the Nicaraguan military authorities. Wilson was a member of a filibustering party which made a landing near Monkey Point about four miles from Bluefields. Most of the party were captured owing to the inability of the commander of the expedition to land reinforcements on account of heavy weather and, among the number was Wilson. The Nicaraguan general was about to execute him summarily, but was induced by the pleas of some of the English speaking people of Bluefields to allow the law to follow its course. This meant a trial by court-martial, and it is the understanding that a death sentence was almost inevitable.

Wilson lives at Milan, Ohio, and Senator Hanna has interested himself in the case. Today Acting Secretary Hill telegraphed to the United States consul at San Juan del Norte to make an immediate investigation and report facts at once, not only to the department but also to Senator Hanna. In addition the consul was directed to use his good offices with the Nicaraguan authorities in favor of young Wilson, as Senator Hanna has represented that he was a non-combatant and was attached to the revolutionary expedition in a medical capacity.

WILLIAM H. TUTHILL. MRS. ALBERT C. LATIMER.

PERSONS CONSPICUOUS IN THE INVESTIGATION OF BROOKLYN'S MURDER MYSTERY.

The mystery connected with the death of Albert C. Latimer, a wealthy Brooklyn man, deepens daily. Early on the morning of July 2 Mr. Latimer was shot while in his home and died later in a hospital. Mrs. Latimer told a story of a fight with an unknown burglar. At first this account was unquestioned, but subsequent statements by hospital doctors and nurses are to the effect that Mr. Latimer declared shortly before his death that there was no burglar and that he knew the man who shot him. The only evidence of the presence of a burglar is furnished by a bicycle lantern and a pair of bicycle shoes found in the Latimer kitchen. William H. Tuthill is an intimate friend of Mrs. Latimer, and his attentions, she admits, caused a quarrel between herself and her husband.

LADRONES ESCAPED

Surrounded By Twelve Hundred Constables.

Tracy Is Outdone In the Province of Cavite.

Manila, July 22.—Montallon and Felizardo, the ladrone chiefs, have broken through the constabulary cordon in Cavite province, and have escaped to the mountains. A number of ladrones were killed in earlier attempts to force the cordon.

An extensive drive, with the object of capturing the ladrone chiefs Montallon and Felizardo and fifty of their followers was organized in Cavite province. Twelve hundred constabulary, commanded by Captain Baker, moved last Thursday at daylight, forming a complete angle-shaped cordon covering sixty square miles. Patrol launches guarded the rivers and it was expected to close the cordon last Saturday. The entire male population of the towns and farms were to be included in the concentration movement. When complete the ladrones were to have been arrested and others were to have been released.

The cordon encompassed the leaders and many of their followers. The latter when trapped made a serious of breaks to escape. The constabulary withstood the first attack, killing fourteen and capturing fifteen men. The Ladrones finally massed under cover of the darkness and forced their way through a weak spot in the cordon, near Das Armas, killing one and wounding one of the constabulary. The latter captured the papers and effects of the leaders and destroyed quantities of supplies.

FOREIGNERS IN DANGER

Consular Corps at Cape Haytien Notified That the City Will Be Attacked Both By Land and Sea.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, July 22.—The local authorities here have notified the consular corps that Cape Haytien is to be attacked by land and sea and that they cannot guarantee the safety of foreigners. The consuls have requested that the French cruiser D'Assas, now at Port Au Prince, be sent, but the French minister there has replied that the situation at Port An Prince does not permit the sending of the cruiser to Cape Haytien.

WOMAN MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT

St. Paul, July 22.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Mrs. D. M. Durfee, the wife of County Attorney Durfee of Phillipsburg was shot and probably fatally wounded in a mysterious manner in Missoula late last night. She did not see any one, and but for the position of the wound, could not tell the direction from which the pistol was fired.

Mrs. Durfee is a most estimable woman, and the shooting has created a great sensation. It is feared death will result.

There is absolutely no clew, nor can any valid reason be assigned for the act.

LONG BUT SUCCESSFUL CHASE

Minneapolis, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—With his hands securely cuffed, carefully watched day and night by his captors, Philip Addy, charged with having been an accomplice in the murder of Milton N. Gorton and wife at Litchfield, Minn., Dec. 31, 1901, arrived in Minneapolis on the Northern Pacific train yesterday afternoon. Addy was the prisoner of William Daxter and Charles D. Brown, private detectives of Minneapolis, who have been on their man's trail for three months. Over mountains, through blizzards, on the edges of precipices, into mining camps, through miles of grazing country, they followed clues until they arrested Addy at Stites, Idaho, July 9. It is likely that Addy will be taken to Litchfield within a day or two.

ALARMING PHASE OF A FEUD

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—A report has just reached here that the wholesale store of William Jett was burned last night at Jackson by unknown incendiaries. Jett is a relative of Curtis Jett, with whom James Cockrell, who died today, got into a shooting affray in Arlington hotel Monday a week ago, at Jackson. The burning of the store puts another alarming phase on the feud relations. There is talk here among members of the party who attended Cockrell to this city last night, of going to Frankfort and laying the situation before the governor and asking state interference.

HAS A WIRELESS FOR MACKEY

London, July 22.—The Cunard line steamer Saxonia, sailing from Liverpool for Boston, today has a wireless telegram for Clarence Mackay, son of the late John W. Mackay, who sailed from New York Saturday, July 19, on the Campania of the same line. The Saxonia hopes to communicate with the Campania to-morrow or Thursday. The remains of Mr. Mackay have been embalmed and placed in a metallic coffin, which is now resting in the music room of the Mackay residence, surrounded by flowers, which have been sent in great profusion. Mrs. Mackay is as well as can be expected.

SAILS TO PEARY'S RELIEF

New York, July 22.—Provisioned for several months and all equipped to withstand the rigors of the Polar seas, the Peary relief steamer Windward will start today for the far north, says a Sydney, C. B., dispatch to the Tribune. Aboard are Mrs. Peary and her little daughter, Marie. The wife of the explorer is confident of finding her husband at Cape Sabine and that his return to civilization will be signalized by the news that he has discovered the long-sought pole.

OREGON ELECTION.

Official Figures Show Chamberlains Plurality 276.

Salem, Ore., July 22.—The official vote for governor at the recent election shows the following results:

Chamberlain (Dem.), 41,857; Furnish (Rep.), 41,581; Hunsacker (Pro.), 4,333; Ryan (Soc.), 3,771. Chamberlain's plurality, 276.

BOER GENERALS COMING.

Pretoria, July 22.—Gens. Botha and Delarey, with their secretaries, left here yesterday for Cape Town, en route for Europe. Gen. De Wet will accompany them on the trip to the coast. The date of their return from Europe has not been definitely fixed.

ARCHBISHOP

Of Manila Will Be Appointed By Vatican.

Rome, July 22.—Besides an apostolic delegate for the Philippines the vatican is preparing to appoint an archbishop of Manila, who will probably be Bishop Sebastian Gebhart Messmer (a Swiss), professor of canon law at the Catholic university in Washington since 1890. Three new Philippine dioceses will also be created. Governor Taft before starting for Naples to visit Pompeii and Mt. Vesuvius, expressed a desire that the bishop of one of the new dioceses be a native Filipino.

WIRELESS

Telegraphy Will Soon Be Established on Great Lakes.

Chicago, July 22.—Installation of wireless telegraphy on the great lakes, is being planned and already, it is said, a Detroit vessel owner has approved the arrangement. Owners of boats running out of Chicago are being canvassed, as are operators of freight and passenger vessels in all the larger ports.

The plan proposed is to establish shore stations at all the larger ports and to equip with receiving transmitting apparatus all the steamboats plying out of those ports Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit, Mackinac, "The Soo," Milwaukee and Cleveland have been selected for the initial installation and thereafter Duluth and other ports will be included.

The plan contemplates the leasing of the instruments in use on the vessels and with many owners the issue is said to be a rent low enough to warrant the expense.

NO TRACE

Of Captain Strong Has Been Found By Detectives.

New York, July 22.—Capt. Titus of the detective bureau said today that several detectives had been at work all night looking for ex-Capt. Putnam Bradlee Strong, against whom a warrant, charging theft was sworn out by May Yohe, but that his men had found no trace of Strong. Capt. Titus said that Miss Yohe had come to New York today from Hastings-on-the-Hudson, and with several detectives was making a tour of the pawnshops for the purpose of identifying, if possible, some of the jewels supposed to have been pawned by Strong.

SOME DELAY

In Executing Provisions of Cecil Rhodes' Will.

New York, July 22.—Delay in making arrangements for carrying out the Rhodes bequests for Oxford scholarships is caused by the difficulty of effecting a financial settlement under the will, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune, who learns that the scholarships will be in operation without doubt in the autumn of 1903, and that students from the United States, the British colonies and Germany will be admitted to the university in compliance with the conditions of the will. The educational work projected by Mr. Rhodes will be supervised by an Oxford man.

KING WALKS.

Will Hold a Council on Yacht Shortly.

London, July 22.—The weather was very disagreeable at Cowes, Isle of Wight, this morning, though reports from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert continue to chronicle King Edward's improvement. It is said that he walked a few steps yesterday.

The king will hold his first council since A. J. Balfour became premier on board the yacht shortly. It is expected that the name of the new lord lieutenant of Ireland to succeed Earl Cadogan, whose resignation was made public July 17, will then be announced.

CHOLERA DECREASING.

Manila, July 22.—Cholera continues to decrease in the city and provinces. The authorities think the epidemic less virulent.

NUMLEY CONFESSES.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 22.—William Numley, arrested at Dennison, Iowa, for the murder of Fred Powell, a Milwaukee road brakeman, has made a full confession of the crime.

PAID EXTREME PENALTY

Two Men Were Hanged at Greenville, Miss., For the Wilful Killing of Engineer Wray Last December.

Greenville, Miss., July 22.—Cocke and Lauderdale hanged at 12:41.

The crime for which Ashley Cocke and Tom Lauderdale today paid the death penalty on the gallows was committed in a Yazoo & Mississippi Valey railroad train about 3 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 20, 1901, near Elizabeth. Cocke, Lauderdale, Will Blackburn and William Phipps boarded the north bound passenger train. G. M. Wray, an engineer, was a passenger on the car entered by Cocke and party.

Cocke and his companions were more or less under the influence of liquor, Phipps fell against Wray, who was asleep on a seat in the coach. Wray asked Phipps what he meant and the reply came from Cocke that it meant that he (Wray) must leave the coach. As Wray started to walk out, Cocke, Lauderdale and Blackburn began shooting at him and he fell dead in the aisle of the car. Cocke and Lauderdale were tried together, convicted and sentenced to be hanged March 21, 1902. The supreme court reviewed the case of Cocke and Lauderdale affirming the decision of the lower court and fixing Tuesday, July 22, as the day for the execution. Governor Longine refused to interfere. Blackburn was given a life sentence on account of his previous good character.

AN EXHIBITION BOUT

Jeffries Will Go Eight Rounds With His Brother to the Great Delectation of the Oakland Sporting Fraternity.

San Francisco, July 22.—This afternoon Oakland business men will be given an opportunity to see James J. Jeffries go eight rounds with his brother Jack and Jo Kennedy, who is assisting the big man in his training work. The exhibition will take place at the Reliance club and admission will be by card.

Once more Manager Billy Delaney announces that his portege is in the finest fettle, and will climb through the ropes Friday night fit to fight for a reputation. Jeffries is alternating in his days of heavy work. To avoid the "stale" condition, the champion goes at his work like a Trojan on one day and on the next relaxes somewhat. This method he finds agrees with him, and it keeps him on a vigorous edge.

Jeffries has taken on nine pounds in thirty-six hours, but this is not extraordinary for a man of his herculean proportions. The fighter now weighs in the neighborhood of 225 pounds. He expects to tip the beam at 217 when he fights. Jeffries will continue his training in this city today, doing road work in the park and light gymnasium work at the Olympic club.

The canvas covered pavilion in which the fight will take place is near completion.

The platform of the ring is in place, and a sort of wooden canopy to hold the lights has been built over it. The arena is of octagonal shape, with all the seats built on the ground except the gallery, which consists of eight tiers of boards similar to the bleachers at a ball ground, rising at an angle that will give all occupants an uninterrupted view of the encounter. To economize space as much as possible the seats have been placed very close together, and the distance from the center of the ring to the most distant part of the enclosure is only eighty-seven feet.

FLED IN THEIR NIGHT CLOTHES

Kingston, St. Vincent, Monday, July 21.—There was another severe earthquake here at 1:10 o'clock this morning. It was of long duration, and was accompanied by a repetition of the phenomena of Thursday last. The shock caused intense excitement among the inhabitants, who fled in their night clothes into the streets and remained out of doors until daybreak. Partially demolished buildings are being pulled down today for public safety. There was a thunder storm last night. Today the weather is very squally, and the sea is raging. Some people anticipate a tidal wave.

REMORSE CAUSED HIM TO DIE

St. Paul, July 22.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: The body of W. C. Craft, who was wanted for the murder of a fellow sheep herder at Lewistown, has been found in the northern part of Fergus county. An unsigned letter was found stating that he had killed Walter McClure, that the crime had haunted him to such an extent that he could not sleep, and that death was preferable to capture, and he blew his head off with the weapon that had been used to kill his companion. Craft was well known in sheep circles, having resided in Montana twelve years.

HER LIFE FOR HER PET DOG

La Salle, Ill., July 22.—Mrs. Ellen Wright, of this city, has lost her life here in an attempt to protect her pet dog. She, with her sister, Mrs. John Madison, were walking along the Illinois Central tracks. A passenger train was almost upon the dog, when Mrs. Wright leaped to its rescue. She tossed the dog to safety, but was unable to avoid the train which crushed her to death.

NOTHING FOR BRITONS

It Is Asserted That Mackay Foreseeing Prospect of Estate Being Mulcted By English Treasury Assigned Properly to Wife.

New York, July 22.—The chancellor of the British exchequer may get a goodly sum, says a World dispatch from London, from the estate of John W. Mackay.

In legal circles it is considered a nice point as to whether the British government is or is not entitled to claim the death duty of 8 per cent of what Mrs. Mackay may inherit under her husband's will, since, although not naturalized, she is domiciled in England.

A death duty must be paid on all the testator's investments in English securities, which are said to reach nearly $10,000,000. But Mr. Mackay's friends assert that foreseeing a prospect that his estate might be mulcted by the English treasury because his wife was domiciled there, he assigned to her four years ago the greater part of the fortune he intended to bequeath her, including his English investments, and that the balance of his fortune goes to his son.

San Francisco, July 22.—James L. Flood and Attorney G. W. McInerney have filed for record deeds signed by the late John W. Mackay for all the real estate which the latter owned in this city at the time of his death. They are drawn in favor of his wife, Marie Louis H. Mackay and his son, Clarence H. Mackay, who will share alike in all respects. In the three parcels of real estate transferred the consideration in two is love and affection and in the third a nominal sum is named.

Two were drawn in New York city on Dec. 21, 1900, before George H. Corey, commissioner of deeds for California. They give to Mrs. Mackey and her only son the Grand opera house in this city and the valuable property at the southwest corner of Fourth and market streets. One was drawn in San Francisco before Notary Public Holland Smith on March 20, 1902, during Mackay's last visit here, and it disposes of an undivided one-half interest in the Nevada block, at Montgomery and Pine streets.

Mackay's purpose in signing the deeds and entrusting them to Flood, his old time friend, is thought to be because he wanted to make easier and less expensive to his heirs the administration of his estate.

HOW TO BEAT MORGAN

Senator Drummond Tells Commons Committee That a Heavily Subsidized Steamship Line to Canada Would Do the Business.

London, July 22.—The house of commons committee appointed to inquire into the question of steamship subsidies was in session this morning and examined Senator G. A. Drummond of Montreal. Mr. Drummond said he had arrived at the conclusion from recent developments of American shipping combines that the land lines practically controlled the situation and that the ocean lines were merely adjuncts. At first sight it would appear that the purchase of a number of old British steamers by the American combination could be remedied by building new boats. But he believed that if this was done by a new organization it could be made unprofitable by the Americans who, by means of through bills of lading from the producing centers, could control freights as well as a considerable portion of the passenger traffic. He believed that the only hope of escape from the control of the American shipping combine lay through Canada. Therefore he advocated a speedy, up-to-date service of twenty-two knot steamers between Great Britain and Halifax instead of New York. Such a line ought to be subsidized to the extent of £300,000 to £400,000 yearly for ten years, half payable by Great Britain and half by Canada. Thereafter, he believed, the line if judiciously managed, would be self-supporting. It would be advantageous to both countries to cement the trade between Canada and Great Britain.

SPAH-PAH-BEAR IS DIVORCED

Guthrie, Okla., July 22.—The first case on record where a full-blooded Indian has petitioned for a divorce has occurred in the federal court at Pawnee when Spah-Pah-Bear asked a legal separation from his wife, Mad-Bear. He charged her with infidelity, abandonment and with gross neglect of her household duties. The plaintiff was very old and almost blind and was accompanied by several sons and daughters. The wife did not appear in court. The evidence was taken through interpreters. Judge Haines granted the divorce.

PHENOMENON AT THE GULF

New Orleans, July 22.—Lieut. Foster, in charge of the New Orleans branch of the United States hydrographic office, reported to Washington that a recent survey of the Gulf of Mexico near the mouth of the Mississippi river shows only twenty-five fathoms of water, where there were sixty fathoms at the time of the previous survey. Lieut. Foster is puzzled over the phenomenon. Many believe that it was caused by volcanic upheavals, the result of the recent earthquakes in the West Indies, while others think it is caused by a deposit of silt from the Mississippi river. As a result of the discovery the government will probably order a new survey of the entire Gulf of Mexico.

JEALOUSY CAUSED MURDER

Harrisburg, Pa., July 22.—William Filer, a steel worker, shot and killed his wife, Clara Filer and Harry Bennett, a machinist today at Steelton, near here. The Filers and Bennett were boarding at the same house and it is alleged that Filer was jealous of Bennett's attentions to his wife. The parties had a bitter quarrel last night and Filer left the house. He returned this morning and the quarrel was renewed. The husband drew his revolver and shot Bennett, killing him instantly. Mrs. Filer ran into the street followed by her husband, who shot her through the heart. She died while being carried into the house. Filer escaped and is still at large. Filer and Bennett were employed at the Pennsylvania steel works, and have lived at Steelton but a short time, and no one seems to know where they came from.

THE ELY SHOOTING

Anton Schuster the Man Who Did the Deed.

Row a Trivial One Concerning a Small Board Bill.

Schuster Claims He Had No Intention of Killing Anyone.

Anton Schuster must go before the grand jury in September on the charge of killing Peter Klaneczek at Ely Sunday.

The coroner's jury last night held him responsible for the crime, and it remains for twelve men, good and true, to establish his guilt or innocence.

Schuster waived an examination and was bound over to the grand jury this morning. County Attorney McClintock returned from Ely yesterday noon, where he conducted the examination at the inquest.

As is usual with Austrian fights and killings the cause of the disturbance was trivial. This time the discussion of a $5 board bill, in which Schuster was not interested, led up to the row. The men had been to a christening, and after having indulged freely in the amber colored fluid, they returned to their boarding houses. Two men got into a row over a small board bill, when the man who kept a boarding house nearby went into his home and procured a big revolver, which he fired three times into the air. By this time the bottles, rocks and sticks were flying about, and he discharged the gun simply to frighten the combatants.

The firing did not have the desired effect, and then Schuster joined the artillery brigade. He went into the house and returned shortly with a shot gun. He slipped in a load and fired into the crowd. Klaneczek fell to the ground and died almost instantly. The had filled his breast, and many of the leaden pellets struck his heart.

After the shooting the remainder of the party went to the house. The police were soon on hand and arrested Schuster with four others. He admits the shooting, but as an excuse states that he did not fire at any one in particular, and in fact did not know until ten minutes afterwards that he had killed a man.

Schuster has been in this country but two months. The men are Austrian miners, and an interpreter was needed to get their testimony. Schuster will arrive in the city tomorrow morning.

AT THE HOTELS

The Duluth hotels are just beginning to feel the effects of the summer tourist traffic, coming by lake and rail. The season is three weeks behind time this year, and it ought to have been in full blast long ago. Within the past few days, however, the hotel registers have begun to fill up with addresses that indicate that the owners are far enough from home to be tourists. The boats are bringing in full loads for the first time this season, and this is felt immediately by the hotels.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

New Haven, Addison Co., Vt.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y.

Gentlemen—About a year ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I run down in weight from one hundred and ninety-five to a hundred and forty-five pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine but received little or no help. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root highly recommended for kidney trouble, but I never had any idea that my kidneys were effected. I thought I would try a fifty-cent bottle of Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I commenced taking it according to directions, and in a few days I saw that it was helping me. I used the fifty-cent bottle and then bought two more dollar bottles, and they completely cured me. I have got back to my original weight, one hundred and ninety-five pounds, and I am a thorough advocate of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Very Truly,

Feb. 17, 1902. WM. M. PARTCH.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root. If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

FOUND DEAD.

Employe of Wild West Dies Suddenly In Superior.

Harry Barnum, an employe of the Buffalo Bill Wild West, was found dead in bed at the Northern hotel in Superior this morning at an early hour.

The regular man whose duty it is to lay out the ground preparatory to the arrival of the show and meet the train when it comes, was sick and Mr. Barnum undertook the work. Last evening he left a call for 3:30 o'clock this morning to meet the train.

When the hotel employes went to his room this morning they were unable to obtain any response. The room was entered and he was found dead in bed, apparently from heart failure.

Mr. Barnum was 75 years of age and had been all his life in the show business. Years ago he was with several of the old time circuses and finally joined the Barnum & Bailey forces. He was one of the "old guard" who chose to follow the road, even though he had reached the age where he could claim honorable retirement. With all the employes of the company he was popular and Mr. Bailey regarded him with a peculiar affection, so much so that, although his period of usefulness was really past, he kept him on the rolls and permitted him to follow the road every year, in accordance with his inclination.

He is known to have a sister in Norwich, N. Y., but no other relatives are known of.

Col. Cody, Mr. Saulsbury and others connected with the show, will care for the body and see that it finds a last resting place in his former home.

MOON BROS.' THEATER.

The large patronage at the Moon Bros. canvas theater still continues, and last night the tent was packed to its capacity to see the Barbour Theater company's production of "A Black Spider." New specialties were given between the acts. Tonight the same bill will be repeated.

TO CONTINUE IT.

First Voters Republican Club to Be Reorganized.

The First Voters' Republican club, which was organized during the campaign of 1900, is to be turned into a "Young Men's Republican club" at a meeting called for tomorrow night in the council chamber at the city hall.

The club was, of course, good for but one election, as its members are no longer "first voters." A movement to start a Young Men's Republican club has been on foot for several weeks, and it has been decided to reorganize the First Voters' club and make it the basis for the new club.

It is the expectation of those who are organizing the club to make it one of the largest and most effective political associations in the Republican party in this county, and branches will be organized all over the county, giving one to each community that will support it.

CHAMBERLAIN REPLIES

To Notice of Demonstration From Calumet.

Calumet, Mich., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—An advance notice and a write-up of the peace demonstration held by those of English birth or parentage in Calumet, June 28, was mailed to Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary, soon after. A. R. Parnall, who acted as secretary of the demonstration, has received the following reply:

"Colonial Office, London, July 7, 1902.—Mr. A. R. Parnall, Calumet, Mich., Dear Sir: Mr. Chamberlain desires me to express to you his thanks for your letter of June 20, sending him particulars of a 'Peace Demonstration' to be held in the district of Calumet, Mich., and to say that he has read the account of the meeting with much pleasure. Your faithfully,

"ROBERT BROWNLEY,
"Secretary."

PRIOR IS OBDURATE

Still Claims His Dog Is Exempt From Local Taxation.

Will Carry the Matter to the Highest Court.

Asserts That He Is Only Taxable By Congressional Act.

The United States supreme court may be called upon to decide the brain-fatiguing question of whether or not a certain Duluth dog can be taxed without President Roosevelt calling a special session of congress for that special purpose.

James Prior, proprietor of the dog, is keeper of the United States lighthouse on Minnesota Point. When the police politely requested him to pay a dog license of $1.25 he clung to a United States mail box and between struggles informed the officers that his dog was exempt from local and state taxation.

The police scorned the idea and as they loaded Mr. Prior into the patrol wagon in a friendly way, they advised him to the effect that his knowledge of law was excessively defective.

Therefore, Mr. Prior hired him a good lawyer and the attorney takes the same stand that the dog—the dog is exempt from taxation except by congress.

Yesterday Mr. Prior was placed on trial in police court charged with keeping an unlicensed dog. Judge Gearhart found him guilty despite argument to the effect that the dog was exempt. Mr. Prior was fined $1 and costs amounting to $3.50 in all.

Mr. Prior's attorney moved a stay of twenty days in which to appeal the case, saying that if necessary he could win the case in the United States supreme court.

The point made is this. The land on which the lighthouse is located was ceded to the United States by the state of Minnesota in the same manner that the District of Columbia was ceded to the federal government by Virginia and Maryland.

Therefore it is held by Mr. Prior and his legal advisers that the same laws of taxation and exemption applying to the District of Columbia apply to that little forty foot government lot on Minnesota Point. The dog, according to the lighthouse keeper is United States property and is never allowed off the government reservation.

If the next court overrules the decision of the municipal court, it may be up to President Roosevelt to call a special session of congress or the dog may not be taxed this year.

It is probable that the business interests of the country would oppose the extra session most strenuously.

The following wireless message was received at noon today:

Oyster Bay, July 22.—Senator Hanna and Secretary Root called on the president today and for four hours they were closely closeted in a grave consultation in how best to meet the crisis without disturbing business conditions, in case an extra session of congress should be demanded to tax Jim Prior's dog.

When Mr. Hanna left the house at 1:15 he was evidently worried and declined to give out any statement for publication. From authentic sources it was learned he had difficulty in restraining the president from taking the first train West for the purpose of killing the dog. Mr. Hanna urged arbitration, saying that such impetuous action would be sure to precipitate a crisis.

Mr. Root left the house shortly after Mr. Hanna and admitted that the situation was so delicate that he has been compelled to abandon his proposed trip to Europe.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—S. S. Morrel has been appointed postmaster at Grandy, Isanti county, vice Charles Mattson, dead.

A Time of Anxiety for Thousands.

Paine's Celery Compound

Will Banish the Summer Blues and Other Distresses That Make Life Miserable and Unhappy.

This is the season when we hear men and women complaining about their unhappy and half-dead condition. They find that physical and mental energy has deserted them, and they are sinking deeply in the pit of despondency.

The hot summer weather always produces thousands of miserable feeling mortals. They lack nerve force, strength and true vitality. They cannot rest day or night, and life becomes a burden.

The greatest recuperator, builder and strength-giver for all weary, wornout and suffering people is Paine's Celery Compound, now so universally prescribed by medical men. When the great medicine is used at this season, languor, despondency, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia, and digestive troubles are permanently banished, and men and women go about their duties and work with a vim, will, and energy that indicate health and physical strength.

Mr. J. H. Clark, Newark, Del., who was in a critical condition of health from troubles extremely common in summer time, writes thus about his marvelous rescue from death:

"When I was attacked with nervous prostration, I went to one of our local doctors. I continued to grow worse, and consulted other physicians, but with very little apparent good. No tongue can express or pen describe my feelings and suffering from this terrible disease. After spending considerable money in the vain hope of being cured, I was led to try Paine's Celery Compound, and it is this medicine which enabled me to enjoy the health I now have. After the torture I experienced night and day for years, the change is wonderful."

THE MINES.

Matter of Valuations to Come Before Board Tomorrow.

The consideration of the valuations of the rich mining properties in this county will take up the time at the meeting of the board of equalization which meets tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

In accordance with a custom established some years ago the mine owners will submit valuations of the several properties and when the board decides to raise the same, as it no doubt will, they ask that it be made equally from the standard presented by them so that each property be similarly affected.

An interesting session is promised for tomorrow as there is a great difference of opinion as to how much of a raise should be made. Commissioner Kugler favors a high raise. He thinks that the little towns on the ranges need the money and that when it comes to roads and other improvements there will not be such a drain on the fund reserved for that purpose. He would support what some might call a very high raise. Other members of the board are more conservative in their views.

The board held a short session yesterday afternoon, but only routine matters were brought up at that time. The board invites protests on valuations from dissatisfied people.

LOST AND FOUND.

Woman Drops Costly Jewels on Sleeping Car Floor.

Mrs. William L. Hixon lost and recovered $2000 worth of jewels within a half day last Friday.

She came to Duluth to visit her sister, Mrs. Whitney Wall, and as she passed down the aisle of the sleeping car on the Northern Pacific train from St. Paul, dropped a chamois skin bag containing the jewels on the floor of the car.

A short time later the porter, C. E. Miller, picked the bag up. When he opened it and looked inside upon the glittering array of jewels his eyes bulged to considerably more than their ordinary size, for he saw that they were of much value.

He immediately wired the office in St. Paul of his find. Early in the afternoon Mr. Wall and Mrs. Hixon called at the office of the railroad company to inquire if the bag had been found.

They quickly proved the property and Mrs. Hixon left a happy woman bearing her lost jewels. Incidentally the porter received a substantial reward.

He has a mother and sister living in Milverton. They have been notified, but up to noon today the authorities had heard nothing from them.

NO CAUSE FOUND

For Suicide of Anna Krutzer of St. Paul.

St. Paul, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Anna Kreuzer, who drowned herself in the Mississippi river by jumping from a wing dam on the west side, opposite Indian Mounds park Sunday evening, was found at the foot of Water street this morning. Coroner Miller had the body taken to the morgue. Nothing has so far developed to show why Miss Kreuzer ended her life. The police are investigating the case, but can find no cause for the girl's rash act.

A SPLIT

Will Occur In Republican Party Unless Some One Yields.

Chicago, July 22.—William H. Curtis, in his New York correspondence to the Record-Herald, says: It is difficult to see how a split in the Republican party is to be avoided unless somebody yields. This morning I saw two of the "boxers" who defeated the Cuban reciprocity bill in the senate, and both declared with unnecessary emphasis that President Roosevelt's confidence in the adoption of that measure at the next session of congress was very much misplaced. One of them went so far as to declare that the bill would not receive as much support at the next session as it had at the last, and asserted that the only thick-and-thin supporters the president had on the Republican side in that fight were Platt, of Connecticut, Lodge and Beveridge. He says that if a vote had been taken by a secret ballot in the Republican caucus the president's policy would have received the support of perhaps five men, possibly six, and no more, and that if it had been proposed by any other man than Roosevelt it would have received no support at all.

Those are the sentiments of an extreme sugar beet senator, and must be accepted with caution, but some of the supporters of the president think he is over sanguine in his expectations that the senate will adopt his recommendations next winter. He intends to make a great fight for them, and one of the objects of his speechmaking tour through the country this fall is to preach reciprocity, although several of the "boxers" have begged him not to do it.

When Theodore Roosevelt is advocating a cause he thinks is right, there isn't much use trying to gag him, and in the states and districts which those "boxers" represent, he will plead his cause with even greater earnestness and persistence than otherwise. He is convinced that the people are with him, and he will ask them to express their views in a manner that may not be mistaken by their representatives in congress.

It seems the senators and representatives had known what he is going to talk about, they would not have been so urgent in pressing him to visit their constituents.

HIRAM MAXIM'S PLANS.

Strong In His Belief of Final Success.

St. Louis, July 22.—Sir Hiram Maxim, the famous engineer and inventor, sends word from London home to President Francis of the World's fair that he will go to work as soon as his health will permit upon new experiments for a flying machine. Sir Hiram is slowly recovering from an attack of bronchitis, and has gone to the South of France for a course of special treatment at one of the baths. He expects to return Sept. 1. His idea, as is generally known, is a machine which will have either the smallest relation or none at all to a balloon. He firmly believes that an effective machine can be made with which to navigate the air. He has already spent about $75,000 in experiments, and is just as strong as ever in his belief of final success. It is extremely probable a little later in the year, if his health is fully restored, that he will come to St. Louis and enter more fully upon the matter, giving the committee the benefit of his experiments and of his great knowledge of aeorastatics.

ZENOTA FLOUR GUARANTEED

DULUTH-SUPERIOR MILLING CO. ZENOTA FLOUR DULUTH, MINN.

AT WEST DULUTH

It is reported in milling circles that the purchase by the Red Cliff Lumber company of the Duncan & Brewer sawmill plant in West Duluth will seriously curtail the cut of the St. Louis mill, which was being counted on for an all winter run. The St. Louis mill is said to have been planning on the all winter run of F. L. Gilbert's logs, but now that the Red Cliff company has a mill of its own, of which it will take possession October 1, the chances are said to be good that the company will put in a hot pond, enclose the mill and saw its own timber. There is no hot pond at the Duncan & Brewer mill, but it is said that one could be constructed in a short time, and that the sawmill is not so large but that it would be an easy matter to board it up for the winter run. If these conditions exist the St. Louis Lumber company will be looking elsewhere for its next winter's cut.

HAD A BIG TIME.

Director Harry Lanners, of the Lanners concert band, has returned from a two weeks' stay at Devils Lake, N. D., where he has been playing in the North Dakota First regiment band, during the state encampment of the militia. Mr. Lanners had a delightful time and a time that was not so pleasant, one in which poison ivy figures quite extensively.

The Chautauqua assembly is now in progress at Devils Lake, and there are hundreds of visitors there, making it a very lively summer resort. A high class of entertainments are provided, consisting of lectures, music and other features usually found at the Chautauqua summer resorts. Mr. Lanners also visited a number of the North Dakota towns while on his trip, including Fargo, Jamestown, Leeds, Lisbon and others. He says that he was surprised to note the air of prosperity about every one of the towns. Business conditions were excellent and everybody seemed to be hustling. The farmers were expecting good crops, and some had already begun harvesting about Jamestown. Lisbon he characterized as an especially lively western town and one that is more progressive than many cities of six times its size. The First regiment band comes from Lisbon.

Mr. Lanners witnessed the series of three games between the Fargo and Devils Lake ball teams, in which Fargo won two out of three. He says the North Dakota sports are the warmest proposition that he ever saw in the Northwest. They are ardent rooters, and will bet on every point in the game. He saw bets made that a man would or would not reach first base, that he would make a safe hit or that he would get around to all the bases. A good deal of money changed hands during the course of a game. Wanner, who was with the Duluth team two years ago, is now catching for the Fargo team. Bandelin, also well known to the baseball fraternity here, is managing the Fargo team this year and playing good ball.

ORDINATION CEREMONIES.

An event of no little interest in church circles here will be the ordination ceremonies at the Westminster Presbyterian church when Rev. W. J. Lowrie will be ordained and given charge of the Bay View Heights and Westminster Presbyterian churches. Among the clergymen from other fields that will be present are Rev. Mr. Sutherland of Lakeside, Rev. Mr. Gilt of Two Harbors, and Rev. S. A. Jamieson of Duluth.

FOR SUNDAY OPENING.

The police department has preferred charges against Carpenter Brothers, who own a saloon at Thirty-ninth avenue west, for violating the Sunday liquor law. The action is said to be the result of a fight that took place between two men by the name of Sherman and Eagen, while both were intoxicated.

MARY MANN NOT STUCK.

Captain Mann wishes it understood by the excursion trade at the head of the lakes that the steamer Mary Mann has been basely maligned by the statement that she was hung up on a sand bar with two barges in tow filled with excursionists Sunday night. In fact, the captain says that the Mary Mann behaves better than that, and furthermore she has not yet this season jammed her nose or her heels in the sandy bottom of the St. Louis river. Sunday evening Captain Mann assisted in pulling a West Superior boat loaded with excursionists from a sand bar near Clough island, and carried many of the people to West Superior. Captain Mann says that it was the best day's business that the Mary Mann ever did.

WANT THE WATER.

Farmers Secure Injunction Against City of Denver.

Denver, July 22.—About a hundred farmers, consumers of water along the city ditch, have filed suit in the district court asking that an injunction issue to restrain the city of Denver from giving permission to the Denver Union Water company to run the city ditch water through its pipes. The complaints aver that the water is a necessity to them and that their right is prior to that of the water company. Judge Johnson issued a temporary injunction.

WILL VISIT CZAR.

King to Make Trip to St. Petersburg.

New York, July 22.—It is learned from a reliable source that King Edward will visit the czar in the latter part of September, cables the Copenhagen correspondent of the New York American.

Immediately after the coronation Queen Alexandria comes to Denmark to join her sister, the dowager czarina, the king following about Sept. 1. The king and queen will go to St. Petersburg after a two weeks' stay in Denmark, sailing on the royal yacht under escort of a British and Russian warship. Most likely the king will visit the kaiser on his return journey.

RETURNED FROM ASYLUM.

Schmidt Will Now Be Tried For Assault.

New Richmond, Wis., July 22.—Julius Schmidt, second miller in the Burkhardt roller mills at Burkhardt, who made a murderous assault on his wife last January, while in a jealous frenzy, has been returned to the jail in Hudson from the state asylum at Mendota. He will have an examination before Justice Disney in Hudson next Thursday. The charge against him is assault with intent to murder. He attempted his own life after shooting the wife. The shots were fired from a small caliber gun. Both the husband and wife fully recovered. Schmidt's defense will probably be insanity.

TO BUILD A SCHOOL

Cathedral Parish to Erect Fine One, Costing $30,000.

Site Is Opposite Cathedral on Second Avenue Corner.

Association Hall and Present School Will Be Removed.

By the time snow flies this winter the cathedral parish of the Roman Catholic church will have a large, handsome and costly building erected at the southwest corner of Fourth street and Second avenue west, opposite the cathedral.

I. V. Hill, the architect, is now engaged in drawing plans for the new building, which is to include a school, a club house and a hall or theater, all arranged in the most complete and up-to-date manner possible.

The ground on which it is to be constructed is now occupied by a school house, the Association hall and the club house, all of which will have to be demolished before the new building is started.

The building will have a frontage of 110 feet on Fourth street, and it will be 124 feet deep. It will be built of brick and cut stone, and it will have three stories on Fourth street and four stories on Second avenue. The designs for it are unique, and it is expected that the building will be very handsome, embodying some ideas in exterior decorations never before used in this city. The main entrance will be on Fourth street, and it will be surrounded by ornate and ingenious carved stone decorations, running up into the second story. There will also be a handsome entrance on the avenue.

The avenue entrance will lead into the basement floor and will continue on into the first of Fourth street floor, the basement will be a gymnasium, a playroom for children and the heating plant.

The club rooms will be on the first floor, and they will include a dining room and its appurtenances. The class rooms will be on the third floor, and on the fourth floor will be the hall, which will be built on the style of a theater, with a stage capable of holding 200 children, with a main auditorium and one gallery.

Work will be begun as soon as the plans, which are not yet very far advanced, are completed. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by winter, though possibly some of the inside finishing will not be completed before later in the winter. The plans are not far enough advanced to determine the cost, but it is said that it will be upwards of $75,000.

The Post Check.

A bill has been before congress to retire the present five, two and one dollar bills and substitute notes, payable at any postoffice, which shall pass as currency. If it becomes a law it will prove as invaluable to many forms of business as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to those who are weak and sickly. To such persons this medicine will prove a blessing, because it contains only such ingredients as will build up the stomach and restore the appetite and cure heartburn, belching, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and insomnia. Don't fail to try it, but do not accept a substitute, if you value your health. There is no medicine so good as the Bitters. For sale by druggists.

TO IMPROVE.

Coolidge Company Purchaser of New Duluth Mill Site.

The Coolidge Fuel & Supply company of Minneapolis, through C. B. Brooks, its manager, has purchased the old Clark & Jacobson mill site at New Duluth, consisting of about 27 acres of yards, advantageously situated on the St. Louis river, and with a large water frontage.

The Coolidge Fuel & Supply company is a lumber manufacturing concern, and deals largely in railroad supplies. It handles both pine and hardwood timber. The company has taken immediate possession, the deal being closed yesterday, and will proceed to improve the property. For a time the yards will be used simply for the storage of the company's lumber and timber, but eventually a sawmill will be built. The yards have not been in use for a number of years, the mill formerly occupying the site having been burned down.

The new industry will aid greatly in advancing the interests of that portion of the city and will in time be an important industrial concern of Duluth.

Through some misunderstanding it was rumored yesterday that the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company had purchased the site, C. B. Brooks' name being confused with that of Mr. Brooks of the Brooks-Scanlon company.

BIG FELLOW.

Dr. French Catches Eight Pound Trout In Sucker River.

Sucker river, which is not of especial moment ordinarily in the list of north shore streams, rose yesterday afternoon into rivalry with the far-famed Nepigon, the home of big trout.

Dr. C. E. French, of Duluth, yesterday afternoon, caught a steelhead trout in Sucker river that weighed over eight pounds. It was twenty-five inches in length, and it is by all odds the largest trout ever caught in a north shore stream, outside of the Nepigon, so far as reported.

The fish gave Dr. French, who was exhibiting it about town last night, the fight that would be expected from such a monster of the gamest tribe of fish that swims. He was fishing with ordinary tackle, using a large fly with bait on one of the hooks, and the fight between him and the fish lasted for some time. Finally he was able to drag it up near enough to the bank to kill it with a rock, when he got it ashore. Before being dressed the fish weighed over eight pounds, but it was full of eggs, two pounds of which were removed from it.

There are large fish in some of the north shore streams this side of the Nepigon, some of the Reservation river trout running up to four pounds, but no such fish as this has ever been reported before. The steelhead were planted in Sucker river five years ago, but the fish caught yesterday could hardly be young enough to have been among the fry planted then. It is supposed that it must have made its way by lake from some other stream.

The fish was caught in a pool between the railroad bridge and the mouth of Sucker river, and its captor says that he has caught a large number of steelheads there running up to a pound in weight. Sucker river has not been in particular good repute among trout fishermen, but it will doubtless attract many of them now.

SPECIAL

Session of Ohio Legislature Called For August 25.

Columbus, Ohio, July 22.—Governor Nash issued a proclamation this morning, convening the legislature in special session at 3 p. m., Aug. 25. He states in the proclamation that he will present a message then stating the objects for which the session has been called. The principal objects are to provide for the government of municipalities—the supreme court having set aside existing laws—and to repeal the Royer act almost wholly, depriving the supreme court of jurisdiction.

DELICATE QUESTION

In Acceptance By Judge Taft of Pope's Gifts.

Matter Was Referred to Secretary Root By Governor.

Instructed Their Acceptance If Not of Great Value.

Washington, July 22.—Governor Taft has acquainted Secretary Root with the fact reported in the news dispatches from Rome that the pope had tendered several pretty and appropriate gifts to himself and members of his party, and he has asked whether thees can lawfully be accepted. It was at once recognized that the question thus presented involved some very delicate and interesting points, principal among them being a possible decision, expressly to be avoided at this stage in the opinion of the officials, as to the temporal powers of the pope. If these were decorations or gifts of large value, then under the constitutional inhibition they might not be received without authority of congress if the pope is regarded as having temporal power—as being a prince, potentate or a sovereign. Secretary Root has, however, avoided an unpleasant decision of this question by informing Governor Taft that if these gifts are not of considerable intrinsic value, and personal in character, they may be accepted as mere souvenirs, in which case the personality of the giver need not be a matter of official inquiry.

On the other hand, if the gifts are of exceptional value, which is not believed to be the case from the newspaper reports, than they may be deposited in the Smithsonian institution, in this city.

DEMENTED.

Unfortunate Individual Found on Outskirts of Tower.

The city of Tower is now sheltering a demented man that is supposed to have wandered hundreds of miles over the country.

His mind is a total blank, but from papers found in his possession the authorities believe that he is from a hospital at San Francisco. He was discovered a few days ago on the outskirts of the town with a crowd of tramps. While not one of their number, they were caring for him. The man is about 30 years of age and from his talk is supposed to have served in the United States navy. He has a hospital ticket from the Mare Island navy yard hospital of San Francisco. His mind is a total blank as far as the past is concerned, and he has been unable to tell the Tower officials how he came there.

They are now in communication with State Agent Gates to see what disposition shall be made of the unfortunate. He is not confined in the jail, but spends his time wandering about the town. He talks quite intelligently.

Would Succeed Kugler.

Another man appeared yesterday who wants the position on the board of county commissioners now held by Fred Kugler. His name is Fred Solberg, and he filed for the Republican nomination yesterday. George Schulenberg filed for the same place on the same ticket a few days ago, while Commissioner Kulger has yet to be heard from. He has given out that he is a candidate, however. He was elected on the fusion ticket in a three-cornered fight.

Both sons left this morning for Kiel, and Mr. Fitger will go there this evening. The funeral services will be held Thursday. Mrs. Krieger was known to many Duluth people, having visited here several times.

Have You Attended the Sale of Oriental Rugs?

Every piece, excepting the room or carpet sizes, are HALF former prices—It isn't a question of profit, but simply a question of how best can we get them out of our house without sacrificing too much in dollars and cents. Anybody at all interested in high-class foreign floor coverings knows how choice our stock of them has been—and is—there is hardly a home of any consequence in this city, whose floors are not graced by some of our beautiful pieces—with us it is no side issue, but a very important branch of our business—and will be more important than ever when we are able to give them the room they require to display them properly—the addition to our present building will furnish that—but until then it will be dirt and dust and noise—besides we desire to start in with entirely new stock. These are in short the reasons for such radical price concessions on Oriental Rugs—that never go out of fashion—and that are actually worth more after they have been in your home many years and worn, than when you bought them.

We have never before known such rapid selling of them as today and yesterday have been—and the stock is dwindling down—but we still have some very fine pieces left in the small, medium and room sizes, as well as hall runners—however, at the present rate that they are going out we may announce the closing of the sale at any time—come!

CHESS.

The Second Round Has Begun In International Tourney.

Hanover, Prussia, July 22.—Round one of the Berger system furnished the pairing for the second round of the chess masters' international tourney begun yesterday under the auspices of the German Chess association of this city, and the players therefore faced each other as follows: Swiderski vs. Mieses, Mason vs. Olland, Levin vs. Marshall, Cohn vs. Wolf, Gottschall vs. Gunsberg, Tschigorin vs. Atkin, Pillsbury vs. Napier, Janowski vs. Bardeleben and Popiel vs. Suechtung. The usual adjournment was made at 1 o'clock this afternoon when two games had been decided. Gunsberg beat Gottschall and Popiel and Suechtung agreed on a draw shortly before the adjournment was taken.

The onlookers were greatly surprised owing to the American Napier managing to get a superior position against his countryman Pillsbury, and it was thought here that the latter would lose the game when play was resumed in the afternoon. The American player, Marshall also had a winning chance against Levin, but the other games were adjourned in even positions.

Up to date Gunsberg has won one and one half; Atkins, Bardeleben, Janowski, Mieses, Olland and Wolf one each and Pillsbury, Popiel, Suechtung, Swiderski and Tschigorin one half game each.

VERY TREACHEROUS

Were Touregs Who Killed Marquis de Mores.

Tunis, July 22.—At the second day of the trial at Susa of El Kheir and Hamma Chiek, charged with the murder of the Marquis de Mores in 1896, Col. Rebillet was the first witness, and the testimony of Gen. Laroque was read. Both officers declared that they sought to dissuade the marquis from starting on the expedition which resulted in his death. De Mores said to Gen. Laroque: "I am only risking my own life, and that is my business."

The general replied: "But the failure of your expedition may retard our penetration into the Sahar for ten or twenty years."

Col. Rebillet testified that the Marquis de Mores promised to take the road to Bid-Es-Sol, but he did not keep his word, and proceeded in the direction of Tripoli. De Mores' death, according to the witness, was due to the false idea of the chivalrous character of the Touregs, whereas they were treacherous and bloodthirsty.

TENNIS TOURNEY.

Play Resumed at the Fourteenth Annual Meet.

Chicago, July 22.—Play was resumed today in the fourteenth annual western tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Kenwood country club. Today it is expected the third round in singles and the first and second rounds in the doubles will be completed. The tourney will cover the entire week, the winding up the coming Saturday, when R. D. Little of Princeton, present western champion, and Alexander and Little, champions in doubles, will defend their titles.

OLD FEUD

Likely to Be Renewed In Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—James Cockrell, town marshal of Jackson, Breathitt county, who was brought here last night mortally wounded, died at 6:50 this morning. He was shot from the court house window at Jackson at noon yesterday by an unknown assailant. Friends say they fear his death will be the signal for a prolonged and disastrous warfare. Cockrell was preparing to leave Jackson to get out of the feud when he was shot.

NINETY-SIX MISSING.

Hamburg, July 22.—The survivors of the steamship Primus, of Hamburg, which with 185 passengers on board, was cut in two and sunk by the tug Hansa yesterday, say that ninety-six of those who were on board that vessel at the time of the disaster, are missing.

The widest possible publicity should be given to the fact that summer diarrhoea in children and cholera infantum can always be cured by the judicious use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It never fails. When reduced with cold water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is very important when a medicine must be given to small children. For sale at Boyce's Drug Store.

WAS BURIED ALIVE.

Extraordinary Plot to Rob an Insurance Company.

In 1869 I accepted a position with a life insurance company that was doing a large business throughout the country. The issuing of large policies was seldom heard of at that time, and the solicitor who was able to secure an application for a large amount was the lion of the hour, and much sought after by other companies, writes T. F. McGraw in the Country Gentleman.

Lower Broadway was then the center of attraction, and scarcely an evening passed without a visit to old Niblo's Garden, the corridors of the Astor house, the Metropolitan and St. Nicholas hotels. Here would congregate the young business men, from the salesman to the man about town, and often acquaintances would be made during these rounds that threw considerable business my way.

While enjoying myself at Niblo's garden one evening my attention was attracted to four persons in one of the boxes to the left of the stage. The party consisted of two ladies and two gentlemen, one of the latter about 40 years old, the other a younger man. Their actions, mirth and apparent enjoyment of the play soon made them the center of attraction to the audience, as well as to the actors on the stage. When the play was over my curiosity prompted me to watch this party, and as they left, to follow them to their hotel, where I had an opportunity of observing them more closely as they ate a late evening meal—I doing likewise at a nearby table. They all drank wine, the older and finer-looking man drinking but little.

I dropped in at their hotel the following day, where I witnessed a fine game of billiards between the two men who had occupied the box the night before. Their skillful playing attracted considerable attention, and before the afternoon was gone I knew the two men as Mr. Livingstone and his brother-in-law, Mr. White. During the week that followed I met them quite often, and was invited one Saturday night to accompany them to the theater, where they introduced me to the two ladies mentioned, as their wives.

This acquaintance became mutually pleasant, especially so between Mr. Livingstone and myself—he being interested in a patent which he was anxious to sell, and I as anxious to assist for the sake of the benefit that might come to me from the sale. We often talked insurance matters together, I having suggested that he might do worse than to become an insurance agent. He replied that there was too much hard work in it to suit him; that he had rather a nice income of his own, but he had about concluded to give me an application for a policy, which he finally decided to do, provided he might divide up the yearly payments into two parts, and I to allow him one-half of my commission on his first payment.

You can scarcely judge of my surprise the next day when he requested me to make out an application for a $50,000 policy. So delighted was I that I requested him to go with me at once to the office of the insurance company for an examination. This examination was most rigid, the company's physicians pronouncing Mr. Livingstone to be the most worthy of insurance of any he had examined in several years. In the course of a few days the policy was issued, the money paid to the company in cash, of which I received my part, dividing the same with Mr. Livingstone, who took the policy and left for his home in St. Lawrence county, N. Y.

More than a thousand times did I wonder if the second payment would be made on that policy and I gain my commission. This anxiety proved to be needless, for at the proper time the company notified me that the payment had been made and I received my share of it.

About five months later the company received a telegram from the state of Massachusetts, where Mr. Livingstone had moved, informing them of his death. They immediately requested me to go there and investigate the matter and report to them, as they wished to pay the loss as soon as possible if all were right, for the sake of the benefit that was sure to come to them by the payment of so large a policy.

I went to the town in Massachusetts, where I saw Mr. Livingstone in his coffin, and I attended his funeral. These facts I telegraphed to the company, and they immediately made preparations to pay the loss from the Boston office—where I went with the widow and Mr. and Mrs. White.

The whole matter was given the greatest prominence in the New England papers; and I remained in the New England territory for several weeks helping the local agents, who were glad to divide with me for the good work which I did for them. Before leaving the state I visited the town where Mr. Livingstone died and placed some flowers and a wreath on his grave, and as I turned away I wiped the tears from my eyes—having almost learned to love the man. Within the year that followed I noticed in the papers that three good-sized policies had been paid in different sections of the country, the prompt payment of which had helped to make the insurance business unusually good.

One very hot day on lower Broadway I was astonished to meet a man so strikingly like Livingstone that I faltered for a moment, then passed on with the thought of how foolish to think of such a thing. Between that time and early fall I met this man several times, and finally I could not resist the temptation of stopping him and saying: "You are so much like a friend of mine that the likeness haunts me. Is your name Livingstone?" "Oh, no," he replied, and remarked that people often resembled each other. I said: "If you had sandy hair and no mustache, I could swear you were Livingston." He replied: "But I have brown hair and a brown mustache." We then passed on.

My feelings compelled me to relate this circumstance to the manager of the company, and he then showed me a letter from the agent in St. Lawrence county, who wrote that he was sure he had seen Livingstone in disguise in his town. The manager requested me to go into St. Lawrence county and investigate, which I did. When I reached the county the agent pointed out to me my friend of lower Broadway, who I thought had not seen me. I kept my eye upon him for the rest of the day, and had the pleasure of seeing him cross over into Canada, since which time he has not been seen.

Going back to the home company, I was requested to go with one of the best detectives that they could employ to the town where Livingstone had been buried and investigate the matter. We found the grave of Livingstone in as perfect condition as when I had placed the wreath on it some two years before. Not being satisfied with this, we went with a letter to the undertaker—which we claimed to be an order from Mrs. Livingstone to have him exhume the body and move it elsewhere for burial. He went with us to the grave and we saw it opened. The coffin was seemingly intact as when placed there. We then told the undertaker the truth regarding the matter, and he declined to proceed further with the work. We finally induced him to remove the cover from the upper part of the coffin, with the result that the body was not there—the coffin was empty.

If it had not been that both the undertaker and myself were present at the burial, nothing could have convinced us but that an empty coffin had been placed in the ground. The result prompted us to remove the coffin from the grave, and on so doing we found that the bottom of it was gone, and in digging downward we came to the top of a brick sewer which passed beneath the grave. Evidently these parties had calculated well, and were ready in the sewer to commence digging upward to remove Livingstone from the coffin as soon as the earth began to fall into the grave from above. Investigation proved that this sewer was being constructed at the very time when Livingstone was buried. His comatose state must have been either aided by the physician or was so perfect as to deceive him, as it did the undertaker. We all remembered that at the time of his burial his wife positively refused to have the body embalmed or put on ice, nor would she allow anyone to go where the body was unless she or Mr. White was present, and this hastened the burial.

Later investigation showed that these same parties had collected within the two years four policies, using much the same methods—none of which were investigated, as the companies considered it wiser to accept their losses and continue in a profitable business undisturbed than to stir up trouble.

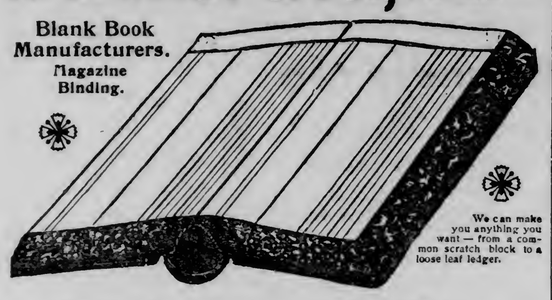

Since that time I have investigated and adjusted many claims for insurance companies, and my experience gained in these cases has aided me in preventing the collecting of many unjust claims against the companies; but never in all my thirty-five years of experience in the insurance business have I met four so expert in fraudulent practices as were the Livingstones and Whites.

AGRICULTURE NEGLECTED.

Secretary Wilson believes that not enough attention is paid to scientific agriculture by the colleges of today, and he has taken up the agitation of this matter as a hobby. Wherever he makes a speech he tells his hearers that his department utilizes the services of every young man it can find who has a thorough training in some branch of scientific agriculture, says the Brooklyn Engle. There is a great demand for this kind of service, and the department has the utmost difficulty in holding on to its experts because of the growing outside calls that are being made on them. There are about 2000 people in the department of agriculture who are engaged on scientific agricultural work, yet hardly one of them came into the government service fully equipped. Secretary Wilson calls attention to this fact to emphasize his statement that the colleges should give more thought and attention to the development of agricultural sciences. There are some fifty agricultural colleges in the country calling for competent teachers, and some sixty or seventy agricultural experiment stations where there is always an opening for a trained scientist. There is money in becoming an agricultural expert, and Secretary Wilson thinks that our young men would do well to chose such a profession rather than the overcrowded fields of law and medicine.

CAMPANILE.

Opposition Against Rebuilding the Great Tower.

Venice, July 22.—Side by side with the movement for rebuilding the campanile of St. Mark's, the minority is putting forward the desirability of seriously considering whether or not this is advisable.

While no one would have suggested laying sacreligious hands on the famous old tower, which seems to thousands the very embodiment of Venice, now that it is wrecked utterly beyond question of repair, some of the keenest lovers of Venice point out that there is one great drawback to the position of the campanile.

It guarded everything else and made St. Mark's cathedral seem small, and was not really of any advantage to the beauty of the square. They urge, accordingly, that no action should be taken towards the rebuilding of the campanile until the tall heap of ruins, which are fifty feet high, have been removed, and then viewing the square from an artistic standpoint. It is also suggested that the new tower would not be sacro sanct, as the old one was, and if the Italians persist in the attempt again to make Venice a leading seaport, the new campanile, and St. Mark's itself, may be sacrificed to dredging. Meanwhile the wonder increases at the miraculous way in which St. Mark's cathedral escaped. Standing in the open space at the corner of the church, one sees how the torrent of broken masses of masonry, marble, bronze and iron were hurled down from the central pyramid of the ruins and stopped short, exactly at the very corner of the church. The great white marble crown, with its historic bells, had been hurled towards the southwestern buttress of St. Mark's, but striking as on a rock on the low prophry column called the pietra della band, the shock was broken and the stream of masonry, parting asunder, ran on each side of it, leaving the church unharmed. This porphyry, called the "stone of edicts," which was about a yard and a half high and the same in diameter, and built a half yard deep into the pavement, was uprooted and cast three yards away. Its place was taken by a huge block of marble coping of the wall of the bell loggia, which was arrested exactly four inches from the corner stone of the column of St. Mark's.

LOVED HER.

Reason Given By Soldier For Killing His Wife.

Halifax, N. S., July 22.—George William Cook, a retired British soldier, is under arrest on the charge of murdering his wife, Lydia Arnold Cook, whom he married six weeks ago, by cutting her throat with a razor, at their apartments on Albemarle street, last night. After he committed the deed he went to sleep in the bed from which the body of his wife had fallen after being nearly decapitated. The murder was committed at the residence of Cook's wife's sister, Eliza Arnold, where the couple had resided since they were married.

At about 6:30 o'clock, Eliza Arnold heard her sister scream, and on going to her room, found her sister lying on the floor, partly under the bed, with her throat cut to such an extent that death must have been instantaneous. After Cook was placed under arrest the officer told him his wife was dead, when he replied: "Yes, I finished her; I cut her throat with a razor."

When asked why he killed his wife, he replied: "I loved her, and I am willing to die for her."

Cook is about 45 years old and served fourteen years in the Royal field artillery.

He told the police that he had a wife at Cape Tormentine, N. F. It is thought his wife made a desperate struggle before he finally succeeded in inflicting the wounds that caused her death.

Mrs. Cook was 42 years of age.

FIRE OUT.

Big Oil Blaze at Jennings Is Subdued By Steam.

Jennings, La., July 22.—The oil well fire was extinguished yesterday afternoon by the use of steam and without the aid of chemicals. Nine boilers of large capacity connected with two lines of four-inch pipe were set in the field to the north of the burning well. On of the lines was stationary and the other movable so as to follow the flames, and a man was stationed at each boiler to keep the steam pressure up to 125 pounds. It is estimated the combined boilers gave a 225 horse-power force. Two four-inch water lines were laid from the north with four two-inch connections, and fifty feet of hose on each connection, and were so arranged that the flames could be covered from the east, north and northwest. One of the pumps on the Jennings-Heywood oil syndicate well was used to force water and the other to force chemicals. The steam did the work, extinguishing the flames which have been raging for a week. The chemicals did not have to be used.

LONGSHOREMEN

Will Have Practical Control Over Lake Freight.

Chicago, July 22.—A long stride in the direction of enrolling every worker engaged in operating vessels on the great lakes, was taken yesterday by the executive board of International 'Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' association, when action was taken to admit every local branch of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association to membership.

This will give the 'Longshoremen's association almost entire control over the handling of all classes of freight carried in lake vessels, and also over the workmen engaged in piloting them in and out of port.

What effect the new alliance will have on the strike now being conducted by the licensed tugmen against the Great Lakes Towing company at almost every port on the great lakes, President D. J. Keefe refused to state last night, but it is probable that the 'longshoremen will refuse to load or unload vessels handled by tugs now under the ban of their new alliance. The licensed tugmen's organization has over 250 members, divided among twenty-eight local organizations on the chain of lakes.

MINNESOTAS WON

First Game of International Cricket at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., July 22.—The Minnesotas won a good victory yesterday in the first game of the international cricket tournament when they defeated the Dragoon team of Winnepeg. A close innings game, Minnesota winning on a hit by Clark, who was the tenth man at bat. Barwell 18, Hayward 10, and Ramsey 10, were the heavy scorers for Minnesota. Total score: Minnesota, 59; Winnipeg, 56.

Today the Minnesotas play the Assiniboia team from the Northwest territories and the Chicago Wanderers play the Manitobas.

CARDINAL DEAD.

Ledochowski Passes Away After a Long Illness.

Roce, July 22.—Cardinal Ledochowski, prefect of the congregation of the propaganda of the Roman Catholic church died this morning after a long illness.

Cardinal Ledochowski was born at Gork, Oct. 29, 1822, and was the descendant of an illustrious Polish family.

The pope on learning of the death of the cardinal, was greatly distressed and exclaimed: "A valiant fighter for the church and religion has gone. His memory be blessed."

The pope then knelt and prayed for the repose of the cardinal's soul.

With Cardinal Ledochowski's death, Cardinals San Stefano and Paroschi are the only surviving cardinals created by Pope Pius IX.

SUMMER SCHOOL

One Hundred and Twenty Enrolled at Present Time.

Everyone of Them Expects to Teach In the Fall.

Physical Culture and Musical Features Attract Attention.

The second week of the fifth annual summer school, being held at the high school building, finds an enrollment of 120 young men and women, all of whom expect to teach the young mind in the fall.

While the attendance is not quite as large as last year, all present expect to engage in teaching. The instructores in charge have endeavored to discourage all others from attending.

The physical culture department has attracted many, and Miss Rockwell, of the Toronto university, who is in charge, is meeting with much success. The music classes are better attended than ever before, and the work takes up chorus, quartet and other features which the teachers are expected to know. While a number attending the school have never yet taught, there are some who are old and experienced instructors, but who feel that a review of certain subjects is very beneficiary.

In speaking of the work now under way, County Superintendent Park said this morning: "I consider this the most valuable summer school we have ever held. The work is being taken up in earnest, and the men and women have the spirit of getting all the good out of the classes possible. Those present today, without exception, expect to teach in the fall."

Among those in attendance are a dozen Catholic sisters of mercy. This is the first time that they have taken part in the class work, although a few have been in attendance in other years.

The pupils registered are:

Alice N. Anderson, Esther L. Anderson, Pauline M. Anderson, Mary Arntsen, Elizabeth Bagnell, of Superior; Daisy Bassett, Stella L. HOPEFUL.

Palma Thinks Cuban Republic Will Pull Through Crisis.

Havana, July 22.—The Union Espanola publishes an interview with President Palma, in which the president says he has great hopes that the country will emerge victorious from her present financial and commercial crisis. He bases his hope upon the fact that American syndicates have shown their faith in the future of the island by buying up all the cigar factories, and investing heavily in sugar estates and other lands.

Senor Terry, secretary of agriculture, who is a sugar planter, considers that sugar can be grown with profit when it sell as 3 reals per 25 pounds if the planters can utilize the best methods of production. The speedy removal of sugar bounties, and the probable granting of concessions to Cuba by the United States will also aid in solving the problems now confronting the Cuban administration. Once the economic difficulty is solved the political question will present no difficulties. Annexation to the United States is impossible now. It will no teome until the Americans want it and when the Latin influence has ceased in Cuba.

NO RESULTS

Yet Accomplished By the Imperial Conference at London.

New York, July 22.—No important result has been accomplished by the imperial conference, which resumes its session today, says a London dispatch to the Tribune. The king's illness and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's accident have been obstacles to the development of enthusiasm over the work and while the debates are progressing on expected lines, there is little confidence among the premiers and ministers that effective measures will be adopted. The Canadians are not without hope that preference may be obtained for the Dominion, but admit that it will be a small matter, valuable chiefly as a precedent for future action in the direction of commercial union. The withdrawal of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach from the cabinet, while considered helpful for the future development of Mr. Chamberlain's policies, is without immediate effect, since his successor in the treasury has not been named. While adroit use will be made of the argument that the grain registration and wine duties can be relaxed for the benefit of Canada and Australia without increasing the burdens of the British taxpayers, there is only a slender chance that the principle of preferential treatment will be sanctioned by the conference.

WOULD GAIN NOTHING.

An Appeal By Gen. Smith Would Be Useless.

Washington, July 22.—Friends of Gen. Jacob H Smith, who was placed on the retired list by direction of the president, for his order to "kill and burn" in Samar and make the island a "howling wilderness," contend that the president exceeded his authority and that the order has no legal effect.

That the president has the power to retire Gen. Smith on account of age is not denied, but he cannot do so, these people assert, as part of the court-martial sentence. By virtue of his office as commander-in-chief of the army, the president has the power to review court-martial proceedings and to mitigate a sentence, but has no power to increase the sentence. This is what he did in the case of Gen. Smith. He has not only approved the action of the court, but he has also increased the severity of the punishment. The result, it is asserted by those familiar with military statutes, is to vitiate the proceedings.

The friends of Gen. Smith say he will appeal to the civil courts to be restored to the active list of the army. But even if the courts shall order his restoration to his former status, Gen. Smith would win a barren victory. All the president would have to do would be to revoke the sentence of dismissal, which he has the power to do, and immediately issue a new order placing Gen. Smith on the retired list by virtue of the discretion vested in him of retiring any officer who has reached the age of 62.

Little Ten-Year-Old Menominee Girl Seriously Burned.

Menominee—Stell, the 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Murphy, was seriously burned about the body and arms Sunday evening. In company with some other children, she was playing with some pasteboard boxes which they represented as street cars. These boxes contained candles, and the little girl was in the act of lighting them when her sleeve caught fire.

Menominee's summer resort, Fish Creek, is becoming well known and is visited by many noted people. W. S. Chaplin, of St. Louis, president of the Washington university at that place, and formerly president of the University of Tokio, in Japan, is making his summer home there. Gen. Charles King of Milwaukee, just returned from there to the Cream City, leaving his family for the summer. He speaks very highly of the place. Dr. Thomas, a preacher of renown, of Chicago, is making his home there.

Hancock—The Northern Minnesota Editorial association will visit the copper country Aug. 4, during its annual excursion. The association will visit the more important mines and stamp mills of this district. It is likely that the copper-rolling mills at Dollar Bay, and the smelting works of the Calumet & Hecla, at South Lake Linden, will also be visited.

A meeting of the state board of pardons will be held at Calumet, July 31 and Aug. 1, at which applications for the pardon of four Houghton county criminals will be asked. The cases to be investigated are those of George Craig, Hadley Sumner, Joseph Betzler and John R. Malvey.

Houghton—After fifteen years of patient waiting for the Mineral Range road to give them a new passenger station, the inhabitants of South Lake Linden were recently rewarded. The road took a day to put up the new station. Then the people inspected it. They were indignant, for what they found was an old, narrow-gauge boxcar placed on a platform. It was burned by some one unknown one night.

Losing his balance while walking on timbers, Michael Smith, a miner at the Champion mine, fell and was instantly killed.

Sault Ste. Marie—About a week ago, James Prior, fireman on one of the Soo Ferry company's boats, while riding his bicycle caught his pants' legs on a barbed wire fence, which runs along the property of James Seymour. His leg was slightly scratched by one of the barbs, but he thought nothing of it at the time. However, the next day after the accident, the leg began to pain and swell to such an extent that it was found necessary to call a doctor. Blood poisoning set in and ran up the leg into the body. Dr. Webster was called, and although everything that medical skill can devise is being done for him, it is feared that the unfortunate man will lose his life.

Ironwood—An attempt was made last week to burn the warehouses of the Kearney company and Thomas Healy company at Ironwood. The fire was discovered by Sam Kerr, night watchman, who put it out with water from a switch engine. The waste from the trucks of eight cars was used to start the blaze. The fire burned the heavy doors partly off and and through the hemlock plank in the floor before it was discovered.

DEBATERS

Decide That the Negro Will Not Go to Africa.

Chicago, July 22.—"I'll tell you when the American negro will go back to Africa—when the old oak, that braved the storms of a hundred years, goes back to the acorn. Tell me this is not my country—I and my people helped to build these 200,000 miles of railroads; we brought forth the corn, the cotton and the rice. By the sweat of our face we have earned the right to sing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee.'"

A large audience gathered at Quinn chapel last night to hear a debate on the following resolution:

"Resolved, that for his future good, the American negro should migrate to Africa or some other undeveloped country."

There were four speakers, and Bishop Abraham Grant, who presided, closed the debate in the above words.

The judges returned a verdict for the negative side.

PENSION AND PATENT.

Washington, July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—An original pension of $6 per month has been granted Peter Busk, Cokato. A patent for a hot air register was today issued to John Buckman, St. Cloud.

MAUSOLEUM

Of the Late John W. Mackay Is a Beautiful Structure.

New York, July 22.—The Mackay mausoleum in Greenwood cemetery, in which the body of John W. Mackay will be placed, was completed about two years ago. It is built of granite with marble interior and cost about $50,000. A large granite cross surmounts the building and at each corner of the roof there is a life-sized figure. The mosiac work of the marble floor and ceiling is elaborate and the interior is in the form of a chapel, with an altar. Electric lights around the ceiling are lighted automatically by the opening of the bronze doors of the mausolem. There are twenty-two crypts.

The body of Mr. Mackay's son, John W. Mackay, Jr., who was killed by his horse's fall in France in 1895, was placed in the mausoleum soon after its completion and the body of Mrs. Mackay's father rests there. The body of Marcus Daly also is in one of the crypts, pending the erection of a Daly family vault. The body of Mr. Mackay will be placed in the crypt directly under the altar.

AIRSHIP.

Montana Man Invents One Said to Be Very Successful.

Washington, July 22.—T. C. Benbow, a young Montana inventor, has just completed for filing in the patent office, a model of an airship with which, he says, he can "sail all around Santos-Dumont." He hopes to capture the St. Louis exposition prize. He will finish work on his machine in Frankfort, N. Y., and early in the fall will give an exhibition in New York.

Benbow's airship consists of a car suspended from longitudinal bar by cables, to which are attached two gas bags, connected with the car by independent bridles. By this means, if one bag becomes useless, it can be deflated and dropped out of place, while by the same action the other is shifted into a central position and at once becomes a means of buoyancy. The car of the new machine is its most original part and attracts the greatest attention. It is equipped with four propeller wheels arranged in pairs and opposite each other at the sides of the car, instead of at the stern. These wheels are operated by a motor on the car. The blades of the propeller, which run to a point, after the manner of bird's wings, are so arranged that the driver can, by proper regulating the gear set the corneting wings to open and close at certain points in the revolution of the wheel, thus reducing the resistence to a minimum.

Henry Le Sage, of 731 Second street west, with offices in 401 Palladio building, says: "As a result of a cold settling in my kidneys, I suffered for a long time with heavy, dull aching pains across the small of my back. Plasters and other remedies seemed to relieve me temporarily, but did not remove the trouble. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I determined to try them, and procuring a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store, I used them. A few days sufficed to entirely remove the trouble, and since that time I have had no bother at all. ANOHTER COAL FIND Discovery Said to Have Been Made In Beltrami County.

Whether It Is More Than "Float" Will Be Determined.

Much Excitement In the Vicinity of the Find.

Coal has been found again in the Northwest. Whether this find will be as barren of results as its many predecessors remains to be seen. As yet details are meager.

A Shevlin, Beltrami county, newspaper states that a settler living within a short distance from the village, has found what appears to be a fine grade of coal on his place, or near it. The settler is particularly careful about what he says regarding the find, for fear somebody will step in and take it away from him, but he is having the coal examined and is getting ready to make an exploration that will develop the extent of the find.

In many cases where coal finds have been reported through the Northwest it has been found upon inquiry that what is known as "float" coal has given rise to the belief that a substantial coal deposit has been found. From somewhere up north the glaciers, in a prehistoric period, brought down quantities of coal, which they scattered pretty well over Northern Minnesota. Sometimes there are only a few lumps, and in a few instances there have been found enough in one place to make the finder believe he had a coal mine. In all cases, however, so far reported, investigation of reported coal finds has developed nothing more interesting than a little float.

It is hardly necessary to explain the reason for the jubilance of those who think they have found coal. A good coal mine within reaching distance of Duluth and the Twin Cities would be better than any gold mine that ever yielded up its riches. With coal prices augmented by trust exactions and by long-distance freight rates, a coal deposit near at hand would be of immense value. It would solve the problem of manufacturing almost as quickly as the completion of a great water-power system, and naturally it would make a second Pittsburg of Duluth within a very short time.

Whether the Shevlin find is only another "float" deposit or not will not be determined until the find is developed. The Shevlin paper reports that excitement over the discovery runs high, and that as soon as the proper tools for that kind of work can be secured the exploration will begin. The coal that has been brought in from the find is reported to be of a very superior quality.

Shevlin is located on the Great Northern railroad, a few miles west of Bemidji. James J. Hill has spent more time and money looking for coal in the Northwest than anybody else, and if the find proves of any value he will probably be the man to take it up.

May Enlarge Capacity.

One of the important improvements mentioned in connection with the Superior shipyards this year, is the installation of a new locomotive crane. It is expected that with the use of another crane, the facilities will be greatly increased for the building of more than two boats at one time. It is said that the big traveling crane is hardly sufficient to handle the heavy pieces of steel put in the new boats.

Bridge Repair Work.

The repair work on the interstate bridge is making rapid progress and it is expected that the big bridge will be in as good working condition as formerly, by the end of this week. Much of the steel has been straightened and new timbers are being laid for the flooring.

A REDUCTION.

Northern Minnesota Lumber Shippers to Get Differential.

Another change in freight rates in which the Northern Minnesota lumber shippers will be interested, is said to be due to take place the first of the coming month. The differential on southwestern shipments from points north of Minneapolis from which white pine shipments are made, will be reduced 1 cent.

One instance given is that of Little Falls, which now pays a differential of 3½ cents a hundred, and the expectation is to reduce that to 2½ cents on shipments to the territory below the Twin Cities. The claim is made that the new turn of affairs will gratify the northerly manufacturers and favor them to some extent by giving them an opportunity of selling their lumber in a wider range of territory without advancing the price. No opposition is looked for because the situation generally, is that it is easier to sell white pine now than it is to supply it after the sale is made.

White cedar dealers report a fair supply from Northern Minnesota this season. The output is especially large about Bemidji, Cass Lake and the Deer River sections. Producers and manufacturers, however, are holding prices quite firm on account of the reported shortage of cedar products in Wisconsin.

The movement of pulpwood from the north shore points is about to begin. The new scow Joubert, built for Whitney Bros., of West Superior, has been sent to Grand Marais in tow of the tug Maj. Dana to load with a cargo destined for St. Paul parties. The pulpwood will be shipped by rail from Duluth. This is claimed to be the first instance where an attempt has been made to bring the pulpwood down by scows. Compared with the pulpwood movement this way two years ago, the shipments will be light this season.

SITE IS SOLD.

Clark-Jackson Location at New Duluth Changes Hands.

The Clark-Jackson Lumber company sawmill site at New Duluth has been sold to C. B. Brooks of Minneapolis.

The consideration is $10,000, and the deed was filed in the register of deeds' office yesterday.

The tract contains twenty-seven acres, and is particularly valuable as a mill site. The ground has 1,600 feet of water front where boats drawing fourteen feet of water can pull in and be loaded. In addition the track facilities are good, although in former years the greater part of the cut was shipped by the water route.

Rumor has it that the purchaser of the property made the deal for the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company, which has a large mill at Scanlon, between Cloquet and Carlton, and which owns a great amount of timber adjacent to New Duluth. People of Duluth look upon the sale of the land as a most important move for the town, and feel that it will not be long before a substantial sawmill employing a large number of men will be erected there. None of the members of the Brooks-Scanlon company were in the city yesterday and the report could not be confirmed.

The Clark-Jackson company purchased the land along with a mill that stood on it in 1898. It was operated but a year when the plant was entirely destroyed by fire. Much lumber and lath were also lost at that time.

Since the fire the ground has been put to no use, but the people of New Duluth have always looked forward with much satisfaction to the time when the property would again be utilized for what it was designed—mill purposes.

PLANT FOR LIGHTING

Council Will Get Figures on Cost of Electric Station.

Effort to Be Made to Collect Unpaid Street Assessments.

Ordinance to Fix Position of Sidewalk Coal Holes.

The council last night:

Directed an estimate for building electric-lighting plant.

Directed an effort to collect unpaid street assessments.

Decided not to allow liquor license for Northern hotel.

Received ordinance prohibiting coal holes in middle of walks.

Passed ordinance regulating storage of explosives in city.

Began condemnation proceedings for Jenswold street subway.

Requested colored lights and signs for street cars.

Decided to place little drinking fountains in business district.

Decided to connect Fairmount park with suitable sidewalks.

Requested the issue of transfers on temporary West End line.

Received report on rebuilding of Bay View and Proctorknott walk.

The proposed municipal ownership of a street lighting electric plant broke out again in last night's council proceedings.

A resolution by Alderman McEwen was adopted unanimously, directing the city engineer and improving the present municipal lighting system, by constructing an electric lighting plant suitable for purposes of street illumination.

Alderman McEwen was unavoidably absent. He is under quarantine at his home on Duluth Heights, but the resolution was prepared some time ago and Alderman Mannheim acted as sponsor for it during Mr. McEwen's absence.

Despite the fact that this particular branch of municipal ownership is a delicate subject since the last political campaign, the resolution was adopted without debate and with very little hesitancy.

Mr. Mannheim explained that ordinarily a resolution of such importance would not be introduced except when the author was in attendance, but it was desired to have the engineer's estimate in readiness and in case a special election should be ordered for the purchase of the West Duluth water plant, the people would be asked to vote on the proposition of building an electric plant also.

Alderman Krumsieg secured the adoption of a resolution that may eventually net the city something like $100,000 in a settlement of unpaid assessments.

This resolution called on President Haven to appoint a committee of three aldermen to confer with the board of county commissioners relative to unpaid street assessments certified to the county auditor for collection prior to the adoption of the Greene charter, with a view to collecting or arranging some settlement of the same.

The exact amount of money due the city but tied up in this class of uncollected assessments is not known, but it must be something enormous.

On one street in West Duluth alone there is something like $20,000 due the city from this source. There are lots on this street that would sell in open market today at $150 which have as high as $400 in assessments against them.

President Haven appointed Aldermen Krumsieg, Barnes and Neff as the committee to take the matter up with the board of county commissioners and endeavor to arrange some settlement for the city.

There was an interesting little fight over a report allowing a liquor license for the Northern hotel at 208 West Superior street. Alderman Neff opposed this license and he was backed by Alderman Moore. Although a majority of those present favored granting the license it lacked the requisite number of affirmative votes and was declared lost.

Alderman Mannheim introduced an ordinance that will be appreciated by about every person in Duluth that has been compelled to handle coal chutes.

The other day the Third ward alderman was walking along Superior street when he noticed a trim little woman in white walking along with a very pretty little girl also in white. They came to a place where a coal man was unloading. The little girl in getting over the chute ruined her white stockings and sat down and cried.

Straightway the Third ward alderman went to his office and drafted an ordinance prohibiting coal holes in sidewalks more than thirty inches from the curb. This leaves the space next to the building free so that people will not have to do clothes ruining hurdles. With the memory of the little girl's tears still fresh the alderman added a paragraph making the violation of the ordinance punishable with a maximum fine of $100 or imprisonment for a period of not exceeding thirty days. Aldermen McEwen, Moore and Wing will investigate the proposed ordinance and it will probably be passed within a week or so.

Alderman Krumsieg's ordinance prohibiting the storage of explosives in quantities of more than fifty pounds unless kept in brick or stone buildings and even then not within a half mile of a populated district, was passed unanimously.

Condemnation proceedings were begun for the city to acquire a strip of land sixty-six feet wide over the right of way of the Northern Pacific tracks at Jenswold street. This condemnation is for the building of the much talked of subway for West Duluth traffic.

Alderman Cullum secured the adoption of a resolution declaring that public necessity required the street railway company to have colored lights and signs to designate the destination of cars on the various lines in such manner as to be seen at a distance and at night.

Clear, sparkling water will soon cascade forth from artistic little drinking fountains in the business districts of the city. These fountains will be located at Superior street and Second avenue east; Superior street and Lake avenue; Superior street and Third avenue west; Superior street and Fifth avenue west; Superior street and Twenty-first avenue west and Fifty-fifth avenue west and Ramsey street.

Not long ago the council ordered sidewalks built on Waseca and Fremont streets, in west Duluth, connecting the new Fairmont Park with Grand avenue. Property owners objected strenuously. Last night the board of park commissioners took a whiff at the objecting property owners, saying that the city had spent $1500 in walks and drives in the new park and yet there was not a good safe way to get to these improvements unless the proposed walks were built. The council decided to overrule the objection of the property owners and go ahead with the work.

Ten aldermen present last evening expressed their willingness to vote for the confirmation of Dr. J. M. Robinson as health commissioner.

The commission did not report on the commissionership, however, at the request of one of the Republican aldermen.

Alderman Haven secured the adoption of a resolution calling on the street railway company to issue transfers at Piedmont avenue for cars running westerly on Superior street to Thirty-third avenue.

Referring to a recent resolution of the council calling on the street car company to rebuild the West Duluth street line, Manager Warren notified the aldermen that the company would repair and greatly improve this line, but did not think it possible to entirely rebuild it during the present season.

Numerous petitions have been received for the city to repair the sidewalk from Bay View Heights to the village of Proctorknott. The department of public works reported that this walk was in very dangerous condition and that it would cost $475 to rebuild it. The abutting property would not be benefited to that extent nor could it stand an assessment, so it was recommended that at least a portion of the expense of fixing it up should be borne by those that would derive the greatest benefit from it. Now it is up to the village of Proctorknott to make a proposition to meet the city half way.

Says Hobson Ought to Apologize to His Sister.

St. Louis, Mo., July 22.—The rescue of Miss Mae Cerf by Capt. Hobson has aroused a storm of sensational comment here. The young woman's brother is highly indignant at the notoriety his sister has achieved and asserts that Capt. Hobson pushed Miss Cerf overboard at a shallow place in order to make a pretense of rescuing her, and that instead of being praised he ought to be made to apologize.

Miss Cerf herself says she jumped overboard in order to be rescued, but avers that she would not do it again, now that she has found how nearly she was drowned.

Capt. Hobson in a sort of semi-modest way claims all the credit for his act and regards it in the light of a rescue, believing that the girl fell overboard by accident. Capt. Hobson has also gained some more notoriety by a statement he made yesterday to the effect that he had never kissed a girl on the lips; he always imprinted such osculatory caresses on the cheek. He explained a kiss on the lips to him smacked of a deeper feeling than regard.

Dairying People Duped By Oleo Law.

It certainly looks as though the dairying interests of the country had been thoroughly duped by the passage of the oleomargarine act. By the cleverest sort of jockeying in the senate and house just before the anti-oleomargarine measure was passed, the manufacturers of this product got some changes in the wording of the act, which have since permitted them to put their article on the market 1¼ cents a pound cheaper than under the old law. In the sparring this far for advantage under the enforcement of the act the oleo men have proved themselves superior to the pure butter manufacturers, and have secured several opinions from the commissioner of internal revenue which will greatly aid them in fighting their rivals. Everything has hinged on the part of the law relating to the artificial coloring of the oleomargarine. Several amendments were made in the original draft before the vote was taken, and one of them provided that the 10-cent tax should be upon artificially colored butter, instead of upon oleomargarine that contains any ingredients intended to give to it a color resembling pure butter. This loophole is being used by the oleo people as a means of getting their wares before the public at even better rates than formerly. The commissioner of internal revenue has decided that the 10-cent tax does not apply to oleomargarine which take its yellow color from an admixture of pure butter. Exemption is also made for oleomargarine that is colored with various kinds of vegetable oils, which might be considered constituent parts of butter, such as cotton seed oil. It has been found that rich cream will impart a yellowish tint to oleo so that it sells readily. The old law imposed a 2-cent tax on oleo, but the new act lowers this to ¼ cent a pound on oleo not artificially colored. The oleo people are manufacturing their product nowadays under the head of uncolored oleo and are required to pay only ¼ cent a pound, thus making a clear gain of 1¾ cents over the old rate. To this extent, therefore, the farmers of the country have lost through the enactment of the anti-oleomargarine bill. Instead of killing the oleo industry the law has stimulated and increased the sale of imitation butter. The oleo people are taking advantage of every weakness in the law and are highly pleased with results.

Revenue Receipts Are Decreasing.

The effects of the repeal of the war revenue taxes have begun to be felt in the treasury department and the falling off in receipts for the first half of July will give an idea of the decrease for the future. July is always an important month in the treasury department. It is the first month of the fiscal year and upon its receipts and disbursements are based the estimates for the year's business. The expenditures for the first half of July reached the very large sum of $35,256,000, an increase of more than $5,000,000 less than for the first fifteen days of July of last year. The decrease is entirely in the internal revenue receipts, which were $11,583,503 for the first half of July of this year, as compared with $14,972,568 for the first half of July, 1901. The customs receipts, on the other hand, show an increase of more than $1,000,000 over those of the first of July of last year. The increase in the expenditures of the present month over those for the same period of last year, is due largely to the payment of the war claims authorized by the recent session of congress. These amounted to about $4,000,000, and are chargeable to the war department. The disbursements for the navy have also shown an increase of more than $1,000,000 over those for the same period of last year.

Treasury officials estimate that the deficit at the close of the present month will be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, as compared with $15,340 at the close of July of last year. Many of the deficiency appropriations authorized by the last congress are still to be paid, and the result will be shown in the balance sheet at the end of the month. There is nothing alarming in the situation. In fact, it was expected and even desired. Receipts have been in excess of disbursements so long that there is now more than $200,000,000 surplus in the treasury. The hoarding of so much money is a detriment to business and the getting of the surplus in circulation will prove a benefit all around.

"THE BOYS IN BLUE."

The report from Washington to the effect that after this year the term "boys in blue" will be merely a memory, without living associations to lend it vividness, will, without doubt, come as a shock to many.

A great wealth of memory dear to the heart of the American hangs about that term, which has been in household use in this country for generations. The "boys in blue" means more than any other term applying to the same thing. It was the boys in blue that fought out the great question of whether the nation was a unit or a mere aggregation of states, dissoluble at will. It was the boys in blue that rallied to their country's call in '61 and the dark years that followed; that poured out their blood and laid down their lives on many a horrid battleground. It was the boys in blue that suffered their commanders to pour them into yawning chasms of shot and shell at Gettysburg, at Vicksburg, at Cold Harbor, at many another fighting ground of the civil war. It was the boys in blue that followed Sherman in his dashing, romantic march to the sea, cutting through the center of the Confederacy. It was the boys in blue that Grant used to carve the path of blood and fire down the Mississippi, cutting the rebel nation in two and setting the trans-Mississippi states by themselves.

The term has applied more particularly to the "boys" of the Civil war, but it was boys in blue that held back the British invasion on the Hudson; that enjoyed the most brilliant defeat of the world's history at Bunker Hill; that passed through terrors greater than any battle during that desolate winter at Valley Forge; that held the British in check in New York; that whipped the red-coated Englishmen, detachment by detachment, along the Deleware; and that finished a tremendous fight against odds at Yorktown.

They were boys in blue that sailed American ships in the war of 1812, and made the name of John Paul Jones a terror to British seamen. They were boys in blue that sailed with Farragut, as well as with Dewey and Schley.

"Boys in green!" Perhaps the color of the uniform makes no difference in the brave hearts that beats beneath the cloth, and indeed, if the occasion offers, they will fight as well as American soldiers ever did. But it will be a long time before the green can gain the affection that the blue has had, but it can never supplant the color that is bound up with the birth and growth of American liberties.

THE CARNEGIE INSTITUTE.

The earning power of money well invested is practically illustrated in the dividends that will accrue to the Carnegie Institute next week. On August 1, the first interest money of the $10,000,000 worth of steel corporation bonds donated to found the Carnegie institute, will become due. The bonds bear five per cent interest, and as they have been held for six months the sum that will be placed to the credit of the institution will be $250,000. It is not always that interest money is put to as good use as will be this. The munificent donation of the steel king has enabled the establishing of a work which in the future will redound to the credit of the country as well as the generous giver. Practically the whole of this interest money will be available for the actual work of advancing the plans of the promoters, Mr. Carnegie, President Gilman and the others, for the expenses of the institution so far have been practically nothing. There are less than half a dozen salaried officers connected with the institution, and the quarters occupied in Washington are small and unpretentious. The bonds are deposited in several banks, and all of them have been willing to advance the small amount of money that has been needed to pay the expenses up to date. Considerable important work has been done in preparation for the November meeting of the trustees, when authority will be given for the active investigation of certain lines of scientific inquiry. At the same time projects for the erection of an administrative building and possibly one or more laboratories will be considered. The real work of the Carnegie institution will begin at the conclusion of the November meeting.

A great many suggestions regarding lines of work to be pursued have been submitted and are at the present time under consideration. The services of the leading experts and authorities on various scientific and technical subjects have been secured in an advisory capacity by President Gilliman. These men include the acknowledged heads of the medical, legal and other professions, as well as men who have won recognition among the foremost in such sciences as astronomy, chemistry, geology, etc. About fifty of these experts have been engaged to assist the executive committee of the institution in mapping out subjects for study. The names of these advisers are kept secret, and will not be announced until the meeting in November. It is known, however, that several of the technical and scientific experts in the government service are included in the list. These men are divided into committees of two or three each, and as the various suggestions are received concerning investigations to be made under the direction of the institution, they are forwarded to the proper advisory boards. By them the various schemes are thoroughly considered and inquiry made regarding the extent of similar work by scientific institutions or organizations in this country and abroad. If it is deemed wise to take up one recommendations in regard to the amount of money that could be profitably expended in carrying out the inquiry. Great will be the educational power of the institution and fortunate is the United States in receiving it. Its success is assured, and its effects will be apparent in future years.

REVOLT AGAINST PROHIBITION.

For over half a century the Republican nomination for governor of the state of Vermont was equivalent to an election. When the state convention adjourned it was known who would be the next governor. It is different this year. There are two Republican candidates in the field, and the probabilities are that the Democrats will control the election by either endorsing one of the canddates already named or by putting up a strong canddate who will be able to defeat the divided party. The regular party nominee is Gen. J. G. McCullough, while his bolting competitor is Percival W. Clement, who is running on a live issue of particular interest to the entire state. That issue is local option and license as opposed to the prohibitory law which has been on the statute books from immemorial. Mr. Clement has accepted a nomination for governor from the Local Option league in mass convention. The convention nominated the president of the league for lieutenant governor and endorsed the rest of the Republican state ticket. The Democratic party, which has stood for local option of late, may perhaps indorse Clement, who embodies the sentiment against prohibition as not other man in the state does. The Democrats cast 12,000 votes for Bryan last time to 42,000 for McKinley, but hard money helped that result and the normal proportion of Democrats is a little larger. If they vote for Clement, either with or without a formal indorsement, this bolter has a chance to win, and some Republicans who have lived in the state all their lives believe that he will be elected, as a protest against the hypocritical and unfair administraton of the prohbitory law which has disgraced Vermont for years. The regular Republican convention, seeing that the anti-prohibition campaign was gaining such strength, adopted a plank demanding a referendum on the question of local option. The local option convention characterized this as "only a sleeping potion, administered to license and prohibition delegates alike," and demands the repeal of the prohibitory law and the enactment in its stead of a high-license, local option statute. Mr. Clement set the keynote for all this vigor of aggressive action in his speech of acceptance. Mr. Clement declared that Gen. McCullough, the Republican nominee for governor, secured his nomination by the bribery of more than sixty delegates, and gives this as his justification as a party man for bolting, but the real reason is local option. This is an interesting situation for the old Green Mountain state, and a lively campaign is sure to follow.

One of the most satisfactory things in connection with the Philippines is the steady growth of the foreign trade of the islands. The insular bureau of the war department has prepared a statement showing the customs revenues of the islands for the past four months of 1902, together with the figures for the same period in 1901, 1900 and 1899. The statement shows that for the four months ended April 30, 1902, the customs revenues were $2,894,975.03, for the same period in 1899 they were $1,215,657.33, for 1900 they were $1,889,234.82, and for 1901 they were $2,771,393. It will be noted that there has been a steady increase in the collections during these periods, and that the revenues for the current year are more than double those for 1899. The figures represent the custom house receipts expressed in United States currency values, the ratio for the first three years being $2 Mexican for $1 American and for 1902 being $2.10 Mexican for $1 American for the first three months and $2.27 Mexican for $1 American for the month of April. Under authority contained in the new government bill the Philippine officials will be able to establish the ratio every ten days.

For twenty years the government has been engaged in mapping the United States, and a report just issued by the Geological survey shows that the larger part is still unsurveyed. In some of the Western sections the work is attended with the greatest difficulties and dangers. Recently a party sent to map Northern Montana was obliged by the severity of the weather to climb Calf mountain not less than eight times—the last 1300 feet on foot—before an opportunity was presented to get a photograph of the surrounding country. The photographic method is employed in all such wild regions. When the negatives were finally secured it was after waiting all day in a driving snowstorm; then there was a lull of a few seconds, during which six snapshots were made. During the other seven days the snow was unremitting. After this part of the country is securely mapped out it is doubtful if any one will ever see it, excepting on the map.

Apparently the hatless fad is more intense at country and sea-shore this season than ever before. Both sexes, old and young, go bare-headed when walking, swimming or riding and seem to enjoy it hugely. To the young man who wildly chases his hat as it is borne through Superior street by one of the gentle zephyrs that occasionally visit us, the hatless fad would be a most welcome innovation.

Laura Biggar, the one-time actress, has won her fight for the legacy left to her by the Pittsburg millionaire, Bennett, the Bennett heirs allowing the will to be probated. This is no more than right. The actress was good to the old man and cared for him and he desired to reward her. When the time comes when a man cannot leave his money as he desires, half the pleasure of living is gone.

Dispatches from Chicago say that the lady who lost $40,000 on the elevated railroad, and which was returned to her by the guard, gave that individual 10 cents to encourage him in his honesty. The story has a familiar ring, the only strange thing about it being the announcement that a Chicago woman would part with 10 cents.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Detroit Free Press: Bess—What's your ideal of a man?

Jess—A man who has both sand and dust.

Chicago Tribune: Scolding Wife—You wish I were at the antipodes, don't you?

Patient Husband—No, my dear. I think your proper place would be the Xantippedes.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Do you consider Pinkerby intellectual?"

"I guess he is. His wife belongs to two clubs and his daughter is going to marry a book agent."

Chicago Post: "But why did you encourage him if you didn't want him to propose?"

"Because just at that time there wasn't any one else to encourage."

Detroit Free Press: He—I expect to lead your sister to the altar very soon.

Younger Sister—You'd better make the most of that trip, because you'll never lead her any further.

New York Sun: Miss De Style—What did Miss Beers say to Charley when he broke off the engagement?

Miss Gunbusta—She said there's as good lobsters in the sea as ever were caught.

Philadelphia Press: Miss Prim (severely)—Married women, above all others, have no business to flirt.

Mrs. Gay—Business? Of course, not; it's a pleasure.

Chicago Tribune: "That text of yours," said the clerical deacon, "should have been "Let not the left hand know what the right hand doeth."

"Yes?" replied the new minister.

"Yes, and what you said was, "Let not the right hand know what the left hand doeth."

"Well, but I'm left-handed, you know."

THE BELLES.

Oh! the belles!
Summer belles!
What a plenitude of heartaches their giddiness compels;
How they giggle, giggle, giggle,
In the sea breeze laden night,
How their victims squirm and wriggle
In an ecstasy of fright,
How they hurt,
When they flirt,
When with ghoulish glee they gloat
On the squirming of a fellow when they have him by the throat.

Oh! the belles!
Brazen belles!
How they conjure, scheme and plan
To entrap the summer man,
The ribbon counter gentlemen who masquerade as swells.

Oh! the belles!
Greedy belles;
How they wring, wring, wring
Sodawater, everything,
From the pockets of those "Cash!" exclaiming swells.

Oh! the belles!
Foxy belles;
What a wealth of hints they fling
Diamond ring,
Ah! the heart engaging ring
Of the golden wedding bells, bells, bells,
To compel the pleasant ring, bells, bells
Oh! the belles.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Young married couple have to quarrel so as to learn not to.

A woman can love a man of the most egregious vanity on earth, but not one of meek humility.

You can skim the cream off milk and have something left that is sweet and good, but skim your love and what is left is bitter gall.

When a woman changes her way of doing up her hair and her husband doesn't notice it,—she knows right away that he doesn't love her any more.

The first thing for a man to do with the women he marries is to force her to understand that he is going to be firm about making her have her own way.

Peace in the Philippines.

Manila (P. I.) Justice: There was never a better outlook for the Philippine islands than at the present time. Peace has been restored in Samar, Laguna and Batangas provinces. Military posts all over the islands are being abandoned nearly every day and the country being turned over to the constabulary and the local civil authorities. The people are becoming convinced that the United States means to treat them fairly, and they are settling down with a great degree of confidence and contentment. The military is not only learning but taking its proper place in a land of peace. The bandrone element is being run to earth in every part of the islands where it exists. Many people who have never been amenable to any law are now being made to answer not only for recent crimes, but for those committed in years gone by. The judiciary is no longer an experiment, but a marked success.

A Change For the Better.

Brooklyn Eagle: Our Indians are beginning another sun dance. It is better to let them dance to the sun than to have them dancing for bullets.

Solid Basis of Prosperity.

Indianapolis Journal: It might be expected that the failures in business would increase even in the years of prosperity, but the figures for the first quarter of 1902 show a striking decrease when compared with the first quarter of 1901. This decline in business casualties proves the solid basis of the country's prosperity.

Through a Window

By Cornelia Amelung.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub Co.)

The corners of the room were growing murky as I got up from my chair and drew the curtains wide apart. It was a gusty, raw November day, with a dreary rain sluglishly dripping down the panes. Casual wayfarers struggled along the street, their umbrellas tilted before the wind. The asphalt glittered darkly, and small tremulous rivers an along the gutters.

I had been working on an article for a medical journal and felt tired and a trifle downcast by the sodden look of things in general. Throwing down my pen I went over to the mantel, lit a cigarette, and glowered at the fire.

It was the shadowy hour—between dog and wolf, as they say in France—when if a fellow has anything on his mind had a "worm i' the bud," but it belonged to a well-conditioned bachelor, who had a fairish outlook for the future. But one of those vague clouds that darken us all at times hung over my heart.

I began to pace the room. At one of my turnings I paused at the window.

There was a house on the opposite corner, built rather tastefully like an old chateau. A lantern of guilded iron hanging over the entrance had just been lighted and, swaying in the wind, it threw the lines of the doorway into high relief and sent uncertain shadows through the fretwork of the arched windows above. At the apex of the arch smirked a satyr's head of carvea stone, and in the wavering light this head assumed various strange aspects.

Through smoke rings of Egyptian tobacco I watched the queer changes pass across the stone face. In the distance the wind rose with a long howl and then died off vaguely moaning.

The satyr's leering, twisted jaws mouthed and mocked. Actually he began to fascinate me—he looked so devilishly wierd and jolly. Once I could swear he winked at me, and I was thinking of returning the compliment from pure good fellowship when the snarp clip-clop of horses' hoofs on the asphalt diverted my attention.

A brougham wheeled smartly around the corner and drew up before the house opposite. A footman, whose silver buttons sparkled in the light from the carriage lamps, jumped down, opened the door and permitted a woman to get out.

She was enveloped from head to foot in a stunning sable cloak, and as she turned at the threshold I saw that she was tall and willowy and distinctly beautiful; she was, however, strangely pale. An instant later she disappeared within and the brougham rolled away.

While speculating on the identity of this striking-looking lady I lit a fresh cigarette. Having moved into by apartment only the previous week my neighbors were all an unknown quantity.

A flare of gas suddenly shone from the upper window across the way. The shades had not been drawn and the charming unknown was revealed standing in the middle of the room under the full light of a chandelier.

It was a woman's boudoir decorated with artistic effect in faintest amber and dull gold. A dressing table in the background was crowded with articles of gold and crystal and fluffy womanish things lay scattered about.

The woman's appearance was singular. She stood absolutely quiet, a pair of long, white hands folded across her breast. Heavy, blue-black hair shadowed her face and eyes, somore as a lonely mountain pool looked out of it. Her crown, dead-black, of billowy, creep-like teture, clung down the curves of her figure, and the fur cloak lay in a heap at her feet.

With the opening of the door a maid appeared, carying a cup of tea. She placed it on a table and lingered a moment, looking apprevlatively at the figure under the chandelier, as if wishing yet hesitating to speak. But the dark head turned slowly and with an imperious hand-wove the girl was sent away.

And now occurred the most extraordinary experience of my life. In my time I have seen painful, nay even heart-breaking things—all physicians do, but the scene I shortly witnessed put the capstone on them all.

After the maid had desarted the woman went over to the table and drank the tea in a few swallows. Then she began to pace the floor, slowly at first, very slowly, stumbling unheedingly against the furniture as he walked.

By degrees the walk grew to almost a run; her lips moved as if in excited declaration; her hands clenched and unclenched mechanically.

Striding to a chevail-glass he gesticulated wildly to the distorted face reflected therein.

Her movements were full of grace. I observed the undulating glide with which she wheeled from the glass and went to the window staring out.

Still scrutinizing with professional curiosity what I by this time supposed to be the freaks of a mad woman. I drew back into the darkness of my room lest she might notice me.

"The death scene—did it go?"

The darkness, the whirling wind and rain appeared somewhat to calm her. Wearily she passed her hand across her forehead, turned away and dropped on a divan. Chin in palm she contemplated the floor for a while, darkly musing.

So my hard-gained viz-a-viz was a lunatic. I shrugged my shoulders, was about to draw the curtains against the night and gloom and the pathos of younger sight, when the woman made a movement that fixed my attention. Springing from the divan she went to a writing desk, and, pullinf out a drawer, picked up something long, slim and pointed. As well as I could see it resembled one of those deadly little stilettos the Italians know how to use so effectively. Sliding the blade across her thumb she stepped out once more to the center of the room.

Under the brilliant gas light her eyes were dep pits of shadow while she groped at her bosom and brought out a photograph.

Intently she gazed at it, kissed it once—a long, passionate kiss, and then as she sank slowly on her knees tore it to the smallest shreds, hinging them aside.

Once more she folded her hands across her breast, bowed her head and for a brief moment semed to pray.

These sinister devotions ended, she rose to her full height again, raised one arm above her head, the weapon flashing in her hand, strick down at her heart with a swift, deft swoop, and fell hudnled on the floor, coils of black hair unloosening about her face.

My hands and fee were ice cold. Could I have averted this catastrophe—this horror?

Groping after my hat in the dark I descended the stairs tramping on the janitor's cat, which squalled in shrill protest.

I ran up the steps of the fata house and pressed the electric button. What incoherent statement I made to the butler, who stared at me with wide eyes and fallen jaw, I do not know, but just at this point there came a voice from the staircase beyond in low-pitched tones of strangely alluring timbre, and with a slight foreign accent.

"Mortimer, show the gentleman into the drawing room."

* * * *

When I opened the door of the green-room at the frou-frou theater a few nights later a wave of perfumed air surged out. Flowers were everywhere. Standing aginst a pillar of big scarlet roses, in a trailing black gown, her pallid, dark beauty vivid with animation, Madame La Desiree was accepting congratulations from all the notable first-nighters. The role so triumphantly enacted this evening she had made famous in Paris.

As I approached she darted an elfish spark at me from her great magnetic eyes.

"Mais, Monsieur," she said in those sweet, deep tones that set the heart vibrating so oddly, "the death scene—did it go?"

"To a marvel, madame," I replied, bowing low.

"The house couldn't have been more carried off its feet had it been, as I saw, the last private rehearsal.

Yes; that was it. From my window I had seen the actress, during a sudden effervescence of genius go through the climax of her part in the solitude of her boudoir.

This was my introduction to a very charming friendship. That, however, is another tale.

THE DAKOTAS.

Christian Church Revivalists Are Routed By Mischief-Makers.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Webster—Vandals and bums played havoc with the revival tent at Blairsburg Sunday night. The Christian denomination is holding a big tent meeting there. Some one cut the guy ropes, let the tent down and carried the center poles away. The town is all wrought up and many arrests are likely to be made.

Sioux Falls—Judge Jones has granted Herbert Leroy Sherman an absolute divorce from Josephine H. Sherman. The principals are prominent residents of New York city. The plaintiff, however, has resided in South Dakota for six months in order to establish a residence. The defendant in the suit objected to the enlistment of the plaintiff in the United States army, and while he was in the Cuban campaign brought suit for a limited divorce, obtaining a separation and the custody of their child, and refusing upon the plaintiff's discharge from the army, to return and live with him. The plaintiff is the author of "The King of Cuba," "Fools of Fortune," "The Red Devil" and other works of fiction.

Tyndall—A murder mystery of seven or eight years' standing appears to have been solved. Seven or eight years ago a Mrs. Kucera, wife of a Bohemian farmer, disappeared. The husband said she had eloped with a neighbor. As it was known that the couple quarreled frequently, people in the vicinity became of the opinion that the woman had been murdered by her husband, and the body secreted. Kucera sold his farm, but remained in the neighborhood. The other day while in a pile of stones near the former home of Kucera were being removed the skeleton of a woman supposed to be that of Mrs. Kucera, was uncovered, having been buried underneath the pile. So strong is the belief that the remains are those of Mrs. Kucera, and that she was killed by her husband that Kucera has been arrested on the charge of murder.

Mellette—William Patten, a Spink county farmer, has invented a novel contrivance to which he attaches four gang plows, or less, as the fancy suits him. He then hitches a threshing engine to the plows and by means of his curious contrivance is able to plow from twenty-five to thirty acres of land a day. The engine, besides the four plows, hauls a ten-barrel tank of water and sufficient coal to last for half a day.

Rev. Father Chasse, who came here from the eastern part of the state to officiate during the absence of Vicar General Redmond, has been appointed assistant to the latter, and received orders from Bishop O'Gorman, stationing him here permanently. Vicar General Redmond is expected home soon from Ireland, where he has been visiting for several months.

Aberdeen—The store of the Witte Hardware company was robbed Saturday night and all the revolvers, knives, scissors and shears in the stock were taken. Entrance was gained from a rear basement door and the ground floor reached by the elevator shaft.

Albert Nelson Westfall, of Henry, a youth in his teens, stole a bicycle here and will probably go to the reform school.

Paul Linnet, of Aberdeen, who had just gone to Montana to work for the Northern Pacific in train service, was badly hurt by being struck by a passenger train while at New Salem. He was struck on the head and was unconscious for many hours. He has been removed to a Northern Pacific hospital in Minnesota.

Centerville—Daniel Cudney, who a few days ago was the victim of a peculiar combination of circumstances, and, after being robbed of every cent he possessed, was thrown into all, has been released in accordance with a writ of habeas corpus. Cudney, while lied to the brim with the beverage which intoxicates, said he had been robed by three Sioux City men. The supposed thieves were arrested, but as not the slightest evidence connecting them with the crime could be secured, the authorities were compelled to release them. When the case against the three men was dismissed, the justice who had issued the warrants taxed the costs, amounting to $125.35, to Cudney. As he had ben robed of every cent he had in the world, he could not pay the costs, and was thrown into jail to serve out the amount at the rate of $2 per day. A writ of habeas corpus was served upon the proper officials and Cudney has now been released.

Deadwood—Thomas Walton was set on by thugs last night, robbed of about $100, beaten into insensibility and left tied. Robert Powers and James McCoy are in jail charged with being the perpetrators. One of them bears a bullet hole through his right hand, which is believed to have been inflicted by Walton in trying to defend himself. Three $20 gold pieces have been found in the room occupied by the two men. Powers, who was shot, says he came from Denver, two months ago, and that he has worked one shift dealing faro bank. McCoy says he came from Sheridan, Wyo., last winter. Mr. Walton is in a critical condition.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—The arrest of Charles McGuire on a charge of selling liquor illegally resulted in the discovery that Jamestown was being made the headquarters of a gang of car-breakers. McGuire confessed and stated that a gang of men had given him the liquor to sell and had informed him that they had an unlimited quantity of liquor, cigars, tobacco and other supplies. Northern Pacific detectives attempted to secure the arrest of the men, but they had learned of the arrest of McGuire and had left.

A house in the northwestern part of the city burned and the occupants had a narrow escape. The night of the fire it was occupied by a new proprietor, who was to have opened a house of ill-fame the next evening. Threats are said to have been made by those connected with a rival institution that another "house" could not run in that ward. The police are investigating and some arrests are likely to be made.

The funeral of Maj. Lyon, county superintendent of schools, was largely attended. There are four candidates to succeed Mr. Lyon, Messrs. Huff, Carr and Waner and Mrs. Fogarty.

Father Galahue has been appointed to the New Rockford parish and leaves this week. He has been assistant at Jamestown for two years. He is succeeded here by Father Edward T. McAardle, of Rochester, N. Y.

Mandan—The management of the State Fair association is getting well along with its program for the annual fair to be held here during the week commencing Sept. 22. A large amount will be appropriated for races. The directors have set aside $,00 as as tarter for these attractions. Baseball games of an igh order will also be among the drawing cards. The good crops insure the best agricultural display ever had. The increase in the creamery industry of this region will attract manufacturers of creamery goods. Several exhibits of highgrade cattle, horses and sheep will be on hand.

Remedy For Combines.

Springfield, Mass., Republican: The president is right in supposing that the people are very much disturbed over the rise and spread of the industrial combinations and decidedly in favor of effective restraining legislation. And this is true of business circles as well as of the people at large. The trustees of the New York leaf tobacco board of trade, for example, have adopted resolutions which speak of that trade as being in the grip of a trust, mention some evil feature of the combinations in general, and finally declare in favor of placing "all corporations whose securities are offered to the public" under government supervision "similar to that now exercised in the case of national banks."

Let Us Look Our Fill.

Anaconda, Mont., Standard: It may be many years before the country will witness another such combination of Gen. DeWet, Hell-Roaring Jake Smith and Geronimo.

ROUGH RIDERS OF THE WORLD

Will Be Seen In Duluth Tomorrow With Buffalo Bill's Wild West.

The "Congress of the Rough Riders of the World," with Buffalo Bill's Wild West, exhibits such variety in styles of masterly equitation as will be something of a surprise to most persons and has never been brought together for public entertainment before. The men are genuine representatives of various European cavalry services, American mounted soldiers and plainsmen, American Indians, etc., all equipped and accoutred as in actual service, and their assembling in the arena makes a spectacle of such magnificence as can never be forgotten. The Wild West will be in Duluth tomorrow, and the great military drills of the foreign bodies of soldiers, the battle scenes, the bucking horses, Indian war dances, and all the other well known features will be seen.

The Wild West is immense, original and inimitable. There is no saw dust, no deception about it. It is so large that its size need not be exaggerated. It is so novel that there is nothing else under the sun like it: it is so genuine that its announcement may be believed implicitly. Besides, its well known feature of historic merit, the management continually add to without subtraction. This year the very latest warriors of interest have been added in the persons of genuine Baden-Powell defenders of Mafeking, wounded and invalided men who have lately faced the deadly conflict in South Africa. Also a corps of United States life saving service, rescuing the shipwrecked by the aid of the breeches buoy. The grand battle scene this season is San Juan Hill.

The magnificent street parade, which will go over the principal streets tomorrow morning, will give the spectators a good idea of the magnitude and interesting character of this famous exhibition.

The Wild West will appear at the Oneota driving park on West Third street this year, owing to the fact that the building of a house on the grounds usually used at Thirtieth avenue west, has made it impossible for the exhibition to appear there.

Philadelphia, July 22.—The Philadelphia Public Ledger was purchased yesterday by Adolph S. Ochs from George W. Childs Drexel and the Drexel estate and possession was given Mr. Ochs at once. The purchase includes all the Public Ledger estate, comprising about half a block of improved property on Chestnut street facing Independence hall. The price paid is not made public, but it is stated on good authority that more than $2,500,00 is involved in the transaction. Mr. Ochs has no associates in the transaction except that a substantial interest has been acquired by James M. Beck, of Philadelphia, who represented the purchaser in the negotiations. There is no underwriting and with the exception of Mr. Beck's interest Mr. Ochs is the sole owner.

GOMPERS MAY COME

Head of the American Federation May Visit Duluth.

Will Be Invited to Stop Off on Way From West.

Meeting Wednesday to Arrange the Labor Day Celebration.

President Gompers and other high officers of the American Federation of Labor are expected to pay Duluth a visit during the first part of August.

The officials have been out West, and will soon start for their homes in the East. The Duluth union men will make an effort to bring the party, or at least some of its members, to this city. The mission of the federation men to the West has been to secure if possible a consolidation of the Western Labor union and the American federation. The first named has but recently started in a number of the western states, and on both sides members feel that a consolidation of the two organizations would help greatly in the cause of each. In some cases there has been not a little bitter feeling existing between the two, and for some time the officers have been endeavoring to patch up the differences and unite the two bodies.

Secretary Richardson, of the Trades assembly, said this morning that he would at once send an invitation to President Gompers and party, and that if they did come to Duluth something elaborate in the way of entertainment would be prepared. What the nature of it will be has not been decided, but it is supposed that a large public meeting in which the high officials of the order will speak will be a feature.

The executive committee of the Trades assembly, which has in charge the Labor day celebration, will hold an important meeting tomorrow evening in the office of the Labor World, in the Manhattan building. The place of holding the picnic will be decided upon at that time. The secretary has received propositions from owners of many of the pleasure grounds about here, but it is not known which is the most favorable.

The observation of Labor day, which comes on September 1, is expected to be more general in Duluth this year than for some time past. The parade will include a number of novelties, among them being the teamsters' union recently organized, whose members, 200 strong, will appear mounted.

WAS NAKED.

A Negro Created a Sensation at Pennsylvania Theater.

Altoona, Penn., July 22.—As the orchestra at the Lakemont Park theater was taking up the strains of an interlude between the acts and the people were getting ready to hear the next number on the program, a wild-eyed negro, wearing nothing but a portion of a shirt around his neck, rushed across the lawn from the direction of the trolley station, and running into the building began dancing a ragtime dance before the surprised audience.

The audience began making frantic efforts to get out of the building. The negro was John Bateman, an insane patient in the county home, from which institution he had escaped by watching one of the attendants, and when the latter started out of the insane ward grabbed him and rushed out with the attendant in his arms. Park officers ran into the building and attempted to remove the negro. A furious fight followed and it took all the policemen at the park and three railroaders to get control of the negro and take him to the trolley station, where it was necessary to handcuff him and shackle his ankles to get him back to the county home.

Bateman, during the last two months, was an inmate of the local hospital, and twice made his escape by knocking down the nurse. After the second escape he was sent to the county home, and today's escapade followed.

FOR TROOPS.

Official Board Reports on Enlargement of Various Forts.

Washington, July 22.—The board of officers, consisting of Maj. Generals Corbin and Young, Brig. Gen. Ludington, Lieut. Col. J. A. Johnston and Maj. George Ruhlen, was appointed several weeks ago, by the secretary of war, to take into consideration the question of provision to be made for accommodations and shelter for troops returned from Cuba and the Philippine islands, and to consider generally the construction of new buildings at posts throughout the United States to accommodate increased garrisons to be stationed thereat. The court submitted its final report to the secretary of war, who has approved the recommendations submitted by it. The amounts given are those estimated to complete the construction of the various works and while the allotments are made from the current appropriations, it is not expected that the full amounts will be expended in all cases during the fiscal year. The allotments include the following:

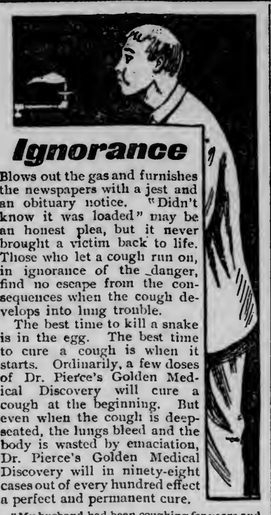

Enlargement of Fort Lincoln, near Bismarck, N. D., to accommodate two companies of infantry, $50,000.

Enlargement of Fort Meade, S. D., to accommodate headquarters and two squadrons of cavalry, $50,000.

Necessary repairs to be made at Fort Harrison, mont., to make accommodations at that post for a battalion of infantry, $10,000.

To begin the reconstruction and improvement of Fort Snelling, Minn., to make provision at that post for the accommodation of a full regiment of infantry and two batteries field artillery, $250,000.

To complete post at Des Moines, Iowa, to accommodate four troops of cavalry,

Ignorance

Blows out the gas and furnishes the newspapers with a jest and an obituary notice. "Didn't know it was loaded" may be an honest plea, but it never brought a victim back to life. Those who let a cough run on, in ignorance of the danger, find no escape from the consequences when the cough develops into lung trouble.

The best time to kill a snake is in the egg. The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated, the lungs bleed and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred effect a perfect and permanent cure.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 265 25th Place, Chicago, Ill. "He had such terrible coughing spells we not only grew much alarmed but looked for the bursting of a blood-vessel or a hemorrhage at most any time. After three days' coughing he was too weak to cross the room. The doctor did him no good. I stated the case to a druggist, who handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husbands recovery was remarkable. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around, and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

During a fight Monday night Benton Blanton, formerly a soldier in the Philippines, was fatally shot and Elijah Coldivan was killed at Jackson, Ky. The fight started between Blanton and John Oaks, a farmer. The latter after emptying his revolver grabbed Blanton's gun, shooting Blanton fatally. Coldivan was killed by a wild shot. Oaks was not hurt and escaped.

Town Marshal James Cockrill was fatally shot from a second story window of the court house at Jackson, Ky., Monday by unknown parties. There were six shots, two hitting Cockrill as he passed along Main street. James Cockrill is a brother of Thomas Cockrill whose trial for killing Benjamin Harges has revived a desperate feudal war.

The carriage manufacturing plant of the George F. Thompson and Son Buggy company, 100 Western avenue, was swept by fire Monday night. The 4-story building contained about $17,000 worth of raw and manufactured materials. The machinery and equipment were valued at $11,000 and the building cost $8,000. The loss is placed at approximately $65,000, and with $30,000 insurance.

The 25,000 garment workers who struck in New York for higher wages and shorter hours were joined by 15,000 others, who asked the fifty-six hours be considered a week's work. As this is the dull season in the trade it is expected that it will be some days before the various interests get together. About nine different unions are engaged in the strike.

A call was issued by landlords of tenement houses at Shamokin to meet next Thursday to take action on the failure of a large number of tenants to pay rent since the miners strike started. The landlords say their losses since the tie-up run into thousands of dollars. Two-thirds of the storekeepers and saloon-keepers have asked for a reduction in rent during the continuance of the strike.

The battleship Retvisan, built in Philadelphia for the Russian government, and which recently arrived at St. Petersburg, seems to be ill-fated. STARTLING EVIDENCE Discovered In Connection With the Killing of Latimer.

Believe He Was Slain By the "Bedford Hound."

Member of Tough Gang of Wealthy Young Men.

New York, July 22.—New and startling evidence was discovered to prove that Albert C. Latimer was murdered by the son of well-to-do Brooklyn parents, a man who has been practically cast adrift by his family, and who has a record as a criminal in a small way. The man under direct suspicion is a member of an organization known as the "Bedford Avenue Hounds," which gained much unpleasant notoriety at the time of Walter Brooks and the trial of Florence Burns.

All of the late developments to unravel the mystery have come from the efforts made by Henry Morrison and Walter Hamburger, private detectives employed by the Royal Arcanum, of which organization Mr. Latimer was a member.

Mr. Morrison said this afternoon: "I believe that I am in a fair way to clear up the entire case."

It has been learned by Morrison and Hamburger that the man whom they suspect possessed a cap such as was found in the Latimer house after the murder. He rides a bike, and he owned a lamp and shoes similar to those left behind by the murderer after his crime. This young man was acquainted with Mr. Latimer, and he is known to have made inquiries from him regarding his collections of money for the Royal Arcanum.

Charles H. Zinn, a produce dealer at No. 90 Warren street, Manhattan, who lives at No. 365 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, has furnished important information, which strengthens the facts developed by the detectives. Mr. Zinn saw the man who answers the description of the member of the "Bedford Avenue Hounds," riding swiftly away from the direction of the Latimer house the morning of the murder. The bicycle rider either wore no head covering or he had on a close-fitting cap. Although he was riding at top speed he carried no lamp on his bicycle.

"In my opinion the murderer of Albert C. Latimer will be brought to justice. Unless I have made a great mistake he will be arrested very shortly," said Mr. Morrison. "I have information which I believe will convict the man who shot Mr. Latimer. I suspect a member of the so-called 'Bedford Avenue Hounds.'

"That crowd will be remembered in connection with the Burns case. The members are all tough young men, and most of them are of wealthy families. They were the boys who were friends of Florence Burns, and who introduced her to Walter Brooks, who was murdered last winter.

"Three men are under suspicion. They never work, and as they are generally well supplied with money, there is more than a suspicion that they are responsible for many crimes in Brooklyn. These young men have frequented a place in Bedford avenue, where Mr. Latimer often went with his wife. In this manner the toughs got acquainted with Mr. Latimer.

"As they have been fairly well educated they can put on a good appearance when they wish to do so. I know that one of these men made many efforts to get on terms of intimacy with Mr. Latimer. I know that he made inquiries about Mr. Latimers' business. He would not hesitate to shoot if cornered in a house which he had entered for the purpose of robbery."

Cass Lake, Minn., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual school meetings for independent school district, No. 3, which includes the village of Cass Lake, and independent district No. 4, which embraces the residents on section 16 and the allotments, were held on Saturday. A THIEF.

May Yohe Has Warrant Sworn Out For Capt. Strong.

New York, July 22.—A formal complaint of grand larceny was made against Former Captain Putnam Bradlee Strong last evening by May Yohe, who visited police headquarters accompanied by her mother and her lawyer and there charged Strong, who recently disappeared from his home at Hastings, with the theft of jewels which she valued at $250,000. Her complaint was entertained and a general alarm was sent out for the arrest of Strong.

Miss Yohe's counsel said that the safe in the Knickerbocker Safe Deposit company, where Miss Yohe had kept her jewels was opened yesterday and it was found that her jewels, valued at $250,000, had been removed, nothing of value being left in the safe except a few trifling trinkets. He also explained that pawn tickets calling for $169,000 worth of the missing gems had been recovered.

Lower Opening In Wheat Under Bearish Influences.

Market Rallies Under Threatening Weather Conditions.

Lower Cables and Liberal Receipts---Flax Is Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 22.—The wheat market at the opening this morning gave signs of continuing its downward course of yesterday under the influence of fair weather, lower cables and liberal receipts. Sentiment was given a bullish turn, however, by reports of showers and the predictions of more rain in some sections that have already had more than they need, and the market continued its upward course, practically to the close of the session. Export business was light, practically nothing in fact, for the foreigners had evidently been looking for a decline.

The Liverpool market closed 1⅛@1¼d lower, and Paris was 1½@1¾c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,206,000 bus; last year, 918,000 bus. Shipments, 854,000 bus, last year, 579,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 506,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 1,928,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

July corn in the Chicago market was stronger, closing 1¼c up. September also had an advance, closing 1@1⅛c higher. Oats advanced 1@1¼c. Primary receipts of corn were 462,000 bus, last year, 421,000 bus. Shipments, 583,000 bus, last year 395,000 bus. Clearances were 356 bus, a decrease of 98,000 bus in the world's visible supply was reported by Bradstreet.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis aggregated 274 cars and at Chicago 488 cars, a total of 762 as compared with 712 the same day last week and 764 a year ago. Of the Chicago receipts only 8 cars graded contract.

Trading in the Duluth market was little better than dead, the opening price was 3c off at 71¾c, sold at 71⅝c at 9:47, at 71½c at 10:26, and at 72¼c at 11:42, at 72⅜c at 1:05, and closed at 72¾c, an advance of ⅜c. Chicago advanced the same and Minneapolis ⅜@½c. July in Chicago declined ⅛c. Minneapolis advanced ½c, and in Duluth, ¾c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus. No. 1 northern were limited to bring July price, but No. 2 dropped off ½c selling at 2c under. No. 3 sold at 3½c under.

Flax trading was very light. There was an advance of 1c in September and October September oats advanced 1c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, July 22.—All grains continued the break yesterday at the opening today, but rallied speedily. Wheat had the bearish influences of lower cables, fair weather map seemed to help in the rally. Showers which had been overlooked early began to give a little effect and predictions of more rains, especially in Kansas turned sentiment bullish. In spite of th elarge receipts contract stuff was only a fractional per cent. This helped September, which opened ¼c to ⅝@⅝c lower, at 75⅝c to 75⅝@¾c, advanced to 72½c. Local receits were 48 cars, 3 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 274 cars, making a total for the three points of 712 cars, against 712 last week and 764 a year ago. Receipts at St Louis and Kansas City were reported increasing.

A falling off in wheat receipts for tomorrow with estimates only 160 cars and persistent buying, pushed September wheat to 73c, and July to 77c. The close was strong, both options ⅜c up. September at 72⅝c, and July at 76c.

Lower wheat prices, continued free movement of corn and the early weather reports started September corn ½c to 1c down, at 69c to 69¼c. Trade was only fair, and there was little commission house demand early. The increase of 907,000 bus in contract stocks was very bearish. As wheat rallied there was a better demand in corn and September rallied to 69¾c. July opened ½c down, at 65¼c and rallied to 65¾c. Receipts, 469 cars, 61 of contract grade.

Corn was hardly active until late in the session, but the bullish sentiment pushed September to 61¾c and July to 67½c. The close was strong, September 1@1½c up at 61½@⅝c, and July, 1¼c higher at 67c.

Early trade in oats seemed to be a waiting game. Prices broke with the weather reports and the improved receipts. The break in other grains was some influence for free early offerings. A fair demand, however, was present and prices at once reacted above yesterday's closing figures. September opened ⅛@¼c down, at 33¼c and dipped to 33c, but soon advanced and steadied near 33⅜@⅜c. July was nominally 35c, but no trades were made early. Receipts 184 cars, 40 of contract grade.

Shorts covered in July oats, forcing the price to the top price again—67c. The close was strong and congested, 3c higher at 66c for July, and 1@1⅛c higher, at 34⅜c for September.

Provisions were hammered by the bears and were liberally liquidated early. Hogs were weak at the yards and influenced lower provision prices. Some support came in the pit, however, and prices rallied a little. September pork opened 20c to 5c lower, at $17.80 to $17.85, and steadied near $17.85; September lard, 7½c to 2½c down, at $10.67½ to $10.72½, and sold at $10.80 and September ribs 7½c down, at $10.00, and sold at $10.05.

Close: Wheat—July, 77c; September, 72¾c; May, 74½@¾c; December, 72¾c. Corn, July, 67c; September, 61½@⅝c; December, 46⅝c; May, 43⅝c. Oats, July, 35@c; new, 66c; September, 36¾c; new, 34¼c; December, 27⅝c; new, 32⅛@33c; May, 38⅝c. Pork, July, $17.15; September, $17.80; October, $17.85; January, $15.15. Lard, July, $10.42½; September, $10.52½; October, $10.30; December, $9.25; January, $8.57½. May, $8.85. Ribs, July, $10.15; September, $11.25; October, $10.00; January, $8.25. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—The market was nervous and strong. The selling pressure of late has been largely from shorts and this force seems to have spent itself at the moment. Light offerings therefore the market turned strong. Nervous shorts were the principal buyers. Receipts continue liberal and the grading in all markets is poor. Cash demand is only moderate. The premium for cash wheat and the general upswing of prices are the factors which make the shorts timid. Export business as for as reported is small. The weather in England is wet, in the Northwest conditions are favorable for the harvesting which is now begun. On account of small stocks are likely to be kept in a nervous condition.

Corn: Liverpool ⅜d lower. The market here was very quiet but firm. With the strength in other grains there was some covering of shorts and the uncertainty as to the outcome of the July deal still hangs over the market. Cash corn in fair demand at going prices.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, July 22.—Wheat—Considerable activity in the wheat market developed today, but fully 55 per cent of the trading was in September. The local crowd at any rate seeming to have made up their minds that with a recurrence of very severe rains which we have been having for so long a period throughout the Middle West give them no hope whatever of having any large stock of contract wheat here, especially of winter wheat available for September delivery, and the spring wheat crop was not in such a position as to be banked upon. So they are getting out of September, or while the shorts are covering, those who have faith in the September wheat are buying September and selling December, figuring that there will be a repetition as between the relative value of September and December as compared with one day and September, or, in other words that the September may sell at 5 to 8c over the December. The position of wheat on the whole is bullish and the figures as given from week to week make the position of wheat stronger. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 160 cars. Receipts at primary points 1,125,000 bus, against 918,000 last year. Shipments were 854,000 bus, against 579,000 bus last year. We look for a very decided decrease in the visible supply wheat in and afloat to Europe.

Corn—Estimated for tomorrow, 90 cars. There is a suggestion that the rush of corn from the country has about ceased and we think that the cribs have been well swept to get corn in for delivery on the high prices prevailing this current month and a condition exists now that may be continued for some time as we look for improvement in the demand and No. 3 and No. 3 yellow corn is selling here legitimately for shipment to go into consumption at prices ranging from 64c to 65c. The demand for shipment today has been fairly good, and we think probably 250,000 bus has been placed for lake shipment. We are still of opinion that this old corn is in the sixties to remain, at least, to remain in the sixties or higher, also that December is a good purchase, and likely to sell 10c to 15c a bus over May.

CROP CONDITIONS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin.

Washington, July 22.—The Weather Bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows:

The Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys and lake regions have continued to suffer from excessive rains, which have also interrupted farm work in the Ohio valley and in portions of the Gulf states and the states of New England. Much injury to crops and other property has resulted from overflows in Iowa and portions of Illinois, Missouri and Michigan. Drouth has been largely relieved in Southern states, but extensive areas in that section are still much in need of rain and especially the northern portions, extending from Oklahoma eastward to the Carolinas. The temperature conditions as a whole have been favorable, although rather low in the Northern Rockies. The North Pacific coast states sustained considerable damage from high winds and the Dakotas and Minnesota from hail storms in scattered localities.

The corn crop has made splendid progress in the states of the Central valleys, except in Iowa, and limited portions of Missouri and Illinois, the conditions of the crop in Iowa being fairly good on well-tilled uplands, but great damage has resulted from floods on the river bottoms of southern and eastern portions of that state, and in Northern Illinois. Highly favorable reports are received from Nebraska, Kansas and the greater part of Missouri and Illinois and a decided improvement in condition of the crop in the Ohio valley is indicated.

Rains have interfered with the unfinished harvesting of winter wheat in the extreme northern districts, and have also been unfavorable for threshing in the Central valleys, while considerable wheat in shock in the Lower Missouri valley has been damaged. Harvesting continues in California and has begun in Oregon, where wheat is filling nicely. The crop in both Oregon and Washington has, however, sustained considerable damage from recent high winds. Oats harvest is finished in the Southern states and is in progress in the central districts, while lodging is reported from the Ohio, Upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys and lake regions, the general condition of the crop continuing good.

Although generally improved in condition, cotton continues to suffer from drouth in portions of the Carolinas and the north central portions of the cotton belt and in the extreme Northwestern and Southwestern Texas. In much the greater part of the belt mentioned above the crop is normally developed and is heavily fruited with ample moisture for present needs. Over much the greater part of central and eastern districts the plant continues small and blooming to top is extensively reported.

In Tennessee, Kentucky, and Maryland, the condition of tobacco is somewhat less favorable than in the previous week, but the crop has done well in Ohio, and Virginia.

Apple prospects are sgeewhat improved in Missouri and promise well in portions of Olkahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Michagan. The outlook in New York is less promising, but continues favorable in New England. Generally throughout the Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic states, the indications are for a poor crop.

ISSUES

Of the Next Campaign As Outlined By Griggs.

New York, July 22.—Congressman James M. Griggs, of Georgia, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, who is in this city to meet other members of his committee, says the issue of the next campaign from a Democratic standpoint should be the tariff, the trusts, the Philippines and ship subsidy.

"I think there is a very good chance," he said, "for the Democrats to control the next house on the issues I have named."

Mr. Griggs will meet Lewis Nixon, the chairman of the finance committee of the national committee, today, and arrange with him for the establishment of the headquarters of his committee in New York. The committee will have headquarters at the Hoffman house, beginning Aug. 12.

STOCKS IRREGULAR

The Electric Grangers and Industrials Fluctuated Considerably.

Prices Steadied and Made Some Advance After Noon.

Some Losses at Closing Which Was Active.

New York, July 22.—Opening movement of prices was exceedingly irregular. Very heavy demand for Baltimore & Ohio carried it up nearly a point. Metropolitan Street Railway rose 1¾. General Electric a point and Manhattan, New York Central and Wheeling & Lake Erie large fractions. New York Air Brake jumped 3. Rock Island fell nearly a point and there were losses amongst the grangers and the industrials.

The market became steadier and prices hardened when the advance was resumed in some of the leading railroads and specialties, which were notably strong yesterday. These included New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Hocking Valley, Missouri Pacific, Amalgamated, Metropolitan Street Railway and Manhattan, which gained a point or more. Rock Island, Chicago & Alton and Brooklyn Transit, which had been off important fractions rallied to above yesterday's close and there was slight advances in the Pacifics and low priced Southwesterns. Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Fuller Construction preferred rose a point. General Electric reacted to 2 points below last night and Westinghouse Electric lost a point. A slight setback in some of the grain carriers and soft coalers checked the rising market and dealings became smaller. New York Central was bought in large blocks up to 164, an advance of 2¼, and there was a sympathetic rise to above 161 in Pennsylvania. Wisconsin Central preferred and People's Gas rallied over a point and New York Air Brake made its rise 6. General Electric dropped 3½ below last night before it met support and rallied 2 points, and there were fractions of other specialties that were heavy. Including United States Steel and Colorado Fuel, the Southern Pacific came into active demand before noon and rose to 69 without stimulating other transcontinental stocks. Ancanda advanced 2 points and lost half of its price. Delaware & Hudson improved 2¾ and the Readings large fractions on active dealings. The market was ragged and irregular at noon. Trades were irregular.

The easier tone of the market was due to reports of further gold exports; Southern Pacific lost all of its gain, New Jersey Central dropped 2½, and Lake Erie & Western and Pittsburg, C., C. & St. L. each a point. Sugar rose 1⅝. Twin City Rapid Transit, 1¼, and Fuller Construction pfd, 3. New York Central then renewed its advance to 164¾ and the whole market hardened moderately. Rock Island rose 2⅜ over last night and St. Paul, ⅞.

The demand for Rock Island carried it to 186 and induced a better demand for other grangers. St. Paul touched 183⅝. New York Central rose 3½ in all and General Electric wiped out its forenoon loss. Prices then eased off when the Southwesterns became heavy, but steadied again, under the leadership of Reading, which advanced 1¼. This stock was rattled in heavily, blocks of from 1000 to 4000 shares changing hands. Amalgamated Copper crossed 66. Hocking Valley rose 1¼. Evansville & Terre Haute, 1⅜, and the Colorado Fuel rallied 1¼.

Rock Island became very erratic and caused a somewhat feverish tone elsewhere. After rising 3¼ over last night there was a sudden relapse of 5. New York Air Brake was pushed up 12½ in all. Amalgamated rose 3, Aanconda, 1; Pump preferred, 2; American Grass Twine, 1¾, and Reading, ⅞ to 1¼. There was profit taking in other stocks and a reactionary tendency running to a point in some cases. Westinghouse Electric fell 3. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred, 2, and American Ice preferred 1¾. Atchison rose a full point late in the day. The closing was active and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Brokers who should be well informed say tonight that in order to test the underpinning of the market, manipulators and banking interests, as a result of an understanding reached over the holiday, withdrew their buying orders quite generally during the greater part of today's session. The result disclosed a good demand for stocks from the public and the same indisposition to sell on the part of actual holders of securities that has been of striking features for the speculative situation for so many weeks. Hence there is unabated confidence in the continuation of the bull movement. Such a reaction as occurred this morning, commission houses say, is to be expected, but should be availed of to buy good stocks. Traders report an increased short intrest in the granger shares and declare that it is based on gold exports and the stories of damage to the corn crop from floods. As regards the latter, the trustworthy accounts from private sources agree that the injury sustained by this cereal is confined to the low Kansas fields and the loss is estimated as high as $10,00,000 and is insignificant compared with the local value of the country's entire corn crop, $1,000,000,000.

Warrington to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The news is all good. Whoever heard of the public and traders buying stocks when they are cheap. There are some indications of a more general inclination on the part of the public to take hold, but they are cautious as yet. At present the upward movement will not culminate for some weeks yet and it will be both safe and profitable to buy and hold leading railway shares.

T. L. Manson to Paine, Webber & Co.: Northern Securities is selling at about 106 pending a decision as to the legality of the company. If the suit is decided adversely the assets of Northern Pacific and Great Northern are probably worth more than the present price of securities stock. If it is decided in their favor it is thought the stock would go to 125. The president of one of the largest banks here told a friend of mine recently that it is the best purchase on the list."

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market looks healthy. No volume came out on declines. That is indications of higher prices all around. Be cautious with stocks that are up 10 to 15 points, however. It is best to buy them in small lots only on scale up. New York Central is booked for advance. Baltimore & Ohio is safe and sure. I have no information on Manhattan or Sugar. Gates is not buying Southern Railway common.

New York to B. E. Baker: The chairman of the board of directors of the Rock Island says it is absolutely untrue that he is to retire for any reason whatever. Mr. Cable also says that it is not true that Mr. Maher is to become president of the road. Mr. Leeds is to remain at the head of the system and no changes in the executive department are contemplated.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Jesse Lewishon of the United Metals Selling company says: "There is little change in the copper situation and I do not look for a marked change. The demand is steady but by no means active. Most of the opinions expressed as to the market are materially colored by the wishes of those expressing them, but I doubt that any material surplus of copper is now being carried by any of the large companies. European consumption will increase in the near future and home demand will be more active. I do not expect, however, that the price of the metal will change materially as a result of the increased consumption."

Houghton to Paine, Weber & Co.—The Baltic mill stamped 900 tons of rock Saturday yielding 16½ tons of mineral which is the banner day's output for the mine's history. This does not include mass or barrel copper, the third head at the mill will surely start up in August and the Atlantic mill is expected on Champion rock Aug. 15.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 22.—The cotton market opened weak and feverishly active, with prices down 4 to 19 points, the latter being early July and following the call the entire list eased off under hasty liquidation and brisker selling prompted by the issuance of some 25,000 July notices at a time when the July longs were rather anticipating a squeeze of the belated shorts. Not until the current option had dropped to 8.43 or some 26 points from the final bid of last night, was there a halt in the selling movement. August fell 15 points in sympathy to 8.33. Then came a quick rally on room covering, followed by many twists and turns by bulls and bears alike in efforts to cull out profits on the most fluctuations or to clean out interests which have been guarded for some time past. The Liverpool cables were distinctly disappointing and throughout the session the English market was weak and irregular. Receipts were only moderate, but indicated the presence of new crop cotton while predictions were for a large out-turn next month.

Cotton spot quiet and steady; middling uplands, 9¼; middling gulf, 9½; sales, 253 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; July, 8.48; August, 8.32; September, 8.06; October, 7.88; November, 7.78; December, 7.77; January, 7.78; February, 7.78; March, 7.78.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Complaints Are Made Against High Speed of Tugs.

Local Inspectors Issue Circular Letters to Tug Masters.

Independent Tug Line Puts Another Tug In Commission.

Verbal reports have been made at the office of the local steamboat inspectors that some of the harbor tugs are violating one of the pilot's rules with reference to excessive speed while running in the harbor. Complaint has been particularly directed against the tugs Excelsior and the B. B. Inman which are said to have been run past the ferry boat Estelle so fast that on occasions when the steamer had the city scow attached there was danger of great damage being produced by the vessels pounding against each other. It was further claimed that one of the above mentioned tugs ran at full speed Sunday toward the ferry until within a very short distance of the Estelle then veered off, just missing the ferry. One woman passenger on the ferry boat is said to have been so badly frightened that she fainted.

The inspectors can take no definite action against the tugs until some damage is actually done, but circular letters have been printed calling attention to the complaints that have been made regarding the fast running about the harbor, and to the pilot rule regarding the same. These circulars will be mailed to the tug captains and to the pilots in the local harbor.

INVESTIGATING COLLISION

Inspectors Hear Bloomer Girl and Newsboy Case.

A hearing was held this morning before Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk to investigate the collision between the ecurston steamers Newsboy and Bloomer Girl. The collision took place July 8 in Tower bay slip and the Newsboy's bow was damaged. The testimony of the two crews was very conflicting. Captain Duncan Clow and the crew of the Newsboy testified that when the Newsboy was passing the Bloomer Girl, going in the same direction, one new in the employ of the Bloomer Girl blew a blast of the whistle of the Newsboy was blown and that the Bloomer Girl answered with two blasts, which would, in this case, be a cross signal.

Captain Richardson and the crew of the Bloomer Girl testified that the Bloomer Girl blew an alarm signal with her whistle, some claiming that five blasts were blown and others testifying that not more than three or four blasts were blown. The inspectors have taken the case under advisement, and will announce their decision later. Inspectors Monahgan and Chalk will leave tomorrow for Stillwater, Minn.

ANOTHER TUG PUT ON.

The Independent Towing company here made up of the recently licensed tugmen put another boat into commission yesterday, the Carpenter. This is the tug the men have been working on for some days, it having been out of commission all season. Another boat, the Merrill of Sheboygan is expected here the middle of the week. The men claim to have already purchased it.

The Modern Samaritans Amends Articles Admitting Women.

They Are Considered Better Insurance Risks Than Men.

Time of Office of the Directors Is Changed.

The Modern Samaritans, the fraternal organization which was founded in this city, amended its articles of incorporation yesterday so as to admit women.

Heretofore only those of the sterner sex were eligible, and while the head council of the order has not decided that women will be allowed to enter into the mystic chamber of Samaritanship, still it is in a position to do so if the members should so desire.

At the same time the fact is brought out that women are considered better insurance risks than men. That is the belief generally among the insurance men and they give good reasons. In the first place, it is stated that women lead quieter lives than the men and for the most part their habits are better. It is seldom that a woman can supplement startling serious stories sent out by some of the Sunday papers. It is a notorious fact, too, that in every community more old women are to be found than men of advanced age. Their occupations in life are less strenuous, and in fact there are very few who are engaged in vocations that would be termed hazardous. These facts have been considered by the Modern Samaritans and the subject will come up for serious consideration by the head council of the order within a few weeks.

Another change in the articles deals with the terms of members of the executive board. Heretofore the length of time each member served was nine years, there being one outgoing committeeman each year. Now the term is only three years and three new directors will be chosen annually.

WHEAT CROP.

Young German Miller Who Is Investigating the Conditions.

A. Dickelmann of Altona, Germany, is in the city and was a visitor on the board of trade today. Altona is near Hamburg, and Mr. Dickelmann is connected with H. W. Lange & Co., one of the largest milling firms in the German empire. He is in this country for the purpose of investigating grain conditions, and is traveling extensively through the grain raising regions of this country. He has been in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and other wheat-growing states, and from here will journey westward, going as far as the Pacific coast.

"Germany will not import more than from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels of wheat during the coming year as compared with 60,000,00 bushels last year. The home crop is very much better. The greater part of what we import comes from this country.

"The winter wheat crop, especially that of Kansas, is looking poorly. The hains have been incessant and very heavy. I was down there while it was raining, and the fall was very heavy. They do look for Kansas to raise more than 45,00,000 bushels, as compared with 100,000,000 bushels last year, and I do not think their estimates are any too low. The condition of the grain after threshing is liable to be bad, too. After the wheat was cut and in shock there were heavy rains, and that means damage. Yes, I think we shall buy heavily of your spring wheat this year.

"We have bought some Argentine wheat, although, as I said, most of our requirements are filled from America. The Argentine wheat is always very fine, however. We have bought wheat from there that was sold to us with sixty three pounds guaranteed weight to the bushel, which you must admit gives you pretty strong competition when the price is no higher.

"Germany is in a prosperous condition and there is no reason to expect anything but a continuance of the good times. We have had our periods of inflation, just as we think you are having now, but we generally come out of them all right."

Mr. Dickelmann is a young man, but he has traveled extensively in this country and is a keen observer, as is shown by the grasp of affairs which he indicates in his conversation. This is not his first trip to America, but it is his first visit to Duluth.

VETERANS' PENSIONS

Congress Is Constantly Broadening Its Scope of Legislation.

Immense Number of Bills Passed at Last Session.

New Measures Proposed For the Benefit of Soldiers.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, D. C., July 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is probably no single subject in the domain of national legislation that appeals so strongly to many thousands as that of pensions for the old soldier. Notwithstanding that the ranks of the veterans are thinning, congress is constantly broadening the scope of pension legislation to include within the provisions of its session laws persons who, ten years ago, would never have been contemplated as beneficiaries of the general government. Inquiries are being constantly received by the committee of the senate and house of representatives as to the scope and effect of legislation contemplated and enacted. Pension Commissioner Ware is beset with questions as to the purport of new legislation, and the newspapers of the country are besieged by subscribers asking for information upon this very important topic.

In contrast with former sessions, the first session of the Fifty-first congress, which ended its labors a short time ago, stands out as one of the busiest congresses so far as the history of that body is concerned in the matter of pension legislation. Chairman Sullowav of the house committee on invalid pensions is authority for the statement that the first session of the Fifty-seventh congress shows the largest number of bills, both public and private, that were ever sent to committee referred to his committee during the one hundred and fifty days in which congress was in session. He says in his statement made to the house just previous to adjournment that there are various reasons for this, the two chief ones, however, being the unsatisfactory administration of affairs in the pension bureau during the four years past, and the fact that a great many of the veterans of the civil war, or to be exact, 107,000 in round numbers, who were drawing pensions under the general law were influenced, under a misapprehension, to apply, under the act of June 27, 1890, and as old age and infirmities crept upon them, they found that the $12 per month which they were drawing under the act of June 27, 1890, was wholly inadequate to provide for them the necessities of life, and as a result, unless they secure aid from congress, many of them would be obliged to find homes in almshouses. Many of these men were formerly drawing pensions under the general law, according Mr. Sulloway, and had they remained there until they would have been entitled to a much larger pension than can be allowed under the act of June 27, 1890.

Another class of cases which, he says, appeals to all, and which has engrossed the attention of the committee of both bodies, and for whom a large number of bills have been passed, come right along in these same lines. They are the class of men who are drawing $12 a month under the act of June 27, 1890, and who have since become totally deaf or paralyzed, and require the aid and attendance of another person. This class of cases has been raised from $12 to $24 or $30 per month. In order that this class of cases might have an equal and just rating, the house of representatives passed an amendment to the so-called "maimed soldiers act," giving all veterans of this class who had a year's service a rating of $30 per month where they are so disabled as to require the aid and attendance of another person. It is confidently predicted that should this measure become a law it would largely tend to reduce the passage of private acts by congress, and at the same time provide relief to a class of veterans, many of whom can trace their disabilities to the service, but who, on account of technicalities in the law, and the fact that many of their witnesses, if living, could prove their claims, would entitle them to a rating of from $50 to $75 per month under the general law.

In this connection it may not be out of place to recall the joint resolution which was approved by the president on the 1st of July, construing the act approved June 27, 1890, wherein it is held that that act includes all persons and the widows and minor children of all deceased persons subject to the limitations of the act, who served for ninety days in the military or naval service of the United States during the late war of the rebellion, and who have been honorably discharged therefrom.

Section 4716 of the Revised Statutes is amended according to the resolution above referred to to the extent that the construction of this statute does no apply to those who served in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth regiments, United States Volunteer infantry, who had a prior service in the confederate army or navy and who enlisted in said regiments while confined as prisoners of war under a stipulation that they were not pensionable under the laws of the United States, nor to those who having had such prior service enlisted in the military or naval service of the United States after January 1, 1890.

Should the bills which are now on either the senate or house calendars pass congress, much needed legislation along the lines of simplifying the question of pensionable status will be accomplished and many deserving veterans who through technicalities are unable to enjoy the benefits of former pension legislation will have an opportunity of proving up their cases.

Probably one of the most important bills now pending before congress is the bill granting an increase of pension to those who lost limbs in the service of the United States, and increasing the pension of those entitled to the maximum rating under the act of June 27, 1890, to thirty dollars per month in cases where the soldier requires the frequent and practical aid and attendance of another person, provided his service during the war of the rebellion was for one year or more. This bill, which had its origin in the senate, was passed by the house on the 16th of June and is now pending before the senate for concurrence. The bill provides that all persons who are on the pension roll and all persons hereafter granted a pension, who, while in the military or naval service of the United States and in the line of duty, shall have lost one hand or one foot or been totally disabled in the same due from wounds, injuries or diseases originating prior to August 4, 1886, shall receive a pension at the rate of $40 per month. All persons who in like manner shall have lost an arm at or above the elbow or a leg at or above the knee, or been totally disabled in the same shall receive a pension of $46 per month. All persons who in like manner shall have lost an arm at the shoulder joint or a leg at the hip joint or so near the shoulder or hip joint, or where the same is in such condition as to prevent the use of an artificial limb, shall receive a pension of $55 a month. All persons who shall have lost one hand and one foot or who has been totally disabled in the same shall receive a pension of $60 per month, and all persons who have lost both feet shall receive a pension of $100 a month. It is further provided that the act shall not be so construed as to reduce any pension under any act, public or private.

Senate resolution No. 8, repealing section 4716, Revised Statutes, as to disloyalty in claims under the act of June 27, 1890, was also reported to the house, with an amendment, so that the Union soldier who rendered two terms of service and was honorably discharged from the last term of service only may also have title under the act of June 27, 1890. This bill is now on the house calendar.

House bill No. 9324, construing the act of March 3, 1879, as to the filing of claims by children under 16 years of age, also reported by the house committee on invalid pensions, is on the house calendar.

House bill No. 12141, amending the act of March 3, 1901, relating to remarried widows, passed the house June 16, 1902, and is now before the senate.

Senate bill No. 1359, increasing the pension for total deafness from $30 to $40 per month, has been reported to the house, and is now on the house calendar.

NEIGHBORS FIGHT.

Pitchfork and Rifle Figure In Glasgow Quarrel.

Wabasha, Minn., July 22.—A serious affray occurred at the residence of John Kirtz, in the town of Glasgow Monday night. Kohn, who is working for Joe Tushaus, was out looking for a bull that had strayed away from home. He had a fork with him to drive the animal. He called Kirtz and there got into an argument with Kirtz over the head several times with the fork, cutting the scalp in several places. Mrs. Kirtz is in bed. She claims she got in the neck. A son of Kirtz appeared with a rifle and shot Kohn in the breast, the bullet striking a suspender buckle, which undoubtedly saved his life. The sheriff and county attorney are now out at the scene of the affray.

DEMOCRATS

Of Missouri Meet In Convention at St. Joseph.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 22.—The Democratic state convention for the nomination of two railroad commissioners and superintendent of public instruction, was called to order at noon in the Lyceum theater in this city today.

A wrangle of considerable proportions has sprung up between the state administration and a band of insurgents, known locally as the "anti-state house crowd."

The temporary organization is as follows: D. H. Shields, Hannibal, chairman; James H. Phillips, Jackson, temporary secretary; Jeff Pollard, St. Louis, and R. J. McCallahan, Sullivan county, reading clerks; Walter Rex, St. Joseph, doorkeeper.

Comparatively little interest centers in the candidates for the offices of railroad commissioner and superintendent of public instruction, the paramount issue being the reorganization of the state central committee.

PROPHECY

Of an Aged Man at Akron Was Fulfilled.

Akron, Ohio, July 22.—Five leading young men of Doylestown gathered to greet Benrose Billman, the aged proprietor of the Billman house of that town, when he emerged a few years ago from the sick room for the first time after a long illness. "We had planned to have a dinner in your honor in case you had died," they jokingly told him. Then Billman, weak and tottering, made a strange prophecy, which has just been fulfilled. Said he: "Boys, I'll stand beside the hole when each of you is lowered into the grave."

Just a month later death claimed one of the five young men. Peter Busson, a hale athletic fellow, died of a sudden illness. Billman had just sufficiently recovered to attend his funeral. Two months more John Wealy, another of the party, died. Mr. Billman helped to decorate his casket with flowers. James Eiel, a man in health and strength, was the third of the group of five to be called to the beyond.

This death came within two years. Billman, the lone survivor, was absent as the undertaker, made the rough box for the casket containing the young man's remains. Four years passed and Fred Boysinger, the fourth of the party, died and Billman was one of the crowd beside the grave.

Ken Young, the most prominent of the younger citizens of Doylestown, was the fifth and last of the group and his death occurred the past week at Mt. Clemens, Mich., where he had gone, hoping to benefit his health, formerly perfect, it was thought. Within ten years from the time of his prophecy Billman has seen its fulfillment.

The bishop of this diocese will be Very Rev. J. N. Stauha of St. Paul, vicar general of the archdiocese of St. Paul.

SWELL DOG FUNERALS.

Many Canines Are Buried In Great State.

Of all the remarkable institutions to be found in this city there are few quite so unusual as the cemetery for dogs and cats, situated on the Bladensburg road, immediately east of Mt. Olivet Cemetery, says the Washington Post. This institution is duly authorized by law and regularly inspected by the district health officers, and is owned and conducted by Dr. D. E. Buckingham, of 2114 Fourteenth street northwest, who is not only a skillful veterinarian and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, but in addition enjoys the unique distinction of being the first and only dog undertaker in Washington.

The institution, unusual as it is, and amusing though it may seem, is nevertheless conducted on business principles and managed by people who are far from being either commonplace or poverty-stricken. Dr. Buckingham, who originated and who is now conducting the enterprise, served on the government horse and mule board at St. Louis, Mo., during the Spanish-American war, and until the fall of 1900 was connected with the National Zoo as veterinarian in charge.

The enterprise originated as a sidegrowth to his veterinary practice, and through the desire of wealthy people, who become very much attached to their pets, to see that they are properly buried and their graves tended after death. As a general thing they would prefer to inter them in their own yards, but as the District government makes this an offense, punishable by a fine of from $10 to $35, they have hailed with satisfaction the establishment of a regular dog undertaking business by Dr. Buckingham, who, in consequence, has a large and growing custom.

"How do you conduct your dog funerals?" asked a Post reporter of the doctor recently.

In reply the latter related all the ins and outs of his profession, giving the newspaper man a clear insight into one of the most remarkable means of earning a livelihood in Washington. He said:

"You ask me how I conduct a dog funeral? Well, we will say, for example, that the favorite pug or poodle of some wealthy lady dies, and that I am sent for. On arrival I find the body of the animal laid out on silk cushions, and the family in tears. As a rule, they want to inter the animal in their own back yard, and then it is that I have to explain to them that this is against the law and liable to cause trouble, as there are always prying and revengeful neighbors about who know what is going on in every back yard in the block and who would ask nothing better than to report the matter to the health authorities.

"When I make this clear to them, the lady usually answers that this difficulty can be very easily overcome, and that 'our man' will bury 'poor Flossie' after dark. Then I am obliged to tell them that this will not help matters, as the decomposing body will produce an odor, rendering the place unhealthy, etc., concluding by suggesting that they turn the undertaking and funeral arrangements over to me and have the animal buried in my dog and cat cemetery. I explain to them that the latter is authorized by law and regularly inspected, so that the bodies of pets interred therein are absolutely certain never to be disturbed.

"This generally brings them to reason, and the funeral arrangements are settled there and then. I charge all the way from $5 to $15 for a lot in my cemetery, according to size and location, giving them an instrument in writing, something in the nature of a deed, by which they practically become owners of the plot in which their cat or dog is buried, for a period of five years. At the expiration of that period they can continue to hold the lot by the payment of a nominal fee. I also charge several dollars for the contract which provides for the body, for the work of burial, wooden monument or tombstone, planting of flowers and other incidentals.

"This done, I leave the house, select a coffin for the animal from among a number that I keep in stock to fit every size of canine, from a pug to a mastiff, and turn the rest of the matter over to my colored dog undertaker, John Harris. Harris sets out in the morning in a covered wagon, and, reaching the place where the body of the dog is lying in state, places it in the coffin and sets out for the cemetery on the Bladensburg road or Baltimore pike. The cemetery covers three acres of land, and is situated on a high knoll, covered with large and stately oak trees and surrounded by a handsome wire fence. Harris places the body in the grave that has been prepared for its reception and which the sexton, a man I employ there, fills up and 'mounds up' in proper fashion, as though the grave contained human instead of canine remains.

"Thus far I have not erected any tombstones in the cemetery, although I expect to do something of this sort soon, as there are quite a number of people who think a great deal of their animals, and who have decided to erect tombstones over their graves. Take Admiral Walker's dog, for example. The admiral had an old Irish setter named 'Don,' that had accompanied him on every cruise, and had been all over the world. He died several weeks ago of Brights disease, at the ripe old age of 13 years. The admiral was so much affected over the death of faithful old Don that he shed tears.

"'You may think it foolish in me,' he said, 'but that dog and I were such friends that I cannot help sorrowing over his death.'

"Then there was Miss Wright's pug dog, Beauty, that died of eye trouble, and E. A. Mitchell's cocker spaniel, Pedro, that fell a victim to congestion of the brain. These three have head boards bearing their names, but I think that later they will have little stone monuments.

"One dog that died recently was a famous character. He was an English setter named Flash, and belonged to Miss Henderson, of 934 I street. Flash was the most arrant old meat thief in Washington, and stole meat from butchers for miles around. He reached the ripe old age of 14 years, and died of gorging himself with a sirloin steak that he stole from under the very nose of an I street butcher. He has a fine wooden monument bearing the legend, 'Flash. He died leaving many friends,' though probably not among the butchers.

"In addition to my undertaking business, I am also a regular cat and dog doctor, and in the course of my practice have some very amusing and curious cases. As a general thing there is more sickness among dogs in the winter than in the summer season. You see in summer they eat dog fennel occasionally, which acts as a tonic and prevents many of the diseases which they incur in the winter from a too steady diet of meat. Pugs are the most delicate and sickly dogs, while bull terriers are the hardiest, healthiest and most vigorous. Several weeks ago Beauty, a cocker spaniel belonging at 520 Fifth street, chased a cat out on the roof, which was so steep and slippery that she slid off, falling four stories and breaking her left hind leg. I performed a very successful amputation on this animal, which is now doing well and recovering quite rapidly.

"Another case was that of a fox terrier belonging to one of my customers, who had his nose run over and broken by a buggy. I removed the bits of broken bone and inserted a tube, kept it there until the tissues had grown around it. Then I took it out, and the dog has as good a nose as ever, although somewhat misshapen."

STRANGE BRIDAL CUSTOMS.

The Scandinavian bridegroom gives his bethrothal a prayer book and many other gifts, which usually include a goose. She, in turn, gives him, especially in Sweden, a shirt, and this he invariably wears on his wedding day. Afterward he lays it away, and under no circumstances of state or poverty will he wear it again while alive. But he wears it in his grave, and there are Swedes who earnestly believe not only in the resurrection of the body, but in the veritable resurrection of the bethrothal shirts of such husbands as have never broken their marriage vows. The Swedish widower must destroy upon the eve of his second marriage the wedding shirt his first wife gave him.

LARGEST DONATION

Ever Made For Strike Is Received By Miners.

Check Sent From Illinois For Fifty Thousand.

Indianapolis, July 23.—Secretary Wilson of the United Mine Wrkers today received a check for $50,000 for the strike fund from the Illinois organization. This was forwarded by him immediately to the anthracite field. The Illinois miners have, within four weeks, given the national organization $100,000 for strike funds and still have nearly $500,000 in reserve.

This donation, it is said, is the largest ever received for a strike. Wilson has received notice from individuals of checks for as much as $1,000 that are now on their way to headquarters, indicating that the appeal to the public for funds has been effective.

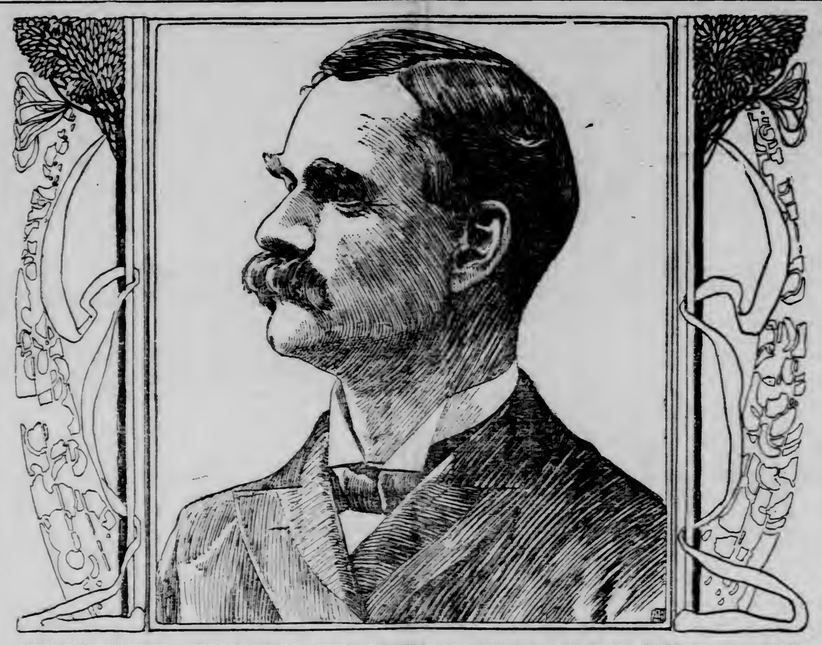

Secretary Wilson says no attempt will be made to pay the anthracite strikers stipulated sums of money weekly.

"Our intention," said he, "is not to pay regular benefits, but merely to take care of the strikers and their families."

It is believed the miners will not attempt to keep bituminous coal out of the anthracite markets, except as a last resort.

The officials will not talk about it now, but it is understood this was fully considered the night the committee discussed Mitchell's recommendations and that it has been largely left to the discretion of Mitchell and Wilson as to what shall be done.

President Mitchell left this afternoon for Chicago, and tonight he will go from there to Wilkesbarre.

REPRESENTATIVE LITTLEFIELD, WHO IS CHARGED WITH PRESSING BEFORE CONGRESS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ANTITRUST BILLS.

Congressman Charles Edgar Littlefield of Maine, to whom has been intrusted the task of drafting legislation in accordance with President Roosevelt's views for presentation to congress next December, first attracted national attention a couple of years ago by his speech on the question of the rights of Porto Rico. Mr. Littlefield is not only an able lawyer, but a most eloquent speaker, two considerations which should exert an important influence upon his antitrust campaign in congress. He represents what in Washington is generally referred to as the Nelson Dingley district.

OPPOSED TO NEW PARTY

Senator Dubois Believes In Democratic Union.

Shibley Is Not Out Organizing Any New Party.

Minneapolis, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge J. D. Flenner, private secretary to United States Senator F. T. Dubois of Idaho, is visiting his stepson, F. F. Clark, of this city.

Judge Flenner was seen yesterday and expressed considerable surprise at the Associated Press dispatch of yesterday morning regarding the organization of a new national party by Senator Dubois, fomer Senator R. F. Pettigrew of South Dakota, and others at Manhattan beach. He said he was quite sure the report was erroneous, as Senator Dubois is a loyal Democrat and would not countenance a third party movement of any kind.

Mr. Flenner has been associated in politics with Senator Dubois very intimately for the last twelve years and understands his views. The senator is a recent accession to the Democratic ranks. He left the Republican party in 1896, when that party dropped silver, and was the leader of the Silver Republican party of Idaho up to 1900. He was elected to the senate as a Silver Republican in 1901.

Immediately upon his election Senator Dubois announced himself as a Democrat, because that party represented his views more nearly than any other. According to Judge Flenner, he took high rank at once with the Democratic members, who showed him marked courtesy and consideration. He was very active in securing a union of the Democrats in both houses on important measures.

Said Judge Flenner: "Senator Dubois believes most firmly in the union of all Democratic forces and would not approve in any way a division in the Democratic ranks. I am persuaded that the report from New York has been very much mixed up, and I am confident the first thing the senator will do when he sees it will be to issue a flat denial.

"George Shibley, of Washington, who has been reported as the chief promoter of the plan, is not out organizing any new party. He is simply organizing a movement in all the parties to secure direct legislation by the Wineckti methods, which is to adopt what is known as the referendum through a rule of proceedure in the legislature, instead of changing the constitution of the state. All of the labor organizations have indorsed Shibley's plan and he is seeking to enlist leading senators and public men in its support."

DAKOTA REPUBLICANS

Eighth Convention Held at Fargo---Governor White Is Confident of Renomination In Spite of Strong Opposition.

Fargo, N. D., July 23.—The eighth convention of the Republican party of North Dakota to nominate two congressmen and a full quota of state officers was called to order today at 11 o'clock. Col. E. J. Gearey was made temporary chairman and it is probable that he and associate officials will be made permanent officers of the convention.

The uninstructed candidate two weeks ago claimed 70 votes out of the 78 in the convention and since the van guard arrived Sunday night there has not been the least fear among them.

Governor White is confident of renomination, notwithstanding the influence and prominence of his only opponent, E. Y. Soarles, of Hillsboro. Under the new census the state is entitled to two congressmen. T. F. Marshall will be renominated and the second place will fall to B. F. Spalding, of Fargo, who was defeated for renomination two years ago.

The ticket will be:

Congress—T. F. Marshall, Dickey; B. F. Spalding, Cass.

Governor—Frank White, Barnes.

Lieutenant-governor—David Bartlett, Griggs.

Supreme court—John M. Cochrane, Grand Forks.

Secretary of state—E. F. Porter, Foster.

Auditor—D. M. Holmes, Pembina.

Treasurer—D. McMillan, Cavalier.

Commissioner of insurance—Ferdinand Leutz, Marcan.

Superintendent of public instruction—W. L. Stockwell, Wells.

Commissioner of agriculture and labor—R. J. Turner, Stark.

Railroad commissioners—C. J. Lord, Cando; J. F. Shea, Wahpeton. Andrew Shatz, Harvey.

The resolutions have not been framed yet. They will be silent on the so-called railroad merger, on prohibition and a primary law.

PARAGUAY

Will Send Large Exhibit to the World's Fair.

St. Louis, July 23.—The commission of foreign relations of the Louisiana purchase exposition has received an application from J. U. Ruffin, United States consul at Assumption, the capital of Paraguay, South America, for space for the Paraguayan exhibit. Mr. Ruffin states that this is the first time Paraguay has taken such an interest in a world's fair, and that the president of the republic soon will issue a decree providing for the exhibit.

The executive committee of the exposition has approved the recommendations to grant building space for the erection on the fair grounds of House of Hoo Hoo. The organization of Hoo Hoos is known throughout the country as being comprised of lumbermen, and the building will be typical of woodcraft. It will not contain exhibits, but will be formed to represent the symbolical letter "H" and every room will be finished in a different wood, as an object lesson of the architectural utility of wood construction and the art of interior finish.

ALL READY FOR THE MILL

Attendance at the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons Fight at San Francisco on Friday Night Promises to Test Capacity of Arena.

San Francisco, July 23.—Everything is now in readiness for the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons fight on Friday night, and the attendance promises to tax the capacity of the arena. It is not likely that Jeffries will follow his usual routine of exercises from now on. He is at his best and will do just as he pleases. He is particularly partial to sprinting at this stage of the game, as he believes that by footing it merrily over short stretches of highway he gains in speed and strength of his wind. Jeffries is better natured than he was a week ago. He declares that he feels stronger and better than he ever did before going into any fight, and those who have been watching him during his training insist that he is faster than ever. Fitzsimmons also has passed the point where preliminary exercise will cut any figure. He says that hereafter he will do his boxing in private. After experiencing a temporary boom in betting circles Fitzsimmons' chances have receded in the estimation of speculators until the original odds of 10 to 4 now prevail.

A slight defect in the ring has been found, but it will be remedied before the fight. The heavy timbers which support the framework above the ring were found to be rather too close to the ropes. If there was a struggle in any one of the four corners there was a possibility of either the heads or the hands of the boxers being injured. To avoid this a rope will cut off one foot of each corner, making the ring octagonal instead of square. The posts will be padded as an extra precaution.

Soldier Tom Wilson, who came from the East to act as Fitzsimmons' sparring partner, but who was shelved in favor of Hank Griffin, will not see the fight. He received orders to join his regiment at Fort Monroe, Va., by July 29 and will leave tonight.

SOME FRICTION IN CUBA

Annexation Movement Has Caused Considerable Feeling Among Those Who Are Working to Make Independence a Success.

New York, July 23.—The annexation movement has caused some feeling among those Cubans who want the island to have a fair chance in trying to solve the problem of self-government, cables the Havana correspondent of the Tribune.

The anti-annexationists say the champions of annexation consist largely of men who, when the war was on, spent the time at watering places in the United States or Mexico, who, when the war was over, flocked back to Cuba, expecting to get the lion's share of the spoils, to which those who had fought for independence were entitled.

The reports of possible disturbances in Cuba do not seem to have any substantial foundation. The Cubans realize that the eyes of the world are upon them as well as the United States, and their pride is at stake. Some of the annexationists say that the United States would only want a pretext to tell the Cubans they had a trial and had been found wanting. A few of these enthusiasts actually imagine that if somebody was to gather a party of a few hundred men together, make a dash for the woods, rob a few pastures and burn a few plantations, as soon as the news was flashed to Washington, troops would at once be ordered to Cuba, and the intervention would be at hand again. It is such talk as this that has made the anti-annexationists so bitter against the annexationists.

It must be said, however, that there are in the ranks of the annexationists men of high character, who are perfectly conscientious in their advocacy of annexation and have no personal motives in wishing to bring it about.

Cuban planters have an organization known as Circulo de Hacendos, a society which has been fostering the movement for annexation, and a meeting has been called for July 30, where it is purposed that entirely new officers shall be elected and that only annexationists shall figure in the new personnel. Then, it is said, a regular campaign for annexation will be started.

DETECTIVE TESTIFIES

At the Coroner's Inquest Over the Death of Albert Latimer---He Was Employed to Watch Tuthill.

New York, July 23.—Harry J. Packer, an insurance adjuster, who also worked as a private detective, was the first witness today in the coroner's investigation of the shooting of Albert C. Latimer in his home in Brooklyn, on the morning of July 2. Packer testified that on May 1 this year Latimer visited him and employed him.

"Why did Latimer visit you?" asked District Attorney Clarke.

"He told me he wanted to get evidence against his wife for unfaithfulness with a man whose name was given by Mr. Latimer as Tuthill," replied Parker.

"On May 2 of this year I went with Mr. Latimer to Tuthill's residence on Vanderbilt avenue and there I was told by Mr. Latimer that was Tuthill's house and I was to keep a watch on it and report Tuthill's movements to him. On May 4, I saw Tuthill go to Latimer's house at about 5:30 or 6 o'clock. Latimer was accustomed to reach home as late as 6:30 or 7 o'clock."

Parker testified that on one occasion Tuthill went to see Mrs. Latimer at her home and remained there until the middle of the afternoon.

The case was then given to the jury, which brought in a verdict declaring that Mr. Latimer was killed by a pistol shot wound. No charge was made against any one by the jury.

ANARISTOCRATIC FRAUD

Former Lieutenant In Kaiser's Army Arrested In San Francisco on Complaint of His Friends Whose Trust He Betrayed.

San Francisco, July 23.—Otto Meder, once lieutenant of a crack regiment in the kaiser's army, and, by his own account, the scion of an aristocratic, but impoverished family of Hanover, has been arrested and lodged in the city prison. He is accused of felony in betraying the trust of friends and obtaining $300 from George Scunewald, proprietor of the Hotel Delmonte, on a spurious check. Lieut. Wilhelm Valentine of the Prussian Cuirassiers, and an agent of his government while in the United States, also accuses Meder of obtaining more than $1500 from him, by false pretensions. When Detective Reynolds arrested him at the German consulate, Meder had just received a letter from a young lady of New Orleans telling him that she had paid $100 for papers to which he had forged her name, and saying that if he did not return the money, she would notify the police of San Francisco.

SHE LOST HER NECKLACE

Prominent Philadelphia Woman Caught Trying to Smuggle a Valuable Pearl Necklace Into This Country Without Paying Duty.

New York, July 23.—As a prominent young society woman of Philadelphia stepped from the steamship Kron Prinze Wilhelm on its arrival here, and greeted her husband waiting on the pier, agents of the treasury department interrupted their conversation and took from the woman a pearl necklace reported worth $20,000, which she had purchased in Paris and omitted from her declaration.

A special treasury agent had been in Paris and learned of the purchase of the necklace. He determined to return to New York on the same steamship with the purchaser. After the traveler had greeted her husband the couple were asked to return to the woman's stateroom. The agent asked for the necklace and the woman, who wore it around her neck, under the dress collar, handed the pearls over.

Collector Stranahan may allow the payment of the duty of 60 per cent and deliver the necklace to its owner.

The latter said, however, he might decide not to pay the duty, and return the necklace to the Paris jewelers who sold it to his wife. The woman said she had no intention of evading payment, but wished to consult her husband about the purchase before declaring it to the customs officers.

MORROW MAN STABS HIS SON

Morrow, Ohio, July 23.—Edward Baker, a farmer living two miles from this town, last night stabbed to death his son Edgar, aged 22. Baker had been to Morrow to dispose of a load of wood and returned home intoxicated. He quarreled with his son and in the encounter which followed stabbed him to death. The father was arrested and taken to Lebanon jail. Edgar Baker was at home temporarily, being convalescent from an attack of typhoid fever. He has employed at St. Paul, Minn., as manager of several grocery stores.

A SHEEP HERDER MURDERED

Denver, July 23—A telephone message received by Mrs. Leonard Sedgewick, at her home, 2128 Curtis street, conveyed the information that upon her husband's sheep ranch, near Rock Springs, Wyo., one of his herders had been murdered, presumably by infuriated cattle herders. The message also stated that 7000 sheep had been slain by the same parties that made away with the herder. Mrs. Sedgewick says there is the most intense jealousy between the sheep and cattle men in that district and that hundreds of cattle or sheep are slaughtered when found roaming upon strange ground.

VICTIM OF FOOL HANDSHAKE

Des Moines, Iowa, July 23.—Capt. J. N. McCanahan, a prominent politician of Corydon and ex-grand master of the Masonic order of Iowa, has lost his right hand from the effects of a handshake with a friend. The grip received was so hard that several small bones were broken and afterward caused a cancerous growth. Amputation became necessary and the operation has been performed.

TO LOOK INTO THE BLOCKADE

Washington, July 23.—The navy department has taken steps to investigate the reported interference with American shipping in Venezuelan waters, which is said to have resulted from the recent blockade declared by President Castro uon a number of ports in the republic. The navy department has been informed that Commander Rodgers left La Guayra yesterday with the gunboat Marietta for the mouth of the Orinoco river, and will stop en route at Cumana, Carupano and Trinidid. The work laid out for the Marletta will keep her busy for four or five days or more and meantime the gunboat Ranger at Panama will be the only sentinel on the isthmus, the Machias having been ordered to sail at once from Colon for Cape Haytien.

MINING STOCKS

Stolen From Man at St. Louis Station.

St. Louis July 23.—G. W. McElhinney, who reached here from his home at Guanajuato, Mexico, en route to New York city, was robbed at the Union station of a valise contining, he said, deeds and shares of mining property in Old Mexico valued at from $125,000 to $200,000. According to McElhinney, the stocks were not negotiable. He postponed his departure for the East in the hope that the local police might locate the stolen property.

CHOLERA IN MANCHURIA.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—It is officially announced that cholera is raging at Mukden, Manchuria. There were 757 cases between July 13 and 14 and 81 Russians and 363 Chinese died from the disease.

IN STATE.

Remains of Cardinal Ledochowski Are In Chapelle Ardente.

Rome, July 23.—The remains of Cardinal Ledochowski, who died here yesterday were laid in state this morning, in the chapelle ardente of the Palace of the Propaganda, where they were subsequently visited by all the members of the sacred college. The close friends of the deceased and his secretaries, Fathers Vesela and Zelewaski, insisted on personally performing the last offices and arranged the body for burial. The chapelle ardente is now open to the public. The Piazza di Spagni, where the Palace of the Propaganda stands, is crowded with people, including many American pilgrims, eager to obtain admission. Letters and telegrams of regret are pouring in from all quarters. The grief of Poland, Cardinal Ledochowski's native country, amounts to almost a national demonstration, the dead cardinal having been persona non grata to Russia and Germany on account of his advocacy of Polish independence.

HATPINS CAUSED HER DEATH

New York, July 23.—Leone Jeodle, for two years a novice at a convent in Flushing, L. I., is dead, says a Providence, R. I., dispatch to the World, after a long and mysterious illness, which had baffled medical science. An autopsy was performed and in the region of the heart, and piercing the pericardium, was found a headless steel hat pin four and a quarter inches long. In the stomach was found part of another hat pin one and a quarter inches long, also headless.

The young woman had complained of pains in the stomach since 1898, but she died without having mentioned the cause of her illness.

FOUND BONES OF MASTODON

Dallas, Tex., July 23.—Workmen excavating in a gravel pit two miles south of Dallas have unearthed the remains of a mastodon. The jawbones were in perfect shape and eight feet in length, but crumbled when exposed to air. The teeth remained perfect, however. The molars are 14½ inches long, 7½ wide and weigh 15 pounds. They probably will be sent to the state university at Austin.

TRYING TO DESTROY A FORT

New York, July 23.—Incendiaries are making repeated attempts to destroy Fort Stevens, the new military post near this city, says a dispatch to the World from Astoria, Ore. Had their plans succeeded they would have blown the fort to atoms and perhaps killed hundreds of persons. They set fire to the torpedo storehouse, but the building is fireproof and the attempt failed. Almost simultaneously fire was discovered in the barracks, but this, too, was extinguished. The incendiaries had saturated the door with oil. After the fires were extinguished a note is said to have been found signed "The Twelve Dynamiters," declaring that the writers had determined to destroy the fort, and that their efforts would be continued.

AN EXCLUSIVE CLUB PULLED

New York, July 23.—An exclusive club at Long Branch, N. J., where wealthy visitors from New York were congregated to play cards, has been raided by Sheriff Davis and a posse. The alleged proprietor and two attendants were arrested, but twenty players were permitted to leave unmolested. The raid was the result of emplaints made by residents near the club, who protested against the noise. A large wagonload of gambling paraphernalia was hauled out of the place and taken to Freehold, where it will be destroyed by the authorities. Cash and checks aggregating thousands of dollars were seized. Sheriff Davis held the money, which will be used as evidence. The prisoners were released under heavy bonds.

COL. CODY IN DULUTH

Still Clings to the Strenuous Life In the Saddle.

Is Probably His Farewell Appearance In This City.

For First Time, Fair Weather Shines Upon Wild West.

Col. William F. Cody, bronzed veteran of many thrilling Indian campaigns and millionaire showman, rancher and mine owner, is entertaining some 15,000 or more Duluthians today with his Wild West exhibition.

This last of the great scouts is a little disfigured but still in the saddle. The strain of street parades and two daily performances of the congress of rough riders, together with active participation in the management of five ranches, two gold mines, and the irrigation and colonization of 650,000 acres of land in the Big Horn Basin, to say nothing of looking after the interests of the growing town of Cody and a thousand and one other business matters, is beginning to tell on the old war horse, but he is still full of ambition and bustling enthusiasm.

This is the first time that Duluth has greeted Col. Cody with clear, bright, sparkling weather. For years and years the people of the show have prepared for anything, from drowning to freezing to death, while playing this engagement.

The weather god probably relented, owing to the fact that this is the farewell appearance of the show here. Next fall the entire show will be taken to Europe for a tour of three years, including the larger cities of England and the continent.

It is probable that when that engagement is finished, Col. Cody will retire from the show business to devote all his time to mining and developing the Big Horn country.

"In all my life I never saw such an improvement in a town," said the colonel this morning as he looked over Duluth.

"Two years have made many changes for the better, and if Duluth keeps on at this rate you will have a city here that will rival Chicago."

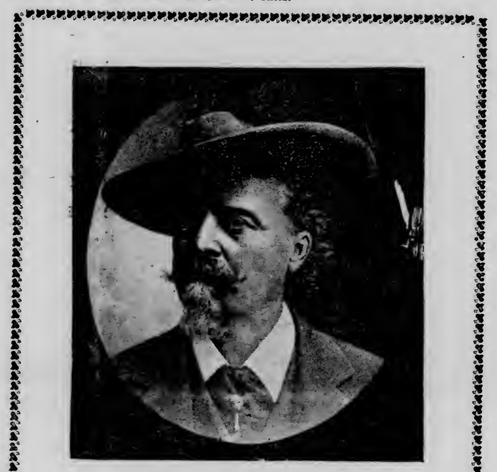

But however interested he may be in Duluth, his heart is in the Big Horn country and the town of Cody. This country, hemmed in between the continental divide and the Shoshone range of mountains, in Northwestern Wyoming, is where he has invested many hundred thousands of dollars in making a desert blossom by the miracle of irrigation.

There are now 150,000 acres of the basin under water, and there are still 500,000 acres more to irrigate. Col. Cody says that on his ranches, what was once a desert is now yielding nearly fifty bushels of wheat to the acre, while from 80 to 100 bushels of oats to the acre is nothing extraordinary for the country around Cody.

The federal government is now building a stage road from the town of Cody into Yellowstone Park. It will be the genuine old time stage line—probably the last one in existence.

The show today is in Oneota Park, and it is drawing record-breaking crowds. The big street cavalcade this morning proved to be one of the finest military spectacles ever seen in this city.

Cavalry forces of all nations were in line, together with broncho busters, the cowboy band, dashing wild west girls, Cuban patriots, and members of the United States coast guard, which will give the first demonstration of the use of the breeches buoy ever seen in this city.

JUBILATE.

Woodland People Celebrate Over Their Newly Acquired Utilities.

This is a joyous season for the Woodland people, and their hilarity over the installation of improved street car service, water and gas service is still finding vent in festive events. Last evening their exuberance resolved itself into an athletic carnival in which about 500 people from Woodland either participated or witnessed.

The carnival was held on J. C. Hunter's field and consisted of 100-yard dashes, long-distance races, wrestling matches, jumping and pole-vaulting contests, each event following the preceding one in rapid succession.

Attorney J. L. Washburn acted as director of sports and is said to have engineered the contests in true ringmaster style.

J. C. Hunter and Thomas Gibson captained two teams for a tug-of-war. The teams were comprised of business and professional men. Mr. Hunter's team won the contest.

To Be Enlarged.

Judge Carey anounces that the Norton estate has closed arrangements with the Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company for the addition of one story to the building occupied by it on Michigan street and Fourth avenue west and the building of a 52-foot addition on the east side, the new part to also be four stories in height. It will cost $20,000, and the work is to proceed at once.

SKYLIGHT BURGLARY

Another Instance of It But Thief Gets Little Plunder.

Floan, Leveross & Co., Robbed Similarly Before Are Victims.

Took Ten Dollars From Money Drawer---West End Glass Smashing.

Duluth had another of those dashing, smashing, skylight burglaries last night.

The boldness and daring of the thieves was scantily rewarded, but the fact is again demonstrated that store buildings will never be burglar proof until some satisfactory method of guarding skylights is devised.

The clothing house of Floan, Leveroos & Co. at 225 West Superior street was the store broken into.

The skylight operator had very easy work getting on top of the building from the alleyway between Superior and First streets. The building, while two stories on Superior street, is not quite a full story at the alleyway.

The burglar broke the glass of the skylight and dropped to the first floor, a distance of about twenty feet. There was some $10 in change in the money drawer, and this was taken. No clothing was reported missing. The thief left the building by a rear window.

Glass-smashing seems to be quite a fad among Duluth burglars. Several nights ago the little store of A. Liebermann at 2018 West Superior street was burglarized in a peculiar manner.

Thieves standing in front of the store smashed in a plate-glass window and got about $15 worth of merchandise. Officer Olson, a block away, saw them and started after them. The thieves caught sight of the policeman and ran. The officer fired several shots, but the thieves kept on running and were soon lost to view.

The skylight method of burglary was invented several years ago by Jimmie Whalen, who retired from public life shortly after the invention and is still doing time for it. Singularly, Whalen's invention was first tried on the store of Floan, Leveroos & Co. He dropped through the skylight that the unknown thief entered last night, and after taking all the money he could find, put on a suit of clothes, leaving several garments that he had worn when entering the building. The police ran him down from this clue.

Webb Latham demonstrated yesterday that for clever wickedness and wicked cleverness he was the limitless illimitable and unlimited limit.

Noticing the propeller of the ferryboat Estelie on the Lake avenue dock, Latham hastened to a junk shop and borrowed a horse and wagon. He loaded the propeller into the wagon and then sold it to the junk dealer for $1.60, despite the fact that its actual cost was $34. Latham also stole and sold a quantity of iron pipe which he found under the Lake avenue viaduct.

INDIAN PONY SMOKE.

Curious Celebration of Osages and Comanches.

For every favor an Indian is duly thankful, although at times he has a queer way of expressing gratitude. It is likewise typical of the reservation Indian of today as well as of a quarter century ago to ask the guidance and assistance of the Great Spirit, or Manitou, in compassing success in every undertaking, says the New York Press. Consequently the reservation redskins of the Southwest are just now engaging in their harvest festivals, invoking the power of the omnipotent one to create an abundant yield for every acre sown in corn, oats and wheat.

On every reservation the manner of asking the Great Spirit to assist them in raising an abundant crop is varied. Some take a more ornate line of their sacred dance, while with a majority the appeal is accompanied entirely devoid of the least bit of careless amusement.

The Ponces meet with the Osages, while the Tonkawas and Shawnees are in the habit of holding these harvest festivals in unison. The Kiowas, Comanches and Apaches likewise meet in one body, all of which is due to contiguity of their respective reservations.

A harvest dance, no matter in which tribe it may be, lasts at least a week. The Choctaws, one of the five civilized tribes of the Indian Territory, hold their dance under the name of a "green corn" festival, and it does not commence until the young corn has begun to tassle out and the ears are large enough for eating. It is then that they appeal for fair weather to make the crop large and good.

The harvest dance, like every other wild festival of the reds, is presided over by the medicine men, while the workers take a back seat, so to speak. All of the weird movements of their ghost and war dances are seen in the stepping about the circle, but the appeals are the gestures of the harvest dances.

The Commanches, perhaps, take a deeper interest in their appeals of this nature than any of the other tribes. They rig themselves out in all the regalia of their ranks and attract attention of the whites for hundreds of miles. It is a dance for the young men and women, while the older ones look on and chant their approval in a soft tone as the dancing goes on. A sunshade is erected, and under this the dancers join in a circle. They are clad in gay trappings, with beads about their breasts and down their legs. Most of them have their otter-skin blankets, made in the shape of vests, buckled tight about them, as much a sign of devotion as the cross is to the Christian. They dance until exhaustion causes them to fall, and while unconscious they are supposed to pray for the success of the crops. When one of their number falls no one is allowed to go near him, as he is considered sacred for the time being. If a young man dances two hours without showing signs of fatigue the crops of his friends and himself, if he has any, are in danger of meeting with disaster before harvest time. Nor can he feign fatigue.

The Osages call their harvest festival a "penny smoke," technically speaking. But it is just the same as the appeal of other tribes for the success of their growing crops, except that the Osages make presents to one another and to other Indians who happen to be their guests. The Osages likewise make sacrifices to the great Spirit so that he will make their future prosperous. These presents range from a cigarette, given by a young buck, to a fine headgear, given by an old warrior.

The presents are placed in a pile, and after some prominent medicine man has ridden around them several times and uttered a prayer for their safe conveyance above, a tent is spread over them and the whole thing disappears from view. It is a trick of the medicine men that has never been explained to the Osage people, and as few white people have ever witnessed the spectacle it is difficult to explain. Those who have seen it claim a trap door has been arranged underground by the medicine men and the presents are dropped therein, later to be taken away and disposed of to the other tribes.

The Arapahoes, Cheyennes and Apaches engage in their harvest festival immediately after their corn has commenced to rise above the ground. They dance and pray for the success of the crops, eating from a large kettle a kind of decoction which is supposed to be sacred. After they have danced four or five days in this manner all of them go and bathe in a stream, then retire to their tepees and sleep for days without eating at all. The young men then pick out their brides—that is, those who are not already married—and return to their to look after the crops. Any young man of marriageable age who does not secure a bride at one of these harvest festivals, loses his entire crop for that season, so there are few who do not marry.

A great many of the tribes have little or no dancing, most of the program being taken up with speeches in which the Great Spirit is extolled for past kindnesses and the Indians are asked to make certain sacrifices for a good crop. Among the Osages if a crop has proved a failure after a successful "penny smoke" they go into mourning and remain weeping and wailing for three weeks. During that time no clothes are worn.

Chicago Tribune: "The biggest rattlesnake I ever saw," the passenger in the linen duster was saying, "I killed myself. It was twelve feet long and had fifty rattles." "But the biggest rattlesnake of which there is any record," objected the passenger with the eyeglasses, "was only eight and a half feet long and had just thirty-one rattles." "But the one I'm talking about was in Kansas."

The Courrier de Paris relates that a party of men, sitting in front of a boulevard cafe, were approached by a man who had a clarionet in his hand, and who said: "Gentlemen, excuse me, I have to make my living, but I suppose you would rather give me a sou not to hear me." They took the h'nt. He repeated this performance several times, until one day one of the men said he felt like hearing a tune, and asked him to play. "I am sorry, said the man with the clarionet, but I cannot play a note."

The blaze started in the confectionary store of B. Wiegard in State circle. An overheated bake oven is supposed to have been the cause.

The dwelling of Edward McCusker was burned and Bond's restaurant and the office of the United States Express company were damaged. Two hundred marine guards from the naval academy did effective work as a bucket brigade. The ancient state house was not damaged. The fire was extinguished within an hour after its discovery.

Keep cool in hot weather.
"How?"
By eating Grape-Nuts every day.
"Rats!"
No, not rats, but a good, sound fact that thousands make daily use of.

Grape-Nuts is a predigested food which makes digestion easy.

It gives the nourishment without the internal heat caused by heavy carbonaceous foods.

You can feel from ten to twenty degrees cooler than your neighbor when you eat proper food that does not overtax the stomach.

Grape-Nuts is made from certain parts of the grain and by mechanical process the starches are changed into grape sugar in the same manner as the stomach would do in the first act of digestion.

The phosphates of the cereals are retained in Grape-Nuts and these and the grape sugar supply the necessary nourishment to body, brain and nerve centers.

Grape-Nuts is a concentrated food giving strength, vitality and coolness to the body and energy and clearness to the brain, in place of the heavy, sluggish, draggy feeling caused by meat, potatoes, etc.

Another point.

It is thoroughly cooked at the factory by food experts and saves you the trouble.

You get it from the grocer, and by adding cream, it is ready to serve.

No hot stove, no cross cook, no loss of time or exertion as with other food.

Its crisp taste with the delicate sweet of the grape sugar makes it pleasing to the palate of the most critical epicure.

The recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts gives many pleasing puddings, salads, entrees and deserts that can be made.

Worth a trial and a package will prove it.

GOLFING.

Many Players Have Entered For the Ravinoaks Cup.

Chicago, July 23.—Under threatening weather conditions, play was begun early today in the qualifying round for the Ravinoaks cup on the golf links of the Onwentsia club at Lake Forest. One hundred and thirty players have entered, representing the following clubs: Princeton, New Haven, Chevy Chase, Detroit, Buffalo, Cleveland, Springfield, Ill., Lake Geneva, Homewood, Edgewater, Glenview, Exmoor, Midlothian, River Forest, Westward Ho and Riverside. Play today is at 18 holes, medal play. The best 8 scores will qualify to continue at match play tomorrow for the Ravinoaks cup, the second 8 best scores will qualify for the solace cup, and the third 8 best for the Tyro cup.

Nearly all the most prominent Western players and many of the Easterners who contested in the national tournament have stayed over for Western honors. Louis N. James, the new national amateur champion, will not be among the contestants, as he desires to rest.

The Ravinoaks cup is a challenge trophy presented by the late C. W. Fullerton, in 1898. Until the organization of the Western Golf association, its holder was considered Western champion.

Chicago—Intermittent rains marred the work of the early starters and did not permit of them scoring under bogey, which is 43 out and 42 in—85. It is probable the qualifiers for the Ravinoaks will have to make scores better than 90. The scores of the probable qualifiers are: Raymond Russell, of Detroit, out 43, in 43—86. Walter Dean, Skokie, out 43, in 43—86. H. S. Robins, Onwentsia, out 42, in 45—87.

CONTRACT AWARDED.

Denver, July 23.—President Perry of the Denver & Northwestern railroad has awarded a contract for the construction of eighteen miles of the Moffat road leading into the mountains. The contract requires that the work shall be completed by the first of March. The contractors will receive about $30,000 a mile, or a total of $540,000 for the work.

JACKSON WON FIGHT.

Los Angeles, July 23.—Young Peter Jackson fought Mike Donovan, of Rochester, N. Y., to a standstill and was awarded the decision at the end of the 20th round last night. Donovan was clearly outclassed and missed being knocked out in the eighteenth round only by one count.

LITTLE ROAD SOLD.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 23.—A special to the Republican from Bisbee, Ariz., announces the sale of forty-five miles of the Santa Fe road to the Union Pacific company. The price is not announced. The road runs from Naco, on the border, to La Canea.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

Mrs. Stevens Married at St. George's Church.

London, July 22.—There was a fashionable gathering at St. George's church this afternoon, to witness the marriage of Maj. Charles Hall, of the Oxfordshire light infantry, to Mrs. C. Albert Stevens, widow of C. Albert Stevens, of New York. Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, gave away the bride.

Mrs. Charles Albert Stevens was Miss May Brady, daughter of the late Judge John R. Brady. She was married Nov. 15, 1898, to Charles Albert Stevens, the millionaire son of Edwin Stevens, of Castle Point, Hoboken. C. A. Stevens died from pneumonia in New York, March 29, 1901.

INVESTIGATING

Cause of Explosion at the Cambria Mine.

Johnstown, Pa., July 23.—The coroner's investigation into the mine explosion in which 112 men were killed, began today. Jacob Brisen, a miner who worked in the Klondike district the night before the explosion was the first witness. From his evidence it appeared that the regulations in regard to safety lamps, danger notices and other safeguards were strictly complied with. Considerable time will be required to complete the examination of the foreigners who will be called first.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

St. Paul Man Makes a Futile Effort.

St. Paul July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—William McLain, over 50 years of age, attempted suicide late yesterday, at the Lyons Court hotel, Ninth and Sibley streets. He tried to kill himself with chloroform. He was despondent because he had lost his position. He formerly worked for the Great Northern road. Dr. Richeson was called and he worked several hours over the man before he was out of danger.

MUCH MARRIED HILL

Captured By Sheriff Byers at Smithland, Ky.

Matoon, Ill., July 23.—Jackson D. Hill, who Miss Lucy Bush, of this city says hypnotized her into eloping to Charleston and marrying him against her will, and deserting her four days later, has been captured at Smithland, Ky., by Sheriff Byers of this county. He is now in jail at Charleston. Hill had a wife in Delavan when he married Miss Bush and was living with wife No. 3 when arrested.

SPANISH WAR PENSION.

Fools make a mock at advertising, but the wise man sayeth not a word, and secureth additional space.

ABUSED "OLD HICKORY."

The recent dismissal of Miss Rebecca J. Taylor from her position in the war department, because she wrote a criticism of President Roosevelt, and the subsequent debate in congress touching the civil service aspects of the case, recalled an incident in the presidential career of Gen. Andrew Jackson, says the Washington Post. The slogan—"To the victors belong the spoils"—has been generally credited, but erroneously, it is said, to "Old Hickory," and long ago he became recognized as the father of the spoils system. But there is one episode at least that shows that he was not entitled to such a reputation.

Attorney William H. Seldon of this city tells the story. He obtained the information from his father, Col. William Selden, an old-time Virginian and an ardent admirer of Jackson.

When "Old Hickory" was president a Maj. Gibbon of New Jersey was postmaster at Richmond, Va. A delegation from there waited on Gen. Jackson to demand the office for a Democrat of their nomination.

"Is not Maj. Gibbon an old soldier of the revolutionary war?" asked Jackson.

"Well, yes; he flashed a little gunpowder there."

"Any charges against his official character?"

"No; but he stumps it up and down the street of Richmond abusing you and your administration; besides, he is an old-time Federalist."

"Oh," said Jackson, most seriously, "call here tomorrow morning and you shall have my answer."

The delegation withdrew and Jackson sent for the auditor of the postoffice department.

"Mr. Auditor, what sort of an officer is Maj. Gibbon, postmaster at Richmond?"

"A model postmaster, Mr. President."

"Any charges against his official standing?"

"None whatever, sir; his accounts are scrupulously correct, and always rendered on time."

"That will do, Mr. Auditor; good morning."

On the following day the delegation called promptly for old Gibbon's head, when Jackson said: "Gentlemen, your admission yesterday that no charge lies against Postmaster Gibbon's official character or conduct is corroborated by the accounting officer of the treasury, but you dwell on the fact that he opposes us politically and roundly vilifies me. For that you would turn adrift and penniless in his age, the man who led the forlorn hope at the storming of Stony Point, and left his right leg there. Such a man, gentlemen, has bought the right to entertain his opinions and speak them, and while Andrew Jackson fills the White House he shall not be disturbed in his little office, by the Eternal! You have my answer; good morning."

Commenting upon this episode, Mr. Selden said:

"That fails to have the ring of a man devoted to the 'spoils system,' but it is conclusive evidence that Andrew Jackson sought honesty and capacity for the civil service."

VALUES OF THE MINES

Mining Representatives Before Board of Equalization.

Submit Schedule of Relative Valuations--- Total $9,150,850.

Frank B. Kellogg of Steel Corporation Addresses the Board.

Mine owners, mine operators and legal representatives of mining companies and corporations appeared before the county board of equilization this morning to present their side of the case for the consideration of the board when it took up the question of mine valuations.

There was a goodly crowd present, among them being Capt. T. F. Cole, Joseph B. Cotton, Frank B. Kellogg, of St. Paul, representing the United States Steel corporation mines; Amos Snephard, for Corrigan, McKinney Co.; W. C. Agnew, of the Mahoning mine; W. J. West, of the Sharon mine; J. H. Gruber, for the Eastern Minnesota railway; Albert Baldwin, for the Pitt Iron company; G. G. Hartley, C. H. Munger, for Pickands, Mather & Co.; J. T. Jones, Capt. Sellwood and Capt. Pengilly, of the Chandler and Minnesota mines.

As was expected the mining companies had arranged a schedule of relative values. The aggregate amounted to $9,150,850. Two years ago the figure submitted was $7,000,000, and this was raised by the equalization board to $12,000,000. Of the total valuation given to the mines of this county by the owners, the United States Steel corporation owns about 60 per cent, or $5,490,510.

Frank B. Kellogg, representing the Steel corporation, made a few general remarks on the taxation of the mines.

"We have submitted a list of the mines and their relative values which have been agreed on by the several owners. As you, as members of the board are interested more in the aggregate valuation than any individual assessment, we trust that it will be acceptible and that it will be maintained. In case you see fit to lower or raise the same, we ask that it be done on a horizontal percentage. To endeavor to get the exact valuations of the several mines is almost a hopeless task.

"We, speaking for the Steel company, do not desire to escape the payment of a reasonable portion of the taxes. This company, which will do Duluth and St. Louis county a vast amount of good has come into your midst and only asks that it be treated fairly in the matter of taxation. We don't want our valuations raised to an enormous figure simply because we are a trust, as some people are wont to call us. The prosperity of the public is our prosperity, and we want to do our share in bearing the expense of government in this county and state.

"Stories have gone out of the fabulous wealth that lies hidden in the iron mines on the ranges. For the most part these stories put valuations on properties that far exceed their true worth. In the agricultural districts of this state the real estate is not assessed for more than one-fourth or one-fifth of its value. St. Louis county today pays more taxes into the state of Minnesota than any other county. The iron ore carrying roads alone will pay $375,000 this year. The Missabe and the Duluth & Iron Range roads pay more taxes than the county of Hennepin.

"The ore carrying roads are valuable properties and were built at an enormous expense. The Iron Range and Missabe roads pay annually $1000 a mile to the state in taxes, and I can say that there is not another road in this country that is paying that much."

There were expressions from a few others, but only to the effect that they were satisfied with the valuations submitted.

The board adjourned at 12 o'clock to take up the work again at 2. It is expected that the placing of values on the mines will take some days. That they will be raised considerably there can be no doubt, but how much no one is prepared to say.

The total valuation of the mines is made up of $7,747,725 on the Mesaba range and $1,403,125 on the Vermilion range. The old shipping mines on the Mesaba are placed at $6,943,750, the new ones at $759,375, and the non-shipping properties containing ore at $1,144,900. The new mines include the Agnew, Grant, Jordan, Lincoln, Laura, Longyear, Minorca, Maitland, Pearce, Pettit, Stephens, Snyder-Oliver, Winnifred, Williams and Morrow.

MILLER RATHBUN.

Handsome Wedding at Second Baptist Church.

A very handsome wedding ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock last evening at the Second Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, by Rev. J. Wilfrid Loughbridge, the pastor. The contracting parties were Miss Margaret C. Miller, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Andrew Miller, and Harvey E. Rathbun, of this city.

The church was beautifully decorated throughout, the sides being banked with ferns and daisies and large potted palms and gerns. Back of the altar was a solid bank of foliage with a centerpiece of white bunting, decorated with ferns and daisies. The color effect in the church was largely pink and white.

Miss Louise Larson was maid of honor and Miss Mary Miller, a sister of the bride, bridesmaid. The groom was attended by Albert Miller, a brother of the bride, and Frank McGivin. Mrs. J. O. Milne played the wedding march.

The bride was gowned in white silk and carried bride's roses. The maid of honor wore blue organdie and carried pink roses and the bridgesmaid also wore a gown of blue organdie and carried red roses.

The wedding ceremony was witnessed by a few relatives and intimate friends, and was followed at 8:30 o'clock by a reception at the Miller residence at Thirteenth avenue west and Superior street. The guests numbered about forty, a number of them coming from out of the city. The parlor decorations were very pretty, the effect being pink and white. The color effect in the dining room was blue and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun will leave for Michigan on their wedding trip and will be at home in Duluth on their return.

RAILROAD MATTERS

Central Passenger Association Considering Excursion Rates.

Great Northern Leads Other Roads In Immigrant Business.

W. A. McGonagle to Have Charge of Operation of Missabe.

Upon a meeting that is being held in Chicago today depends the question of whether Duluth people are thinking of making visits to New York during July and August will get a very cheap trip rate.

The railroads running between Chicago and New York have announced cheap excursion rates to New York and Atlantic summer resorts during July and August, and now some of them want to back out of it. Therefore, the Central Passenger association is in session in Chicago today to determine whether or not the rates shall be cancelled. Several of the prominent railroads have become dissatisfied because other roads have violated the agreement to confine the rates to Atlantic City, and have applied them to other places, hence the meeting of the Central Passenger association.

To intending summer tourists of this vicinity the rates have not much interest, because there is a 10-day limitation on them. That is too short a time for anybody that intends to go to the seashore and play in the sand, but it is plenty long enough for those who are making business trips, and those who are contemplating such voyages are watching the contest with some interest. The rates are effective July 30, Aug. 6 and Aug. 13, if they are not knocked out. Allowing two days for traveling each way, the time limit allows six days in New York.

IMMIGRATION FIGURES.

The immigrant business of the Northwest and Pacific coast during May broke all previous records. A large proportion of the business went into the coast territory of the Great Northern road, which got 3500 new settlers for its territory during that month. Other roads have secured large numbers of these immigrants, but the Great Northern led the list, according to the figures compiled by the Western Passenger association. The Great Northern's figures are twice those of the same month last year.

This immigrant business is not from foreign countries, by any means, but is made up of actual settlers from the older states who are changing their location because of the high prices of land in older farming communities. While the great bulk of the business is destined for the coast states, settlers are coming into Minnesota and the Dakotas very rapidly, and the growth of all of the Northwestern farming territory is unprecedented.

WILL RUN THE MISSABE.

W. A. McGonagle, resident engineer of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, has been appointed assistant to the president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, and he assumed his new duties today. He will relieve President William J. Olcott of much of his work pertaining to the railroad, and will enable him to devote more of his attention to the mines. Mr. McGonagle's duties embrace full charge of operations on the Missabe road.

Mr. McGonagle has been associated with the Duluth & Iron Range road for nineteen years, ever since the road was built. As a railroad man and engineer he bears the highest reputation, and he is held in high esteem by those who have worked with him and under him. No successor will be named for Mr. McGonagle as resident engineer.

Doing Good Business.

F. J. Shalloe, agent for the Northern Steamship company at Buffalo, is in the city today, calling upon local railroad and steamship men. Mr. Shalloe says that the Northern Steamship company's passenger boats are doing an excellent business between Chicago and Buffalo, though the tourist season was a little delayed on this line as on all others owing to the cold weather.

ANOTHER CONTRACT.

Halvorson-Richards to Build Spur to Mines.

Halvorsen & Richards, of Minneapolis, have secured another contract for railroad construction on the range. The firm will begin in a few days to build another spur track from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road at Eveleth to the mines. The outfit belonging to the contractors is being shipped from Hibbing to Eevleth today.

Halvorsen & Richards have already been laying track on the contract with the Itasca Lumber company for the thirteen-mile extension out of Deer River. A large number of men are being shipped from this city to the work daily. Wages range from $2 to $2.25 per day and at those figures it is claimed that there is no trouble in finding enough labor.

Wallop the Freimuths.

The Duluth Business University ball team played a practice game with the Freimuth team at Oneota park last evening, winning in six innings by a score of 11 to 2. Whiteside pitched a fast game for the University and McDermott for the Freimuths was hit hard and given shady support.

Saturday afternoon the Business university will play the Board of Trade team at Oneota park. This game promises to be one of the most interesting of the season and will undoubtedly draw a big crowd.

Ingalls-Rogers.

The wedding of Miss Lillian Ingalls, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Ingalls, 216 East Fourth street, to Ralph Lacy Rogers, has been announced to take place Aug. 5. Invitations have been sent out for the wedding reception from 3:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon. The bridal couple will be at home after Sept. 15 at 216 East Fourth street.

Odd Fellows' Picnic.

The Odd Fellows' picnic will be held at Solon Springs on Aug. 7. Committees from the eight Odd Fellows' lodges at the head of the lakes have the arrangements in charge, and their plans include many new and novel features. The committee has decided not to allow any catch penny devices on the ground, while all kinds of innocent diversion will be provided.

HAVE NOT RETURNED.

The Rumor of Strike Settlement Is Denied

New York, July 23.—It was reported today that some 5000 or 6000 of the 30,000 striking garment makers have returned to work after satisfactory settlement of the trouble, but inquiry among the manufacturers contradicts the report. The manufacturers who were seen said they had offered contracts to the central body which had been accepted as satisfactory but that the workmen have not returned and that at the various union headquarters, they were told that the strikers would not return to work until next week.

FOUR KILLED.

Definite Information Concerning Philippine Teachers.

Washington, July 23.—The war department today received the following cablegram regarding the school teachers who have been missing from Cebu since June 10:

"John E. Wells, 209 Montgomery avenue, Providence, R. I., and his cousin, Louis A. Thomas, same address; Ernst Heger, 141 Vine street, Cincinnati, Ohio; Clyde A. France, Berea, Ohio: Missing Cebu, murdered by ladrones; bodies recovered. Leader murderers killed; eight others captured by the constabulary."

PRELATE TO POPE.

Rev. Thomas Flynn of Souix Falls Appointed.

Rome, July 23.—The Very Rev. Thomas A. Flynn, vicar general of the diocese of Sioux Falls, S. D., has been appointed a domestic prelate of the pope. The Right Rev. John Shanley, bishop of Fargo, N. D., will join the American pilgrims tomorrow, when they are received by his holiness.

DAUGHTER THE PRIZE

How Kansas Farmer Secured Laborers For His Fields.

Girl Was Given as Wife to the Best Harvester.

Successful Man and the Girl Are Happily Wed.

Wichita, Kan., July 23.—A 500-acre field of wheat stood ripening in the hot glare of a Kansas sun. Dozens of similar, though smaller, fields surrounded this one. In appearance all were alike, however, and the 500-acre field thus fails to come in for any particular distinction in that line.

But its owner, James Woolsey, was and is yet an erratic farmer, prone to despair over things trivial. As the sun grew hotter and the wheat yellower and the sheaves of grain harder, Farmer Woolsey was on the verge of desperation. The drama of the harvest time was thrust upon him and he was found helpless. For he was without harvest hands, a common cry in Kansas at this time of the year. He drove daily to the little town of Pratt, near where his farm is located, but his appeals to the state free labor bureau were in vain.

"We are without harvest hands. The supply that arrived today has all been taken away before you came," the clerk would tell him.

Then the farmer would drive to town at daybreak and camp upon the threshhold of the harvest hand bureau. When the trains began to arrive from Wichita he grubbed some of the best looking hands and hurried them off to his field. The machines were dragged out, the binders adjusted and oiled and once more Farmer Woolsey began to feel light of heart. The harvesting of this 500-acre field of wheat commenced. Likewise began the romance which came to this particular field and made it the center of attraction during the week that followed. Within a brief space of twenty-four hours it became famous, in its own peculiar way.

The waves of simmering heat rolled over the prairie, led by the yellowishness of the wheat field, making it desperately hard on the tenderfeet who ventured through the fields—many of them for the first time. The fields were seared and browned in a day. The harvesters found their vitality sapped up before a dozen rounds had been made with the great self-binders. The wages paid were not large enough to attract even the most ambitious to hurry through the stubble.

Farmer Woolsey found his 500 acres of dead ripe wheat a burden upon his mind. He noticed the men's slowness. He rode the fields on a prancing broncho and urged them to push along. At the same time he pointed menacingly to the clouds that flecked the western sky.

"Boys, it may rain on the bloom before we are through," he said, "so let us hurry."

"The sooner the better," many of them cried. They were not looking out for Farmer Woolsey's wealth, but rather their own comfort.

But the uneasy agriculturist was not altogether without ideas with which to bridge over an emergency. Then he also possessed a pretty daughter—Miss Annie Woolsey, 19, vivacious and charming. If her father did not know how to conquer difficulties, surely she did. The girl had been working in the field driving a binder. The heat and glare of the shun did not affect her, for she was used to it. She "jollied" the workers, but in vain. A paltry $2 per day is scant wages for decent weather, let alone 110 degrees.

And each day the clouds grew more serious in their aspect. The harvesting of the wheat should not occupy over ten days at least, with ten men in the field. But three days had passed and not ten acres had fallen before the four binders.

Father and daughter held a confab one afternoon, and that night at supper, without much ado, the old man announced to the workers:

"Men," he said in a high-pitched voice, "I am needing a man to stay on this farm the year around with me. My son has gone off to college, and the girl here can't do much in the field, for helpin' her ma. I want one of you boys to stay here. But I can't determine which one of you I want, ail are such rustlers."

And the old farmer laughed at his little sarcasm. The harvesters were unprepared for the jolt to their nerves that followed.

"And so me and Ann here have come to this agreement. The one which does the most work in this here wheat field from now until the grain is all cut and stacked is a going to have this girl o' mine here fer a wife—that is if he wants her. If not, he'll get a steady job here at good wages."

The men stopped eating their hot biscuits and bacon and gasped in astonishment. The girl—the prize—sat before the stern old father, her head hung and the color rushing from her cheeks. Farmer Woolsey turned to the girl.

"Ain't that right, girl?" he said, as he patted her affectionately upon the cheek.

"I guess it is, pa, but you ought to let me say who shall enter this contest, if I am to go to the winner."

"And sure I will do that, my girl," the father acquiesced, "but go kind of slow with your regular 'ain't it' process."

The next morning Annie had decided upon three of the present force whom she wished to leave, as she feared they might win, and their looks did not appeal to her as pleasing husbands-to-be.

The remaining seven signified their intense willingness to go to work. Annie took her place on the binder as usual. The men hurried. The sun seemed to have no terrors for them. The heat passed by unnoticed, and it came turn for the sturdy old farm horses to pant for rest. The harvesters, as they passed the girl who was to be given as a prize to the hardest worker, would look admiringly, doff their hats, and buckle to their duties again. The first day the seven men did more work than the ten the day preceding. Farmer Woolsey urged his daughter to leave her post and go with him in the buggy to count the amount of work done by each man.

Meanwhile Dame Rumor had spread her wings over the entire community. The news passed that a pretty girl was to be the wife of the man doing the hardest work on Farmer Woolsey's harvest job. Men came in droves. The second day there were 50 new applicants. Some of them brought their own machines. The third day 25 more came and the fields in the neighborhood were deserted. Woolsey's field was a seething mass of begrimmed humanity, all plunging wildly through the grain stubble in their efforts to outdo each other.

That contest was indescribable. There were no rules to govern the workers, the amount of wheat they placed in the shock being the sole count. Binder drivers found cyclometers placed on their wheels and the most miles they covered counted for them. To drive a binder faster than a walk however, means the tying or binding machine will surely become disordered, so these fellows were practically handicapped from the start. It was up to the men who carried the bundles to the shocks and later dragged them to the stacks.

Instead of going home to dinner the men asked that their lunch be prepared they worked on until dusk. They climbed and fell over each other in their race for the stacks. The wheat standing was soon felled. Inside of three days after the prize was offered the contest had ended.

Willis Rodway, a young mechanic from Illinois, had won the prize over all others by a large margin. Alone he had shocked 70 acres of wheat and carried the shocks to the stack, pitching up the bundles to the stacker. Accordingly he was given the girl, and the happy couple were married at Pratt.

They will spend their honeymoon in the harvest field, thrashing out the yellow grain. Half of the crop belongs to the daughter, and she says they will take the proceeds therefrom and go East on a wedding trip. Her share of the crop amounts to over $2000.

OUTCRIES

Of Woman Near Cemetries Caused Negroes Much Fear.

Walton, Ky., July 23.—The residents of one section of this city were badly frightened last night by the piercing piercing shrieks of a woman that seemed to issue from the little cemetery which borders the quarter populated by negroes. The cries sounded like the incantations of a voodoo doctor pitched in the key of C, and several of the more superstitious of the colored race fled from their homes in the fear that spirits of the dead were stalking about in the graveyard.

Investigation by the authorities discloses that the cries were uttered by Julia Palmer, the daughter of George Palmer, a well-known tailor in this city. It is said that she was being forced into a rig in which she was conveyed to the country at the time the outcry was made.

The father is authority for the statement that Julia has made her home for the past few years with her brother Joe, who lives five miles from town on a farm. The tailor said that his daughter had been compelled to perform tasks that overtaxed her strength, and that she suddenly disappeared from his son's home about three months ago. She came to Walton and found refuge at the King hotel, where she was assigned to employment more in keeping with her frail constitution.

Last night, at 7 o'clock, according to the father, William Minke and his sister, Lizzie Minke, who live near Joe Palmer's place, called at the hotel and told Julia that a friend wanted to see her at the Walton Baptist church.

She rapidly accompanied them thither. On arriving there Joe Palmer is said to have suddenly appeared on the scene, and, aided by Minke and his sister, forced Julia into a carriage and took her back to the country. At this juncture the girl protested so vigorously that the negro population was all but scared out of its wits.

The father heard of the affair, and today proceeded to his son's residence. He brought his daughter here with him. The parent says he will institute a suit to punish those who have restrained his daughter against her will.

VALUES OF THE MINES

Mining Representatives Before Board of Equalization.

Submit Schedule of Relative Valuations--- Total $9,150,850.

Frank B. Kellogg of Steel Corporation Addresses the Board.

Mine owners, mine operators and legal representatives of mining companies and corporations appeared before the county board of equilization this morning to present their side of the case for the consideration of the board when it took up the question of mine valuations.

There was a goodly crowd present, among them being Capt. T. F. Cole, Joseph B. Cotton, Frank B. Kellogg, of St. Paul, representing the United States Steel corporation mines; Amos Snyder, for Corrigan, McKinney Co.; W. C. Agnew, of the Mahoning mine; W. J. West, of the Sharon mine; J. B. Gruber, for the Eastern Minnesota railway; Albert Baldwin, for the Pitt iron company; G. G. Hartley, C. H. Munger, for Pickands, Mather & Co.; J. T. Jones, Capt. Sellwood and Capt. Pengilly, of the Chandler and Minnesota mines.

As was expected the mining companies had arranged a schedule of relative values. The aggregate amounted to $9,150,850. Two years ago the figure submitted was $7,000,000, and this was raised by the equalization board to $12,000,000. Of the total valuation given to the mines of this county by the owners, the United States Steel corporation owns about 60 per cent, or $5,490,510.

Frank B. Kellogg, representing the Steel corporation, made a few general remarks on the taxation of the mines.

"We have submitted a list of the mines and their relative values which have been agreed on by the several owners. As you, as members of the board are interested more in the aggregate valuation than any individual assessment, we trust that it will be acceptable and that it will be maintained. In case you see fit to lower or raise the same, we ask that it be done on a horizontal percentage. To endeavor to get the exact valuations of the several mines is almost a hopeless task.

"We, speaking for the Steel company, do not desire to escape the payment of a reasonable portion of the taxes. This company, which will do Duluth and St. Louis county a vast amount of good has come into your midst and only asks that it be treated fairly in the matter of taxation. We don't want our valuations raised to an enormous figure simply because we are a trust, as some people are wont to call us. The prosperity of the public is our prosperity, and we want to do our share in bearing the expense of government in this county and state.

"Stories have gone out of the fabulous wealth that lies hidden in the iron mines on the ranges. For the most part these stories put valuations on properties that far exceed their true worth. In the agricultural districts of this state the real estate is not assessed for more than one-fourth or one-fifth of its value. St. Louis county today pays more taxes into the state of Minnesota than any other county. The iron ore carrying roads alone will pay $375,000 this year. The Missabe and the Duluth & Iron Range roads pay more taxes than the county of Hennepin.

"The ore carrying roads are valuable properties and were built at an enormous expense. The Iron Range and Missabe roads pay annually $1000 a mile to the state in taxes, and I can say that there is not another road in this country that is paying that much."

There were expressions from a few others, but only to the effect that they were satisfied with the valuations submitted.

The board adjourned at 12 o'clock to take up the work again at 2. It is expected that the placing of values on the mines will take some days. That they will be raised considerably there can be no doubt, but how much no one is prepared to say.

The total valuation of the mines is made up of $6,545,525 on the Mesabi range and $1,463,125 on the Vermilion range. The old shipping mines on the Mesabi are placed at $6,045,750, the new ones at $559,375, and the non-shipping properties containing ore at $1,144,600. The new mines include the Agnew, Grant, Jordan, Lincoln, Laura, Longyear, Minorca, Maitland, Pearce, Pettit, Stephens, Snyder-Oliver, Winnifred, Williams and Morrow.

MILLER RATHBUN.

Handsome Wedding at Second Baptist Church.

A very handsome wedding ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock last evening at the Second Baptist church, Twentieth avenue west and First street, by Rev. J. Wilfrid Loughbridge, the pastor. The contracting parties were Miss Margaret C. Miller, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Andrew Miller, and Harvey E. Rathbun, of this city.

The church was beautifully decorated throughout, the sides being banked with ferns and daisies and large potted palms and gerns. Back of the altar was a solid bank of foliage with a centerpiece of white bunting, decorated with ferns and daisies. The color effect in the church was largely pink and white.

Miss Louise Larson was maid of honor and Miss Mary Miller, a sister of the bride, bridesmaid. The groom was attended by Albert Miller, a brother of the bride, and Frank McGivin. Mrs. J. O. Milne played the wedding march.

The bride was gowned in white silk and carried bride's roses. The maid of honor wore blue organdie and carried pink roses and the bridgesmaid also wore a gown of blue organdie and carried red roses.

The wedding ceremony was witnessed by a few relatives and intimate friends, and was followed at 8:30 o'clock by a reception at the Miller residence at Thirteenth avenue west and Superior street. The guests numbered about forty, a number of them coming from out of the city. The parlor decorations were very pretty, the effect being pink and white. The color effect in the dining room was blue and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Rathbun will leave for Michigan on their wedding trip and will be at home in Duluth on their return.

RAILROAD MATTERS

Central Passenger Association Considering Excursion Rates.

Great Northern Leads Other Roads In Immigrant Business.

W. A. McGonagle to Have Charge of Operation of Missabe.

Upon a meeting that is being held in Chicago today depends the question of whether Duluth people are thinking of making visits to New York during July and August will get a very cheap trip rate.

The railroads running between Chicago and New York have announced cheap excursion rates to New York and Atlantic summer resorts during July and August, and now some of them want to back out of it. Therefore, the Central Passenger association is in session in Chicago today to determine whether or not the rates shall be cancelled. Several of the prominent railroads have become dissatisfied because other roads have violated the agreement to confine the rates to Atlantic City, and have applied them to other places, hence the meeting of the Central Passenger association.

To intending summer tourists of this vicinity the rates have not much interest, because there is a 10-day limitation on them. That is too short a time for anybody that intends to go to the seashore and play the sands, but it is plenty long enough for those who are making business trips, and those who are contemplating such voyages are watching the contest with some interest. The rates are effective July 30, Aug. 6 and Aug. 13, if they are not knocked out. Allowing two days for traveling each way, the time limit allows six days in New York.

IMMIGRATION FIGURES.

The immigrant business of the Northwest and Pacific coast during May broke all previous records. A large proportion of the business went into the coast territory of the Great Northern road, which got 3560 new settlers for its territory during that month. Other roads have secured large numbers of these immigrants, but the Great Northern led the list, according to the figures compiled by the Western Passenger association. The Great Northern's figures are twice those of the same month last year.

This immigrant business is not from foreign countries, by any means, but is made up of actual settlers from the older states who are changing their location because of the high prices of land in older farming communities. While the great bulk of the business is destined for the coast states, settlers are coming into Minnesota and the Dakotas very rapidly, and the growth of all of the Northwestern farming territory is unprecedented.

WILL RUN THE MISSABE.

W. A. McGonagle, resident engineer of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, has been appointed assistant to the president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, and he assumed his new duties today. He will relieve President William J. Olcott of much of his work pertaining to the railroad, and will enable him to devote more of his attention to the mines. Mr. McGonagle's duties embrace full charge of operations on the Missabe road.

Mr. McGonagle has been associated with the Duluth & Iron Range road for nineteen years, ever since the road was built. As a railroad man and engineer he bears the highest reputation, and he is held in high esteem by those who have worked with him and under him. No successor will be named for Mr. McGonagle as resident engineer.

Doing Good Business.

F. J. Shalloe, agent for the Northern Steamship company at Buffalo, is in the city today, calling upon local railroad and steamship men. Mr. Shalloe says that the Northern Steamship company's passenger boats are doing an excellent business between Chicago and Buffalo, though the tourist season was a little delayed on this line as on all others owing to the cold weather.

DAUGHTER THE PRIZE

How Kansas Farmer Secured Laborers For His Fields.

Girl Was Given as Wife to the Best Harvester.

Wichita, Kan., July 23.—A 500-acre field of wheat stood ripening in the hot glare of a Kansas sun. Dozens of similar, though smaller, fields surrounded this one. In appearance all were alike, however, and the 500-acre field thus fails to come in for any particular distinction in that line.

But its owner, James Woolsey, was and is yet an erratic farmer, prone to despair over things trivial. As the sun grew hotter and the wheat yellower and the sheaves of grain harder, Farmer Woolsey was on the verge of desperation. The drama of the harvest time was thrust upon him and he was found helpless. For he was without harvest hands, a common cry in Kansas at this time of the year. He drove daily to the little town of Pratt, near where his farm is located, but his appeals to the state free labor bureau were in vain.

"We are without harvest hands. The supply that arrived today has all been taken away before you came," the clerk would tell him.

Then the farmer would drive to town at daybreak and camp upon the threshhold of the harvest hand bureau. When the trains began to arrive from Wichita he grabbed some of the best looking hands and hurried them off to his field. The machines were dragged out, the binders adjusted and oiled and once more Farmer Woolsey began to feel light of heart. The harvesting of this 500-acre field of wheat commenced. Likewise began the romance which came to this particular field and made it the center of attraction during the week that followed. Within a brief space of twenty-four hours it became famous, in its own peculiar way.

The waves of shimmering heat rolled over the prairie, led by the yellowishness of the wheat field, making it desperately hard on the tenderfeet who ventured through the fields—many of them for the first time. The fields were seared and browned in a day. The harvesters found their vitality sapped up before a dozen rounds had been made with the great self-binders. The wages paid were not large enough to attract even the most ambitious to hurry through the stubble.

Farmer Woolsey found his 500 acres of dead ripe wheat a burden upon his mind. He noticed the men's slowness. He rode the fields on a prancing bronco and urged them to push along. At the same time he pointed menacingly to the clouds that flecked the western sky.

"Boys, it may rain on the bloom before we are through," he said, "so let us hurry."

"The sooner the better," many of them cried. They were not looking out for Farmer Woolsey's wealth, but rather their own comfort.

But the uneasy agriculturist was not altogether without ideas with which to bridge over an emergency. Then he also possessed a pretty daughter—Miss Annie Woolsey, 19, vivacious and charming. If her father did not know how to conquer difficulties, surely she did. The girl had been working in the field driving a binder. The heat and glare of the shun did not affect her, for she was used to it. She "jollied" the workers, but in vain. "A paltry $2 per day is scant wages for decent weather, let alone 110 degrees.

And each day the clouds grew more serious in their aspect. The harvesting of the wheat should not occupy over ten days at least, with ten men in the field. But three days had passed and not ten acres had fallen before the four binders.

Father and daughter held a confab one afternoon, and that night at supper, without much ado, the old man announced to the workers:

"Men," he said in a high-pitched voice, "I am needing a man to stay on this farm the year around with me. My son has gone off to college, and the girl here can't do much in the field, for helpin' her ma. I want one of you boys to stay here. But I can't determine which one of you I want, all are such rustlers."

And the old farmer laughed at his little sarcasm. The harvesters were unprepared for the jolt to their nerves that followed.

"And so me and Ann here have come to this agreement. The one which does the most work in this here wheat field from now until the grain is all cut and stacked is a going to have this girl o' mine here for a wife—that is if he wants her. If not, he'll get a steady job here at good wages."

The men stopped eating their hot biscuits and bacon and gasped in astonishment. The girl—the prize—sat before the stern old father, her head hung and the color rushing from her cheeks. Farmer Woolsey turned to the girl.

"Ain't that right, girl?" he said, as he patted her affectionately upon the cheek.

"I guess it is, pa, but you ought to let me say who shall enter this contest, if I am to go to the winner."

"And sure I will do that, my girl," the father acquiesced, "but go kind of slow with your wooing, our prospects."

The next morning Annie had decided upon three of the present force whom she wished to leave, as she feared they might win, and their looks did not appeal to her as pleasing husbands-to-be.

The remaining seven signified their intense willingness to go to work. Annie took her place on the binder as usual. The men hurried. The sun seemed to have no terrors for them. The heat passed by unnoticed, and it came turn for the sturdy old farm horses to pant for rest. The harvesters, as they passed the girl who was to be given as a prize to the luckiest workers, would look admiringly, doff their hats, and buckle to their duties again. The first day the seven men did more work than the ten the day preceding. Farmer Woolsey urged his daughter to leave her post and go with him in the buggy to count the amount of work done by each man.

Meanwhile Dame Rumor had spread her wings over the entire community. The news passed that a pretty girl was to be the wife of the man doing the hardest work on Farmer Woolsey's harvest job. Men came in droves. The second day there were 20 new applicants. Some of them brought their own machines. The third day 25 more came and the fields in the neighborhood were deserted. Woolsey's field was a seething mass of begrimmed humanity, all plunging wildly through the grain stubble in their efforts to outdo each other.

That contest was indescribable. There were no rules to govern the workers, the amount of wheat they placed in the shock being the sole count. Binder drivers found cyclometers placed on their wheels and the most miles they covered counted for them. To drive a binder faster than a walk however, means the tying or binding machine will surely become disordered, so those fellows were practically handicapped from the start. It was up to the men who carried the bundles to the shocks and later dragged them to the stacks.

Instead of going home to dinner the men asked that their lunch be prepared they worked on until dusk. They climbed and fell over each other in their race for the stacks. The wheat standing was soon felled. Inside of three days after the prize was offered the contest had ended.

Willis Rodway, a young mechanic from Illinois, had won the prize over all others by a large margin. Alone he had shocked 300 acres of wheat and carried the shocks to the stack, pitching up the bundles to the stacker. Accordingly he was given the girl, and the happy couple were married at Pratt.

They will spend their honeymoon in the harvest field, thrashing out the yellow grain. Half of the crop belongs to the daughter, and she says they will take the proceeds therefrom and go East on a wedding trip. Her share of the crop amounts to over $2500.

OUTCRIES

Of Woman Near Cemetries Caused Negroes Much Fear.

Walton, Ky., July 23.—The residents of one section of this city were badly frightened last night by the piercing piercing shrieks of a woman that seemed to issue from the little cemetery which borders the quarter populated by negroes. The cries sounded like the incantations of a voodoo doctor pitched in the key of C, and several of the more superstitious of the colored race fled from their homes in the fear that spirits of the dead were stalking about in the graveyard.

Investigation by the authorities discloses that the cries were uttered by Julia Palmer, the daughter of George Palmer, a well-known tailor in this city. It is said that she was being forced into a rig in which she was conveyed to the country at the time the outcry was made.

The father is authority for the statement that Julia has made her home for the past few years with her brother Joe, who lives five miles from town on a farm. The tailor said that his daughter had been compelled to perform tasks that overtaxed her strength, and that she suddenly disappeared from his son's home about three months ago. She came to Walton and found refuge at the King hotel, where she was assigned to employment more in keeping with her frail constitution.

Last night, at 7 o'clock, according to the father, William Minke and his sister, Lizzie Minke, who live near Joe Palmer's place, called at the hotel and told Julia that a friend wanted to see her at the Walton Baptist church.

She rapidly accompanied them thither. On arriving there Joe Palmer is said to have suddenly appeared on the scene, and, aided by Minke and his sister, forced Julia into a carriage and took her back to the country. At this juneture the girl protested so vigorously that the negro population was all but scared out of its wits.

The father heard of the affair, and today proceeded to his son's residence. He brought his daughter here with him. The parent says he will institute a sult to punish those who have restrained his daughter against her will.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY

Nine Thousand Rural Routes Started on July First.

The Executive Force of Department to Be Reorganized.

Rural Free Delivery Now In the Classified Service.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nine thousand free delivery routes were put into operation at the beginning of the current fiscal year, July 1, in the postoffice department. Three new installation divisions were established. Eight special agents in charge are now necessary to handle the work, which heretofore was performed by four special agents in charge and four supervisors. A superintendent of rural free delivery supervises the work of these special agents, and the army of subordinates, special agents and route inspectors, to say nothing of the hundreds of clerks, whom it has been found necessary to employ in this branch of the postoffice service.

Much has been written about the rural free delivery division and the benefit it affords to rural communities Its progress has been noted from time to time. Little, however, has been said about the extensive work now under way—the establishment and organization of the new installation divisions marks an epoch in the history of the service. It means the reorganization of the executive force of the department, the obtaining of additional space for the proper handling of the work, and more expeditious and complete handling of the work of the division. Heretofore the middle, western and coast states were under the supervision of a special agent in charge, whose territory embraced more states than he could properly handle. This was due to the smallness of the appropriation made by congress for the experimental rural free delivery service. By the last session of congress the service had grown to such magnitude that it was found necessary to deal with it as with any other one branch of the government service. This importance was doubly emphasized by the action of the president, who, by executive order, placed rural free delivery under the classified service. Eight million dollars was appropriated to carry on the work of the division.

The states which heretofore were in charge of a special agent, assisted by supervisors—men who handled the work of the route inspectors—have been reduced in number, so that more efficient work can be accomplished. States that were practically controlled by these supervisors, in so far as rural free delivery was concerned, handled nothing but the reports of inspectors. Installation of new routes were referred to the special agent in charge. Now, under the new arrangement, these states are installation divisions of themselves. Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, for instance, are controlled by one special agent, who handles everything connected with the establishment of new services. These states, before the first of July, were embodied in a division which embraced from ten to twelve different states. The special agent in charge, instead of looking after the interest of a dozen or more states, confines his energies to the four states named, and consequently better, more efficient and more expeditious handling of applications is the result. The same is true of Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, all the coast states and many other of the middle western states.

Applications for service are not restricted to the states. The territories have become alive to the advantages of rural free delivery, and are clamoring for its benefits. Within the next year it will have spread out to such parts of the country that are now not covered by mail facilities.

LARSON BROUGHT HOME.

Durand, Wis., Man Says He Intended to Pay.

Durand, Wis., July 23.—Officers arrived here with Elwyn F. Larson, who was arrested last week in Wetaskiwin, N. W. T., on charge of forgery, and is now in the county jail awaiting trial. He is noncommittal and is awaiting counsel.

Mrs. Larson returned with him as far as Wahasha. She is going from there to Stockholm, where his people reside.

Mr. Larson was very cheerful under the circumstances and says if he had been left alone a few years he would have been able to have paid back every cent of which he has defrauded the people of, and he would have had plenty left. He was enjoying a very good business in Weaskiwin, employing eight clerks. He made an assignment of his business there in favor of his creditors before leaving.

MARRIED VS. SINGLE.

The Former Goes Gunning For the Latter.

Madison, S. D., July 23.—The city was treated to a genuine sensation yesterday morning. A married man, who ordered a young man from his house two weeks ago because of suspected intimacy with his wife, came home at an early hour from feigned absence from the city and found the young man in his house. Later in the day the married man went gunning with two revolvers, and locating the young man in the telephone exchange, a race ensued down the principal street, the crowd giving way to the young man, pursued by two shooting irons. The latter dodged into a hardware store and made his third escape of the forenoon. The end is not yet.

ONE MAN CONTROLS

Action of Sixty Thousand Members of Longshoremen's Union.

President Keefe Will Decide as to General Strike.

Such Action Would Be Disastrous to Lake Commerce.

Chicago, July 23.—In the hands of one man now rests the decision whether a tie-up of the marine industries of the Great Lakes shall be decreed. This man is President D. J. Keefe, of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' association. Yesterday as the result of the strike of tugmen, which has been in progress since April, the executive body of this association empowered him to decide whether 60,000 members engaged in loading, unloading and operating vessels on the Great Lakes shall cease work to help the tugmen in their strike against the tug trust.

If the decision be for a light work will be suspended on all the iron ore, coal and lumber docks along the chain of lakes. The fact that the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association was admitted to membership in the Longshoremens' association while it already had a strike on its hands, is taken to indicate that its officers expect help. It is said that the striking tugmen have for some time endeavored to get the dock workers mixed up in their strike.

With the whole matter in his hands for a settlement it is likely that Mr. Keefe will visit Cleveland within a week for a conference with officials of the Great Lakes Towing company. Upon the result of this meeting will largely depend the future of the strike against the company.

Should a general sympathetic strike be ordered at this time the result would be disastrous to lake commerce.

Much important business was hurried through yesterday by the executive board of the Longshoremen's association before it adjourned permanently. Nineteen thousand ore handlers are to be represented at a wage scale conference to be held in Cleveland the first Monday in March next year.

Conferences on the wage scale will be held between the lumber-loaders of Lake Superior and the Lumber Carriers' association early in February and on Lake Michigan late in the same month. The first conference will be held at West Superior and the second at some port not yet decided upon. At Toledo early in March the lumber unloaders will go in conference on next year's wage scale. The grain conference, where 4000 men will be represented, will be held in April at Buffalo. One of the last acts of the session was to authorize President Daniel J. Keefe to make a tour of the Pacific coast in September to aid in organizing the grain, lumber and package freight handlers of California and the Puget Sound country.

FINN GIRL

Only Eight Years Old Traveled Six Thousand Miles.

Sioux City, Iowa, July 23.—Helmi Rimati, aged 8, is at the home of her uncle, Elias Beura, at Lead City, S. D. Thirty days ago she was at Brabstead, Finland. She came the 6000 miles, one-fourth around the world, alone. Her mother died, her father remarried and refused to support her. It is said, so Beura sent her a ticket to Lead City, S. D.

The child could but talk Finnish jargon, but alone she set off from her ice-bound home, wrapped in heavy furs, across Sweden and Norway and into Russia, 500 miles to St. Petersburg, she traveled. On she hurried to Berlin, through Poland to Brussels, across the English channel to London and Liverpool, where she sailed for New York. She became the mascot of the ship. When it stormed she told the captain it was time to pray, and knelt in the upper deck. When she reached land she was out of money. Through eight countries she had passed, and eight times in eight different tongues had she been tagged "Helmi Rimmatti, Lead, S. D., U. S. A."

Her uncle is a wealthy miner at Lead City.

MANITOBA WON.

Minnesota Cricketers Beaten In Second Game.

Winnipeg, July 23.—Minnesota cricketers were beaten yesterday by the Manitoba team, 186 to 169. The weather was intensely hot and the wicket fairly good. Manitoba batted first and at the end of the first inning the score stood, Manitoba, 97; Manitoba, 88. In the second inning the Manitobans were all out for 89 and the Minnesotas were 128 runs behind. They rallied splendidly, however, Ramsey making 54 in fine style, while George gave him good support with 27, the inning ending with a total of 161 runs. Tomorrow Minnesota plays Assiniboia at Norwood.

ANOTHER GOLD FIND.

Quartz Ledge Discovered Near Prairie du Chien.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., July 23.—Another ledge of gold-bearing quartz has been discovered in the bluffs belonging to Frank Smrenia. These bluffs adjoin the Dousman property, upon which the first discovery of gold in Wisconsin was made last November, and where a large force of men are now employed, and the quartz which is being taken out is bringing in more satisfactory results. Blasting began on the Smrenia property today. Specimens have been sent in and the assays prove that the discovery is quite valuable. A large force of men are now at work, with a view of ascertaining the full extent of the ledge.

THE CROPS.

North Dakota and Minnesota Have Favorable Weather.

Generally speaking the weather for crops during the week closing Monday was good, although violent storms caused severe damage in small areas. The Minnesota report is as follows:

There was not much rain in the state till the rains of the 15th and 19th in southern portions, except that rains accompanying the series of unusually severe thunderstorms which traversed a narrow strip, beginning in Northeastern North Dakota on the evening of the 15th, and leaving southeastern Minnesota on the morning of the 16th. There was great damage in comparatively small areas in the Red River valley, and also along the Mississippi south of Wright county, and extending west from 25 to 100 miles. In Rice county the path of greatest violence was 40 miles by 10; in Mower county the path extended diagonally across the county with a width of 10 miles, and there were other large areas also; in the areas of greatest damage buildings, wind mills and trees were blown down, and crops were laid flat and badly tangled. Wind seems to have caused most of the damage, and the rainfall was not excessive, except in small areas; there were hailstorms also, with very large stones which fell in a few places continually for fifteen minutes, but the hail damage was not widespread. Low lands, creeks and small rivers in southeastern counties are flooded.

Outside the storm-affected sections, spring wheat, oats, flax, corn and potatoes continue in splendid condition generally, and early wheat is filling well, though it is somewhat rusty in southern portions. Early oats will be ripe in a few days, and early wheat in from ten to fifteen days. Rye harvest is well advanced, and its stacking is begun, and barley cutting is progressing well.

The small area of winter wheat is being harvested; the quality is excellent. Haying is going on favorably in northern portions, with good drying weather. Considerable timothy will be left for seed in southeastern counties. Corn is growing rapidly. There were severe hailstorms, probably of small area, in parts of the middle west on the 12th.

The North Dakota report is as follows:

Generally favorable weather for crops of all kinds prevailed during the past week. Although the temperature was slightly below the average, it seemed warm by comparison with previous weather, and this, with heavy showers in most parts of the state, caused a vigorous growth of vegetation. Some localities that were not favored with showers are complaining that rain is needed. Scattered hail storms are reported, but it is said that but little damage, except in some narrow strips, has resulted to the crop.

Wheat is blossoming and filling very well, with long heads, and as a rule, heavy straw. In some sections rust is appearing, and on low gumbo land in the eastern portion the crop is very poor.

Early barley is ripening fast, and some of it has been harvested in the extreme southern portion. It is said to be an excellent crop.

Oats are about all headed and are also filling well. Rye is growing fast with heavy straw. Late millet is backward, especially where the land is dry.

Early flax is blossoming and doing well but that sown late is very poor and backward, and fears are felt that it will not mature unless there is unusually favorable weather.

Corn is growing very fast and is now about two weeks behind the season. It is being cultivated the last time in the eastern and southern portions.

Haying is beter and the yield could not be better; work was interrupted the latter part of the week in most sections by snowers.

A complexion grows fairer daily using Satin-Skin Cream and Satin-Skin bowder. 25c. Found best by test.

A Child's Delusion.

It was four-year-old Kent Jewett of Sparta, Wis., who taking his first ride in a railway train, and while standing upon one of the luxuriously upholstered seats in one of the home-comfort sleepers on the sixty-mile per hour Pioneer Limited of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, that exclaimed, owing to the ease of car and smooth roadbed: "See the trees and fences get away!" Thus did a child voice the feeling of his elders who travel over this old and reliable railway.—Farm, Stock and Home.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

FIGHT IS INTENSE

Contest Over East Superior Street Paving Will Be Fierce.

Asphalt Is Pitted Against Bituminous Macadam Pavement.

Three Big Companies Have Experts Figuring on the Job.

For several months past there has been a quiet but none the less intense fight for the East Superior street paving contract.

It is asphalt against bituminous macadam, and there promises to be a sharp contest Friday morning when the department of public works opens the bids for the improvement.

Indications now are that the bidders will be the Barber Asphalt company, the American Asphalt company and the Warren Bros. company, of Boston.

All these concerns have had experts figuring on the work, and the competition is so keen that it would not be surprising to see the bids go considerably under the preliminary estimates.

The Barber Asphalt company is known as the asphalt trust. The American company is an independent concern making a specialty of rock asphalt instead of Trinidad.

The Warren Bros.' company will probably have the only bid for bituminous macadam.

The district to be paved is between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east. The asphalt trust stole a march on the deal to begin with and got in the first petition for asphalt. Then citizens that did not care to waste their good money on the specimens of asphalt paving seen in other cities got up a petition for the bituminous macadam paving.

The conditions existing in this fight are peculiar. Every city officer that has anything to do with the improvement and all property owners that have taken the trouble to look up asphalt paving are strenuously opposed to the asphalt idea.

Their opposition does not arise entirely on the general unfitness of asphalt, but also from the fact that asphalt costs so much that the improvement will drain the permanent improvement revolving fund to such an extent that other improvements of the utmost public and sanitary necessity would be delayed for months or a year.

For several days the city officers debated whether or not they would advertise the asphalt on this account, but it was finally decided to advertise for the bids, and they will be opened Friday morning.

It is currently reported that the asphalt trust may put in a number of straw bids, and the city officers have been warned to look out for this. However, straw bids have no terror in this case, for City Engineer Patton has drawn up a set of the most ironclad specifications ever submitted to paving contractors in this city. Straw bids will be just as binding as anything else.

SAVES A WOMAN'S LIFE.

To have given up would have meant death for Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass. For years she had endured untold misery from a severe lung trouble and obstinate cough. "Often," she writes, "I could scarcely breathe and sometimes could not speak. All doctors and medicines failed till I used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was completely cured." Sufferers from Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung Trouble need this grand remedy, for it never disappoints. Cure is guaranteed by W. A. Abbett. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

LOG TOWING.

Gladiator Brings In Big Raft---Few Logs Are Lost.

The north shore rafting tugs are towing some very large rafts of logs to Duluth this season. The Gettysburg has brought several from the Pigeon river drive for the Alger-Smith company and the Gladiator has brought a number for the Merrill & Ring company. Last evening the Gladiator came through the Superior entry with one of the largest rafts that has been towed through that entry this summer. The logs were hoomed at the mill about daylight this morning.

Log towing from the mouths of the rivers on the south shore of the lake, has been completed when one more raft is brought in from the Brule. The Stevens Towing company has been doing the work and has had a number of tugs in the service. The movement has been very active and it is estimated that nearly 90,000,000 feet of logs have been towed to the head of the lakes thus far this summer. W. H. Gilbert's logs from the south shore have been taken to the Jones mill on St. Louis bay and the logs belonging to the Edward Hines Lumber company have been towed to the Scofield mill at West Superior.

If the good rafting weather that has been experienced for the past few weeks continues throughout the rest of the summer, the Duluth Log Salvage association will have very much less work cut out for it than it did last season or the season before. Comparatively few logs have been lost from the rafts in this district and not many of these because of any storm, but from other causes, such as the breaking of a boom. There are fewer logs scattered along the beach on the lake side of Minnesota and Wisconsin points than there were a year ago, this date. All of the last year's cut of the salvage association has been sold and the proceeds from the sale have been divided among the lumber firms interested in the association pro rata to the amount of logs each had salved, less the expense of the salvage and the sawing.

Menominee Man Sentenced For Mailing Obscene Matter.

Menominee—Joseph Foger, of Menominee, was sentenced to three years in the Detroit house of correction, by Judge Wanly, at Marquette, last week. His crime was sending an obscene letter through the mails. He deserted his wife about four years ago. She brought suit for divorce on the grounds of non-support and secured it. She was later married to F. C. Nowacek, of Menominee, and Foger sent two letters to him of the most obscene and abusive kind.

Calumet—The Commercial Travelers' association of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan will give a ball in the copper country late in August. Traveling men from all sections will attend. They and their families will visit all the points of interest in the copper country, including mines and stamp mills.

Michael Smith, a Pole, employed at the Champion mine, fell down a shaft several hundred feet and was killed. He was 34 years of age and left a wife and child.

Ole Stephenson received an ugly wound in the head in a saloon brawl. The officers are looking for the man who struck Stephenson with an iron cuspidor.

Lake Linden—At St. Joseph's church, Lake Linden, Bishop Frederick Eis, of the upper peninsula, diocese of the Roman Catholic church, confirmed a class of 275 candidates Sunday. This is one of the largest classes ever confirmed to the upper peninsula. A large number of others were confirmed by the bishop at Holy Rosary church, Lake Linden, and St. Cecilia's church, South Lake Linden. After his visit here Bishop Eis went to Calumet.

Houghton—Eight profession pickpockets who sought to reap a harvest from the crowds that attended Buffalo Bill's show in Hancock, were quickly nabbed by the police. Although the men were suspected of having committed robberies, proof was lacking and the police were in a dilemma. The problem was solved by escorting the "light-fingered" ones to the station and handing them over to the conductor of a south-bound South Shore train, with instructions not to let them off until Chicago had been reached. All of the men had money and paid their expenses gladly to escape the minions of the law.

Hancock—Miss Lue Jones, of Hancock, has been elected queen of the Elks' Copper Country Carnival, which began Monday and will continue throughout the week. The winner polled a vote of 12,000, while four of her competitors each had 1000 votes.

MOON BROS.' THEATER.

Moon Bros.' canvas theater drew another well filled house last evening to see "The Black Spider," as produced by the Barbour Theater company. The company is fast gaining a hold on the popular price theater-going public of Duluth, through its fine selection of plays and good acting. The specialties between the acts are chosen with the idea of pleasing the popular fancy and the manner in which they are received proves that this part of the performance is not being neglected. Thursday evening The little girl with the big voice will open as a special vaudeville feature. Tonight the three act farce comedy, "Two Married Women" will be presented.

WILL OPEN ON TIME.

President Bohannon Speaks of Normal Opening.

President Bohannon of the normal school says the school will open on Sept. 2, the date announced in spite of the reports to the contrary. All of the contracts provide for completion so as to admit of this and there are penalties in case of delay. Circulars are being prepared announcing the opening and giving information with reference to the school and will be sent out within a few days.

President Bohannon has already received many inquiries as to the opening of the school from prospective pupils.

NINE IN ONE YEAR

That Number of People Murdered In St. Louis County.

Not One of Those Tried Has Suffered Death Penalty.

Two Are Now Awaiting Action of the Grand Jury.

St. Louis county has just made a record for itself in the way of murderous crimes.

In less than a year's time nine persons have been slain in this county at the hands of their fellowmen.

Of the cases tried and the accused men convicted not one has suffered the death penalty. Two murder cases will be tried at the September term of court, and the question in the minds of many people in this city at the present time is just how long this leniency toward those who take human life will continue.

The first of the series of murders occurred in August, 1901, when James King, a notorious bad character, shot and killed a bartender in a Hibbing saloon. There was no provocation. King had purchased a drink for himself and friend and went into the back room without settling. When he returned the bartender asked him for the price of the drinks, and instead of complying with the request King pulled a revolver and shot him dead. Notwithstanding the fact that King's reputation was a bad one, and he had already served a term in Stillwater, he was given a life sentence only.

The case of Paddy Rivers, who stabbed a fellow longshoreman in a Lake avenue saloon one Sunday morning followed shortly after. The killing came after a short quarrel. Rivers was given twenty years in the state prison.

The most atrocious murder ever committed in this county followed. Stens Karvo, a Finlander, in January of this year, nearly severed the head of another Finlander, using a jack knife. The affair will be recalled by all Duluthians. A Lake avenue saloon was the scene of the affray. There was apparently not a reason in the world for killing the man, and at the trial Karvo's attorney pleaded insanity as a defense. The defendant was found guilty of murder in the second degree and is now serving a life sentence.

Early in the spring Nelson Porter, a colored hot tamale man, struck John Brown, a woodsman, with his fist, the latter dying a few hours later as a result of the blow. Brown fell heavily to the sidewalk and fractured his skull. Porter was tried for manslaughter and acquitted.

Bert Brooker, a Tower bartender, was also on trial for manslaughter, having struck a patron a blow with his fist, from the effects of which he died. Brooker was acquitted.

A woodsman working in a lumber camp a few miles from Cloquet last winter died in a hospital here from being kicked severely about the head. His assailant left the country before his victim passed away, and the authorities found no trace of him.

Another man was found some months ago on the Crane Lake road shot through the head. Suspicion pointed toward a certain acquaintance of the dead man, but he too had gotten away from these parts by the time the crime was discovered.

A few weeks ago C. E. Henderson, a colored man, hacked to death a young colored woman with whom he was infatuated. He had planned his vile act well and lay in waiting for the girl. When she appeared he killed her. Henderson is now in jail and will be tried in the fall.

The last killing took place at Ely, Sunday, and Anton Shuster is held to the grand jury charged with the crime. The murder took place after a few hours' celebration indulged in by a number of Austrians. Shuster had been here but two months, and, like many of the other low grade foreigners, seemed to have little respect for the law.

"The number of murders this county had during the past few months reaches a surprising figure," said an attorney this morning. "The sentiment of the people, however, seems to be against hanging, although I think that is the one punishment that will put a check to this kind of crime."

IS GROWING.

Park Point Population Much Larger This Year Than Last.

"The population of Park Point is more than 1000 souls greater than it was last year," said Charles F. Hartman, who is associated with the Park Point Street Railway company.

"We are carrying every day back and forth between the Point and the city 700 people at the lowest estimates. That calculation was made on a rainy day with a northeaster blowing, when there was little chance of their being transient visitors to swell the total. That means simply the heads of families going up town to their work and returning. Based on a low average of the number in each family, that indicates at least 3000 people living on the Point this year. Last year there were about 1900 and 2000 people there, so the increase is at least 1000, or 50 per cent.

"To our knowledge there is not a vacant cottage on the Point, and there is much building. Though it is fairly along in the season, there are still cottages under construction, and there will be more or less building all summer."

Some of the cottages on the Point this year, including those now under construction, are much finer than anything there has been there in the past. The cottagers on the Point get along with small one or two-roomed cottages for a number of seasons, and they were ample for all purposes. Now, however, there are many that are putting considerable sums of money into their cottages, and there are some that would be a credit to any summer resort.

A remarkable feature of the population of the Point is the excellent character that is maintained for the resort. The class of people that summer there has always been good, and in spite of the popularity of the place there has been no tendency towards running down.

England Desires Our Friendship.

There are strong reasons why the best terms of friendship should prevail between England and the United States, and it is but natural that Premier Balfour should desire to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, Lord Salisbury, in this respect. Not only do the two nations stand nearer to each other in language, history and ideals than any other two great countries, but they adjoin each other geographically in Canada, and their trade with each other is largest and is constantly increasing. In 1901 the United States bought from the United Kingdom merchandise to the value of $342,000,000 and sold to the United Kingdom $651,000,000. The country which comes nearest to the United Kingdom in this respect is Germany. We bought from that country in 1901 $160,000,000 of goods and sold to her $202,000,000. Our purchases from the United Kingdom are a third of the aggregate which we make from the whole of Europe. Our sales to her are more than a half of those which we make to Europe. Then, too, from British North America we bought $43,000,000 of goods in 1901, and sold to it $108,000,000. Our aggregate of purchases from Mexico, which has much more than twice as many inhabitants as Canada, was $29,000,000 and our aggregate of sales to her was $36,000,000. It is well known to everybody on both sides of the Atlantic, of course, that Edward VII is ardently desirous of maintaining and extending American friendship. His influence during his lifetime, whatever misstry may be in power, can be relied on to be exerted in favor of preserving the closest relations of intimacy between his country and the United States. This feeling on the part of the king and the premier is reciprocated on this side of the water. It is for the interest of the United States to maintain friendship with the whole world, and especially with those who are closely identified with us in every way.

Officers Complain of Lack of System.

Considerable and seemingly well-founded complaint has been made over the lack of system in sending army officers to the Philippines without any understanding as to when they should be relieved and sent home to recuperate from the strain of the tropical climate. The fact that there has been a demand for good officers and the difficulty during a severe campaign of introducing anything like a proper system in this respect has undoubtedly cost many a good man his life. It is pleasing to know that the war department has now taken up the matter and the terms of service will be adjusted so that there will be some regularity. The need of a readjustment of the method under which officers are assigned to the Philippines seems to be imperative. The plan is to limit time for which an officer is sent to the Philippines to three years. That is about the limit that most men can stand the climate in many parts of the archipelago. The enlargement of the army and the number of vacancies caused by deaths have resulted in such rapid promotions that officers have been assigned to regiments just sent into the Philippines, and such officers have thus been obliged to remain far beyond the proper length of time. Secretary Root recognized that it will be practically impossible to settle the difficulty of relieving officers without regard to their regimental transfers, and he will no doubt sanction a plan which will secure the end desired without standing on the matter of keeping the staff and line of every regiment in the islands intact. Army officers hail the prospect of such an arrangement with delight. Already throughout the army there is a distinct dislike of service in the islands, and definite terms of service there will be regarded as a most wholesome institution.

THE TANGLE IN OHIO.

Governor Nash has decided to take a hand in straightening out the legislative mix-up into which the state of Ohio has been plunged, and has called a special session of the legislature to meet on Aug. 25. The principal objects of the session are to provide for the government of municipalities (the supreme court having set aside existing laws) and to repeal the Royer act, which practically deprived the supreme court of jurisdiction. This recent ruling of the supreme court was most far-reaching, and demolished much of the work of the general assembly. It sustained the Royer act, which limits the jurisdiction of the supreme court to a certain class of cases, and takes away about 95 per cent of its jurisdiction in appeal cases. The discovery that the legislature had approximately abolished the highest judicial tribunal in the state was not made for some time after the adjournment, and then it was too late. That alone justifies the governor in calling an extra session, but that is not all the trouble, by any means. The supreme court also decided that the Cleveland city government is unconstitutional; that the law taking the control of the Toledo police out of the hands of the mayor is in the same situation; and that the special salary laws for county officers is likewise in opposition to the organic law. The court also decides that the governor must appoint a lieutenant governor, but that will not require legislative action. Defiance of the constitutional provision against special legislation for particular cities has been especially flagrant in Ohio. Thus the legislature has directed that a city having a population of 11,004 shall have its police appointed in a particular way, while another city of 11,022, only eighteen more, has its police force appointed in an entirely different way, the needs of the politicians in different localities apparently being different. Another enactment reads: "Any city of the second class containing more than 30,000 inhabitants and located in a county having a superior court." This singled out the city of Dayton. In 1890 a bill was passed providing a form of municipal government "for cities having a population not less than 27,690 or more than 27,720." This "general" law applied to but one city, Youngstown. Perhaps when the general assembly meets the folly of so much special legislation will have become apparent, and wise provision will be made for these cities whose officers are now in such a chaotic state. It is to be hoped at least that laws will be passed which will not again be overthrown by the court.

ON EASY STREET.

The enormous appropriations made by the late session of congress for one thing or another form one of the evil things that are associated with good times, and show that human nature is about the same in the national legislature as it is in the common council of a city where taxes are coming in freely and no very close watch is kept upon the output of the treasury.

The action of congress in appropriating gigantic sums of money for purposes more or less necessary is an evidence that some people, at least, are getting into the way of thinking that there is no end to good times. It is invariably the case tha whenever prosperity prevails for any length of time, an unfortunately large percentage of the people get the idea that it is always going to be that way, and money that comes easy goes easy. Nation, states, counties, cities and villages dip into the prosperous pocketbooks of their taxpayers, and indulge in extravagances that would be shuddered at during periods of depression. If a school building, a postoffice, a city hall, or a state capitol is to be built, it must be the finest that money can buy. Then when the frosts of another epoch of depression set in and the pocketbooks of the taxpayers cease to be prosperous, the extravangances of the years of plenty drag wearily through the years of famine.

An excellent example of this tendency is given by the so-called "omnibut public buildings bill," passed by the late session of congress, drawing on the treasury for $20,000,000 to be used in erecting federal buildings. The passage of this bill is the effect of the application of the game called "logrolling." Nearly 200 committees in this country that thought it would be a nice thing to have a federal building all around pooled their issues and pushed the bill through congress. In some cases the expenditures are needed; but many petty villages that have no earthly use for a federal building except to boom their towns and give employment to their labor, profit by the bill and will have handsome buildings erected at the expense of the government.

The river and harbor bill, which called for appropriations amounting to $65,000,000, contains many items that are ridiculous, and that can only be useful in gaining votes for the congressmen that helped put them through.

The passing of John W. Mackay recalls vividly to the older people the excitement of the days when Nevada first sent its stream of silver into the world. Mackay and his partners, after many discouragements, at last, in 1873, struck the bonanza. The Virginia Consolidated's output was $5,000,000 in 1874, $16,000,000 in 1875, and then this and other mines adjoining, which they had bought, went up to higher figures. A rush into Nevada which recalled the surging days of 1849 and 1850 in California, took place. Vast fortunes were made by all the partners. From first to last the agregate output of the mines on the Comstock has been a little over $400,000,000, comparatively little of which has been dug out since 1880. The work of Mackay and his three partners, Fair, Flood and O'Brien, had a profound influence on the politics of the United States, and disturbed the monetary systems of nearly every country in the world. Their mines sent such a stream of silver into the world that the price went down fast and far, the old commercial ratio between gold and silver was broken, never to be repaired, the movement for remonetization of silver was started by Bland, and furnished an issue which remained to convulse the country in 1896, when Bland's cause was led by Bryan, and which was not settled finally until the Republican victory of 1900.

If the dogs only knew their standing in Missouri there would not be a canine outside the limits of that state any longer than it would take them to get there. Every dog has his day in Missouri and the day is one long lingering period of restfulness and safety. This is all on account of the decision of Judge Sidener, of St. Louis, who has just heard a case where a boy's father brought suit against the owner of a dog, who had bitten his son because he tied a tin can to his tail. The judge after listening patiently, acquitted the dog. In his decision he said: 'Any dog has a legal and undeniable right to bite any man, woman or child who purposely and with intent to disturb said dog's tranquility and peace of mind does attach or cause to be attached to said dog's tail a tin can or other weight which will impede the progress of said animal. A dog which bites its persecutor in such a case is acting purely and honestly in self-defense, and is as justly immune from punishment as the man who strikes a burglar in defense of his own life and welfare." Lovers of dogs and in fact all who believe in the humane treatment of animals will endorse the judge and wish there were more like him.

Secretary Shaw has issued a statement denying the report that has been in circulation that he was in favor of a five-year limit for service in the treasury department. The story was ridiculous on the face of it but there were so many inquiries that the secretary concluded to end the rumor once and for all.

The new constitution of Virginia prohibits state, county and city officials from accepting railroad passes. It does not necessarily follow that the law will be obeyed. Like a great many prohibitory laws it will in all probability soon become a dead letter.

The new battleship Maine promises to be the speediest battleship of her size in the world. She will prove a most fitting successor to the historic ship that was destroyed in Havana harbor four years ago last February.

Whitelaw Reid had a lovely time visiting Andrew Carnegie at Skibo. There was only one thing that Reid missed in his trip abroad and that was the coronation.

If the Oregon authorities refuse to pay the woman who found Merrill's body the reward they should pay it to the man who killed him.

Attorney General Knox still sleeps on the trust question. The magnates seem to have him in their control, body and soul.

As soon as the mill between Jeffries and Fitzsimmons is over then possibly Tracy may get a show at the wires again.

And now the betting is lively in London that the coronation will not occur on Aug. 9, as planned.

Another village in Scotland has presented Carnegie with the freedom of the burg.

And not a word from Tracy.

THE EVENING NEWSPAPER.

Des Moines News: The increase in the circulation, influence and prestige of the evening newspaper during the last decade is the phenomena of newspaperdom.

This statement is not a haphazard one. It is confirmed by the United States census.

In 1891 there were two evening newspapers printed to every morning newspaper. In 1900 there were three evening newspapers printed to one morning newspaper.

Has the demand for the morning paper fallen off or the demand for the evening paper increased? Both.

The afternoon paper is the paper of the masses. The merchant and the professional men read the morning paper, but these are a very small proportion of a newspaper's constituency. And even they scan it hastily.

The evening paper comes to the home at the leisure hour. The head of the house, the wife and the children all have time to read it. Together man and wife discuss the news and plan the next day's program, whether of pleasure or of buying.

The day has been filled with many occupations. The husband is in a hurry in the morning to get to business and the housewife is busy with her affairs. The period of rest and leisure comes in the evening.

Every invention and facility which expedites the transmission of news helps the evening paper. It is so now that three-fourths of the world's happenings are given the same day they happen. The people want the news while is hot. The morning paper can enlarge and comment, but the evening edition usually gives the first publication.

It is for this reason that the evening newspaper is sought as an advertising medium. It reaches the larger number of the purchasing public at a time when they have leisure to read and digest.

In every city in the United States, the evening newspaper is outgrowing the morning editions.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Children are pearls in a crown that also has thorns in it.

There is nothing like getting up early in the morning to teach one the beauty of sleeping late.

When man talks to woman he may chide her and when he talks to man he may cherish her, but when he whispers to his God he blesses her.

It is a smart woman who, after her husband has been fooling with the plumbing, goes and gets a plumber to fix it in secret and then brags before him about how clever he is at such things.

It is just like a woman to be mad with her husband for wanting to smoke in the room with the lace curtains and yet to be proud of him for being able to do what it would nearly kill her to try.

When a man is down he brags about his daughter who is taking college honors; when he goes home, tired and discouraged, it is to one who only knows enough to run a house that he wants to come and put her arms around his neck.

Pen Succeeds the Sword.

Baltimore American: The Boer generals in their contest for justice have laid down the sword, it is true, but in its place they have taken up the mightiest weapon of modern times, and will write their side of the history of the war with Great Britain. And if they can write as well and convincingly as they can fight, they will make some very interesting reading.

POINTED REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: "Don't you have to run around a good deal when items are scarce?" they asked him.

"I do," answered the reporter, wiping his brow. "for a fact!"

Detroit Free Press: Facetious Friend—Well, have you and your wife yet settled as to who is speaker of the house?

Dung Husband—Not yet. We usually occupy the chair together.

Chicago Post: "What is ability?"

"Ability is that to which a man owes his own success."

"And what is luck?"

"Luck is that to which all others owe their success."

Chicago Tribune: "You are not a workingman," said the curbstone orator, "or you wouldn't talk that way."

"You are wrong, sir!" fiercely answered the man who had interrupted him. "I am a member of a Browning club and if an institution of that kind isn't organized labor I don't know what it is!"

Washington Star: "Have you done anything to establish harmony in our party?"

"Not yet," answered Senator Sorghum. "Why not?"

"Because I'm not yet quite prepared for a general fight."

Chicago Post: "If people are so crazy for outdoor exercise I don't see why they don't get up garden-hoeing parties and such things."

"Wouldn't do at all. The difference between exercise and work is that exercise accomplishes nothing."

Brooklyn Life: He—But she spends too much money.

His Wife—No-o, I don't think so; but her husband doesn't make enough.

New York Sun: Biggs—So you were the only one of the crowd to bring back any fish, eh? How did that happen?

Boggs—We played poker all day, and when we got through I was the only one who had enough money to buy any.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: A coronation in August would be much more august than one in June.

Chicago News: Landlady—What portion of the chicken would you like, Mr. Newcomer?

Mr. Newcomer—Oh, half of it will be ample, thank you.

Judge: Mike—How much further does the soign say it is to Noo Yor-rik, Patsey?

Pat—Twinty-moiles.

Mike—Well, that's only tin moiles apiece.

Baltimore Herald: Beryl—A good deal is thought of her singing.

Sibyl—It's merciful they don't put their thoughts into words.

Philadelphia Press: "This," said the peddler, "is a little device especially designed for use in our summer weather.

"What is it?" inquired the curious man.

"It may be used one minute as a fan and the next minute to shovel off the snow."

Yonkers Statesman: "I guess I'll get out at this next station and stretch my legs," said the man in the Pullman car.

"All right, sir," replied the porter. "Our next stop is Chicago. You'll be able to get 'em extended there all right."

Washington Star: "I have played cards enough to become fairly familiar with poker slang," said one American financier; "but I don't quite see why you refer to me as a Pierpont Morgan."

"Because," answered the other, "it's bigger than a king."

One Month's Work in Cuba.

Havana Post: The republic of Cuba has completed its first month of existence. For some of the things that have happened during that time she is undoubtedly to be congratulated, while for others she must be blamed for lack of energy. Congress has met, but aside from assigning salaries, suppressing some few positions and creating a good many others, nothing particular has been done. The people in the rural districts are complaining of the lack of security of life and property, and the working classes are still asking what they are going to do during the summer months in order to make a living. In addition to this, we are beginning to hear of the increase of smuggling, and even of piratical acts that are being committed every day. Cuba is beginning to find out it is a great deal easier to criticise and to run a country theoretically than it is to do it in practice.

Building Great Ships Here.

New York Tribune: American shipbuilders are talking hopefully of the prospect that the constant development of the steel industries of the United States will make it possible to construct vessels here better and more cheaply than in any other country and without reducing wages. Sanguine prophets venture to predict that ere many years have passed capitalists and investors on the other side of the Atlantic will find it to their advantage to give extensive orders to Yankee shipyards. That is an outlook full of encouragement.

Prevention of Strike.

Chicago Chronicle: Public opinion has taken very pronounced shape in the matter of strikes. The next few years undoubtedly will see the matter regulated by some method akin to the New Zealand method. It may be called compulsory arbitration or it may be called something else, but the effect will be the same—to stop the disastrous and wasteful wars between capital and labor which impair public prosperity and imperil public safety.

Industrial America.

Chicago Inter-Ocean: While America's population has increased about five-fold during the last century, the productive power of that population has increased forty fold. Man for man, industrially considered, the American is twenty-five years ahead of the Englishman, who in turn is far ahead of his European neighbor. At this rate in 1920 there will be 110,000,000 Americans, with a working power equal to all the 350,000,000 people which Europe will then probably contain.

Era of Generous Gifts.

New York Tribune: This is the generation of generous gifts above all others. In the history of mankind, when was there ever an era in which liberal benefactions were more conspicuous? Colleges and churches, hospitals and asylums, houses of relief, institutions of every sort which do good, have been endowed and equipped with lavish bounty.

Confessions Of An Umbrella

By Charles Eugene Banks.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was the first week in May, and I had got partly settled with my family in new quarters. Worn out with the worry of moving, I retired to my den, and selecting an easy chair stretched myself before the wood fire blazing in the grate.

"What a bore this annual moving is," I growled. "Wonder who invented the idea!"

As if in answer to my question there came a tap-tap, tapping sound down the hall, the door of the study swung open noiselessly and an old dismantled umbrella limped into the room. I recognized it at once as one I had discovered in the apartment that morning and had tossed with other rubbish into the lumber room.

"You were complaining of the trials of moving," said the umbrella, advancing to the center of the room.

I stared at the strange apparition.

"Well, I have been something of a mover myself and can appreciate your feelings," continued the rain shade with an impatient shake of its ribs.

"No one is likely to take the trouble to move you now," I said, gathering courage. "Your appearance indicates that your days of usefulness are over."

"I'll admit being disgracefully shabby," chuckled the skeleton, "but I come of respectable stock and have seen the day when the most stylish were not ashamed of my company."

My visitor had a thin, squeaky voice and its faded and tattered covering hung about its out-of-joint figure in a most dilapidated fashion.

"If you've no objection I'll take a lean on your furniture," and with a waggish air the umbrella hopped across the room, threw out a broken rib, and making an elbow of it supported itself in a cross-legged attitude against the bookcase.

"What are you, anyway?" I inquired, assuming a composure I did not feel.

"The worn-out umbrella you so unceremoniously threw into the attic this morning. I felt rather lonely up there and so I hobbled down to make your acquaintance. I used to be much in company and I don't relish being alone. Would you like to know something of my history?"

The shade dropped its elbowed rib to its side, crossed it with another behind its back, and leaned jauntily against the case.

"I'm listening," I said, wondering whether I was asleep or awake.

"You cannot deny that I have had my ups and downs in life, now can you?"

"You certainly have that appearance," I replied, with a smile for the conceit.

"I'm rather the worse for wear," said the umbrella, with a rueful glance at its tattered and mouldy covering. "But once I was as neat and nobby as the best of them. A deer-horn handle, gold-mounted and polished like ivory surmounted this now splintered stalk. My ribs were of the finest tempered steel. A gold ferrule was bound about my head like a king's crown. My overcoat was of the finest silk. In fact, I was about the handsomest and best-dressed of a whole rack full of companions."

"That must have been many years ago," I mused.

"It was," came the ready answer. "I remember well the day my first owner selected me from the rack full of umbrellas. He was of medium height, with gentle brown eyes and a frank, pleasing countenance. His hair, which was a rich auburn, was not trimmed short as was then the fashion, but grew long and clung in soft, silky waves about his head. I judged him to be of a generous disposition, for when his friend asked him for a match he gave him a cigar. I was delighted when he lifted me out of the rack and told the dealer he would take me."

"The shade paused and after casting a quick glance about the room, made a sudden dart for a chair, threw itself into it, emitted a satisfied sigh and, again crossing its legs, looked at me inquiringly. I begged that the story might not be interrupted, at which my visitor gave a pleased grin and continued:

"My master proved to be all I had hoped for. He was a welcome guest wherever he went because of his cheerful disposition and pleasing humor. He had a good hand, warm and firm in its grasp. I have made a study of hands and his were the best that ever came under my inspection."

"Do you believe character can be determined by the handle?" I hastened to inquire.

"To be sure," replied the umbrella. "And who so well qualified to judge of that science as one of our fraternity? We are always made aware of our owner's feelings by the expression of the hand that carries us. It is a language with which men cannot juggle. For example take the hand of my first owner. The palm well filled, the joints small and closely knit, the fingers well formed and slightly tapering toward the ends, the nails shapely and with enough blood under them to color them to a delicate pink. How many acts of kindness I knew it to perform! How many generous gifts bestow!"

"I never thought of an umbrella in that way," I cried. "Can it be that these things which we hold insensate really have feelings and become attached to us?"

"Indeed they do," promptly replied the umbrella. "I cannot tell you how fond I grew of my good master. When the weather was pleasant and he had not need to take me with him I was lonesome enough and longed for stormy weather that I might feel his fingers gripped about my handle. But one unlucky day he went to call on some friends in a great hotel. He met them in the parlor. I was left leaning against the wall near the door. It was a jolly party and they all went away with him talking and laughing, so that I was forgotten entirely. As they were passing I threw myself on the floor to attract his attention, but the thick carpet deadened any sound I might have made, and I was left alone. Not quite alone, for presently a man who had been lying on a soft in a dark corner arose and crossing the room picked me up and examined me critically. The instant his fingers touched me I felt a sudden chill through all my frame.

"'A work of art,' he said, eyeing my heavy horn handle with its hammered gold point. 'Fits me all right; guess we might as well be partners.'

"He tucked me under his arm with an air of proprietorship and went downstairs. When he was in the street he wound his fingers about my handle and twirling me jauntily moved along with a self-sacrificed air. The hand of this man differed widely from that of my rightful owner. It was shapely, well knit and white, but the palm was lean and spare, the fingers wirey and almost square at the ends, while the nails, which were allowed to grow very long, were blue-black. His clasp was cold and I could feel the cords twitching nervously under the skin. It was the hand of a cold and scheming person. I felt it so. And so it proved to be, for the man was a gambler.

"What a contradictory creature he was," continued the umbrella after a moment's pause. His clothes were always of the finest cloth and most fashionable cut. He frequented the best cafes where he dined, when he did dine, on the most expensive foods. Yet his quarters were in a dingy old building in an unfrequented part of the city. Among his associates he was cool and self-possessed, winning or losing without emotion. But when he was alone in his attic he would often throw himself upon his bed and sob, moan, pray and curse for hours together.

"It was after one of these paroxysms that she came. I don't know how she found him, for he never told anyone where he lived. He had fallen asleep and did not hear the timid knock at the door. At last it was pushed slowly open. I shall never forget the vision of loveliness and sorrow framed by that doorway. She was tall and slender almost to emaciation, but so perfectly formed and so graceful that one could think of nothing but a wildwood fern. Her eyes were large and of a violet shade, and looked at you as a fawn looks coming to eat out of your hand. Her rich brown hair clung in heavy waves about her head and neck. She stood a moment irresolute and then going to the bed laid her hand lightly upon the cheek of the sleeping man.

"'Ernest!' She called the name softly and her voice was as water flowing over pebbles. He sprang up and seeing her scowled darkly.

"'What are you doing here?' he growled, pushing aside her outstretched hand.

"'Oh, Ernest, Ernest! I had to come. You must know; they must all know soon—I cannot hide my shame. I have no one to go to but you. I have had so much trouble to find you. You won't drive me away. You promised—'

"'It makes no difference what I promised. I don't want you here. You have made me trouble enough already. I've never made a decent winning ever since I met you. You've ruined my luck. Your baby face comes between me and every stake I play for and I lose.'

"'I—didn't mean to bring you bad luck, Ernest. I loved you and hoped to make you happy.'

"'Well, then, if you want to make me happy, get out and let me forget you. Go back to your country garden and your silly admirers. I want to forget you and then maybe my luck will come back.'

"He turned his face to the wall. She seemed to wither as a morning glory withers in the noonday sun. With bowed head and trembling limbs she went away and the gambler springing up closed the door behind her with a curse. Then he dressed himself hurriedly and snatching me from the corner almost ran down the stairs to the street. Night was approaching and a few of the street lamps had been lighted. Pedestrians hurrying along loomed like giants in the uncertain light. Sounds that in daytime mingled into one continuous roar now broke up into separate notes that came out sharp and distinct. The gambler noted none of these things, but hurried on toward the gambling house with which he was most familiar. He climbed the stairs with a nervous tread. Once within he bought a stack of chips and began to play heavy stakes at the faro table. He ordered brandy with each deal whether he won or lost. His eyes grew red and his cheeks flecked. The hands on the big clock marked the hour after hour; the chips rattled monotonously. At three o'clock he swallowed a tumbler of brandy and hurling a curse at the dealer strode out of the room. He had lost his last dollar.

"In his excitement I was left behind. He had gone only a few moments when a short, puffy-looking fellow in a shabby suit of gray, who had been picking up stray chips from the floor and betting them furtively made off with me. If I hated the first man to steal me I detested this one. He was repulsive in every way. His cheeks were bloated almost to bursting; his eyes bloodshot and the whites of them turned to a dirty yellow. His hands were pudgy, the nails short and flat, the joints of his fingers wrinkled and cross wrinkled, dried like the lining of an egg shell. He staggered away to the lake front, where he stretched himself on a bench and secreting me behind him was soon snoring lustily.

"At dawn the man awoke, rolled from the bench, shook himself like an animal and slouched back toward the town with me under his arm. As he came out upon a walk that led to the lake we met two men carrying a burden. I saw at once it was the victim of the gambler's villainy. Her drenched garments clung closely about the slender form; the dark brown hair kissed the marble cheeks and flowed in waves over the delicate bosom stilled forever. A suggestion of a smile about the lips seemed to say that death had proved a welcome messenger.

"That day the thief traded me to a barkeeper for liquor. My new owner was a short, muscular man, heavy of feature, with close-cropped hair, sharp gray eyes, cheeks of a bluish-red, a bull neck and wide, deep chest. His hands were so thick they were almost round, and the short stick-like fingers were damp and clammy. When trade was slack he busied himself with running a soiled cloth over the counter or wiping the glasses and bottles behind the bar. The place was not attractive, but as the weather continued pleasant there was no excuse for taking me out for several days, and I was forced to listen to vulgar talk and drunken brawls until I was ready to die with shame and disgust.

"One evening just after the lamps had been lighted a man entered and ordered some brandy. The burly barkeeper was alone in the room at the time. When the customer had drunk his liquor he proposed a game of dice. I recognized him then as the gambler who had first stolen me. The ivory cubes were soon rattling on the bar. The game went on for some time, and then there was an accusation of cheating, a denial followed by fierce oaths. Suddenly I felt myself swung in the air, my sharp deer-horn handle with its heavy gold tip crashed against the gambler's temple. I felt the shivering of crushed bones, the gush of hot blood, heard a low moan and the gambler fell dead upon the floor.

"When the barkeeper saw what he had done he turned out the lights and hurriedly snatching me up ran away. My handle had been broken with the blow and the deerhorn remained in the wound. I was tossed into the closet, where I have lain ever since until you found me."

The umbrella here collapsed and fell rattling from the chair. I hastened to pick it up, but found no semblance of the life it had seemed to posses. Only the splintered handle, half naked ribs and tattered silk of a worn-out shado.

Its heavy gold tip crashed into the gambler's temple.

What are you doing here?" he growled.

FORCES ORGANIZE

J. Adam Bede Opens Headquarters In the Torrey Building.

Guy A. Eaton Is Chairman of His Campaign Committee.

Captains For the Different City Wards Are Selected.

Headquarters were established yesterday for J. Adam Bede, from which the organized effort to secure for him the Republican nomination for congress from the Eighth district will be made.

The headquarters are at room 201 Torrey building, which was the old Morris headquarters during a couple of campaigns, and the Bede propaganda reckon that they will be able to put forth as successful a campaign from this room as Judge Morris' managers did.

Last night a meeting of Bede workers was held in the headquarters, and an organization was perfected. There was a large attendance, including representatives from all the wards of the city and several from the range towns, and much enthusiasm is reported. The captains of the wards were selected, and they will select their precinct men. They will all meet tomorrow evening to form plans for the campaign, and by the end of the week the organization will be complete in all parts of the city.

Guy A. Eaton, the well known pine and iron land dealer, has been selected as chairman of the Bede campaign committee, and he will have full charge of the campaign before the primaries. He is a popular young man, and he has not been identified with either of the leading Republican factions in a way that would interfere with his conduct of the campaign. He is taking a very active interest in the Bede candidacy, and the members of the general committee express great satisfaction in having secured his services.

The city organization is practically complete now, and it will be fully crystallized by tomorrow night. Upon Mr. Bede's return from the lower part of the district the committeemen in the various range towns will be appointed and the organization made complete throughout the county.

"The Bede organization," said a member of the general committee this morning, "is going to be one of the most thorough the Republicans have had, even in a campaign before the election, and it will be far ahead of that of any campaign for a nomination in this district. St. Louis county will be completely organized by the end of the week, and during next week the ten other counties of the district will be organized. Work along that line is already under way. We are not doing this because we are afraid of the result at all, but we are going to make the best showing we possibly can."

CARRIERS WILL PLAY.

Mail Men of Duluth and Superior to Play Ball.

The letter carriers of Duluth and Superior are displaying great zeal in preparing for their ball game which will be played at Fond du Lac next Sunday, in event of the annual excursion of the Zenith branch of the Duluth organization of Letter Carriers. The excursion will be run on the steamer Newsboy. The Superior letter carriers' ball team has a long list of victories and few defeats but the local carriers claim to have some of the best material and promise to give the Superiorites the hardest game they ever played. Saturday evening the Superior letter carriers will come to Duluth to take part in the parade.

Weather Bureau Enlarging In Several Directions.

Chief Willis Moore of the United States weather bureau at Washington is sending out to the maritime interests circulars announcing that on Aug. 1 a new weather station will be established on the Pacific coast at the mouth of the Columbia river to be officially known as North Head, Washington. Among other appliances, the station is to be equipped with international flags and a powerful telescope and telephonic communication will be had with Portland and Astoria, Ore., where messages can be filed for transmission by telegraph or cable to all parts of the world. Nothing new has been heard from the repartment regarding the new observatory that will be built on the brow of the hill overlooking Duluth, other than an assurance that it will be erected.

The work of erecting the new signal tower on the bay front at the foot of the Northern Pacific dock will be completed within a few days. The signal tower on the ore docks at Allouez bay has been moved out to the end of the new extension of the dock which is now nearing completion.

SUPERIOR REPUBLICANS.

They Hold Two Conventions In One Day.

Two Republican district conventions were held in West Superior yesterday. In the First assembly district convention, Wallace W. Andrew of the Eighth ward secured the nomination as assemblyman to the Wisconsin state legislature after sixteen ballots were taken. The convention also chose a delegation to the state convention favorable to the candidacy of Solon L. Perrin as state senator on the Republican ticket.

In the Second assembly convention, Irving L. Lenroot was unanimously chosen to head the ticket for re-election as assemblyman, and a delegation to the state convention pledged to vote for George Hudnall, of Old Superior, for nomination as state senator, was elected.

Both conventions endorsed Governor La Follette and Senator Spooner and the policy of President Roosevelt.

Rained Around the City.

Peculiar storm conditions were prevalent around Duluth yesterday afternoon. Within two miles north of the city one of the heaviest rain storms on record lasted for several hours while scarcely a drop fell in the down town district. The heavy rain outside the city was accompanied by hail that did much damage to garden truck.

LABOR IN DEMAND

Man Who Works Is Master of the Situation Now.

Harvest Fields Beginning to Drain Market of Its Supply.

Railroad Contractors Are Short of Men---Wages Show Advance.

Labor is most independent now, and it has reason to be.

On every hand there are seekers after common labor. The railroads are competing with the harvest fields, and both want more men than they can get.

The result has been that wages has shown an upward tendency during the past week, and a day or two ago, for the first time this season, employers began to bid $2.25 per day for common labor.

There are two causes of the condition. One is the demand for labor on every hand, and the other is the yearning of the professional day laborer for the harvest fields. Almost all of the men that float about the country, working here one season and some place the next, are thinking about the harvest fields, and when the harvest rates of $5 per head go into effect Saturday there will be a rush to the wheat fields that will practically drain the country of men.

The crop in the wheat country promises to be large this year, and the demand for men is correspondingly great. The Red River valley country is a little behind, on wheat at least, but all the rest of the Minnesota and Dakota fields are groaning beneath enormous yields of grain, and there is work in plenty for everybody.

The nearness of the harvesting season has unsettled the labor market greatly, as few men can be induced to hire out for anything when they expect to go harvesting in a few days. The railroads are making every effort to secure farm hands to harvest the crop that means so much money in freight to them when it is shipped. The general immigration agent of the Great Northern has sent out a circular letter throughout the East and South, picturing in attractive colors the inducements the Northwest offers to laborers and urging them to come.

Those who go within the next ten days will be sure of at least three months' work at high wages. The farmers are now paying as high as $2.50 per day for help, and even this high figure may be bettered when the harvest is in full swing. Every farmer is expecting a big crop and worrying about labor, and laborers will be snapped up as fast as they come in until the demand is filled.

This makes it tough for the railroad contractors who are looking for men. They are paying good wages, too, but their jobs have not the fascination for the workers that the harvesting work has, and they are not in it in the competition with the farmers for laborers.

One employment agency had two orders yesterday, one for 100 men and one for 50. On the order for 100 he got but 17, and on the order for 50 he got 14.

Loggers are also bidding for men for summer logging work, and they are offering $2 and $2.25 per day.

The condition has affected mining operations on the range, and while the miners are not afflicted with the Dakota fever, many of the common laborers needed for stripping, exploring and developing are suffering from very bad cases of it, and wages of $2.25 per day are not holding them.

You can reach everybody over the system of the Duluth Telephone company.

ENORMOUS.

Number of Passengers Carried on Freighters Is Very Heavy.

"The deadhead business on the freight vessels plying the lakes between Duluth and the Lake Erie ports and those ports and Chicago is something enormous this season," remarked a vessel man yesterday. I know of one line of boats alone that has carried over a thousand deadhead passengers already this summer and there will be at least two more months when there will be a rush of people to take the lake trip on freighters. The owners of the freight carriers are being besieged by friends and acquaintances for passage on their boats and the number of persons traveling on passes will be greatly in excess this season, of anything of the kind in previous years.

"As a rule the people that come up the lakes on the freighters are of a class that are well able to pay the rates charged by the regular passenger steamers, but there are many who prefer the slower freight boats to the quicker passage of the passenger boats. The trip up the lakes on a freighter takes several days and the passengers have ample time to enjoy the scenery along the route and sometimes have several hours stop-over at many of the prominent ports along the lakes. The new freight boats now under process of construction are being fitted out with larger accommodations for passengers than the boats were a few years ago."

SHAVE EARLY.

Get In Before Seven O'Clock or Be Locked Out.

The journeymen barbers of the city have just won a point that they have been struggling for for years—an earlier hour of closing.

Hereafter a man must be inside the barber shop door before 7 o'clock in the evening if he expects to get shaved that day. The closing hour has been 8 o'clock for years, but at the last meeting of the Barbers' union it was decided to ask for the earlier hour and fifteen of the large shops in the central part of the city have agreed to the new plan. While an hour is clipped off at the end of the day the men gain but half an hour, as they will report for work at 7 o'clock in the morning instead of 7:30.

The shops will continue to keep open until midnight on Saturday as before.

Young Woman Puts End to Shameful Career.

Helena, Mont., July 23.—May Gorman committed suicide at Big Timber Monday night by taking morphine. She was about twenty-two years old and had been living a questionable life for some time past. She had been married to a man named Thomas Guinan, but secured a divorce six months ago and had since been living in the tenderloin district. Shortly after 6 o'clock she threatened to end her life, but as these threats were common with her, no attention was paid to them. Two hours later she was found dead in her room. She was a comely woman and had many admirers. Her mother, who lives in Chicago, has been notified.

LEAVING THE RANGES.

Removal of Fences Forces Cattle Raisers to Sell.

South Omaha, Neb., July 23.—More range cattle were shipped into this market last week than during any week in the history of the stock yards. One reason is that the fences of the ranges in the Northwest have been ordered down by the government, and owners are rushing their cattle to market to get them off the open range. Fences are being torn down all over Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota. Many ranches are selling their thoroughbred stock, saying they cannot afford the risk of straying. Many large cattle owners say the change will ruin them. Most of the breeding will be done in the Southern states and the cattle brought North to fatten.

Last week the great influx of range cattle caused a decline of $1 on the Omaha market. Very few corn fed cows are coming to market now, and packers are not expecting many. The large number of grass fed cattle coming to market and the immense number which will arrive within the next two months will probably cause a still further decline in beef. In addition to the removal of fences causing this condition, growers are anxious to take advantage of the present prices, believing there will soon be a decline.

TALKING TOO MUCH.

Another Army Officer Who Has Not Learned.

Washington, July 23.—Col. Stephens Groesbeck, who has arrived at San Francisco en route from the Philippines to Chicago, where he has been assigned to duty as judge advocate of the department of the lakes, has been called upon for an explanation with regard to an interview appearing in press dispatches from San Francisco and attributed to him.

Col. Groesbeck, as judge advocate of the division of the Philippines, was the chief reviewing authority in the Waller and other trials. In the remarks attributed to him, he reviews the Waller case in a general way, and explains the issuance of the "kill and burn" order for which Gen. Smith was court-martialed. He also is made to express regret that humiliation should be attached to the orders retiring Gen. Smith.

The secretary of war does not approve of comments of the nature attributed to Col. Groesbeck, but if the colonel explains that he did not authorize the publication, or shows that remarks made in private conversation were published without his knowledge or consent, nothing further will be heard from the matter.

WEALTH ATTRACTIVE.

Young Woman Persuades an Octogenarian to Elope.

Chicago, July 23.—William Irving, 77 years old, an inventor, and reputed to be worth $500,000, disappeared from his home 391 West Taylor street, and relatives believe that he has eloped with Miss Bridget O'Brien, said to be a washerwoman. It was discovered that Irving and his bride, of 32 summers, took out a marriage license during the afternoon at the county building, and up to an early hour this morning the inventor had not returned to his home.

Friends and relatives searched for the missing man in the hope of preventing an elopement, but the chase was given up after several justices of the peace were seen and a number of railroad stations visited. Mrs. Anna Skalen, who lives with her father, asserts that the elopement was planned entirely by Miss O'Brien, who, it is said, hopes to come into possession of the old man's wealth.

MUST BE QUALIFIED.

Mary MacLane Has Much to Learn Yet.

Boston, July 23.—"Mary MacLane will not enter Radcliffe college this year for the very simple reason that she is not prepared," said her friend, Miss Corbin, of Cambridge. "She may not even enter the summer school. She may not remain in the state a week. Radcliffe's requirements in the way of scholarship, health and character are definite and Miss MacLane's eligibility for admission would be determined by the usual methods."

"Miss MacLane intends to enter Radcliffe?" queried Miss Irwin, dean of Radcliffe, calmly. "Well, perhaps she does," she added, significantly. "The Radcliffe authorities have received no intimation from Miss MacLane that she intends to apply for admission to their college. It requires four years of preparation for Radcliffe, and those under whose tuition these years are spent usually become pretty well qualified to certify as to the character of the pupil."

KING ENJOYS

Improved Weather Now Prevailing at Cowes.

London, July 23.—King Edward today enjoyed the improved weather at Cowes, Isle of Wight. He spent the forenoon in an invalid chair on the open deck. He is still under the most strict supervision. The patient's diet menu is signed daily by one or the other of the royal physicians before it is submitted to the king, who submits good-naturedly to the somewhat severe regime. There is every indication of his majesty's continued progress towards complete convalescence. Weather permitting, the royal yacht probably will go on a short cruise tomorrow.

Truth says that Emperor William's visit to King Edward will be brief and strictly private, the German emperor sailing from Kiel on the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern Aug. 2 and remaining at Cowes through regatta week, when his schooner yacht Meteor III will compete for the king's cup.

Colds are more troublesome in summer than winter, it's so hard to help sailing to them. One Minute Cough Cure cures coughs, colds, croup, throat and lung troubles. Max Wirth.

AT THE HOTELS

"With every mine working, with 2600 men on the payrolls, with last month's wage roll the largest in the history of the town, Eveleth is pretty near prosperous," said Charles Jessmore, of that thriving range city, at the St. Louis this morning. "The May payrolls amounted to $149,000, and the June payrolls are said to be much higher than that. They are estimated at $160,000. With such a record as that we have every reason to feel prosperous, and we do."

W. J. West, of Buhl, who is connected with the mining operations of the Sharon Steel company, tells much the same story in a lesser degree of his town, which is one of the newest on the ranges. "We are two years old," he said at the St. Louis yesterday afternoon, "and we have 500 men on our payrolls at the present time. Owing to the newness of the village, however, that does not represent so much of a population as it would in an older town, where five to a family would make a population of 2500. Many of the laborers are single men and live in boarding houses. When the town gets a little older it will be much larger even if no more men are employed."

Charles Johnson, county treasurer of Cook county, who is stopping at the St. Louis, comes from Grand Marais, the center of a great trout fishing country. Trout streams abound above and below Grand Marais, and they are far enough away so that they are not striped of their fish like streams nearer Duluth.

"Fishing is good this year," said Mr. Johnson last evening. "Reports from the Brule, the Flutereed, the Reservation, Kimball creek and all the other streams within a radius of twenty miles from Grand Marais are that the supply of trout is at least up to the average, and many good catches are reported. Not a great deal is doing up that way in mineral explorations or timber cutting, but trout fishing is excellent."

THE DAKOTAS.

New Evidence Against Alleged Assailants of Thomas Walton.

Deadwood—New evidence continues to be brought against Robert Powers and James McCoy, who are in jail charged with murderous assault on Thomas Walton, particularly against Powers, who has a bullet hole through his hand. Powers says he was intoxicated and cannot tell where he was or what he did. The police cannot find where he obtained a drink and when arrested, early in the morning, liquor could not be detected on him. Powers has borne and unsavory reputation since coming to Deadwood. Walton is a pioneer and has many friends. There has been talk of lynching and should Walton's injuries prove fatal nothing could save the men in jail.

Woonsocket—Two tramps fell from a freight train south of Letcher and one of them was killed and the other received dangerous wounds. The man who was killed had no papers or anything on his person by which he could be identified, and no one has called who seemed to know who he was. His remains were taken to Mitchell to be held for identification.

Sioux Falls—Chief of Police Martin arrested Elmer Herring, said to be the man who was engaged in the fight with the conductor and brakeman of a freight train near Jasper, Minn., Saturday night. Sheriff Black, of Rock county, Minn., took the prisoner to Luverne, where he will be tried.

Mitchell—There is some great money being made in land sales in this county and an instance is given of quick transfers. J. H. Marks, of Pipestone, Minn., bought 40 acres eight miles north of town, about two months ago for $26 an acre. He kept it six weeks and then sold it to the tenant who was living on the place for $35 an acre. The tenant liked the place for two weeks and found a chance to sell it at an advance of $5 more an acre and let it go.

Aberdeen—George Saunders, colored, a jockey riding in the races here for Dr. Mathews, of Groundon, was badly injured by several "sports" out on a drunk. They are alleged to have kicked and pounded him until one rib was broken and another splintered. He is a slight lad, weighing only about 100 pounds. The men are accused of having inflicted the injuries, "just for the fun of the thing." All are under arrest.

Tyndall—Martin Webber is dead as a result of a severe surgical operation. He was an old settler, coming here in the '70s. He was about 50 years old and left a wife and three children.

Lead—F. W. Seymour, a resident of Winona county, Minn., died in Lead Monday, aged 67, of paralysis. Mr. and Mrs. Seymour were visiting their daughter, Mrs. T. D. Edwards.

Scotland—A son of Jacob Winters was accidentally shot in the abdomen by a son of Jim Brown, of Menno, at Maxwell's mill, yesterday. The wound is not considered serious.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Wahpeton—The Republican county politicians, for the first time in years, are feeling well pleased to have had a harmonious convention. The old McCumber-Lauder controversy was not in evidence, for the reason that the judge was unable to secure delegations to support his candidacy for the state supreme court. The senator was not interested further than in seeing his old-time friends successful. The ticket nominated was largely voted upon by acclamation, and contained men who have been recognized as sympathizers on both sides of the old struggle. Only one ballot was required for nomination of any candidate. The nominees are: Sheriff, A. H. Gallup; register of deeds, N. M. Borseth; treasurer, E. H. Carter; clerk of court, N. C. N. Myhrra; state's attorney, J. G. Forbes; judge of probate, O. J. Wakefield; superintendent of schools, H. G. Klepper.

Washburn—The legislative convention for McLean and Mercer counties nominated A. E. Johnson, of Washburn, for the senate, and Henry Bartz, of Casselman, and William Diebali, of Mercer county, for the house. The legislative delegation is understood to favor the re-election of Senator Hansbrough.

Minot—Anton Anderson, aged 59 years, fell dead in a blacksmith shop. His daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Husby, died of consumption a few hours later.

GOODWIN ACCEPTS.

New York, July 23.—N. C. Goodwin, the actor, who is now in London, has, according to the Herald, cabled his agreement to accept the part of Bottom in an elaborate revival of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." All the latest inventions of stage mechanism will be utilized and a large company will be engaged for the reproduction of Shakespeare's most poetic and picturesque work.

POLICY OF FRIARS

An Important Document Found Bearing on the Question.

Views of Father Casanora Which Were Written In 1897.

Natives Regarded as Savages, Friars as Spain's Agents.

Washington, July 23.—An important document bearing on the Philippine friar question has been discovered in the library of congress. It is a letter from Fra Gabriel Casanova, a Franciscan, to Senor Moret, at one time Spanish minister for the colonies. This letter was published in Madrid in 1897, by W. E. Retana, at that time a member of the Spanish cortes. At the time of its publication Senor Moret was trying to have reform measures inaugurated in the Philippines. Father Casanova was held in high esteem by his religious superiors and was subsequently named as a member of the college of theology in Manila.

His attitude toward the Filipinos reflects largely the opinion of them held by the members of the four church orders. In official circles here it is said that Father Sassanova's letter explains fully the method used by Spain to conques and hold in subjugation the natives of the islands. Casanova opposes the proposed reforms and declares in substance that the Filipinos are bestial savages. He says:

"Since I wrote you my last letter affairs in the remote Philippine islands have continued to improve visibly. Thanks to the activity, the well aimed blows and the energy of Gen. Polavieljo, the principal leaders of the insurrection are paying with their heads for the treasons committed by them against the fatherland."

He then takes up Rizal, the famous Filipino patriot, and says:

"If it had been the methods of the friars and the Jesuits, which, by their bad results, produced the war and placed the integrity of the country in danger, Rizal would have said so, when, sincerely repentant, he prepared to present himself before the tribunal of God. Do you not think, Senor Moret, that if he had anything to say against the friars he would have said so frankly? Why did he not do so? Ah, Don Sigismundo, the answer is very easy, because any one who knows this country of over-grown children, who looks at things with calm and with a desire to know the whole truth, will see that in the Philippines the only policy is the policy of the cross—the only policy which the friars pursue there.

Who is our enemy here, Senor Moret? Does it not seem to you that it is Masonry and those debauched Spaniards who taught Rizal, and with him many other Indians, to hate the regenerative laws of Catholicism whose beneficent influence sustained the sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines? The only enemies of the friars in the Philippines are the enemies of Spain. They hate them because they understand they are the greatest obstacle to be overcome before attaining their desires.

This, it is asserted by certain officers, confirms the declaration that the root of all the trouble in the Philippines has been the hatred of the natives for the friars, and it is pointed out that Father Casanova acknowledges the existence of this hatred and at the same time admits the close relationship between the Spanish government and the religious orders. He confirms the joint control of the natives by quoting as following from his book by Gen. Borrero on "The Policy of Spain in the Philippines:"

"As the friar is the genuine representative of the fatherland in the archipelago, knowing the language of the people he lives among and the spirit and tendencies of the native, he is considered the principal obstacle to the realization of the ideals of the filibusterers and on this is based the desire of the enemies of Spain to get rid of the religious orders, because they believe that if this is done they will have covered half of their journey.

Father Casanova says that the weakening of the moral authority of the friars in the archipelago is looked upon as the beginning of the end of the Spanish dominion in the Philippines, adding that as for carrying liberties and reforms there, "you see what he (Gen. Borrero) tells us, such a thought is an attempt against the sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines." Father Casanova then says:

"The only liberty which the Indians want is the liberty of savages. Leave them to their lighting cocks and their indolence, and they will thank you more than if you load them down with old and new rights.

These observations, reflecting as they do the opinion of the friars of the natives, are said to show the cause for the opposition of the Filipinos to the friars and for their expulsion from the parishes where they ruled so long as the representative of Spain.

HEPBURN SAYS

Iowa State Convention Will Endorse Roosevelt.

New York, July 23.—Representative W. P. Hepburn, of Iowa, who has been a visitor at President Roosevelt's home at Oyster Bay said: "I have been away from home so much that I am not fully in touch with Republican plans, but I am confident that our next state convention will heartily endorse President Roosevelt's administration.

"I know nothing of any plan to present Congressman Littlefield's name to succeed Speaker Henderson in the next house. I am confident that Gen. Henderson will be chosen again for the speakership."

New York, July 23.—Ridgely Carter will be left in charge of the American embassy after the coronation, Mr. Choate taking a vacation in North Berwick and Henry White going to America, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune.

CHESS.

Third Round of the International Tournament at Hanover.

Hanover, Prussia, July 23.—For the third round of the international chess masters' tournament which was begun here today, round twelve of the Berger system furnished the pairing, which brought the field together in the appended order:

Olland vs. Wolff, Messes vs. Gumberg, Popiel vs. Atkins, Swiderski vs. Napier, Mason vs. Bardeleben, Levin vs. Janowski, Cohn vs. Pillsbury, Gottschall vs. Tschigorin and Suechting vs. Marshall.

When the first adjournment took place at 1 p. m. Olland had beaten Wolff, Swideski had gone down before Napier, and Janowski had administered defeat to Levin. Popiel had managed to get the upper hand of Atkins, who probably will lose in the afternoon sitting, and in the Pillsbury-Cohn game the latter held a great advantage when time was called for the adjournment. The remaining contests stood pretty even.

ARCH STANDS.

Canadian Arch Will Be Redecorated and Illuminated.

New York, July 23.—Over-zealous police officials will not succeed in securing the removal of the Canadian arch as a public nuisance from Whitehall, says a London dispatch to the Tribune. The coronation committee of the city of Westminster has authorized Commissioner Preston to redecorate the arch and to illuminate it on coronation night. Otherwise there will be no public scheme of decoration for the streets, in accord with King Edward's wishes. There is no sign of a revival of speculative activity in the sale of seats, nor will it be possible to obtain high prices without a guarantee of a return of the money in event of a second postponement. There will be a large number of absentees among the peers at the abby service. Many are without houses in London, and are frightened by the cost of livery for coronation day since they cannot drive to the abby in cabs, but must go in splendid state. It is reported that the king will not return to London before Aug. 7, and that he will return to Cowes two days after the coronation.

The bullet passed through her stomach. The boy was so crazed from grief that he attempted suicide, and finally had to be given an oplate to quiet him.

CHICAGO CLUBS

Invite the President to Be Their Guest.

Chicago, July 23.—At a meeting of representatives of the Lincoln, Marquette, Mohican and Republican Marching clubs held last night, it was decided to extend a formal invitation to rPesident Roosevelt to be a guest of the clubs upon the occasion of his visit to Chicago next October.

A telegram to this effect was sent to the president and the formal invitation will follow by mail.

The Hamilton club also will join with the other clubs in extending hospitality to the chief executive and it is thought that the Union League club will assist. President Roosevelt intimated some time ago that he would be pleased to accept the invitation of the clubs if extended.

AT WEST DULUTH

There was a large attendance at the Westminster Presbyterian church in West Duluth last evening to witness the ordination of the new pastor, Rev. W. J. Lowrie. He will also be installed as pastor of the Duluth Heights church, many of the people belonging to the congregation of the latter church attending the ceremonies.

Rev. A. C. Manson presided over the meeting. The ordination sermon, which was an impressive one, was delivered by Rev. Mr. Sutherland, of the Lakeside Presbyterian church. The charge to the congregation was given by Rev. S. E. Jamieson, and Rev. Mr. Glit, of Two Harbors, delivered the charge to the pastor.

The ordination service was preceded by a meeting of the Duluth Presbytery, of which Rev. R. A. Montgomery is moderator, and I. H. McCollum is secretary.

The installation services at the Duluth Heights church will be held there next Tuesday evening. Dr. T. H. Cleland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon, and Rev. R. A. Montgomery and Rev. S. E. Jamieson will deliver the charges to the pastor and the congregation.

TO CUT OFF CREDIT.

The Retail Grocers' association of West Duluth has adopted a new credit system similar to that adopted by the down-town retail grovers, which will go into effect Aug. 1. The new by-laws contain stringent rules that reach both the retailer and the consumer, among which is one providing that consumers purchasing merchandise from other than regularly established grocery houses will not be afforded credit by members of the association. The object of this rule is to preclude the trading of the consumer with peddlers. Each merchant will be provided with a book containing the names of all persons who trade in the proscribed manner. Any member of the association violating the rules will be fined $10 for the first offense and double that amount for the second offense. A preliminary meeting is to be held soon by the association to complete arrangements relative to putting the system into effect.

BROWN-DANE.

Miss Emma Brown, of West Duluth, and Herbert Dane, of Biwabik, were quietly married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Brown, of 4301 West Sixth street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. A. Saunderson, pastor of the Oneota M. E. church, and was witnessed by the relatives and a number of the intimate friends of the bridal couple, among whom were Misses Grace Dane, Lottie Robinson, Gertrude Easton, Jessie Jeffrey, Fannie Brown, and Messrs. C. W. and M. C. Brown. The bride has taught at the Bryant school for the past four years, and the groom is employed on the range by the Bessemer Steel company. They will make their home at Biwabik.

MAKES A PURCASE.

Edward Dormedy, the grocer, has purchased the store building property at lot 9, block 19, First division of West Duluth from Philadelphia parties, for $2,500, the sale being made through J. A. Scott. Mr. Dormedy does not intend to change his present business location, buying the property for a business investment. The upper story is fitted up for living rooms.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

A meeting of the I. O. G. T. was held last evening at the Baptist church on Sixtieth avenue west and Bristol street.

Inquiries are frequent from West Duluth people as to when the new subway on Grand avenue will be completed. There is considerable anxiety expressed that the work will be delayed into next year, a condition that be as unsatisfactory to the people from this part of the city as to the West End people.

The livery barns at West Duluth are crowded today with rigs from Cloquet, Carlton and surrounding country, a large number of the people coming to the city to witness the Wild West exhibition at the Driving park.

Ralph Ward had the misfortune to receive a kick on his knee from a horse last Sunday that has incapacitated him from work for a few days. Mr. Ward had driven out to the French river and the animal, annoyed by flies, accidentally landed on his knee. No bones were broken, but the joint was severely bruised and inflammation resulting from a cold has aggravated the injury.

Max Marks has one to St. Paul to enter the employ of his brother, A. S. Marks, who is in the mercantile business in that city.

No word had been received up to this morning from the Cloquet ball team relative to a game there next Sunday. Manager Ultican will telephone regarding arrangements unless he receives word this afternoon.

Mrs. Bessie West has returned from a visit with relatives at Saginaw.

George Williams spent yesterday at Cloquet.

Leonidas Merritt has returned from an outing trip at Isle Royale.

H. A. Cundy, of Hibbing, is a visitor in West Duluth.

FRESH DISTURBANCES

Expected at Paris as Sequel to Outbreaks.

Paris, July 23.—There is every prospect of fresh disturbances today, as a sequel to yesterday's clerical outbreaks as protests against the government's enforcement of the law against unauthorized congregations. It now appears that 300 persons were arrested and numerous prosecutions are pending, though the majority of the prisoners were released. Fresh meetings to protest in favor of the religious orders are expected to be held today, while the radical and socialist papers are urging the Republicans to meet at Pantheon as a counter demonstration.

MACKAYS DEATH

Causes No Change In Cable Company's Policy.

London, July 23.—George Ward, the vice president and general manager of the Commercial Cable company, asked today by a reporter of the Associated Press what effect the death of John W. Mackay would have on the business of the company. He replied: "I do not know who will succeed Mr. Mackay as president. That is entirely in the hands of the board of directors. You can say, however, that there will be no change of policy. The progress of the company and particularly Mr. Mackay's plans will be faithfully carried out. The contracts for the Pacific cable have been let and the enterprise will proceed precisely as though Mr. Mackay's death had not occurred."

ARMY POSTS.

Excellent Progress Is Being Made at Manila Station.

Washington, July 23.—Reports have reached the war department that excellent progress is making on the Manila post. Congress appropriated $500,000 early in the year and 1800 acres of land on the Pasig river has been acquired for the post. The tract is about three miles long and one mile wide. Roads have been graded and macadamized from the river to the new buildings, and work on the latter is being pushed rapidly. The number for these quarters is sent from the Columbia river and Puget Sound. It costs about $15 per thousand and about $9 per thousand more for transportation, but the total cost is cheaper than it can be purchased for in Manila. It is said that the white ant, which is so destructive to most woodwork in the Philippines, does not injure the yellow pine of the Pacific. There was appropriated in the army bill $1,500,000 for other posts in the Philippines and Gen. Chaffee will make reports and recommendations to Secretary Root as to their location. It is understood that quite a large post is to be erected at Iloilo, which is to be the headquarters of the southern islands.

PRESIDENT

Entertains Several Distinguished Guests at Luncheon.

Oyster Bay N. Y., July 23.—The president entertained at luncheon today President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell university, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university and Capt. F. Norton Goddard, of New York, who long has been identified with the civic reform in New York. President Schurman is passing the summer at his country home near here and President Butler came to spend the day with the president at Sagamore ahll. It is announced that these calls were merely social.

President Roosevelt today received T. B. M. Addis, secretary and general agent of the City Municipal association of Philadelphia, who called to enter a complaint on behalf of the association against a federal officer holder in Philadelphia who is also holding a city office. No action upon the case was taken. The papers in the court-martial case of Maj. Edwin F. Glenn of the fifth infantry, tried for cruelty to the Filipinos, have been received by the president from the war department. He is the final reviewing authority. It was not announced whether he will make public his endorsement upon the papers or not.

MICHIGAN CRIMINAL

An Excellent Prototype of the Outlaw Harry Tracy.

Was a Terror to Wisconsin and Upper Peninsula.

"Black Bart" Who Is Incarcerated In Marquette Prison.

Houghton, Mich., July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oregon and Washington have their Harry Tracy, escaped convict, murderer and outlaw; Michigan and Wisconsin had their Reinund Holzhay, alias "Black Bart," desperado, murderer, stage robber, train robber and outlaw. The one now is at liberty terrorizing the inhabitants of the two Western states. The other now is a convict in the state penitentiary at Marquette, Mich. Yet his deeds have not been forgotten by the people of Michigan and Wisconsin.

In many ways the men are alike, at least so far as their careers can be compared. Harry Tracy is desperate, so was "Black Bart." One is cunning and elusive to a remarkable degree; so was the other. Holzhay was as handy with the gun, as indifferent to the sacrifice of human life, if his safety involved the murder of his pursuers, as is the case of Harry Tracy, and, further, Wisconsin was the birthplace of both.

Reinund Holzhay was born of Austrian parentage. When he first became an outlaw he was a young man of good physique and fair education. In 1888 he entered upon his criminal career, when he attempted to hold up a stage coach, near Shawano, Wis. When the driver failed to obey his command to halt, Holzhay fired at and wounded one of the horses. The injured animal dashed down the road, inciting the others to follow the leader.

His next venture in this line was more fruitful of results, and Holzhay secured considerable booty from a stage which he held up along the Wolf river. Not satisfied with this, he held up a train on the Milwaukee & Northern road, at Beaver. Displaying all the hallmarks of a generally bad man he, at the point of a revolver, compelled the frightened passengers to hand over all their valuables. Many small robberies followed, and although the robber left no clue, Holzhay was supposed to be the culprit. At this time he acquired the sobriquet of "Black Bart," because of his swarthy complexion and unkempt beard. Because of his depredations the stage lines and railroads were compelled to employ armed guards to protect life and property.

Having disappeared from the scene of his crimes, the people believed Black Bart had gone West. However, their surmise was proven to be wrong, when a Wisconsin Central train was held up by Holzhay at Cadott. Thereafter the bandit transferred his operations to the Gogebic range, where his most desperate crimes were committed.

At Lake Gogebic Holzhay held up a stage, but the answer to his demand was a shower of bullets from guards and passengers, who were prepared for hostilities. Holzhay vigorously returned the fire and killed a banker named Fleischbein, of Belvidere, Ill. Undaunted the defenders kept up a hot fire and finally drove the bandit from the field. The murder aroused the authorities of Michigan and Wisconsin to a frenzy of activity. Stage coaches and trains were guarded even more rigidly than before: the bandit's haunts were watched closely, and money furnished by Fleischbein's relatives kept a score of detectives on the murderer's trail. A large reward was offered for the desperado, dead or alive.

Holzhay, however, was as slippery as an eel. He slept in the woods, lived on game that fell before his rifle, and kept his pursuers guessing for a long time. Unlike Tracy, in his brazen effrontery, "Black Bart" never entered a town except in disguise, and then only to lay in a supply of provisions. Although closely pressed at times, he always escaped capture with the cunning of a haunted criminal. Although it never has been proven, it was generally supposed Holzhay had friends who aided him.

To replenish his larder, Holzhay walked into Republic, Mich., one day. He was recognized on the street by Village Marshal Glode, who at once planned to capture the bandit. E. C. Veizer, a justice of the peace, and the landlord of the hotel at which Holzhay was a guest, were informed of his scheme, and gave ready acquiescence. By a ruse the landlord persuaded Holzhay to go upstairs, and while there the man hunters stationed themselves at the foot of the stairway. When the bandit descended the men pounced upon him. Despite the odds, Holzhay fought desperately and managed to get one arm loose. Before he could use his gun, the arms were pinioned to his side and he was thrown to the floor with the three on top of him. He was securely bound and then taken to the village lock-up, whence he was taken to the county jail at Bessemer. He was tried for Fleischbein's murder, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment at Marquette prison.

In November, 1889, he began to serve his sentence. For several months he was a model prisoner, and then, in March, 1890, became sullen and refused to obey his guards. Thinking to get at the bottom of the trouble, Warden Thompkins sent for Holzhay. However, Holzhay seized the guard sent on the errand and flourished a knife before his face. Attracted by the guard's cries other officers rushed to the scene.

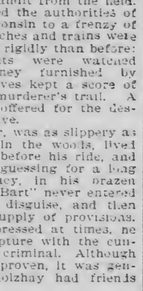

Using the guard as a shield, Holzhay furstrated several attempts to shoot him. After keeping up these tactics for several hours, the warden finally took a shot at Holzhay's right hand and shattered it as it lay on his knee while he sat behind his human shield. Then Holzhay dropped from the public eye and was not heard from until 1893.

Then he came forth with a letter stating he was insane, and asking for an examination. All his acts were those of a frenzied mad man, he said, and likened himself to a Malay. He analyzed his insane freaks with such power that when the physicians came to examine him, several weeks later, after the unmistakable madness had become apparent, they did not hesitate a moment in declaring him insane. When he was removed to the insane asylum at Ionia he was one of the most violent maniacs ever received there. Carefully watched and given the best of treatment, he recovered and he was returned to Marquette in 1894.

Since then he has been rational, and the occasional spells of insanity never have recurred. He is a model convict. He is librarian of the prison, and since his return has educated himself to a remarkable degree.

SCROFULA

I bequeath to my children Scrofula with all its attendant horrors, humiliation and suffering. This is a strange legacy to leave to posterity; a heavy burden to place upon the shoulders of the young.

This treacherous disease dwarfs the body and hinders the growth and development of the faculties, and the child born of blood poison, or scrofula-tainted parentage, is poorly equipped for life's duties.

Scrofula is a disease with numerous and varied symptoms; enlarged glands or tumors about the neck and armpits, catarrh of the head, weak eyes and dreadful skin eruptions upon different parts of the body show the presence of tubercular or scrofulous matter in the blood. This dangerous and stealthy disease entrenches itself securely in the system and attacks the bones and tissues, destroys the red corpuscles of the blood, resulting in white swelling, a pallid, waxy appearance of the skin, loss of strength and a gradual wasting away of the body.

S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties, and is guaranteed entirely vegetable, making it the ideal remedy in all scrofulous affections. It purifies the deteriorated blood, makes it rich and strong and a complete and permanent cure is soon effected. S. S. S. improves the digestion and assimilation of food, restores the lost properties to the blood and quickens the circulation, bringing a healthy color to the skin and vigor to the weak and emaciated body.

MYSTERY DEEPENS

The Murderer of Albert Latimer Not a Burglar.

That Point In the Case Seems to Be Solved.

Wounded Man Raved About Tuthill Before His Death.

New York, July 23.—The mystery that surrounds the killing of Albert C. Latimer grows deeper than ever. The half light thrown upon the tragedy at the inquest served only to envelope the murder in a still more inpenetrable veil.

At times it seemed that this veil was to be partly lifted and reveal the truth of the mysterious shooting, the only living witness of which is the widow —and the person who committed the crime.

One of these witnesses, the widow, Mrs. Sadie I. Latimer, told her story—told it calmly, without dramatic gesture or the color of strong emotions, save where the telling brought to her mind the horrid details of the tragedy. Now she sobbed, now she smiled, now she was defiant as the questioning of her examiner seemed to bring her own honor into question.

The name of William H. Tuthill was upon the lips of all, though in some cases unspoken. It was upon the lips of the murdered man before death, say witnesses, but the secret, if he possessed it, and many witnesses believe he did, died with Albert C. Latimer in St. Mary's hospital.

He raved, and his ravings were of Tuthill, says Fannie Latimer, the dead man's sister.

The dead man's brothers, stern, dignified business men, reluctantly, it seemed, testified to statements made by Latimer in the hospital. One told how he had, when dying, added a codicil to his will cutting off his wife from participating in his estate, and that to his protest the dying marm replied:

"Why not? She has deserted me. I have already got a divorce."

The nurses at the hospital, who had no personal interest in the case, told of his wailing cry:

"Oh, it was cruel to shoot me in cold blood," and again:

"A coward shot me in bed."

"It was no burglar that shot me."

And the testimony that Latimer was not in delirium when he told these things seems to be strong and conclusive.

Still, leading as this testimony appeared to be, it did not serve to clear the mystery that envelops the case.

The points that were not cleared up are as strong in their puzzling problems as ever.

The main fact that seemed to be established is that there had been a quarrel, an old quarrel between husband and wife, and that William H. Tuthill was the cause; that Miss Fannie Latimer had warned the husband, and that he had found his wife and Tuthill together in his own home as Miss Latimer had explained that he would.

But Mrs. Latimer says that that mater was satisfactorily explained, and that Mr. Tuthill was received again in the house by Latimer as a friend.

William H. Tuthill, who will go before the coroner at the resumption of the inquest, says:

"I have never at any time tried to evade service of a subpoena. I am willing to tell the coroner all I know, but I cannot throw any light on the tragedy. I do not fear anything. So far as any connection with the crime is concerned, I have a complete alibi. I did not go to the Latimer house until after the murder, and therefore what I can tell will be of little value. After I arrived I can remember everything, even to the smallest horrible detail."

Absolutely nothing which might provide a motive for the crime was brought out. The police endeavored to show that no one forced an entrance to the house. Capt. Reynolds made the positive statement that no one entered the house. But no witnesses were sworn who could testify absolutely that no one left the house. Persons were called to the stand who testified that they thought no one left by the back door, but no one swore positively to this.

Dr. Morrison testified that in his estimation Mr. Latimer was delirious all the time he was in the hospital. He said he did not hear him say that he had been shot in bed. This was in contradiction to testimony given by one of the nurses, who heard Mr. Latimer say this in the presence of G. Byron Latimer and Dr. Morrison.

One of the nurses testified that every time he heard the word burglar used he smiled as if, in her language, he wished it understood that he was not shot by a burglar at all.

All the circumstances of the tragedy have been carefully scrounded by Chief of Detectives Reynolds of Brooklyn, Capt. Buchanan and other police officials working on the Latimer case. This was done in view of certain facts brought out at the inquest which, combined with conditions at the Latimer house, strengthened the theory that the killing of Latimer was the result of a carefully devised plot.

One thing taken as strengthening this conception is the presence of felt-soled bicycle shoes, a bicycle lamp, a cap and the silver-plated knife. These, the police say, were not the implements that a housebreaker of experience would use.

If a murder were deliberately planned it would have been natural for an experienced person to employ just such agencies to fool the police. They might place those articles in the house to show that the shooting had been done by a burglar. On the theory that there was someone in the house acting in concert with he murderer, it might have also been possible to prepare an alibi for the slayer.

Capt. Reynolds, who has already declared that no burglar committed the crime, said:

"There is no person at present whom we can arrest on the charge of having shot and killed Latimer. Nor is there any evidence which points conclusively at any one person. William H. Tuthill has figured prominently in the case so far, and yet there is no direct evidence which points at him.

Tuthill spent an entire night in the home of Albert C. Latimer, two days after the shooting, according to information given to Capt. Reynolds by Miss Fannie Latimer, sister-in-law of Mrs. Latimer.

Miss Latimer said that she protested against Mr. Tuthill's remaining in the house, and when her protest was disregarded, she emphasized her objections by sitting up all night. Miss Latimer is expected to go on the witness stand when the coroner's inquest is resumed to tell in detail the story.

Boy Burns to Death Before Crowd of Men.

Minneapolis, July 23.—Max Beach, the 4-year-old son of Leslie Beach, 1717 Third street northeast, was burned to death yesterday morning while a crowd of fifty men and women, some of whom, it is said, could easily have rescued the boy, stood about the burning house and watched the little fellow as he slowly roasted to death within their sight.

Plainly visible from the street below, the boy was seen trying to raise the attic window.

With his scorched hands, the little fellow finally broke the glass and screamed frantically to those below to save him.

Any active man among the crowd could have successfully climbed up the top of a porch near the window and rescued the boy, but through thoughtlessness, fear or indifference, none made the attempt. Little by little the boy's screams grew fainter until he finaly fell back into the flames. The fire was started by the boy while he was playing in the attic with matches.

The child's mother died nearly four years ago and he has been living with his grandparents. His father, who is a bicycle rapairer at 329 Plymouth avenue north, is at the present time in the woods near Duluht and cannot be reached by telegraph.

Coroner Williams was notified and investigated the matter. He decided that death was purely accidental. The remains were taken to the morgue and will be shiped to Nashua, Iowa, for interment.

GLENN GUILTY

Major Is Punished For Administering the Water Cure.

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Root yesterday sent to the president at Oyster Bay the proceedings and findings in the court-martial cases of Maj. Edwin F. Glenn, Fifth infantry; Lieut. Julien Gaujot, Tenth cavalry, and Lieut. Normal E. Cook, of the Philippines scouts. Glenn was found guilty of administering the water cure to natives or permitting it to be done, and was sentenced to one month's suspension from duty and fined $50. Lieut. Cook was acquitted on a charge of giving orders to kill three Filipino prisoners. The testimony showed that he had given orders to shoot the prisoners if they attempted to escape. The Filipino scouts to whom this order was given thought it meant to shoot the prisoners.

In forwarding the cases to the president the secretary recommended that the sentences and findings be approved, but that no other action shall be taken. It is not believed that the president, who is reviewing authority in these cases, will make any comments such as were delivered by him in the case of Gen. Smith. It is shown in the evidence and reports that Maj. Glenn has performed excellent services and has done much to pacify the country in which he has been in command.

Considerable Strength In Cash and Some Wheat Worked.

Flax Trading Light But the Market Very Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 23.—The wheat market was very dull this morning and the tendency was sagging in spite of a fairly firm opening. The cables were considered good and the government weekly crop reports or rains in the South west that aided the bulls. Offerings were heavy, however, and the market fell off. It rallied somewhat later and closed with but little change in prices from yesterday. The cash situation is very strong. A few loads of wheat were sold in this market for direct export and some for Eastern shipment. The July wheat in all markets was stronger than September. The Liverpool market close unchanged to 1c lower. Antwerp was unchanged to 1c lower. Primary receipts of wheat at Duluth were 72 cars and at Minneapolis 217, a total of 289 cars, against 182 a year ago. Chicago received 282 cars, a total for the three points of 491 cars, against 340 last week and 423 a year ago. Of the total cars receipts 18 cars graded contract. Two cars of new spring wheat were received here.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,068,000 bus, last year 1,239,000 bus. Shipments 265,000 bus, last year 534,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 495,-000 bus.

July corn in the Chicago market closed without change from yesterday. September was 1c weaker. September oats advanced 8c. Primary receipts of corn were 1,422,000 bus, last year 1,350,000 bus. Shipments 262,000 bus, last year 234,000 bus. Clearances were 1300 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was exceptionally slow. The opening was 7/8c off at 72c and the market held steady at that point until 12:25 when it sold at 72¼c. The close was slightly weaker, being at 72c. This was unchanged from yesterday. Minneapolis also closed without change and Chicago was 3c higher. July in the Chicago market was unchanged, in Minneapolis 1c higher and in Duluth 1c higher.

Cash offerings were not heavy and sales were confined to 5,000 bus. No. 1 northern sold at July price. No. 2 at 2c under and No. 3 at September price.

Flax was strong but trading was light offerings being very meager. September was bid up 3c at one time but closed only 1½c up. October closed at its top price, 2½c up.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Trifle Firmer on Improved Cables.

Chicago, July 23.—Wheat opened a trifle firmer on slightly improved cables and on the bullish government crop report. There were some rains Southwest to help prices but stuff was offered generously and prices at once fell off. Trade was not heavy early September opened unchanged to 1c up at 72⅝c to 72¾c, and dipped to 72¼c. European markets reported a pressure of Danubian offerings. The grading in the new wheat continued so poor that July options held steady at 77c and later influenced September to steady near 72½c. Local receipts were 202 cars, 16 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 289 cars, making a total for the three points of 491 cars against 340 last wek and 423 a year ago.

Prospects of rain and manipulation of Sugar options kept wheat up and sent September to 72⅝c. September closed firm, 1c up at 72¾c.

Although receipts of corn fell off somewhat and grading continued poor the good crop reports influenced a dip early. September opened a shade to ⅛@¼c down at 61¼c to 61⅜ and eased to 61⅛@¼c. Trade was mail but offerings were not large. September rallied to 61⅝@⅔c. July was not traded in the first hour. Receipts were 127 cars, 31 of contract grade.

September corn sold at 61½@⅝c, but there was little business and that option closed weak, ⅛c lower at 61¾@⅝c.

Indifferent trade in oats together with good weather and crop reports caused lower prices in the oats pit. September opened ¼c to ⅜c down at 34¼c to 34c dipped to 33⅝@34c but as offerings dried up rallied to a steadier position near 34½c. Receipts were only 41 cars, 15 of contract grade. July was not traded in the first hour.

Liberal hog receipts and lower stock yard prices together with offerings in pork caused an easy opening in provisions. Shorts, however, were taking some of yesterday's paper profits and there was a fair demand in lard. These influences started prices up but only a partial reaction from yesterday's severe slump was recorded. September pork opened 5c down to 5c up at $17.25 to $17.30, sold at $17.45 and steadied near $17.37½. September lard opened 2½c lower to 2½c higher at $10.60 to $10.85, sold at $10.67½ and eased 5c; September ribs opened unchanged at $10.25 and gained 1½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was unsettled, but within a small range of prices. Showery weather was offset by predictions of generally fair weather throughout the United States and foreign markets without tendency, but Russian offerings at Liverpool are reported increasing. There is nothing sufficiently important in the cash situation here either way to give a tendency to prices. Speculative trade is hung up for the moment between the fact that the wheat does not improve much, but there was very heavy trading in people's Gas, which rose to 107. Great Northern pfd, and Minneapolis, St. Paul Northern pfd, and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie pfd gained 1 and 2 points respectively. The Kansas & Texas stocks increased their gains to 2 points before 9 o'clock, but without any particular effect on the other Southwesterns.

There were erratic movements in a few stocks and the general trading became dull. Great Northern rose 4½ and reacted 1½. Fuller construction advanced 4¾, the preferred, 3¾. St. Paul pfd, 2¾. Detroit United Railway, 2¼. Linseed, 1½. Consolidated Gas, 1¼. Twin City Rapid Transit, 1¼. On the other hand, Ice lost 1¼, the preferred, 2½, and Rubber Goods, 2¼.

St. Paul extended its rise to 1¾ and the preferred to 3¼c. Sugar and St. Louis Southwestern rose an additional fraction, but other active stocks showed the effect of realizing. Among dormant stocks United States Express rose 5¾. Evansville & Terre Haute preferred, 3; Des Moines & Fort Dodge, 2½, and Pacific Coast, 1¼. Brooklyn Transit was weak at a decline of 1¾. Manhattan, a point, and New York Air Brake, 3½.

The reaction reached 1¾ in Fuller Construction, 3 in the preferred, 2¼ in Great Northern preferred and a point in St. Paul, Illinois Central and Rock Island.

The price level fell below last night in various stocks which had shared in the advance and the closing was active and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Sentiment today continues bullish. The gold exports brought about a feeling of caution, abating confidence in the general outlook. The reason is that holders of stocks appreciate the importance of the reminder that receipts of the metal from where is on the increase. It is recalled that the Boer war being over the movement from Rand mines must steadily enlarge. In America the indications for 1902 are unmistakably for a greater output of gold than ever before. An arrival of $500,000 Alaskan gold yesterday is a reminder that receipts of the metal from the Klondike are going to offset in all probability the exports to Europe. In view of the foregoing and the belief that the West is in for a period of good growing weather, conservative houses again advise that purchase of stocks on moderate recessions. In spite of damage by too much rain the outlook is still for a banner harvest of corn and for an immense crop of hay. This is the real explanation of the strength and buying of stocks like Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, which will be greatly benefited by good crops.

Corn conditions in Kansas is very good. There is a deep-seated suspicion that some corporation has been taking this stock quietly for months for control. But aside from this some aggressive attitude of the Berwind element is considered a powerful factor in the market course of Atchison. Mr. Berwind and his friends declare very positively that Atchison common is as good as Union Pacific and will sell as high this fall if nothing happens to the corn crop. And the chance of a mishap to corn are not believed to be very remote indeed.

Dick to B. E. Baker: I am much disappointed in the way Baltimore & Ohio acts. The directors declaring the dividend thirty days earlier than usual looks as though they were not in favor of the speculation in the stock, as it was believed by a good many well-posted people that this dividend which has just been declared at the rate of 2 per cent was likely to be 2½ per cent. Somebody is feeding the Steel stocks all the time.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is a better tone in the London market and belief there was temporary short interests there encouraged renewal or buying through commission houses. Atchison is very strong on official reports that the corn crop on its system will beat all records. Sugar advanced on rumors that the surplus is now large enough to justify some return to higher dividend rates of two years ago. Alton issues are firm on reported buying for control by the Gates party.

STOCKS ACTIVE

A Large Opening Demand at Slight Fractional Advance.

In General List Moderate Gains Was the Rule.

Price Level Fell and the Closing Was Irregular.

New York, July 23.—There was a large opening demand at slight sharp fractional advances for New York Central, Atchison and Amalgamated Copper and good gains were also scored by Kansas & Texas, Canadian Pacific, Southern Railway and Sugar. In the general list gains of a moderate fraction was the rule, but there were a few declines. Yesterday's late advance brought realizing orders in Amalgamated Copper and the stock yielded a point below the opening. The soft coal stocks also fell away and Brooklyn Transit was quite heavy. At other points there were good gains, Sugar, the Kansas & Texas stocks, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Southern Railway, Evansville & Terre Haute, Detroit United Railway and the Denver & Rio Grande stocks advancing 1 to 3¾. Rock Island opened a fraction off and rallied 3¾ to 189¾. Some of the less active stocks were under pressure, Denver Southwestern yielding a point. Trans continental stocks were feverish until Union Pacific was rushed up to 109⅝, causing a moderate improvement in the others.

Large buying for St. Paul, Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific advanced them from 1 to over 2 points, but their strength was utilized to realize elsewhere. Sugar, Rock Island and New York Central reacted a point and Atchison and Reading large fractions. Norfolk & Western preferred gained 4 points but the other soft coal stocks, United States Steel and the Tractions were weak, Brooklyn Transit losing 1¾. Metropolitan Securities company receipts rose 5 points and Northern Central jumped 10 on one transaction. The announcement of additional gold exports depressed the whole market to react. Bonds were irregular at noon.

The reaction ceased when fresh buying orders appeared for Atchison, the grangers and Illinois Central. These stocks advanced to the highest with the rise in the last named reaching 2¾. The Pacifics, Brunswick and Southern Railway did not improve much, but there was very heavy trading in People's Gas, which rose to 107. Great Northern pfd, and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie pfd gained 1 and 2 points respectively. The Kansas & Texas stocks increased their gains to 2 points before 9 o'clock, but without any particular effect on the other Southwesterns.

There were erratic movements in a few stocks and the general trading became dull. Great Northern rose 4½ and reacted 1½. Fuller construction advanced 4¾, the preferred, 3¾. St. Paul pfd, 2¾. The reaction reached 1¾ in Fuller Construction, 3 in the preferred, 2¼ in Great Northern preferred and a point in St. Paul, Illinois Central and Rock Island.

The price level fell below last night in various stocks which had shared in the advance and the closing was active and irregular.

THE GIANT'S FOURTH.

"No American that ever lived had more patriotism to the square inch," said the o... circus man, to the New York Sun, "and so, when the Fourth of July came around he always wanted to celebrate; and—but I guess we've known other grownups that were like him in this respect, hey?—big as he was, the greatest of all giants liked to shoot off firecrackers and that sort of thing, and so the old man used to provide him with Fourth of July things of this sort in ample quantity and sizes proportioned to the great giant himself; torpedoes the size of turnips, firecrackers the size of rolling pins, and so on, everything suitable.

"The giant's roman candles, for instance, were of about the length of a kitchen boiler and about half as big around; and when the giant lit one of these and held it up and waved it around in the air above his head, there was something more than a mere gentle spray of sparks out of it; there was a great fountain of fire; and the fireballs that popped out of it every second or two were pretty near as big as watermelons.

"Now, that, you know, to see the great giant standing up shooting off a Roman candle of that sort would be a sight worth seeing, and when the giant had fired one of these great candles out he'd just give the empty tube a fling, careless like, just like you and I would a common sized candle tube, and turn to something else. It was great; but of all the things that the giant used to fire off in this way, personally, Roman candles and all, the thing, after all, that used to please the people most was the skyrockets.

"The skyrockets that we used to have made for the great giant had heads of just about the size and proportions of a cylinder stove, the sticks for them being stout, straight saplings about the size of a cedar beanpole and about twice as long. We used to bring from New York only the rocket heads, contenting ourselves at wherever we were going to be on the Fourth of July, for a sufficient number of these big saplings and getting them fixed works man, who he came out with the things, to wire the heads onto them.

"And these rockets certainly were tremendous. We used to make a rocket rest out of some suitably grown and suitably situated tree, sawing off the branches just above the crotch and leaning the rocket in that. The giant used to touch 'em off with a cigar.

"It was always sort of funny, somehow, to see him, after he had got one of those rockets stood up there, take a foot-and-a-half-long cigar out of his mouth and touch the fuse with it; but it was funny for a moment only; touched with fire the rocket in an instant became something terrific.

"It soared into the air with the roar of an express train going through a tunnel; it left behind it a trail like the tail of a great comet, and when it exploded it fairly filled the sky with meteors and shooting stars. The people used to forget even the great giant himself when he fired off one of these skyrockets.

"Every year when Fourth of July came we used to have a great fireworks display like this; all to the great giant's great delight, and I might add that there were few things, if any, that we ever did, that seemed to give a more vivid and profound satisfaction to the general public."

The British war office publishes annually an almanac for the use of the army. Some years ago, during one of its Egyptian campaigns, the army was suddenly startled by a total eclipse of the sun, for which the troops were not prepared. To prevent the possibility of another such surprise, which might have had grave consequences, the almanac has since been regularly produced.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—A member of Phelps, Dodge & Co. says: The copper situation is very satisfactory. The consumption is far in excess of production and there is confidence that the price of lake and electrolytic copper must be advanced as soon as the end of the coal strike is at hand. We have no copper for sale for July and only a few pounds of casting for August delivery. The demand is very heavy at home and abroad and the surplus which existed a year ago has now been disposed of. These being the facts I am very bullish on the copper situation. The Montana court decision wholly prevents Amalgamated from working the Minnie Healy mine is one of very great importance to the trade as well as to the parties immediately concerned.

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: With such a fine New York market Boston stocks could not help sharing a little of the activity and strength. Copper Range was made very active and strong. Next in activity were United States Mining and Tamarack, Calumet & Hecla and Osceola. There is practically no pressure to sell and so stocks advance on very small transactions. It is this narrowness of the market that makes it so easy for manipulators to work. Mohawk is very strong and we think very well of it. Report Old Dominion will be out in a day or two.

Boston: There has been steady buying of the coppers today and it has been a most excellent character. It is said that the Amalgamated interests in New York have changed their position and are now bullish on coppers. We are to all appearances running into a big bull market and we believe the better class of coppers should be bought for much higher prices.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 23.—The cotton market opened steady with prices unchanged to 4 points higher on scattering demand from shorts and absence of urgent selling pressure. Immediately following the call there was a slight setback, soon followed by a sharp rise on demand for July by a Liverpool cotton house and for August by a well known local German firm. Speculation after the first wave of trading was quiet and in good part by professional accounts. The traders were still very much at sea as to just what should be expected of July. It was seen that the future delivery with only eight days to run was 75 points under the price of middling spot cotton in the open market, truly an unusual disparity. New Orleans bought September cotton; Wall street sold September.

Spot cotton quiet; middling uplands, 9¼; middling gulf, 9½; sales, 800 bales. Cotton futures closed steady; July, 8.55; August, 8.06; September, 8.06; October, 7.87; November, December, January and February, 7.78; March, 7.77.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, July 23.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $156,925,-953; gold, $99,387,545; silver, $26,002,350; United States notes, $9,152,087; treasury notes of 1890, $78,286; national bank notes, $11,230,-257; total receipts this day, $2,067,102; total receipts this month and year, $36,510,680. Total expenditures this day, $1,460,000; total expenditures this month and year, $48,-095,000. Deposits in national banks, $124,-756,699.

PASTOR QUIT

Because of Rumors Circulated In His Congregation.

Zanesville, Ohio, July 23.—Rev. R. T. Lind, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church for four years, startled his audience Sunday by tendering his resignation as pastor of the church, with the causes therefor. There was not so much connected with the fact that Rev. Mr. Lind resigned that was startling as was the cause assigned by him in a written statement which he read to the congregation at the conclusion of the sermon.

For several days the people have been discussing a series of rumors, apparently without foundation, to the effect that Rev. and Mrs. Lind have not been dwelling together in harmony, and that the pastor was cruel to his wife. These rumors were mentioned by Rev. Mr. Lind and vigorously denied. Mrs. Lind is now visiting in Saginaw, Mich., and he stated to the congregation that as soon as he heard of the rumors concerning his domestic life he telegraphed to Mrs. Lind, and that she had replied that she would be at home in this city Tuesday evening of this week—as soon as she could possibly get here.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Duluth Companies Place Orders For Three New Boats.

Two For A. B. Wolvin's Company and One For G. A. Tomlinson.

Ferry Estelle Employes Complain Against Too Speedy Tugs.

Steamboat companies in which Duluth men are heavily interested, placed the contracts for three new boats yesterday.

The American Shipbuilding company secured the contracts, which were closed late yesterday afternoon. President W. L. Brown and Manager J. C. Wallace, of that company, were in the city yesterday arranging the deals.

The Provident Steamship company, of which Commodore A. B. Wolvin is at the head, will build two of the boats, and the other one is contracted for by G. A. Tomlinson. The contracts will aggregate $840,000. It is expected that two of the new boats will be built at the head of the lakes. The ships of the Provident company will be 400 feet over all, 385 feet over keel, 50 feet beam and 28 feet deep. Each craft will be equipped with 21 hatches.

The new boat for Mr. Tomlinson will be 436 feet over all, 416 feet keel, 50 feet beam and 28 feet deep. She will have 28 hatches.

COMPLAINT LODGED.

Employes of Ferry Estelle Make Charges Against Tugs.

The first complaint against the harbor tugs for exceeding the speed limit was filed today with Local Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk, by Capt. Tracey D. Cartland and Engineer F. O. Jacobs, of the city ferry Estelle. The complaints will be investigated by the inspectors when they return from Stillwater after an inspecting trip, which they are making.

Capt. Cartland alleges that Sunday morning between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock, while the Estelle was crossing the canal she met the tug B. B. Inman and that the Estelle was at least three hundred which the Inman did not answer but came on at full speed or nearly so. He says that he did not have time to change the course of the Estelle, but the another blast which the Inman finally answered and passed under the stern of the Estelle, with her wheel hard a port. He says that the tug Inman is equipped with hand gear or if the steam gearing had been carried away, in his judgment there could not but have been a collision.

The complaint further says that two days during Sunday afternoon he had to check the tug Excelsior before she paid any attention to signals. The Estelle was handling the city scow filled with people and Capt. Cartland says that if the line had parted he is not prepared to say what would have happened to the passengers.

The complaint states that tugs belonging to the Great Lakes Towing company go in and out of the canal under full speed.

FALCON RESPONSIBLE.

Milwaukee, July 23.—In the United States court Judge Swan held the steamer Falcon responsible for the collision with the barge H. L. Fryer in the Sault canal in 1900 and severely censured her captain for violating the rules by running two steamers abreast through the canal. The Falcon and steamer Madagascar were moving through the canal in the same direction when they met the Fryer, in tow of the Kalkaska. The Falcon should have fallen behind the Madagascar, but instead attempted to pass, with the result that the suction threw her into collision with the Fryer. The Falcon is held for the damages and the Madagascar, which was made a co-defendant, was discharged from all liability.

L. N. Scott Disposes of Duluth-Superior Bill Posting Business.

Manager Marshall and Robert Kelly of Superior Buy Them.

Mr. Scott Interested In No Theater Project In Duluth.

L. N. Scott, manager of the Metropolitan theaters in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and of the Duluth Bill Posting company, this morning closed up a deal whereby he sells the business of the bill posting company in Duluth to Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater in Duluth and the Grand Opera house in West Superior, and Robert Kelly, manager of the Land and River company.

As these gentlemen already control the bill posting business in Superior, this gives them full control of the business at the head of the lakes.

The deal was practically made two months ago, but it was not closed up until this morning and the transfer will take place Aug. 1. The bill posting business has been locally managed in connection with the operation of the theaters here and in Superior, and that is the reason that Mr. Scott has sold it to the men that control the two theaters at the head of the lakes.

Mr. Scott has held the business in Duluth during all of the time that he was associated with the Lyceum theater here, and it has grown to very considerable proportions.

Mr. Scott, who was reported some time ago to be figuring on taking hold of the Twin Theaters house property on Second avenue west and rebuilding it in grand fashion with a second playhouse said this morning that he had no idea of engaging in the theater business in Duluth.

"How the support has been given such an organization," he said, "I am interested only in the deal for carrying out my own plan. I built some while whether it is possible just at the present time to conduct two theaters in Duluth. For the past two or three years Duluth has been an excellent show town, and business has been well patronized. The city is in better shape to stand two houses than it was before the Twin Theaters burned, but it did not support two houses then. Until I took hold of it the Lyceum was dark most of the time, and the Temple got the business. No, I did not feel that when Mr. Marshall got it, and as his bid was better than mine if I did not get the house. That has been my best attempt at getting into the theater business here, for the present at least.

"I think, perhaps, a second house giving second class shows, might do well here, but of course I am in no position to handle such a house here, as the attractions that play in my Twin City houses are not popular price shows.

"The retail business has been good in the Twin Cities this summer and we look forward to a good winter season, providing the conditions do not change. A good deal depends on the prosperity of the Northwest, and that, again, depends upon the grain output, which I understand now looks very promising."

OLSON LOSES.

Jury Fails to Allow Expenses of His St. Paul Trip.

When county officials start bucking each other something is likely to drop.

That is the reason John Olson, auditor of Lake county, did not get $16 from the county as expenses for a trip he made to St. Paul some time ago, even though he went to court to recover it.

Judge Cant returned from Two Harbors last evening, where he held an adjourned session. Among the cases heard was Olson's. Olson went to St. Paul last winter in connection with a tax matter. It dealt with the taxes of a lumber company whose office was in this county and which paid its taxes here. The Lake county auditor had received a notice that the hearing would be held in St. Paul on a certain day, and he took the train for that city. When he returned he handed in a bill of $16 to the county commissioners. It was allowed but here is where another county official took a hand. County Attorney Ayleworth held up the bill on the ground that Olson had no authority to go to St. Paul and that he went there at no one's official direction. The word he received was simply a notice of the hearing. The bill was not paid and Olson began action against the board of county commissioners to get his money back.

The case came to trial yesterday before Judge Cant and a jury. The question for the jury was whether the allowing of the bill by the county commissioners was a ratification of the plaintiff's action. It held that the commissioners didn't know enough about the auditor's errand to ratify the same and the jury was outh but a few minutes. There were a number of other tax matters considered.

J. Adam Bede Expects To Carry Every County In District.

J. Adam Bede returned this morning from a trip through the southern part of the Eighth congressional district and a visit to the Twin Cities. He is as confident as ever, and perhaps a little more so.

"I believe I shall carry all of the counties of the district," he said this afternoon. "I confidently expect to get 75 per cent of the Republican vote in the counties outside of St. Louis, and I shall carry St. Louis county. I have found but two postmasters in the district that are working against me, and the supporters are lined up as solidly as they were before there was anybody else in the field. In short, everything looks well throughout the district.

"In my campaign I am adhering strictly to the truth in all that I say regarding the situation and my opponent, and I believe that is the only way to play ball."

ANOTHER UNION MEETING.

Temperance Meet at Lincoln Park Sunday.

The monthly union meetings provided for last spring by the Duluth Scandinavian Christian Union Temperance committee have met with popular favor, in the opinion of the union. The last meeting that was held in Lincoln park will be remembered for the instructive thoughts given by Rev. Dr. Elmquist in his address on "The Temperance Education Laws of the United States." As the park meetings on Sunday afternoons seem to be popular, it has been decided to have the next union meeting there. It will be the fourth in the series and will take place next Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Albert Johanson, pastor of the Swedish Mission church, has been asked to give an address, and the committee on arrangement is delighted at having received his acceptance.

The Salvation Army will join in the union meeting at the park, and its excellent band will give musical numbers. The leader of the local corps of the army, Capt. Richard Goode, will also speak.

LOAN AND BUILDING

Association League Holds Annual Meeting at Put-In-Bay.

Small Increase In Membership, Decrease In Assets Shown.

Interesting Statistics Are Shown By the Secretary's Report.

Put in Bay, Ohio, July 23.—The tenth annual meeting of the United States League of Local Building & Loan associations began here today with a good attendance. The report of Secretary Cellarius contained the following:

A slight increase in the total membership, with a small decrease in the aggregate assets, is the showing made by the Local Building & Loan associations of the United States during the past year. There are now in the United States 5,302 local Building associations, with a total membership of 1,539,593, and assets amounting to $565,387,966. In most of the states these associations have about held their own, although the reduction of the interest rate for the past few years has had a tendency to bring back money loaned out by them at higher than existing rates, and associations unable to make desirable loans have returned some of the idle accumulated funds to their stockholders, causing a decrease in their assets. Building Loan association supervisors in a number of states are agreed that the associations were not sufficiently prompt in meeting the reduced interest rate and that, as a result, they have lost some profitable business.

The situation in Illinois and Missouri has been materially improved, although these states still continue to show rather heavy decreases in assets, Illinois having declined a little over $4,000,000 and Missouri about $2,000,000 during the past year. In Ohio several large building associations reorganized as trust companies. Substantial increases in assets were made last year in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Nebraska.

The following table gives the statistics for the different states:

	Associations.	Membership.	Assets
Pennsylvania	1,163	299,536	$110,817,281
Ohio	557	160,615	105,574,396
Illinois	546	86,850	48,681,239
New Jersey	327	146,700	46,599,151
New York	278	86,042	34,996,495
Indiana	462	112,222	29,292,993
Massachusetts	128	74,271	28,674,207
California	123	40,581	17,881,576
Missouri	148	27,000	9,594,372
Michigan	62	21,787	9,288,761
Iowa	61	18,000	4,645,046
Connecticut	16	10,082	4,245,648
Nebraska	59	15,926	4,314,744
Wisconsin	50	12,975	3,462,929
Maine	34	8,973	2,985,280
Kansas	40	9,951	2,807,005
Tennessee	29	6,157	2,425,450
Minnesota	15	2,000	1,191,720
New Hampshire	16	4,000	1,883,092
North Dakota	8	2,000	828,684
Louisiana	42	20,485	5,943,208
Other states	999	271,000	95,100,000

The total expense of operating the associations was a little over $5,000,000, making an expense ratio of less than 1 per cent to assets. The receipts for 1901, including cash on hand Jan. 1, 1901, were $395,987,216, and the disbursements $368,077,226, the cash on hand Jan. 1, 1902, being $27,909,920.

President Kostmayer, in his address urged the making of efforts to increase the membership of the league, and called attention to the saving of $1,600,000 by the exemptions under the war revenue act. If the legislatures of the different states, he said could see the building and loan association in the same light as did congress, they would be convinced of the necessity of the exemption from all taxation, for, in my earnest opinion, I see no reason why the building and loan associations should pay taxes in any way, shape or form.

CADILLAC

Won Second Race of Interlake Yachting Meet.

Toledo, Ohio, July 23.—The second race of the interlake yachting meet began under the best weather conditions for years on such occasions. The course is five miles to windward and return. The start was beautiful, sixteen boats getting over the line at 9:10, ten of them within thirty seconds after the gun. The Cadillac went over first, the Detroit and Lucinda next. The first had a walkaway of the beat to windward, the Cadillac gradually increasing her lead and rounding the stake at 10:41, two minutes and twenty-two seconds ahead of the Detroit.

Both broke out spinnakers and balloon jibs and headed for home like race horses, the remainder of the fleet strung out on a split of tacks.

Cadillac won the race and the sweep cup in the 35-foot class by 10 minutes 33 seconds. Detroit had 9 seconds time allowance. The Cadillac beat Detroit by two minutes flat on 1:31 corrected time. This gives Cadillac the sail and sweep cup for the best corrected time over the windward and leeward race.

The wind held well and the finishes were close and exciting. Suitana first in 45 foot; Viking, 40 foot; Cadillac, first; Detroit, second; Eva third, in 25 foot; Minerva, first; Lucinda, second; Tatoo, third, in 21 foot class; 25-footers have not finished. Myth wins the 16 foot and Shone the 30 foot. Minerva has one heat and Glortiana, both of Detroit, on the Detroit Free Presse up.

The race tomorrow will decide the winner.

IF NOT GHOSTS, WHAT?

Professor's Mother Appeared Before Him Several Times.

Don't ridicule the man or woman who claims to have seen ghosts, for, while there may be no ghosts, one may see ghosts. May see them and talk to them, and cuddle and love them—I have done it myself, writes the Vienna correspondent of the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Ten yeas ago my mother died. We had loved each other dearly—friends called us "the parables." So fond of me was the good woman that, when I went to college, she broke up her home to follow me to the big city, keep house for me, care for me and assist me in my studies, for this was a wise and ambitious mother.

All her evenings were devoted to literary work—she burned the midnight oil to help pay for my education. When through, she usually crept in where I was sleeping, to see whether everything was right, the window open, but not too far; the little wax light aflame in the glass where a small quantity of oil floated on a larger bit of wafer.

And after arranging my linen and clothes for the morning she used to sit down by the bed and listen to my breathing. Often, when I awoke, I saw her eyes rest on my face with tender care.

Of course, when I grew to man's estate, professional duties put a stop to the idyl. Drawing away from childhood habits these pleasantries were gradually shelved and, in the end, almost forgotten.

But when mother was dead all came back to me, her kindly attentions, her acts of self-sacrifice, her enduring love. The funeral of the dear one put me to a heavy mental and physical strain, and when, late in the night, I was thoroughly exhausted and cried with grief and nervousness. As I got into bed I thought over and over again "Poor boy that I am, no mother to love and care for me! no one to cuddle me as I lay myself down to sleep."

I don't think I remained awake for any length of time. I dreamed that once more I was a student in that big, strange, university town, and that mother was walking with me in the near-by forest, of which we knew every nook and corner. The mother of those by-gone days was young and pretty and healthy, and so was the central figure of my dream. Ah, how glad I was I had found her again. She talked as usual and gave me much good advice, as mothers are wont to do.

We enjoyed each other's company for many hours—it may have been only for the infinitesimal part of a second according to dream laws, but I thought it an eternity of joy. But suddenly I was overcome by the recollection that mother was dead. I looked up to her and before I knew what I was doing said: "I thought I buried you this afternoon; was that a dream or is this?"

As I pronounced the words the good woman's face fell, the smile playing around her lips vanished, her whole aspect changed. She looked 20 years older and her face was now deadly pale.

Seeing this I awoke with a start. If my body had been plunged into ice cold water I couldn't have been more awake than I was. And there before me in the mild light of the waxen taper sat mother at the foot of the bed as she was wont to do in days gone by. And as of old those mild, big, dreamy eyes rested on me with tender attention. There was no delusion. I am positive of that. I was as completely awake as one can be, yet the spectre didn't frighten me in the least. On the contrary I liked its presence and responded to its tender gaze with eyes full of joyous tears.

"The dead," argued my mind, trained in science—"the dead don't rise, but loving remembrance often recalls them to their former sphere."

My mother's ghost, still clothed in the garb she wore in life, appeared to me twelve times all told. After her first visit I waited several months in vain, awakening at certain hours in the night to look for the dear woman. At the end of the third month she came again, repeating her visits thereafter in longer or shorter intervals.

Two years after her death I saw my mother for the last time. As on all former occasions it was night. I was speeding toward the Italian frontier in a private railway carriage. I had the cariage all to myself, for being unable to sleep on the train I never make use of the sleeping car and instead bribe the conductor to give me a whole carriage to myself.

I had stretched out on one of the upholstered benches at full length, weighing in mind some scientific problem, while my eyes were closed. When, after half an hour or so, I opened them suddenly I noticed my mother seated at my feet. The upper part of her body was bent toward me, her eyes sought mine, her attitude was that of the listener. I could distinguish every feature, for the light at the ceiling shone with unusual brightness, the train having only just started. I didn't move, but after gazing upon the beloved figure for some time closed my eyes again, thinking of her and of the many pleasant years we had spent together. To make sure that I was fully awake, though, I pressed the button of my repeating watch. 12:30 o'clock. After a while I consulted the watch again, 1:15 o'clock, and the spectre still there, immovable, mild, lifelike.

Three quarters of an hour later, by the clock, I opened my eyes a third time and there was mother as I had seen her before, in dream and life. But as I was going to make certain and arise the specter faded away never to return. My fantasy was never strong enough, thereafter, to conjure up the dear woman.

Many who read this will undoubtedly say: "He dreamed with his eyes open." I deny that I did, with all emphasis. On all the twelve occasions mentioned I was fully awake—no deception possible, upon my word as a man.

Here is another experience of my own: Michael Etienne, the great editor of the Neue Freie Presse, was dead—a wise, kindly, generous and jovial man he had been, for though strenuous and even terrible in his anger, his disposition was that of a child.

As one of his nearest friends I sat up with the body the night before the funeral until 1 o'clock in the morning, when members of the editorial staff relieved me.

The body was lying in state in a large hall appropriately draped and lighted. I sat at the foot end, gazing upon my dead friend's characteristic face, which bore the usual aspect of jovial satisfaction. Indeed, it looked as if Etienne had lain down to sleep after a hard day's work, and as if this sleep gave him no end of pleasure.

After being relieved I went to the Presse office to fetch away a roll of manuscript from Etienne's desk; his wife had asked me to do her that service.

It was 1:45 o'clock a. m. when I entered the late editor's room, holding a lighted candle in my hand, which, of course, lit up only certain portions of the vast apartment. As I walked in with care, to avoid coming in contact with furniture, I saw my friend sitting in the great fauteuil behind his writing desk that stood between two windows. He looked as life-like as ever in his best days—the type of a healthy, prosperous, good-natured, blond Teuton.

Hundreds of times I had seen him there, his ample limbs generously disposed, his head thrown back, his chest out, left hand resting on the arm of the chair, the right grabbing the inevitable blue pencil. And the good-natured smile that made so many friends for him was in evidence, too—it seemed to invite me to come nearer.

I should interpolate here that I am somewhat short-sighted. If the editor had really been in his chair I might have been physically deburred from making the minute observations above recorded. As it was, I noticed every feature, every wrinkle and line in that grand face.

I stopped in my tracks—the surprise was too much, but after a moment or two I approached fearlessly. I had had some experience, you know.

Michael continued to regard me smilingly, complacently. If this was a ghost he was of a most pleasant sort. Another step, and yet another. When I was near enough to touch the figure (if it was one) it vanished.

I think this a typical case. Remember, I had been alone with the dead for several hours and the peaceful and pleasant aspect of his face was still vivid in my mind when I entered the editorial rooms. Moreover, on my way to the Presse office I had thought only of Etienne, reflecting on the many happy hours and days and years we spent together.

These thoughts and recollections, I reckon, created the picture of the man that I saw with my physical eye.

The "how?" is a question which exact science will solve sooner or later. Certain it is that mind and brain worked in perfect unison to conjure up what I did see.

BURIED HERSELF ALIVE.

An extraordinary case of suicide is reported from Evreux, in the department of the Eure, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph. A Breton woman named Marie Morvan, aged 35, dug a grave by the side of that of her sister, and then buried herself alive. Morvan was an exemplary servant, employed by a farmer near Evreux. Recently one of her married sisters died, and on her leathbed extracted from Marie a promise. This was to the effect that the latter would faithfully marry her brother-in-law when he was left a widower. After the death of the death of the sister Marie Morvan thought of the promise. As she had no desire to wed, and no liking for her brother-in-law, the widower, she resolved to die. She would then, she considered, join her sister in the next world and make matters all right with her. The woman, it appears, lifted up the gravestone over her sister, and after she had excavated a tomb for herself brought the slab down over her. Part of Marie Morvan's dress was seen protruding from the headstone by another sister, a Madame Ledu, who went to visit the grave. Surprised, the woman called for help from people near at hand, and, the slab being raised up, Marie Morvan was found dead in the grave dug by her own hands. She was suffocated soon after the headstone had closed on her. Her hands and face were not covered by the earth, which she had managed to pile over her body.

SULTAN A HOSTAGE

For Delivery of Moros Who Attacked Americans.

Prompt Action In Mindanao Produces Results.

Manila, July 24.—Capt. John J. Pershing of the Fifteenth cavalry, who is in command of the Lanao (Mindanao) expedition, has arrested the sultan of Binadayan as a hostage for the delivery to him of the Moros who, on June 2, attacked two Americans. The sultan offered to produce the dead body of a relative of the Moro leaders and to surrender ten slaves, but Capt. Pershing refused to entertain the suggestion. The sultan then ordered his followers to produce the guilty Moros.

On Tuesday one of the guilty men was brought into camp of the Americans. He was horribly mutilated. Before dying he confessed having participated in the ambush of the Americans. Tongul, the leader of the attack, has fortified his house and defies the sultan of Binandayan's followers to capture him.

COAL MARKETS BARE

New York Anthracite Market Beginning to Resemble a Grain Corner Owing to Inability of Dealers to Get Coal.

New York, July 24.—With shipments of anthracite coal from the mining regions showing a shortage of 11,123,263 tons in three months as compared with last year, and no sign of a settlement of the strike in sight, the local market is beginning to take on the aspect of a cornered grain market.

Diligent search of points along the coast as far south as Baltimore and as far east as New London has, according to the Herald, failed to discover any additional stocks of hard coal that could be shipped to this city. Hudson river towns and places on railroad lines where coal in scattered lots was found have been exhausted as points of supply. Local yards in which some coal was held at the beginning of the strike have been stripped and the market is now absolutely bare. Dealers are no longer able to supply the immediate needs of customers, and as for New York's winter supply, they say that the resumption of work at the mines tomorrow would not enable the operators to meet the demand.

HE DUCKED NATIVES

Lieut. Hickman Admitted the Allegation Before the Courtmartial But Claimed Justification--- Believed He Was Acquitted.

Manila, July 24.—The court-martial of Lieut. Edwin A. Hickman of the First cavalry, on the charge of having ducked in a pond two natives of Tayabas because they refused to guide him to the stronghold of the insurgent leader Caballes, has been concluded after two brief sittings, and Lieut. Hickman is believed to have been acquitted.

The defense admitted all of the specifications, taking exception only to the word "unlawful," and pleaded justification under general order 100, and the conditions prevailing in Tayabas province. The defense also produced a telegraphic order from Gen. Chaffee, urging the location of Caballes, regardless of the measures necessary to do so. The desire to shift responsibility, the defense disclaimed, and said the telegram from Gen. Chaffee showed the urgent necessity for locating Caballes.

Col. Smith, who was a witness for the defense, testified that Maj. Gardener was responsible for the charges against Lieut. Hickman, and said that Maj. Gardener had sought for the testimony brought against him.

PREY OF WILD ANIMALS

Thousands of Sheep Driven Into Mountains By Deperadoes and the Sheepmen Prevented From Going After Them.

Landers, Wyo., July 24.—It is learned that in addition to killing a Mexican sheep herder named Sam Galaxca and slaughtering several thousand sheep, a band of one hundred and fifty masked men surrounded all the sheep camps and forced the sheepmen to abandon their flocks. After killing one herd numbering some two thousand sheep, twenty-five other herds amounting to about 65,000 sheep were driven into the mountains and left to shift for themselves. The sheepmen have been threatened with instant death if they go after their flocks. The sheep are now the prey of wild animals and if they escape this death the loss will be very heavy as they are nearly all ewes and lambs. The scene of the lawlessness is 115 miles west of Landers in Fremont county. The sheriff is powerless and the militiamen will be called out to protect the sheepmen.

BETTING IS NOT HEAVY

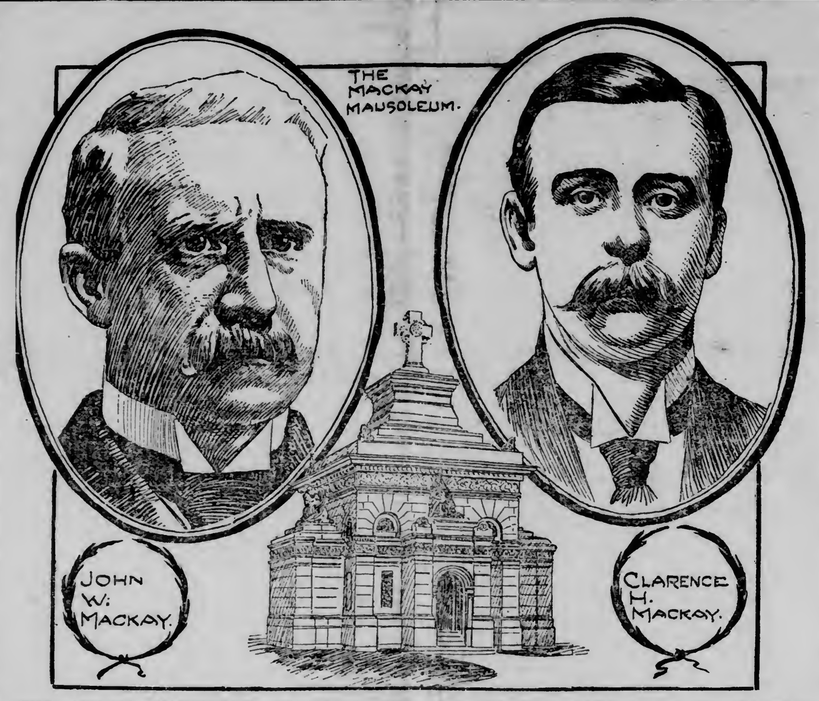

Amounts Wagered on the Heavyweight Championship Contest at San Francisco, Is Small Compared With Former Events.

San Francisco, July 24.—Sporting men from all parts of the country are arriving here on every train to witness the fight tomorrow night for the heavyweight championship. The betting has not been heavy in comparison with the amounts wagered on previous events of the kind and the odds have not fluctuated much from 10 to 4 in favor of Jeffries. Those who fancy Fitzsimmons admit that he has the disadvantage of age, but argue that he has led an exemplary life and is younger today than the average man of 40. That he is trained to the hour is beyond question. Fitzsimmons has never made such preparations for a battle. He is as fit as a man of his age can be made. This being known, the short-enders are looking upon him as a good investment. Fitz is full of confidence and wishes to be quoted as saying that he will surely win.

Jeffries will do little or no work today. He is in splendid spirits and declares that there is no possibility of his defeat.

The arena has received its canvas canopy and has been declared safe by the fire authorities and is ready for use. Nearly 100 policemen will be employed to restrain the crowd which is sure to gather around the structure while the fight is in progress.

Dr. C. W. Green, physician for the athletic club, has examined both Jeffries and Fitzsimmons and pronounced them in perfect condition physically. Eddie Garney, the referee, will enter the ring attired in a Tuxedo dress suit. He says he will order the men to break and will not go between them. He will not permit any infraction of the Queensbury rules. No one but Delahey of Dawson, representing Jeffries and Fitzsimmons will have the right to throw up the sponge. Garney will not allow either man to be disqualified by a bottle holder. If a man is knocked down, the one standing will be compelled to go to his corner or be disqualified. Garney looks for no trouble. He says both men know the rules well and will not commit a foul.

THE $300,000 MAUSOLEUM IN WHICH THE BODY OF THE LATE JOHN W. MACKAY WILL BE INTERRED.

The family mausoleum in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, in which the remains of the late "Bonanza King" John W. Mackay will be interred is said to have cost more than $300,000. It is one of the handsomest structures of its kind in the United States. It is expected that Clarence H. Mackay very soon after the funeral of his father will formally take charge of the vast business interests of the latter.

NEW SUGAR COMPANY.

Information Concerning Plans of Spreckles Industry.

San Francisco, July 24.—Col. George A. MacFarlane, of Honolulu, last night gave information about the plans of the Federal Sugar company, recently formed with $50,000,000, and C. A. Spreckels, youngest son of the sugar magnate, as president. Mr. MacFarlane says that by a secret process, invented by Spreckels, the cost of refining will be greatly reduced.

"Spreckles," said MacFarlane, "can refine sugar at less than $1 per ton. He will establish refineries in all the big cities, from Philadelphia to San Francisco, and in Honolulu. His plan is also to unite with the sugar beet growers of the West."

RAPID PROGRESS

Being Made on New Road Into Mexico.

Laredo, Tex., July 24.—A special from Chihuahua, Mexico, says: The construction work on the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad is being steadily continued at three distinct points in the republic of Mexico. The track from Chihuahua east has reached a point on the river opposite the town of Aldama, and as soon as the bridge is in order trains will be running to that place.

Contractors are now working on the second fifty kilometers from Chihuahua east, and according to the terms of the contract, must complete the work and deliver the same to the company by Oct. 1, of this year. The company hopes to have trains running from this city to a point 100 kilometers east by Oct. 15, of this year.

NO DELAY

In Purchasing Shares For Steamship Combine.

London, July 24.—J. S. Morgan & Co., the London branch of J. P. Morgan & Co., when asked concerning published statements that the completion of the purchase of shares in steamship companies by the shipping combine had been delayed, said to a representative of the Associated Press: There is no delay in the payment for shares. The contracts with all the companies concerned, sealed and delivered, give us until Dec. 31 to complete payment. We do not propose to act inside this limit.

GOLF AT MILWAUKEE.

A Three Day's Tournament Has Opened There.

Milwaukee, July 24.—A three days' golf tournament under the auspices of the Wisconsin Golf association began in this city this forenoon on the Country club links. Five trophies have been hung up to be awarded as follows: First, state championship cup. Second, consolation cup. Third, cup for best score in qualifying round. Fourth, runners up cup in championship event. Fifth, runners up cup in consolation event.

Entries include Milwaukee County club; Kenosha Country club, Racine Golf club, Shinisippi club, of Janesville, Algoma club, of Oshkosh, Maple Bluff club, of Madison, Riverside Golf club, of Appleton, and Tuscumbia Golf club, of Green Lake.

Today's play was in the qualifying round of eighteen holes, play having started at 9 o'clock. Fifty-one players entered for the tournament, thirty-two of whom will qualify. Society turned out in large numbers to witness the sport.

PROGRESS OF KING.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, July 24.—An official bulletin issued today on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, says: "The king continues to make uninterrupted progress. Although his majesty is not yet able to leave his couch, his strength is returning satisfactorily."

MAY SEE BOOKS.

New York, July 24.—Justice Ernst Hall, in the supreme court today, decided that Arthur J. Singer, representing the firm of Harris, Gates & Co., may see the transfer books, the stock books, the stock ledger and any other books or papers of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company in the possession of the Knickerbocker Trust company, the Atlantic Trust company and Charles E. Phelps, the assistant secretary and treasurer of the company.

POLICE NON-PLUSSED

Have a Well Dressed Man at Stillwater For Stealing and Do Not Know Whether He Is a Crook or Gentleman.

Stillwater, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I am the fellow you want," said a well dressed stranger to Capt. Barnes of the local police department on an interurban car at 11 o'clock last night. The captain had just requested the stranger to alight and enter the car barn, where he might be privately searched for money stolen but a short time before from the safe of the Scott Drug company.

The man then reached into his pocket and drew out several bills, some gold pieces and a little change, amounting in all to $100, the amount stolen, which he handed to Capt. Barnes, and then accompanied the officer to the city jail, where he was locked up. He refused to give his name or tell where he lives but it is thought that his home is St. Paul or Minneapolis.

The police are nonplussed, and are undecided whether their prisoner is a clever crook or a respectable man in reduced circumstances, and who took desperate means to secure money. He is between 28 and 30 years old, and his neat address would indicate that he is not a profesisonal thief.

VIOLATED INJUNCTION

All the Defendants In the "Mother" Jones Contempt Case Found Guilty and a Portion Received Their Sentences.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 24.—Judge Jackson rendered his decision in the "Mother" Jones contempt case this morning. It reviewed the evidence carefully. The conclusion reached was that all the defendants had violated the injunction and were guilty of contempt of court. Sentence in the case of "Mother" Jones was postponed until 3 p. m. in the case of the four foreigners who cannot speak English sentence was postponed until the arrival of their interpreter at noon. Thomas Hagerty was given ninety days in jail and the other five defendants sixty days each. The opinion supported the right of the courts to use the injunction and the right of laborers to work when they wish to do so without interferences from organized labor.

RECEIVED BY THE POPE

Two Hundred Americans Are Greeted By the Pontiff In Clementine Hall Who Spoke With Each Visitor.

Rome, July 24.—The pope received the American pilgrims, headed by the Very Rev. E. H. Porcile, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a number of other American tourists in Clementine hall at noon today. The party aggregated 200 persons.

When the pontiff appeared, preceded by Bishop Thomas O'Gorman, of Sioux Falls, S. D., and Bishop John Shanley, of Fargo, N. D., he was greeted with hearty cheers and was carried about the hall in a sedan chair, speaking to each visitor. As he was introduced to the Rev. Thomas F. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, rector of the American college, assisted by Fathers Porcile and McGirane, Professor Peck, of Yale, addressed the pope in Latin, saying: "May you also be blessed by God himself." The pilgrims presented the pope with $1000.

Before leaving the pope stood in the center of the hall and bestowed the apostolic benediction on the pilgrims. The majority of those present were profoundly moved and many of the women wept. The pontiff retired amid cries of "Long live Leo, God bless the old man."

CAPT. STRONG IS IN ENGLAND

New York, July 24.—A special dispatch from London to an afternoon paper says that Putnam Bradlee Strong arrived at Southampton today on the St. Paul, sailing under an assumed name. In an interview he acknowledged his identity and denied positively the charge that he pawned May Yohe's jewels. May Yohe, who was formerly the wife of Lord Francis Hope, sailed for Europe today on the Fuerst Bismarck.

BEAVERS BUILD LONG DAM

Itasca Lake, Minn., July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Lind builded well when, as governor of the state, he directed the transportation of a family of beaver from Canada to the State park at Itasca Lake. Professor Thomas S. Roberts, of Minneapolis, ornithologist of the natural history survey of Minnesota, while exploring Nicollet's Island Mississippi river, above the west arm, recently discovered two fresh beaver dams across the stream, one of which is 175 feet in length, just below Nicollet's middle lake, at the source of the Mississippi.

BASIS OF HARMONY

Discussed By W. J. Bryan at Democratic Dinner.

Views of Senator Carmack and Edwin M. Shepard.

Nantasket, Mass., July 24.—In a great tent on the shore of Massachusetts bay, for hours today a throng of men and not a few women listened to distinguished orators from various parts of the United States, as they delivered addresses upon the principal political issues of the day from the Democratic point of view. The speech-making followed a banquet, the first to be given by the recently organized New England Democratic league, in the Rockland hotel, at which about 300 were present. The entire program was intended to give the league, the membership of which embraces many of the leading Democrats of New England, a fitting introduction to the public. To this end the list of speakers was made as notable as possible and the league was able to present Hon. P. A. Collins, mayor of Boston, as presiding officer, and William J. Bryan, Edward M. Shepard, of New York, and Senator E. W. Carmack, of Tennessee, to make addresses. Senator J. W. Bailey of Texas was expected to attend, but he sent a letter instead.

From the first the committee tried to keep constantly before the interested the fact that the league did not propose to boom any candidate for the presidency.

To quote Secretary Henry F. Hollis: "The New England league is simply organized to harmonize all Democrats and to conduct the congressional campaign in every one of the New England states. We expect to elect a Democrat in ex-Speaker Reed's district in Maine, and also to get one district in Rhode Island. There will be no issue of silver or gold."

The hour scheduled for the banquet was 1 o'clock, and it was planned that the public exercises should begin an hour later. The distinguished guests did no treach Boston until this forenoon.

For an hour or more following breakfast Mr. Bryan was "at home" to a few friends at the hotel. There was no public reception. At 10 o'clock Mr. Bryan went to Tremont temple to address the Newsboys' Protective association. The other members of the party occupied the time in various ways, and shortly after 11 o'clock, under escort of the committee, the visitors went to the steamboat wharf to embark for Nantasket. On arrival there the party proceeded at once to the Rockland house.

At the opening meeting the following letter was read from Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas:

Gainesville, Texas., July 19, 1902.—Mr. Henry Hollis, Concord, N. H. My Dear Mr. Hollis,—I sincerely regret that it will not be possible for me to attend the banquet to be given by the New England Democratic league at Boston on the 24th inst. Though I cannot be with you I sincerely hope the occasion will be successful as its promoters could wish. The Democrats of New England have always been loyal to the great and fundamental principles of the Democratic party; and in spite of our recent differences with them over some economic questions, I am delighted to find that they earnestly desire to bring about a harmony that will in turn bring success to our party. Without yielding any of my convictions upon disputed questions, I am ready to welcome every Democrat back into active party service and I only demand of them that they will bow to the will of the majority and support the nominees of our next national convention. All Democrats agree with each other upon the main and permanent questions of our government and they ought to be willing to submit their differences over issues, however important, to the assembled wisdom of our praty, and abide by the decision when fairly reached. Upon no other basis can any organization be maintained and there is no organization to which this best can be so easily applied as the Democratic party. A Democrat's party affiliation ought to be determined upon what we

MARCHING ON THE CITY

Sympathizers of M. Firmin Are Approaching Cape Haytien on Three Sides and an Attack Is Expected Soon.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, July 24.—The army from the department of Artibonite and from the districts in sympathy with M. Firmin, who has been declared president by the Artibonites, is marching on Cape Haytien from three sides. Gen. Albert Salnave has arrived at Plaizance. Gen. Emile Gaspard has reached Dondon, and Gen. Thesse Monfiston is moving on St. Raphael and Trou. Gen. Alexis Nord, the minister of war of the provisional government, it is said, contemplates leaving Cape Haytien shortly in order to take charge of the troops relied upon to defend the capital, Port Au Prince. The population here is in a state of uneasiness, believing that the town will shortly be attacked by the Firminists. No news has been received here regarding the movements of the warship Crete-a-Pierret, but it is feared that she may appear off this port and land troops to support M. Firmin's forces. There are no foreign warships here.

CAUGHT TOO MANY MICROBES

New York, July 24.—The first attempts by the commissioner of street cleaning to photograph the microbes inhabiting the air in various sections of the city, in order to remove their cause, have come to naught for a peculiar reason. The gelatine plates exposed at different points were taken to the laboratories after an hour in the open air, and preparations made to propagate the microbe life. To the surprise of the experimenters, the microbes, it was found, had gathered in such numbers as to present an indistinguishable mass which it was impossible to disintegrate. Fresh plates were procured and the time of exposure was reduced one-half.

TRACY APPROACHING SALEM

Salem, Ore., July 24.—A Statesman special from Woodburn says that Frank Pickens, a young man, living in the outskirts of town, met a heavily armed bicycle rider whom he thought was Tracy, the outlaw, who asked the direction and distance to Salem. After securing the information desired, the stranger rode on in the direction of Salem. Eighty rods behind the first came another wheelman, also heavily armed, and apparently following the first. Pickens at once hastened to town and notified the authorities. At Hubbard the men were seen half an hour earlier. There they were heavily armed.

Salem, Ore., July 24.—The prison authorities were at once notified, and Superintendent Lee of the prison immediately placed extra guards on the wall and sent out a full force to surround the prison yard in order to prevent any raid on the wall guards.

LIGHTNING'S DEADLY WORK

Indianapolis, July 24.—A severe electrical storm passed north of the city last night instantly killing one man, fatally injuring a boy and destroying a number of barns, a church and causing other damage. Dead:

ELEASOR WILSON, a farmer.

Fatally injured: Thomas McGehee, the 4-year-old step son of Wilson. The storm did not last more than half an hour. It began with violent thunder and flashes of lightning in every direction. Wilson and his son were struck by lightning near Carmel.

ONESHOT, THE OTHER HANGED

Philippi, W. Va., July 24.—Two negroes whose names were unknown were lynched at Womelsdorf near here last night by an angry mob numbering several hundred. The first black man was shot and killed in the station house, the second was taken to the park, where he was hanged, then riddled with bullets and cut to pieces. Both whites and negroes are enraged and in arms. More trouble is hourly expected. The trouble grows out of the murder of Chief Bud Wilmath on July 8.

FUN AHEAD.

Lakeside and Lester Park Married Men to Play Ball.

These are piping days for the residents of Lakeside and Lester Park. Again the people of the charming suburbs are excited, and it is not over the street cars either.

Instead, it is a baseball game, scheduled for Saturday afternoon that is causing no little worry and loss of sleep to the male portion of the community. The married men of Lakeside will battle with the married men of Lester Park and one of the warmest games of the season is looked for. It is the topic on every one's lips. Tracy has fallen into obscurity as a good subject for street car oratory since the ball game was announced and the latest news daily. The teams meet for the first time Saturday and there are all sorts of wagers being made as to the result. Rooters will turn out in such numbers as never before honored an exhibition of the national game in Duluth.

The Lester Park management has not given out the names of its players and expect to spring a few surprises. Frank Crassweller will be found in his old position at the third corner when the Lakeside men are in the field and Charlie West will cover short field. Judge of Probate Bonham may umpire the contest if sufficient police protection is added to his official dignity.

FOR A PARK.

East End Resident Would Acquire Park on Lake Front.

Residents of the East End will make a concerted effort to secure the tract of land between Eighth and Thirteenth avenues east on the lake shore, for a public park.

The land, consisting of five and a half acres, is owned by the Northern Pacific railway, but it is thought that as it is being put to no use, an arrangement could be made whereby the city could use it for park purposes until such a time as the railway company desires to occupy it.

The East Enders will probably appear before the park board at its next meeting to ascertain if an arrangement of the kind outlined cannot be made.

REEVES CONFESSES

That He Killed Wife and Two Others.

Atoka, I. T., July 24.—James Reeves has surrendered to the police here, explaining that it was he who killed his wife here several days ago; also her mother, Mrs. Grant, and John Knuckles.

Reeves said that he had lived happily with his wife until the coming of Knuckles into their life, about two months ago. Since that time his wife had treated him with indifference. This enraged him, especially since Mrs. Reeves' parents seemed to favor Knuckles.

HAVING TROUBLES

Railroad Contractors Find Difficulty In Keeping Laborers.

Go West on Free Fares and Then Desert the Work.

Duluth Railroad Man Comments on Chicago Labor Board Idea.

Contractors who are building railroads and railroad extensions out in the western country say they are having such a terrible time getting and keeping laborers that the troubles of the logger, who is given to complaining about the vagaries of the lumberjack, are nothing compared to his.

The main cause is the harvest fields, which have a decided attraction for the majority of workers. The trouble with the western contractors is that they have to get their men through the wheat country, and this they find a most difficult thing to do. By ones, by twos, by dozens, they drop off the trains at convenient points and make for the harvest fields, leaving the contractor to swear when the mangled remains of his party line up at the other end of the route. They are hiring men in Duluth and Minneapolis, and in some cases giving them free fare as an inducement. The laborers find that this free fare beats the $5 Dakota rate all to pieces, and while they are hiring out to the railroad men freely enough, they refuse to stay hired. One Minneapolis man is reported to have shipped 100 men from Minneapolis Monday night, giving them all free fare to Aberdeen, where he was building a Milwaukee extension to connect with the Northern Pacific. Just twelve of them landed at the camp. The rest slipped off the train and made for the harvest fields. Tuesday night he tried seventy-five more men, and twenty-three of them reached Aberdeen.

LABOR BOARD IDEA.

Chicago General Managers Are Considering It.

General managers of railroads centering in Chicago are planning to do away with the inconvenience and losses of strikes. They are considering the advisability of establishing a general labor board, whose individual members will be empowered to act for the railroads they represent. If this goes through an attempt will also be made to have the labor unions organize a similar board to treat with the railway board on grievances. The idea is, of course, that practically all of the difficulties and disputes that give rise to strikes could be arbitrated by this board, and that if it was once successfully established the day of friction between the railroads and their men would pass away.

"The plan may be feasible all right," said a Duluth railroad man this morning, "and it would be a great thing if it could be worked. The best way I can think of to avoid strikes, however, is for the officers of the roads to get on the same terms with their men that J. L. Greatsinger used to be in Duluth and that Capt. John Pangilly now is at Ely. There are other examples, but these are conspicuous. They are close to their men and neither of them could have or would have a strike in this county. Of course that is not quite so easy to work on a great system, but even there it could help a lot."

Terminal Tariff Scrap.

The dispute between the state railroad and warehouse commission and Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads over the restoration of terminal tariffs to St. Cloud, Crookston and Fergus Falls will come before the district court in St. Paul next month, according to an agreement just made by the parties. The case will be appealed from the supreme court for final adjudication in October. The terminal tariffs were granted these towns three years ago and discontinued last spring, and the commission began proceedings against the two coast roads to compel them to restore the rates.

Railroad Notes.

There will be no cheap excursions for the present from the West to New York and coast resorts. The result of the meeting of the Central Passenger Association called in Chicago to act upon the matter was the cancellation of the cheap round trip rates that had been announced for July and August, so Duluth people who expect to visit New York will have to pay full fare.

L. A. Noll has been made chief clerk to Superintendent W. Kreitter, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, succeeding E. E. Ziegler, resigned.

UNIVERSITY

Extension Work Defended By President Harper.

Chicago, July 24.—In a chapel address before the summer students of the University of Chicago, President Harper has said that in university extension work, the universities had the greatest opportunities for usefulness to the people. It was the field of work, he said, which distinguished the modern university from the schools of the middle ages.

"University extension lectures and classes are not conducted as some of our friends have kindly—or unkindly—said, for the purpose of advertising," he began. "The aim and function of the work is to develop in each town or village reached a center of higher learning, to band together those who have student sympathies, and who, themselves, do not go to college; also, those who believe that education does not stop when we leave school."

AT WEST DULUTH

Arrangements have been completed by the St. Louis Lumber company to start up its sawmill plant next Wednesday morning. The mill has been closed down for the past several weeks on account of a scarcity of logs, but it is understood that enough new contracts have been secured to insure a steady run for the rest of the season, and for the winter. The mill will be operated by a day shift only.

One of the large contracts that the St. Louis company is said to have cancelled recently was that of the cut for the Red Cliff Lumber company, which has purchased a mill and will do its own sawing. It was supposed that the loss of this contract would curtail the cut of the St. Louis mill, but it is reported from reliable sources that there will be plenty of logs to keep the mill running for the period intended. The management is notifying the men formerly employed at the mill to show up ready for work Wednesday morning.

The other West Duluth mills are operating steadily day and night and with a plentiful supply of logs now coming by rafts the outlook is excellent for a busy sawing season this fall and up to the freeze the coming winter.

SELLING THE STAKES.

"The question is not in getting the orders, but in getting the stakes to fill the orders," said John Cashin, of the Duluth Safety Car Stake company. Mr. Cashin has just returned from a business trip to St. Paul in the interests of the company, a larger part of the new orders being filled from the malleable iron works in that city. Mr. Cashin says that the demand is so urgent in some cases that a few of the orders have been filled at the local malleable iron plants, and the company would be glad to give the whole business to local concerns were there any that could take it. The car stake company has begun equipping 180 cars on the Alger-Smith logging road with the patent stakes.

BADLY MIXED.

A Cloquet couple, who drove down yesterday to see the Wild West show, went through a very unpleasant experience last evening, and where their experience might make them the subject of ridicule by their friends, have withheld their names. After the exhibition last evening they started from West Duluth for their home, and lost the way, finally arriving at Pond du Lac several hours later. Taking a fresh start the best they could do was to reach West Duluth again, where they gave up and staid until this morning. The young man was quite sure he could find the road to Cloquet by daylight.

NOT ENTIRELY PLEASED.

West Duluth longshoremen, until they hear the report of the delegation at the convention of the union in the East, are inclined to think that a mistake has been made in placing too much power in the hands of President J. C. Keefe. The men believe that control by the executive committee was a safer course.

CHARGES LARCENY.

J. W. Thompson has sworn out a warrant charging Selma Thompson, his wife, with petty larceny. Thompson says that family relations were severed yesterday and that Mrs. Thompson left, being given $300 of their mutual savings. He claims she took, without his permission, valuable papers, including a mortgage. The husband charges that she tried to draw from his bank deposit yesterday, but he stopped action by warning the bank officials. The couple have six children.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

An outing at Spirit lake has been planned to commence next Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brotherton, Mr. and Mrs. George Method, S. S. Murphy and Miss Nellie Murphy.

Mrs. A. J. Lindquist has returned to her home in Minneapolis, after a visit with her sister, Mrs. Charles Silber, of Cody street.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Parsons are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. L. Simmons, of Cloquet.

Mrs. John McKinnon, of Gosnold street, is reported quite sick.

Miss Vera Rockwell is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Patterson. This afternoon Mrs. Patterson is giving her Sunday school class a picnic at Fairmount park. The young people were given a ride out to the park in Mr. Patterson's big prairie schooner, where they will have lunch and a good time.

P. Haley was down yesterday from the range, where he has a contract with the Great Northern company for a railroad bridge.

Benjamin Valley came down from the range this morning to visit his brother, Joseph Valley.

A. H. Ruth, traveling representative of the G. W. Jones Lumber company, of Appleton, Wis., was a business caller here and at New Duluth today.

Mrs. E. Swanson and family wish to express their heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who extended so many kindnesses to their husband and father, Emanuel Swanson, in his long illness, and for the sympathy shown to them in their bereavement, and for the beautiful floral tributes sent.

have been pleased to call the fundamental principles of the government and surely it ought to be easy for men who agree upon those principles to subordinate their difference upon issues of a day or of a decade, and act cordially and harmoniously together. Trusting that your banquet may serve to impress this truth upon the minds of Democrats in every part of the Union, I am, Very Respectfully Yours,

J. W. BAILEY.

First on the list of speakers was Edwin M. Shepard, of New York.

Mr. Shepard said in part: "It is good for us to affirm the large underlying creed upon which we agree, whatever may be our differences in its application. It is general for us, it is usual for the country, to affirm our agreement upon those questions of national policy which in this present year, 1902, are ripe for practical and present decision by the American people. Nor do we need in doing this, to deny or defend or perhaps even regret the differences of past opinion whether among leaders of our party or among us of the rank and file. Democrats patriotic and intelligent, have since, American party life began, differed and differed widely upon practical and present applications of a party creed to which all were devoted. Nor will such differences end, while party life continues sound and useful."

After alluding to issues on which the Democratic party had differed and become reconciled in past years, Mr. Shepard continued: "Now, the later differences over the extent to which silver may be coined at the mints or over the treaty with Spain or over military operations in the Philippines, must not and shall not prevent a genuine and triumphant cooperation of Democrats upon the questions practically pressing for popular determination at the polls. May we not renew the wise and righteous conciliations practiced by Democrats of other generations.

"Two years ago the costly prosecution of our war of conquest in the Philippines made a present and practical question—the use we shall make of the American sovereignty which our military power has established in those tropical islands of the east. If, upon the question which is now practically open before the American people which is treated as open by the Republican president and in large part by the Republican party, the Democratic party should resort to a timid silence, it would, I believe, invite contempt even from those who, for what they deem to be a great prospect of success would have the party stifle its deep and long-time convictions."

We have the best evidence that the measure of justice to Cuba, which even the Republican president could not deny our obligation to grant was defeated not by any recalcitrant minority of the Republican party, but by the opposition of the Republican leaders when faced by the tariff bill which Democratic votes sent to the senate from the house. That if justice to Cuba were done, the tariff question would be opened wide. It would, they feared, precipitate the question of justice to the great masses of the people of our own country, but depriving of special tariff previous, the vast money getting combinations, by which the Republican party is so largely supported. The American people are today thoroughly ready to deprive the great monopolistic interests of the country of the special tariff privileges which they enoy. If the Democratic party in selecting its issue defer it as it is bound to do to the popular will, it has no choice. The issue of tariff reform is irrevocably at the forefront.

Following Mr. Shepard was an address by Senator Carmack.

Senator Carmack opened with a tribute to the Democracy of New England, who he said "through all these years have dauntlessly faced the brutal Republican majorities that exist and persist in this section of the country and who, like one of old, have always risen with new courage and strength from regular biennial contact with the earth.

After dwelling at considerable length upon the alleged departure of the Republican party of today from landmarks set by its founders, Senator Carmack asserted that the concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few menthreatened the sucession of the republic by "a despotism of force and corruption, operating for a time within the hollow form of a republic until at last even the form shall perish with the reality of freedom."

Adverting to what he termed President Roosevelt's crusade against monopoly and plutocracy he predicted that "when that distinguished statesman comes to understand, as he doubtless will, that the Republican party has enthroned the trusts and made plutocracy supreme in the United States he will prove a powerful and effective ally for the Democratic party."

"The president," continued the speaker, "is now engaged in a terrific illgual assault upon the trusts. He demands that there shall be more and stronger laws to curb the power. I have always understood it to be the duty of the president to advise congress by message of such legislation as he thinks will promote the general welfare. But he waits until congress has adjourned and then tells the people that he intends to have enacted by some other congress at some other time. If," the speaker said further, "you wish to deal effectively with monopoly, if you want to suppress the trusts, you must put a party in power that means to do it. We know that the Republican party will not ever do this.

The speaker censured the military administration in the Philippines for cruelties inflicted upon non-combatants and for the employment of Macabebes.

"If we would perpetuate this republic, we must perpetuate those high purposes that gave it life and are the very breath of its nostrils. If we would resist the forces of disorder we must preserve, intact and unbroken, the walls which the fathers reared and stand by the citadel of the constitution as by the ark of the covenant of the living God."

The Hon. William J. Bryan responded to the toast, "The Basis of Harmony." He said:

"In view of the numerous harmony dinners, and the discord they have created, it may not be out of place to consider the basis of harmony. The word 'harmony' is euphonious, and the idea which it conveys is a delightful one. Harmony! How it soothes the ear and calls up visions of peace and love and joy. Harmony, whether among the heavenly bodies, whose movements make the music of the spheres or among the bodies terrestrial with their conflicting interests and varying moods, who can resist its claims or dispute its sway. Harmony is but a synonym for order, and is not the result of chance, but a product of inexorable law. The musician must learn the scale and properly arrange the notes or harmony, no matter how earnestly wooed, can never be won.

Harmony in government is likewise the result of fixed and unchangeable rules. Jefferson states two of these rules—namely, absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority and frequent elections—the second aids the first by giving hope of a remedy from present ills, however grievous. If he were living today his observation would probably suggest a third rule, namely, the ascertainment of the will of the methods so direct, so fair and so honest that the minority cannot doubt that that will has been actually expressed.

Jefferson also laid down the rules by which, and by which alone, real harmony can be secured within a party. I say real harmony for that harmony cannot be considered worthy of the name which, like the harmony temporarily existing between the confidence man and his victim, is purposely employed for deception and injury.

The great founder of the Democratic party, whose profound philosophy sounded all the depths of human nature and measured the height and breadth of human government, not long before the end of his eventful life, said in a letter to Mr. Lee that there were but two permanent parties, the aristocratic and the democratic; that these two parties existed in every country, and that when there was freedom to think, speak and write, these parties would become apparent. With the aristocratic party he classed those who fear and distrust the people and wish to draw all power from them into the hands of the higher classes. With the democratic party he classed those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, though not the most wise, depository of the public interests." Every well informed student of history will recognize this distinction. In every community you can draw a line separating the aristocrat from the democrat. It will not be a perpendicular line, nor will it be a horizontal one; it will not separate those of illustrious lineage from those of humble birth; it will not separate the rich from the poor; it will not separate the educated from the uneducated; it will not be along lines of vocation or occupation; but it will separate those with the tastes, spirit, assumption and traditions of the aristocracy, from those who believe in a government of the aristocracy, from those who believe in a government controlled by the people and for the people and favor political and legal equality.

Jefferson was born of refined and well-to-do parents; he was even rich for one of that period, and he was educated far above the most of his associates; he was a lawyer and his social connections were favorable to aristocratic ideas, but he was a Democrat. He believed in the brotherhood of man; he asked for no privileges that could not be granted to all; he claimed no rights that they did not enjoy, and he sought for himself no governmental care that he did not demand for others. He believed in the rule of the people, in their capacity for self-government and in their right to the control of their own affairs. He did not doubt that they would make mistakes, but he knew that they would bear punishment for their own mistakes with more complacency than they would endure punishment for the mistakes of others, and he was certain that their errors would be unintentional ones. He knew that, as they found no profit by bad laws, they would strive to correct them and would profit by experience. He was a friend of everything that helped the people, and the unrelenting foe of everything that injured them. He was identified with the masses, and considered that insofar as by inheritance or by his own efforts he possessed any advantage over others he held that advantage as a trustee for those less fortunate. The people loved him because he first loved them. He organized a party that has lived for more than a century, and he so impressed his ideas upon the party that no defeat, however overwhelming, has been able to crush its spirit or disintegrate it.

There can always be harmony among Democrats who have the purpose that Jefferson had and are willing to employ the methods that Jefferson employed. There can always be harmony among Democrats who believe in a government of the people and are willing that all the departments of the government shall be operated by the people and for the benefit of the people. Difference of opinion can be reconciled; differences of purpose cannot. Between one who is at heart an aristocrat and one who is in reality a Democrat there is a great gulf fixed. And, it may be added, among the aristocrats there will be found the same division that exists among the beasts of prey—some have the courage of the lion, and others the cunning and treachery of the fox, but they can hunt together if for no object but spoil, whether it be avowed or concealed. Between those really Democratic in purpose there can be no personal or permanent alienation, because having no interested motives they are open to arguments and amenable to reason; being honest in purpose, they have confidence in the triumph of their cause, and are content to employ honest methods. They will neither conspire against others nor against each other. If they make mistakes in judgment, as all are liable to do, they are not only willing, but anxious to correct their mistakes. In politics, as in religion, there is an essential difference between a doubt of the head and a doubt of the heart.

It is impossible to secure harmony between people of opposite sympathies and it is a difficult thing to change a man's sympathies; it requires a political regeneration to make a Democrat out of an aristocrat. It is a much easier task to show a man that the principles he has been advocating and the policies which he has been supporting are aristocratic in their present effect or in their tendencies. The Republican party of today is aristocratic in its policies and tendencies for it is controlled by a few in the interest of a few, but there are many Republicans who remain with their party only because they do not understand the change which has taken place in that party within the last few years, and the consideration of the trust question. The leaders of the party show their lack of vital faith in the doctrine of self-government by their unwillingness to take the people of the country When the policy of a party is controlled by its voters, then the party stands for the will of the majority, but when the party is dominated by a small minority then the organization stands not for the will of the majority, but for the will of those who dominate it. There can be no doubt of the democratic instincts of a large majority of the members of the Republican party, but that party today is so controlled by organized wealth that the rank and file of the party are not consulted about the policies nor are the interests of the rank and file considered by the leaders. With the exception of the tariff question the Republican party has not in recent years honestly submitted a single important issue to the arbitrament of the ballot, or even to the judgment of the members of its own party. It has written ambiguous platforms and forced its policies through congress after elections. In 1896 it used a promise of international bimetallism to conceal its real purpose to fasten the gold standard on the country. In 1900 it practiced the same deception on imperialism and on the trust question. Even within a month it has refused to announce its purpose regard to the Philippines, and has put off until after November and the consideration of the trust question. The leaders of the party show their lack of vital faith in the doctrine of self-government by their unwillingness to take the people of the country, or even the voters of their own party, into their confidence. The hope of the Democratic party lies in bringing this fact to the knowledge of those who have been in the habit of voting the Republican ticket. One aristocratic party in the country is enough. Democratic success must be won, not by imitating the Republican party, but by exposing Macchiavelism in the Democratic party aristocrats, but by convincing the people that it is really democratic and can be trusted to defend democratic ideas and to cultivate democratic ideals. As there are many in the Republican party who has adhered to the party notwithstanding the change that the organization has undergone, so, there are some who call themselves Democrats who have themselves undergone a change which has alienated them from the Democratic party, or from any party worthy of the name.

To attempt to patch up an apparent harmony between those who are not in sympathy with Democratic purposes is not only a waste of time, but would prove disastrous. The men who deserted the party in 1896 may be divided into two classes. Those who left because they understood the issue presented and those who left because they did not understand the real nature of the contest. Until the former are completely changed in their sympathies they cannot return to the party without injuring it. The latter will be reconciled to the party when they themselves become aware of the real character of the life and death struggle now being waged between plutocracy and democracy. I say plutocracy because the aristocracy of today is one of wealth rather than of birth, and it includes not only those who have been alienated from the common people by the possession of great wealth, but those who, although without wealth, pander to it and measure all things by a money standard. Organized wealth has become so potent in governmental affairs that some even now despair of applying any effective remedy. But such underestimate the patriotism of the people and the strength of the public conscience. The people have a remedy within their power, namely the ballot, and with it they can and will right every wrong and remedy every grievance.

The Democratic party must have a controling purpose, unchanged by victory or defeat; it must stand for that purpose at all times and everywhere, unmoved by threats of disaster and uninfluenced by promise of temporary gain. It must have a character, for character is as essential in a party as it is in an individual. No one will trust an unstable man or one so without principle that his position upon any moral question cannot be guessed in advance. Neither will the people trust a party that is willing to write into its platform today anything that promises to catch a few votes, or strike out of its platform tomorrow anything that will alienate a few votes. Even if it desired to do so our party could not compete with the Republican party in the use of money in campaigns or in the deception or coercion of voters, because large campaign funds can only be secured in return for the promise of favoritism, and our party must have principles and proclaim them; it must stand by them and defend them, relying upon its faith in the righteousness of those principles and upon its faith in the intelligence and patriotism of the people.

The struggle between human rights on the one side and greed on the other is an unending one. Our party must take part in the struggle, but that struggle cannot be permanently settled by this generation or by any future one. As the children of Israel, wandering in the wilderness, could not store bread for the morrow, but were compelled to gather manna each day, so the citizen finds it impossible to rest upon the achievements of yesterday, or to frame a government that will run itself. He must labor today, tomorrow and while life lasts if he would be secure. He must meet each new problem and examine each new proposition that is submitted to the people, but in doing so he will employ the same purposes and apply the same general rules. He cannot tell what temptations he may have or of what immediate gain he may have the promise if he will but surrender his manhood, but he knows, if he is an upright man, that he will endeavor to resist every temptation, and he will determine to forgo every advantage that requires a surrender of his manhood.

So with our party. We cannot tell what issues we may have to meet; we can only determine to meet them in a Democratic spirit, to apply to them Democratic principles and to take the people's side always. In 1892 the paramount issue was tariff reform and the Democratic party boldly asserted its demand for a tariff for revenue only. It fought the campaign and won out, but its majority was so narrow that a few senators, disloyal to the party on this subject, defeated the verdict of the people rendered at the polls. But the failure of the party to do all that it promised would not have been so disastrous but for the fact that the Wilson bill, unsatisfactory as it was to tariff reformers, had to bear the sins of a Republican financial system which was supported by our administration against the protest of an overwhelming majority of the voters of the party. The defeat of 1894 was more disastrous than any that the party has experienced since, and it was due to the fact that the administration deserted the people on the money question. In 1896 the money question had forced to the front, made paramount not by the action of the majority of the Democratic party, but by the attempt of a minority of the party to add the Republican party to chain the country to an appreciating dollar. Without abandoning its position on the tariff question the party met this issue and took the side of the people. In spite of the desertion of many formerly conspicuous in its councils, the Democratic party polled 1,000,000 more votes than it had ever polled before, and would have had a majority but for the indefensible methods of the Republican party, whose leaders held all the protectionist Republicans by declaring the tariff issue to be paramount, mollified the wrath of most of the free silver Republicans by promising international bimetallism, and won all the advocates of the gold standard by revealing to them the secret purpose of the party to adopt a European system. But even then we would have won but for the fact that borrowers were coerced and employed intimidated.

In 1900 the action of the Republican party in turning the war commenced for humanity into a war of conquest compelled the consideration of another question—a question so far-reaching in its consequences that our party rightfully declared it to be the paramount issue. Without abandoning its position on the tariff question or on the money question it again espoused the people's side of a great issue. That it did not win that year was due to a conjunction of causes any one of which would have been sufficient to have accomplished defeat. The administration having carried on a brief and successful war, fell heir to the enthusiasm which usually attends a victorious conflict; an unexpected increase in the supply of new gold and an unexpected influx of European gold, due to large crops here and a famine abroad, increased prices, relieved the stress of hard times and gave to the people the benefits that always flow from a growing volume of money. While both advantages which followed a larger volume of money vindicated the principles contended for by bimetallists they were appropriated by the party in power, and those who were influenced by conditions, without attempting to realize the conditions, gave the Republican party credit for an increasing prosperity.

The protected manufacturers, of course, stood by the administration, which had given them a Dingley law. Trust promoters and trust magnates, recognizing in the Democratic party an inveterate foe, and numbering among their stockholders many of the most influential Republicans, threw all their strength to the Republican party, and by their support purchased immunity from punishment. The Republicans were greatly aided by another influence, namely, the influence of the financiers who not yet have completed their schemes, were willing to risk trust, imperialism or anything else rather than forego the advantage which they expected from a gold standard and a bank currency. In spite of all these obstacles the campaign of 1900 only showed a net change of 150,000 votes in favor of the Republicans out of a total vote of over 13,000,000. And what is the situation today? Since the election of 1900, imperialism is more openly avowed and imperialistic methods more boldly entered upon because the administration can point to that edection as an apparent indorsement, although the party leaders at that time vehemently denied imperialistic intent. Those who expect to make a profit out of a colonial system favor it on the ground that it will pay; those who think that it opened up the Philippines to proselyting insist that it is providential, while those who are simply seeking some reason for supporting their party's policy fall back upon the doctrine that circumstances got us into the trouble and that we must stay in until circumstances gets us out.

Since the election of 1900 the trusts have grown and flourish under the Republican administration, as might have been expected. Almost two years have elapsed since the last presidential election, and no legislative attempt has been made to interfere with them, and the executive efforts, instead of being directed toward the enforcement of criminal statutes, are confined to the equity side of the court and these efforts have not in the least retarded the formation of new combines.

Since the election, the financiers are seeking to carry their advantage a little farther and are planning an asset currency, a system of branch banks and the redemption of the silver dollar. Recognizing the enormous iniquity of the bill they did not dare press it during the campaign, but having secured a favorable report in the house, postponed its consideration until December.

Since the election, a Republican congress has turned a deaf ear to the laborer's cry for relief from government by injunction; and a Republican senate has refused to grant the demand of the people for the election of United States senators by a direct vote.

And all the while an exorbitant tariff is working injustice to the consumers and enabling the beneficiaries of protection to sell at home at a high price and compete in foreign markets at a lower price.

While the exploiters have been pressing their advantage at home and abroad the interests of the producers of wealth on the farm, in the factory and in the mines have been utterly ignored, and the small business man has been left to such precarious existence as the trusts permit him to enjoy.

How can the opponents of aristocracy and plutocracy be united for a successful attack upon entrenched privileges? Not by making peace with the enemy; not by imitating their works, their methods or their phraseology, but by honest, straightforward appeal to the American people upon a platform that can be understood and with an organization that can be trusted. Already many of the Republicans are wavering, but they can never be won to the Democratic party as long as they can say that our party is as bad as theirs. Not by surrender, nor by compromise, not by equivocation, not by ambiguity, nor by vacillation, is the victory to be won, but by bold, constant, persistent, steadfast defense of the interests of the people at all times under all circumstances and on all questions. To lose faith in the expediency of such a course is to lose faith in the omnipotence of truth. Upon this basis we can not only harmonize all who are democratic in sentiment and sympathy, but we can draw to our party those of the opposition who cherish democratic ideas, but have been misled by Republican arguments.

In the accomplishment of this work, the New England Democratic league can be, and I doubt not, will be, a powerful factor.

PRIEST A SMUGGLER.

Assistance of Niece Led to His Detection.

Washington July 24.—According to an official report that has reached the treasury department, a Roman Catholic priest and his niece, from Massachusetts, whose names are not announced, were arrested for smuggling across the Canadian border and have confessed. In the confession the priest pleaded that his niece may be discharged, and declared that she acted only as his agent and was not aware that she was committing a crime. He said that since 1896 he had been making annual trips to Montreal, where he would purchase church robes and other articles for church use, which he would pack in his trunk as wearing apparel and bring across the border without declaring or paying duty. During all this time, he says, the customs officials never made any attempt to examine his baggage.

On his last trip to Montreal his niece accompanied him and he induced her to pack some of the dutiable articles in her trunk. This she did, and the result was detection and arrest. The priest says that the value of the smuggled goods is small.

As a result of the revelations instructions have been sent to collectors along the Canadian border to be more careful in the future.

SUIT OVER FOOT RACE

William Grant Sues W. A. Wagner to Recover the Stakes.

Tells Peculiar Story of How He Lost His Money.

Alleges Scheme to Defraud---Mr. Wagner Enters a Denial.

An extraordinary civil suit began in municipal court this afternoon.

William Grant is suing W. A. Wagner, a well known saloon proprietor, to recover $100 he claims to have bet Wagner that he could beat him in a foot-race from the Catholic cathedral, on Fourth street, to Mr. Wagner's saloon in the King block, on Superior street.

In his complaint Grant alleges that on June 3 last he was in Mr. Wagner's saloon with $100 in his pocket. Wagner made Grant angry by announcing that he could beat him in a foot race. Grant put up his $100 in the hands of Frank Eaton and Wagner posted a similar amount. It was agreed that the two men should go to the cathedral, and, upon acquiring as much speed as possible coming down any of the steep avenues, the man that reached the saloon first was to take the money.

Wagner and Grant walked up to Second avenue west and Third street, and only had one more block to go to the starting point, when, Grant alleges that Wagner broke suddenly away from him and went dashing wildly down the avenue.

Whereupon Grant claims there was no person to race with, so he too turned and walked back to the saloon.

Upon arriving there, he says, he discovered that before he and Wagner went up the hill for their race, Wagner took the stakeholder to one side and informed him that it was all a joke and that he did not need to wait about the saloon till the sprinters got back, but could just leave the money with the bartender, who would put it in the safe for Mr. Grant.

Later Mr. Eaton had occasion to leave the saloon, and he, taking the entire matter as a joke, turned the money over to the bartender. When Mr. Wagner came puffing from his burst of speed down the avenue, the bartender concluded he had won the race and turned the money over to him.

Mr. Grant alleges that the whole scheme was put up to defraud him, and he sues the saloon man to recover his money.

Mr. Wagner denies each and every allegation of the complaint in a most emphatic manner.

H. C. Fryberger is representing the plaintiff and D. M. De Vore the defendant. The case promises to attract a great deal of attention before it is finished.

Waives Examination.

J. F. Spence, defaulting agent of the United States Installment Investment company, this morning waived his preliminary examination in police court and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $1000 bail.

Mr. Spence is the man recently captured in San Francisco through the efforts of Chief Troyer. It is supposed that he appropriated about $1500 while local agent for the United States investment concern.

Stole at Carlton.

Two thieves from Carlton were captured on the Bowery this morning by Officer Herman Fritz.

They gave their names as Albert Larock and Albert Dearborn. Last evening the prowled a house in Carlton and were later seen boarding a train for Duluth. From the house they stole about $20 worth of clothing. The owner of the clothes followed them to Duluth on an engine, and recognizing the two men on the Bowery this morning, he pointed the mout to Officer Fritz, who made the arrests.

Challenge For Blood.

The Business university baseball team has challenged the Freimuth team to play a game for the entire gate receipts.

This challenge was called forth by the Freimuths declaring that the team beaten by the university Tuesday night was not the regular team, while the University had padded for the game with professionals.

Manager Smith of the Business university said today: "Our team is strictly amateur, and we won from the Freimuths as clean a victory as could be possible. Our men will meet the Freimuths again for the entire gate receipts, and show them that the university can duplicate the performance of Tuesday very easily."

NOT RAPID.

Lumber Is Moving But Not at Lively Pace.

"There is no change in the lumber movement from that of a week ago," said Capt. C. H. Weeks of the Lake Lumber Carriers' association this noon. "Lumber is being moved but not very rapidly. The excuse a few weeks ago was that the lumber was too green to be shipped, but since that time it has been drying out rapidly, and the docks are getting in a condition to warrant a lively business. We hope and expect that more lumber will be moved in the next few weeks than since the first of the month.

It may be said with a considerable degree of accuracy that fully 90 per cent of the lumber carrying vessels on the great lakes are now enrolled in the Lumber Carriers' association, and as for the other 10 per cent, they do not cut much figure. They will be in a hurry to get in too before the end of the season."

The custom office figures show that the lumber movement from the Duluth harbor up to the present date is 25,025,000 feet. The total movement for the month of June was 35,352,164 feet, and with but another week for July shipments, it is not thought likely that the month's shipments will exceed those of June. The July shipments are usually the heaviest of the season, the total amount sent down the lakes in July, 1901, being approximately 55,000,000 feet. That month's lumber shipping business was, however, a record breaker. Vesselmen do not expect any record breaking movements this year.

Commercial Club Committee Named For the Purpose.

President F. A. Patrick of the Duluth Commercial club has appointed Millie Bunnell, A. C. Weiss, Oscar Lonegren and E. L. Miller a comittee to take in hand the matter of entertainment of the North Minnesota Editorial association, which meets in this city on the morning of Aug. 1 in time to take the morning train for Virginia. The party will return to Duluth Aug. 2 for a banquet in the evening of that date, and will be in Duluth Sunday, Aug. 3. A meeting of the committee has been called at the club rooms for tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

GETS MONEY.

Fire Relief Fund Draws From Insurance Premium Tax.

The Duluth Fire Department Relief association will receive $4755.06 from the state this year as its share of the tax on insurance premiums.

A tax of 2 per cent is imposed on all insurance premiums, and according to a state law the department in each town gets one-half of the tax on the premiums paid in by that town. In cities where no relief association exists the money is paid into the municipal treasury, to be used to support the department. There are 217 cities and villages in this state that receive a portion of the insurance tax.

Duluth is third on the list, Minneapolis leading with $14,958. St. Paul follows with $7515.47.

State Auditor Dunn believes that there are many relief associations in the state that have not made any report, and he is trying to find them to let them get the benefit of the tax.

The statement of the insurance commissioner shows that $3,961,589 was paid in insurance premiums in the cities and villages of the state during the year. Retaliatory taxes are levied on Wisconsin, Ohio and Michigan companies, of which the relief associations get their proportion, making the total amount to be distributed among the relief associations and the cities and villages that do not have relief associations, $41,958.58.

Not Sawed As Yet.

"None of the Duluth Log Salvage association's logs have been sawed thus far this season," said Secretary and Treasurer Van Vliet of the association this afternoon. "But the Peyton, Klimball & Barber mill will be ready to begin the cut within a few days. The tugs have been picking up the scattered logs and towing them to the mill for some time past, but no estimate can yet be given on the amount salved."

HAS GOOD MEMORY

Detective Irvine's Think Responsible For Spotting a Crook.

Was In the Crowd at the Wild West Show.

Gertrude Schroeder Given a Chance to Redeem Herself.

Just one pickpocket had the audacity to mingle with the big Wild West crowds yesterday, and his brief mingling came to a sudden ending.

Somewhere in a rogues' gallery or a detective paper, Donald Irvine, one of the headquarters plain clothes men, saw a face that he recognized in the crowd at the entrance of Oneota Park yesterday.

He watched the face for a few moments and was convinced that it belonged to a crook but he could not remember where he had seen his picture.

The man under suspicion noticed the detective watching him and tried to get lost in the crowd, even boarding a street car. The detective ran and caught the car and got a seat beside him.

The man was put through a hurried examination. He said his home was in Fargo. Mr. Irvine shot a few simple questions about Fargo which the other was unable to answer.

The detective took him off the car and turned him over to Chief Troyer. The thief had the best of nerve but the officers were satisfied that he was not all right and had him locked up.

When searched at headquarters the man had a list of all the picnics, excursions and outings for the next two or three months.

It was evidently his working card and from certain marks he was evidently planning to pick pockets at big gatherings during the summer clear from the copper country over into the Dakotas.

He said his name was Wilson, but even under pressure of sweat box cross-examining he refused to give out the slightest information regarding himself.

Capt. Reseke measured him according to the Bertillion system and had him photographed. The measurements and picture will be forwarded to the national bureau of identification, and if the man has a past record he can be identified in this way.

Gertrude Schroeder, the pretty little high school girl that recently eloped to Houghton to take a post-graduate course in frivolity, will not go to the Red Wing industrial school after all.

Last evening Judge Gearhart signed papers paroling Miss Schroeder for one year and committing her to the custody of H. W. Withrow, the probation officer.

If she settles down and behaves herself for a year, the Red Wing sentence will be lifted; bun unless she lives up to the high ethical plane prescribed by the probation office, the parole will be revoked and the sentence of the court enforced.

There was an amusing case in police court this afternoon. Under the name of John Doe, a certain postoffice employe was arrested for stoning the dog of James Reekie. It developed that the Reekie dog was chasing the cat of the postoffice employe, and the latter bowled the pup over with a large rock. The judge, on hearing the amusing cat and dog testimony, disposed of the case on payment of costs by the defendant.

Hackmen and police disagreed at the Oneota park entrance last evening, and two hackmen, Charles Willis and H. Stewart, were arrested for obstructing the street.

The hackmen have engaged C. O. Baldwin to fight their case in court, claiming the police discriminated against them in favor of another livery concern.

The police say that the two hackmen had a tremendous yearning to drive over them and refused to keep the passageways in front of the gates open.

TRADES UNIONS

Interested In Suit Brought By Colliery Firms.

New York, July 24.—A fresh application of the principle whereby trades unions have been held responsible for breaches of the law, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune, is sought in an action brought by the colliery firms against the miners' federation, which has a membership of over 125,000. This case is a suit for damages from the cessation of work on four successive days under the orders of the federation. It is attracting much attention, since a decision in favor of the employers in the courts would complete the record of a full financial responsibility of the Federated Labor union for the acts of its officers, even when no more aggressive action was taken than to order a stoppage of work for a few extra holidays.

DANISH RULE NOT LIKED.

Colonists in West Indies Would Welcome Our Government.

An English island would keep its squaloh on the surface. Not so the Danish colonies. A wholesome air blows from the cane fields, suggesting only comfort and plenty, yet the poverty is so bitter that only a few days ago, when it was rumored that Denmark had again deferred action on the sale for a year, I heard threats and rumors of bread riots, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle. Those clean, white sugar mills in the midst of the smooth fields do not look as if they were to be the scenes of trouble; still it is to be remembered that only twenty-four years ago the blacks of Santa Cruz rose against their supposed oppressors and burned property an dthreatened life. They did not know what it was they fought for. The yonly knew they were underpaid and hunbry, and they knew no other way to redress a wrong than by violence. That was when a squad of Manhattan police could have covered itself with distinction. One American merchant, hearing that the mob had gathered before his store, mounted his horse, rode furiously into town from his place in the country, with his whip, striking right and left, scattered the blacks like chaff, entered his office, took his funds and papers from his safe, remounted his horse and was gone before any of the mob knew quite what had happened. The situation now is more desperate than then, and fresh riots may be started, not in revenge, but in despair.

For sugar is the only crop, and it is raised now at a loss to the planters, so that even the wretched pittance earned by the laborers is grudged. All classes of people, except the Danish officials, declare that they want annexation to the United States. The negroes will accept alms, and they mutter, but they are not abject, while the Danes are polite even to the Americans whom the officials are trying to keep out. Said one man, "I am a Dane, but I would not stay longer under the Danish rule."

THE HOUSE OF WILSON.

Another Social Triumph Over House of Vanderbilt.

The appointment of the Hon. Michael Henry Herbert as ambassador from the court of St. James to succeed Lord Pauncefote at Washington is another social triumph for the house of Wilson, says the Boston Post.

For the Hon. Mrs. Herbert, who will thus become the first lady in diplomatic circles in Washington, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Wilson, of New York city, and is allied to the three most prominent families in that city—the Astors, the Vanderbilts and the Goelets. Moreover, the social prestige of the new ambassadress must mean new triumphs for her sister, that remarkable young matron, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. And it must inevitably result in bringing to the fore in the national capital that greatest fued in "high life" that ever disturbed the traditions of this country—the feud between the houses of Vanderbilt and Wilson.

It is a saying in New York society that Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, the mother of the Hon. Mrs. Herbert—Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, with her pleasant voice, her charming manners and her soft. Southern accent—is the greatest matchmaker in America. At least, her children have all made remarkable marriages.

In the first place, they have all made love matches—five of them; and in the second place—though perhaps the order should be reversed—they have made love matches combined with millions. It is not often that true love and vast fortunes are found linked. In the case of the five Wilson children this union is found.

And yet when pretty Miss Johnston, of Macon, Ga., married Richard T. Wilson he was a clerk in a grocery store in Knoxville, Tenn., working for less than $10 a week.

No family history in America shows more clearly the genius of American life than the record of the Wilson family, which has come from the ranks of wage-earners to the highest roll in the social whirl of this country.

And it is because of the qualities of generalship that Mrs. Wilson has shown in marrying off her children that her family now sits on the very crest of highest social influence.

Her oldest daughter, Mary Wilson, married Ogden Goelet, whose wealth was estimated at $45,000,000.

Her oldest son, Marshall Orme Wilson, married Miss Caroline Astor, youngest daughter of the late William Astor, with a dowery of $15,000,000.

The second daughter, Mrs. Herbert, is by her marriage connected with many of the most ancient and famous families in the British aristocracy.

The third daughter, Grace Wilson, married young Cornelius Vanderbilt, in the face of the opposition of the entire Vanderbilt family.

And the youngest son, Richard T. Wilson, Jr., has recently allied himself to the most exclusive families in Boston through his marriage with beautiful Marion Mason, niece of Mrs. Rollins Morse, long the undisputed leader of Boston's "400."

It is in the entrance of the Wilson-Vanderbilt feud into Washington's social life that vital interest now centers. Hitherto this feud has been in evidence only in New York and Newport. It has divided society in both those cities into two distinct factions, each with its own clientele and following.

From all appearances, this feud is one that can never be settled. The heart-burnings on both sides were too deep for the wound they caused ever to be healed.

When young Cornelius Vanderbilt announced to his family his intention to wed Miss Grace Wilson, his family, with a united voice, headed by his father, who was then living, raised a protest. The senior Vanderbilt threatened disinheritance should his son persist. This threat was carried into effect in the will found after Mr. Vanderbilt's death. In this he cut off his eldest son with a paltry inheritance and thus virtually made Alfred Vanderbilt, the second son, head of the family.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., sympathized with her husband's position, and since her widowhood she has rigidly refused to recognize her son's wife. It was thought that when young Alfred Vanderbilt was married two years ago in Newport an attempt would be made to heal the family break, and reports were current to the effect that young Cornelius and his wife would be present at the wedding festivities. But the rumor proved a false one, and so far as is now known the break between Cornelius Vanderbilt and his family is as wide as ever.

All the Wilsons have remained loyal to young Mrs. Vanderbilt, and that lady herself has shown the most remarkable tact in rallying to her standard brilliant society leaders. Her sister, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, is naturally on her side: Mrs. Herman Oelrichs is her staunch supporter, so is Mrs. "Starvy" Fish, and because of the friendliness of Mrs. Oelrichs, her sister, Mrs. Nelie K. Vanderbilt, is not unfriendly. Through the alliance of Orme Wilson, the Astors cannot neglect young Mrs. Vanderbilt, so that she has on her calling list a formidable array of notable names.

When young Mrs. Vanderbilt this spring secured Prince Henry as her guest, being the only woman in New York so favored, she won a triumph that brought to her increasing honors and a distinct victory over her mother-in-law.

Now, through political changes, young Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister becomes the first lady in diplomatic circles in America. The Hon. Mrs. Herbert has always been especially fond of her sister Grace, and there can be no question that she will exert all the great influence her new position will give her to further the latter's social ambitions.

Mrs. Herbert herself is a woman of rare charms. She has the repose of manners and the grand dame style that so markedly distinguished her brilliant mother. She is a remarkable linguist and conversationalist of more than ordinary charm. Her wedding to Mr. Herbert took place when he was charge d'affaires at Washington in 1888. It was one of the most brilliant affairs of the season and was looked upon as a wonderful coup by Mrs. Wilson. It connected Mrs. Herbert with the noble family of Pembroke and Montgomery, her husband's brother being the fourteenth earl of Pembroke and the eleventh earl of Montgomery.

In 1894 a new honor came to Mr. Herbert. He was then made a knight commander of the Bath. Three years ago he received the unusual honor of being appointed minister plenipotentiary to France.

The Hon. Mrs. Herbert has always borne herself with great dignity. The added honors of her husband have but shown more and more her ability to take a position of pre-eminent leadership in social life. As the wife of the British ambassador to Washington she will have enlarged opportunities to show her tact, and more especially, on account of the social troubles in her own family, will she be able to prove whether she has a social genius equal to that of her mother.

Mrs. Herbert is the second American woman to occupy the position of wife to a minister accredited to this country from a foreign country.

A Viennese jury has just put a valuation on finger nails. An artist named Franz Muller was the possessor of a set much admired for their beauty, which so excited the jealousy of a rival that he managed to break one of them. Muller brought suit for damages, and he has been awarded 1000 crowns, about $2000.

THE DAKOTAS.

New Trial of Page May Result In His Acquittal.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The action of the state supreme court in granting Frederick Page, an inmate of the penitentiary, a new trial, will be of interest to the people of Kingsbury county, where Page was convicted. He is serving a term for being a member of the now celebrated Kingsbury county white-capping party, which in the manner of Leo went to the home of Nels Sands, an undesirable neighbor, and used him very roughly in an attempt to drive him from the county. Page, it is believed, is almost certain to be acquitted as the result of his new trial, as Sands, the complaining witness, moved to a point in North Dakota some little time ago, and reports are to the effect that he has since moved from that point to a place unknown. This will meet the approval of the people of Kingsbury county, where the almost general sentiment prevails that Page has been punished sufficiently.

Mitchell—Omie Harris, 21 years old, fell from his bicycle Tuesday night and injured his head. He died in two hours from concussion of the brain.

Lake Preston—While at work on the city well a man by the name of Pedan was severely injured, perhaps beyond recovery. His clothing caught in a pinion on the main power shaft and every piece of clothing except his shoes and stockings was torn from his body. He was badly bruised and had three ribs broken, and it is feared he was injured internally. His home is at Ottumwa, Iowa.

Rapid City—The city council has been urged by citizens to construct a sewerage system. Several public meetings have been held and committees have canvassed the town, getting the sanction of a large majority of property holders. It is estimated that the system will cost $12,000. The council will undoubtedly grant the request.

Toronto—The Farmers' State bank of Toronto, has just incorporated with a capital of $25,000 and will begin business as soon as their new 2-story building, to be built on the best corner lot in town, is completed. The incorporators are: A. J. Lockhart, O. C. Dokken, P. S. Johnson, L. C. Hoge and N. Ericson.

Pollock—The town of Pollock, which is the terminus of the Soo's extension into South Dakota, is experiencing a business boom this year which has not been surpassed in this country since the palmy days of Eureka. The town is but nine months old, but is already the largest Missouri river town between Bismarck and Pierre. It is the shipping point for large supplies to the Indians and is in the midst of a fertile agricultural country, where stock raising is made a prominent feature.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Cannon Ball—Commencing with the new fiscal year, July 1, many rations of able-bodied Indians were cut off entirely. The effect of this order is that the old people get less than ever and the young live on the fat of the land. The old people will go hungry themselves sooner than see the younger folks want. According to Indian etiquette the old are of not much account, and the young people have no scruples in taking all they can get. The agent has compelled the Indians to take good care of their fields, and as a consequence the crop outlook on the reservation was never better.

Fargo—Lumber dealers in North Dakota report the biggest business ever known. The increased sales are not confined to the newer sections, but right in the valley there is a big business. This is partly due to the fact that some of the big farms have been cut up and several farmers now reside on different quarters. Another reason is that many farmers who have gotten along with cheap homes are now building better ones, and are also adding to farm buildings for the storage of grain, machinery and the care of stock.

The funeral of John McAuliffe, who was killed in the recent Utah mine disaster, was held here under military auspices. McAuliffe was reared in Fargo and was a member of the North Dakota regiment in the Philippines.

Some months ago Cora Oman, the widow of an old veteran, was arrested on the charge of selling whisky. She gave bail, but ran away, and the bail was forfeited. She has returned to Fargo and surrendered herself to the authorities. The forfeited bail will be returned to her bondsmen.

Local switchmen have organized and joined the Switchmen's Union of America. It is expected all the switchmen in Fargo and Moorhead will join the organization.

NEEDED MONEY.

Father Refused It So She Committed Forgery.

Frankfort, Ind., July 24.Miss Mildred Fields, who says she is the daughter of Frank Fields, a wealthy land owner of Deer Creek, near Peoria, Ill., was arrested here yesterday and taken to Indianapolis on a charge of forgery. She admitted the charge and said that she was driven to the crime by sickness and the refusal of her father to give her financial assistance.

The prisoner said that through the influence of a stepmother she was driven from home. She became a stenographer in the office of J. J. M. La Folette, district attorney at Indianapolis, and forged a check on her employer for $25. This she cashed at the Oneida hotel, where she boarded. She then came here, where she was engaged in organizing a class in stenography.

She says she taught stenography at Grinnell college, Iowa, last winter. She is said to be an heiress to an estate left by her mother.

IN MICHIGAN.

Superintendent Shields Has Wild Chase After a Pickpocket.

Hancock—The copper country is infested with pickpockets. This is due to the recent visit of Buffalo Bill and the presence of the Bostock-Ferari carnival show. Eight of the "light-fingered gentlemen" were deported to Chicago, but that did not deter others from making their rendezvous here. Sunday evening, while several hundred Hibernians were waiting for the train at Hancock station, a man was seen "dipping" his fingers in other pockets than his own. Superintendent J. C. Shields, of the Mineral Range road, spotted the pickpocket, who also spotted the superintendent. The superintendent gave chase to the thief as he dodged around a train and made off down the track. There is a steep hill below the station, and as the man raced down the track a switch engine approached. Shouting to the engineer to reverse his engine, Superintendent Shield said, "Catch the man." Engineer Hanson reversed and put on all steam, and the race was on. The thief glanced back, saw the pursuing engine and dashed around the corner of a building. Hanson stopped his engine, jumped off in a twinkling and searched for the thief. He could not be found.

The Hon. George E. Monaghan, of Detroit, state organizer of the Knights of Columbus, installed a new council of the order Sunday evening. The council has a charter membership of sixty, and the following were elected officers: Dr. M. A. Thometz, grand knight; R. T. Looney, deputy grand knight; Theodore Hennes, chancellor; Thomas W. Harris, warden; Emery Jacques, recording secretary; Edward Perse, financial secretary; Edward F. Cuddihy, treasurer, and Dr. J. E. Scanlon, medical examiner.

Houghton—St. Ignatius Roman Catholic church will be dedicated at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, Aug. 10. Pontifical high mass will be celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Frederick Eis, of Marquette. During the mass William B. Stahl, of Houghton, will be ordained. The Rt. Rev. Sebastian G. Messmer, bishop of Green Bay, will preach the dedicatory sermon. Among the visiting church dignitaries will be Monsignor Lagner, of Negaunee; Monsignor Fox, of Green Bay, and many of the clergy of this diocese. Admission to the church will be by ticket only. The Rev. A. J. Rezek is pastor of St. Ignatius.

Escanaba—Rev. J. Spencer Jewell, of Gladstone, was granted a divorce from his wife without alimony. The case has many sensational features. Mrs. Jewell had been wedded three times before. She had been divorced from the first two men, and the third, a German count, died. The suit was started by her, but was reversed by the court.

Bessemer—Reports have it that the postoffice is to be removed to the Rainquist building, as a concession to the Young supporters here. The postmaster himself stands neutral and seems willing to let the warring interests of "uptown" and "downtown" fight it out among themselves.

Solomon Saxe's new block, costing over $10,000, is ready for occupancy. This is the greatest improvement in the building line Bessemer has seen in twelve years.

WIFE NOT FREE.

Husband Will Not Give Her Opportunity to Marry.

Philadelphia, July 24.—Austin O'Malley, the South Bend author, lecturer and instructor, will not sue for divorce. There was much speculation as to how Professor O'Malley would set about to square accounts with the beautiful Aline Ellis O'Malley for her conduct with William J. Hearin, of New York, and for the untold misery it brought to every one concerned. It is now virtually assured that he will even up matters by refusing to break the marital chains which bind her to him.

Hearin, after his release from prison, declared that he intended to "stick to Mrs. O'Malley," and Mrs. O'Malley has given no indication that she intends to shun her admirer. The fact cannot be denied that she would welcome a legal release from Professor O'Malley, and that she would procure such a separation if it were possible to do so. It is said that she will sue for divorce if her husband does not.

Mrs. O'Malley is still suffering from the effects of her ordeal in prison, "sweatbox" and court room. No statement could be secured from her, and the O'Malleys refuse to talk to reporters.

IT FILLS THE BILL

Woodland Water Supply Engine Passes Company's Guaranty.

Members of the Board Are Well Satisfied With It.

Plumbing Business Made Lively By the Woodland Extension.

The new auxiliary gas engine installed in the water system to furnish the Woodland water supply performed wonderfully well during the official test yesterday afternoon.

In fifty-three minutes this engine pumped 29,338 gallons of water, or 553½ gallons a minute. It only costs a fraction over 1 cent to pump 1000 gallons of water, and to supply Woodland the engine will only have to be operated about one hour every four days.

The official test was satisfactory in every way. The engine is 16-horse power, located at the old reservoir on Fifteenth avenue east. During the test yesterday it was pumping against an elevation of 213 feet.

The water and light board required the manufacturers to turn out a pump that they would guarantee to pump 500 gallons a minute, but the engine exceeded this requirement by 53½ gallons.

During the test the engine made 2349 revolutions, pumping up 11.51 gallons with each revolution and making 48 revolutions per minute.

Manager Case and members of the water and light commission expressed themselves as more than pleased with the working of the new machinery, and say this will undoubtedly guarantee Woodland an adequate supply of water at all times.

The outsiders that saw the test were more surprised at the small cost of pumping than anything else. It costs less than 30 cents to fill the big 85,000 gallon tank, or the entire supply of water for Woodland can be pumped out there through this engine at a cost of about 60 cents each week.

A large force of men are at work making service connections in Woodland, Glen Avon and Hunter's Park, and it is expected that by next Saturday evening every house will be connected up and the suburbanites will be enjoying the benefits of the municipal water and gas system.

The extension has caused a boom in the plumbing business in mid-summer, which is something rather unusual for that trade. All available plumbers are sent out to Woodland to hurry up the work of connecting houses with the water and gas mains, and there is not a plumber in town but has several rush orders from that part of the city.

FOR SHOPS.

Duluth-Superior Traction Company Add to Its Grounds.

The Duluth-Superior Traction company has purchased 150 feet adjoining the car house at Twenty-sixth avenue and Superior street which will, as the growing business demands, be covered with work shops.

Some time back the company purchased the first fifty feet adjoining the car house and a couple of days ago 100 feet more was acquired. The purchase is made up of four lots, two on First street and two on Superior street.

While only one new building is expected to be erected this year the officials of the company, realizing that the time is soon coming when the lots would increase greatly in value or that they might not be able to secure them at all, bought the property at this time. Carlton college at Northfield owned the four lots in the last purchase. They are numbered 425, 426, 427 and 428, block 47, Duluth proper, Second division. The price paid was $6500.

In speaking of an contemplated movements, General Manager Warren, of the street railway company, said:

"In buying the lots adjoining the car house we are simply making preparations to increase our workroom. We may have one building up this fall. This will be a small affair and will be made up of a brass foundry and blacksmith shop. However, our property extends from Superior to First street and the building will be erected so as to allow making additions whenever we feel they are needed. We will also need a woodworking shop, a machine shop and the different departments that now occupy space in the carhouse proper will ultimately find room in new buildings. It may be some time before we decide to build further, but we now have all the land needed for any improvement along that line."

Location Not Decided.

The Labor day committee of the Trades assembly did not decide last evening as to the location of the picnic grounds for that day. Several propositions were considered and the committee will hold another meeting Sunday afternoon, at which time an agreement will be reached.

BRUTAL PUNISHMENT.

Girls Seriously Beaten For Taking Few Apples.

Indianapolis, July 24.—George Spradlin and Milford Hurt, two young men living near Winslow, Pike county, are under arrest and were guarded Tuesday night to prevent a threatened lynching.

Two daughters of a farmer named Mason, one 10 and the other 12 years of age, went into the Hurt orchard and were pulling some apples from the trees. The young men caught them, and, cutting some switches from the trees gave each of them a severe beating. The cries of the children attracted passersby, who stopped the whipping. Both girls were so much exhausted that they had to be carried home. On the ground near them were the stubbs of two large switches that had been literally worn out upon them. The flesh on their lower limbs, arms and shoulders was badly lacerated, and both were suffering from loss of blood.

The magistrate released the two men on bond, but afterward caused their rearrest, as one of the children may die. Hurt and Spradlin admitted that the only offense of the children was the taking of a few apples.

KIDNAPED.

Young Woman Forced Into Buggy and Carried Away.

Le Sueur Center, Minn., July 24.—One of the most daring cases of kidnaping came to light here yesterday morning. A summer school for teachers is being held at Montgomery. Miss Bertha Pfeifer is a school teacher attending the summer school. She lives about two and one-half miles southwest of Montgomery, with her parents, her father being a rich farmer. Tuesday morning about 8 o'clock she was walking to Montgomery, when she was overtaken by a man and woman driving a black team of horses attached to a covered buggy. They asked her to ride. She refused. The woman then alighted from the buggy, grappled with Miss Pfeifer and placed a handkerchief saturated with chloroform to her face. Miss Pfeifer falling into a semi-conscious state.

Miss Pfeifer was then placed in the buggy and driven away. The couple talked German and told her they were going to take her to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and hold her till her father ransomed her. From the conversation she learned at one time that they were near Shieldsville, eighteen miles from Montgomery, and about 5 o'clock the couple stopped in the woods to feed the horses. Up to this time they had kept up the rain shields of the buggy so that passers-by could not see into the vehicle, but when they alighted for lunch Miss Pfeifer, who had nearly recovered from the effects of the drug, made her escape through the woods to a farmer's house, where she sank exhausted. The farmer took her to Waterville, where her father was notified. He went there and took her home yesterday morning.

AMUSEMENTS.

MOON BROS.' THEATER.

Amusements seekers had plenty to choose from yesterday, with excursions, picnics, Wild West and the popular pavilion theater, where the Barbour Theater company are playing a four-week engagement. Each place had its large crowd, and Moon Bros.' theater certainly drew its share, as the place was filled to see "Two Married Women," a comedy, which kept the audience in a jolly mood for over two hours. It is seldom that a company which makes a feature of strong melodramatic productions, is able to present a farcical play in the proper manner to prove interesting, but this company has proven an exception. Its work in the lighter vein being equally clever and entertaining. The same bill tonight.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

A Citizen of Duluth Pays a Well-Earned Tribute.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before:

Mrs. Letitte Cole, living at 153 Second avenue east, says: "During five or six years I suffered a great deal with my kidneys and at times was very bad, especially if I caught a cold or overexerted myself. My health was generally run down, and I felt used up. There was a constant heavy, dull aching pain across the small of my back and in my kidneys. The secretions from these organs were unnatural and deposited a heavy sediment. I tried different remedies at different times, but did not succeed in getting anything to help me. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and began to use them. They helped me at once and I rapidly grew better and stronger. I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I unhesitatingly recommend them to others."

Northern Pacific Tax Commissioner Talks of Road's New Yards.

Tells Equalization Board This, When He Asks a Reduction.

Mining Valuations Still In Abeyance---Comparison of Values.

When the Northern Pacific railway completes the improvements to its yards on Rice's Point the plans of which are already drawn up and some of the work begun, Duluth will boast of the largest yards of any individual railroad west of Buffalo.

That was the statement made by G. S. Furnell, tax commissioner of the Northern Pacific, to the board of equalization at its meeting this morning. Mr. Furnell said:

"You probably know of the improvements we are making and will make to our yards on Rice's Point. When our capacity is now 1500 cars, we will, before we are finished, increase it to 6000 cars. It will be the biggest railway yard west of Buffalo. We have acquired much property on Rice's Point and for a purpose. We are now grading and filling in but we have only just started. Two years ago the improvements were first announced and since that time the plans have been wholly completed. It will help wonderfully the commercial activities and interests of Duluth. We have spent considerable money on the water front property which we control there."

Mr. Furnell made these remarks when he was endeavoring to get the board to lower the valuation of certain pieces of property owned by the Northern Pacific and not used for railroad purposes.

The Duluth-Superior Bridge company sent a communication to the board asking that the valuation of the bridge be cut down from $100,000 to $50,000. It is explained that the revenue derived is very small and the tax excessive. The $100,000 represents one-half of the value of the bridge, the other half being taxed in Wisconsin.

The board did not take up the question of the mine valuations this morning. There were a number of smaller matters considered. The mines will probably take up the most of tomorrow's session.

Below is given a list of the mines and the valuations submitted by the owners, for this year and two years ago. It will be seen that many properties appear in this year's list which are not given in the one taken in 1900. These are new discoveries which were classed as wild lands at that time. In some cases mines that were shipping two years ago are now lying idle and the valuations have been reduced in the majority of such cases. In the first column are given the valuations fixed in the schedule submitted by the owners and in the second the valuations that appeared on the tax rolls of 1900 and last year.

Damage Done to North Dakota Crops By Storms.

St. Paul, Jul 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The apprehension that recent heavy storms in North Dakota did extensive damage to standing crops are set at rest by the Northern Pacific's twelfth bulletin, issued yesterday by Vice President Hannaford. The loss is confined to the small territory, between East Grand Forks and Crookston, where early grain was damaged. This section, however, is not included in the most important wheat growing territory. Aside from this small section there are no reports of damage, except in the vicinity of Leeds, on the Red Lake Falls branch of the system, where a little grain has been destroyed by storms. The great Red River valley district was not harmed, and wheat as well as the other crops are in excellent condition, and give splendid promise.

A careful inquiry has shown that there is little truth in the reports of excessive moisture. Reports from Western Minnesota and North Dakota declare that not a drop has fallen that has not been of value, and that the dryness of the early season has permitted an unusual rainfall without injury to crops. Farmers assert that the heavy rains were a blessing since they soaked the ground and kept it in prime condition to grow a heavy yield.

Along the Minnesota division, grain that was lodged by wind and hail is coming up again, and will be harvested without difficulty. Rye throughout the state is ripe, and in many sections is already harvested. The stand was excellent and the heads long and well filled. The yield promises exceedingly.

HAS NOT ARISEN.

Rumors of the King Walking Were Erroneous.

London, July 24.—The British Medical Journal says: "We are glad to be able to say that the king is doing well in all respects. The wound is granulating well, but the king still keeps a strictly recumbent position and has not yet left his couch. He is moved from the bed to the couch daily, and is wheeled on deck when the weather permits. There is no truth in the statement that he has walked, nor is there any foundation for the assertion that he is worse. His majesty's health is excellent."

TENNIS.

A Busy Day In the Western Championship Tournament.

Chicago, July 24.—Particular interest centered in this the busiest day of the annual Western tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Kenwood Country club. Owing to the postponement of yesterday's games, because of bad weather, play in the fourth round began early in order to complete the tournament by Saturday. Only eight of the sixty-four entrants remained at the opening of play in contest for Champion R. D. Little's laurels on the last day of the meet. These men were all fast and good players and drew a large and fashionable gathering of enthusiastic spectators. Weather conditions were perfect. The pairings for the fourth round were:

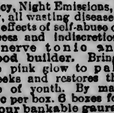

Waidner and Hunt, Emerson and Alexander, Collins and Ashcraft, and Diehl and Paterson. Several sets of doubles and the first round in consolation singles were also scheduled for today. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow.

AFFAIR A MYSTERY.

Third Attempt to Break Into a Dormitory.

Eau Claire, Wis., July 24.—About 12 o'clock parties unknown placed a ladder against a second floor window of the building occupied as dormitory by the sisters of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The ladder fell down and smashed a window on the first floor. A police alarm was given, but no arrests were made. The affair is a mystery. This is the second or third time attempts have been made to break into this building in the night time.

MEN FOR HAYING

Five Hundred Are Needed In the Vicinity of Duluth.

Immense Crop of Clover, Timothy and Other Grasses.

High Wages Offered For Men and Demand Is Steady.

Five hundred men will be needed in the immediate vicinity of Duluth to gather in a crop that most people never think of in connection with this section.

These men are wanted to cut and care for hay, of which the country around Duluth is producing an extraordinary large amount this year.

According to employment agents there is a demand for that number of men for this work, and some of the offers that have come in have been as high as $1.75 per day and board.

Owing to the wet spring, grass and clover have had a rank growth this year, and old settlers out in the country say that they have never seen such a yield as there will be. Timothy, as well as all other grasses, has benefited immensely from the spring and summer rains that made things rather unpleasant in town for a time, and clover is having an unprecedented growth. Every meadow in the country is covered with a dense growth of grasses and clovers, including all varieties of both.

The growth of clover this year has been noted by many people in the city. White, red and Alsatian clover cover the lawns and vacant places, and wherever a bit of lawn-cropping has given it time to blossom the ground has been a bed of color. The increase in white and Alsatian clover has been particularly noticeable. Clover has always thrived in this section, but never, according those who notice such things as much as it has this year.

Probably few people have any idea that there is any such production of hay in this vicinity as to warrant the employment of 500 men to cut and store it. There never has been such a demand before, for there never has been a crop to warrant it.

Experts on such subjects say that there is something in the soil of this end of the state that gives the clover and grass a richness not found elsewhere. At a recent fair held in Carlton county an expert from the state experimental station gave an interesting lecture, in which he gave the results of experiments with grasses from various parts of the state fed to cows. It was found that more milk was produced from the use of Northern Minnesota grasses than any other, and that the milk had more cream and made more and better butter.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Rye and Barley Harvesting Is Under Way.

Rye and barley harvesting is progressing well in South Dakota according to the crop report for the week ending Monday last. The report is as follows:

"The temperature during the week averaged a little below the normal, though it was quite warm the first three days. The showers that occurred were fairly well distributed, and in some localities were generous to heavy. Local hail damage to crops is reported from portions of Custer, Pennington, Roberts, Day, Buffalo, Clark and Spink counties, mostly confined to narrow areas. Some scattered localities, mostly in the middle and northern counties, need more rain, but elsewhere the soil is generally sufficiently moist. The general outlook for a very good yield from small grain is bright, though in a few limited localities only fair.

"Rye harvest is far advanced and barley harvest is in progress and becoming general, both crops, on the whole, being very good. Some early oats are being harvested in the more southerly counties. Wheat has done well, and was favored by the cool nights. The heads of wheat and oats are generally filling nicely, especially of the earlier sown.

"Corn has made good progress, though still somewhat backward. Much of the crop has been laid by in the more southerly counties and some is beginning to tassel. Cultivation has progressed very favorably.

"Flax is generally reported as making very healthy progress.

"Potatoes are very promising and are plentiful on the market.

"Pasturage continues very good. Haying has progressed very favorably, with fine yields. The outlook for a heavy crop of hay continues bright.

"The outlook for apples in the southeastern counties is not good because of the wind storm of June 24."

SHRINERS.

Osman Temple's Annual Picnic at Fond du Lac Tuesday.

Next Tuesday the Shriners will have their annual picnic at Fond du Lac, and it is safe to say that not a crowd will go out on a similar purpose this year that will have a better time. Osman Temple makes an annual practice of having an outing like this and those who attend say that the entertainment is unique, complete and unceasing.

The invitations that have been issued by the committee in charge, C. E. Armistead, A. P. Cook, Jesse Norton and S. O. Sterrett, are characteristic. They are as follows:

Dear Noble Salaam:

The Shriners of this Northern Oasis, intend to have their biennial outing on July 22. We will go up the St. Louis river as far as the boat can run. All who get down to the boat at the foot of Fifth avenue west, at 9 a. m., may ride your fare is paid, all who do not will have to swim. All of your family who wear bifurcated skirts under age 21, are included in this invitation.

We do not care what they wear on that day other than a smile, which is the requirement imposed, and from which you are to be separate until you get home.

This is your passport and admits you to the whole show.

We have a committee who will furnish amusement from time you get on the boat until we get back at night. If they do not please you, you may have your money back and we will discharge them in disgrace.

The Bloomer Girl is the boat, July 29 is the date.

Coffee, cream, sugar, ice cream, lemonade and boiled ham, together with all needed table covers, napkins, dishes, knives, forks and spoons will be supplied and you are particularly requested not to bring any of these articles or "Henry" will kick. Bring along plenty of baker's bread and butter sandwiches as we may have some visitors with whom Duluth pie and angel cake may not agree. Bring no dishes whatever.

Your refreshing basket will be received at the boat by a gentlemanly Shriner, who will thank you kindly and that will be the last of the contents; you may get your basket back, if the cow don't eat it up, so please bring a basket you don't care anything about, anyhow.

Lunch will be served, a la Table d'Hote, as soon after the boat arrives at its destination as the head waiter thinks best for us all, you can't hurry him.

Forget your business.
Forget your troubles.
Forget your pocketbook.
Forget your dog.
Don't forget your smile.
Don't forget your family.
Don't forget your basket.
Don't forget that you are a Shriner.
Perhaps you did not understand this. Read it again.

LUCKY INVESTMENT.

Duncan & Brewer Company Fortunate In Southern Deal.

Among the various comments heard among the local lumbermen relative to the sales of the Duncan & Brewer sawmill plant and timber supplies in Northern Minnesota to the Red Cliff Lumber company one was made yesterday that the Duncan & Brewer company could easily have sold its mill property and still retained its standing pine in this district, had it been so disposed. In general, however, the sale is remarked as an advantageous one for both the seller and the buyer.

"The Duncan & Brewer company," said one prominent lumber shipper yesterday, "is not the only local concern that has made investments fortunate or otherwise in Southern pine. The company happened to have a lot of money idle at a time when conditions were just right and it made an exceedingly fortunate investment in the South. Not long ago the Duncan & Brewer company sold a large tract of Southern pine on which it cleared up $75,000. The pine land was bought for $87,000 and after being held but a short time was resold for $240,000.

Others have purchased Southern pine at a low figure and resold at a good profit, but it must be conceded that the Duncan & Brewer company caught the market just right both ways. There have been numerous instances where Southern pine has been bought as low as $4 per acre and resold for $25 per acre."

Getting Goods Now.

Duluth's merchants have just felt the break-up of the freight handlers strike in Chicago, which interfered with business all over the country. One firm received a consignment of goods yesterday that should have reached here two weeks ago. The bill for the same was received at that time. Other houses were also affected, and the calling off of the labor trouble has worked much good to all, even at points far distant from the seat of trouble.

Harvest Hands Not So Ready to Rush to the West.

Are on to the Game Employed to Depress Wages.

Duluth Labor Market Taking Leading Place In Northwest.

"I notice from the reports in the papers that the North Dakota farmers are working the old game to get cheaper labor," remarked a contractor last evening.

"Every year they begin sending out inquiries for men to every labor center in the Northwest three weeks before the harvesting movement begins and the small Western towns are filled up with men who are looking for work. Many of these men have just about money enough left to get them out to the wheat country where they suppose they can go to work immediately and that good jobs are waiting them on every corner. They get out there only to find that harvesting will not begin for two or three weeks and, as there is no other work of any kind to be found they become stranded and have to live like tramps. This condition tends to cut wages down, for the men, after living from hand to mouth for a few weeks, are glad to take a job at almost any wage the farmer will offer.

"There have been instances in the past few years where as many as 150 or 200 men have been collected at some of the North Dakota points waiting for the harvesting to begin and being without money have formed big 'pot kanks' to live on the country by stealing everything in the way of eatables that they can lay their hands on. At night they slept in barns and hay stacks. It is a deplorable condition of affairs but the men were sent out there supposing they would find work and they had to live some way. The farmers complained, but they were really to blame.

"It is to be noted, however, that the early movement of harvest hands to the West is decreasing year after year as the men get wiser by past experience, and in my opinion there are not so many men going out to Western Minnesota and North Dakota to work in the harvest fields so early this summer as many believe.

"The more experienced laboring man is not going to throw over a good railroad contract job that will last several months to take a chance of finding another job in the wheat fields that will last only a few weeks.

"It is usually a serious matter to the contractors in the Northwest when this Westward movement begins, but I am informed from reliable sources that the contractors are having less trouble in finding men at the present time than they did a year ago. True, men are not plenty and all orders cannot be filled, but good wages are being offered and some of the men are preferring to take a sure thing rather than a chance."

Inquiries are being received daily by the local employment agencies from Western points for men to work in the harvest fields, but so far as can be learned there is no great rush of men to take the jobs. They seem to be cautious and are more particular about inquiring where they will be set to work as soon as they get out in Dakota or whether they will have to lie around for a few weeks waiting for harvesting to begin.

That the head of the lakes labor market is still growing in prominence as a factor in the supply for Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, is evident by the many new orders that are being directed this way that formerly went to the Twin Cities or to Chicago and Milwaukee. One instance noted is that of Winston Bros., who are doing a great deal of railroad work in Wisconsin. This firm formerly secured all its men at St. Paul or Minneapolis, but this summer has been sending to Duluth. A representative of the firm is being sent to this city twice a week, regularly, to conduct crews of laboring men to the railroad contract work in progress in Wisconsin.

THOUSANDS.

One-Third of Duluth's Population Sees Wild West.

Nineteen thousand people saw the Wild West show yesterday.

This gives Duluth a new prominent rating in the show business, which means better theatrical and circus attractions in the future.

The mere fact that nearly one-third of the population of Duluth turned out to see Col. Cody and his rough riders, has set the anti-show people talking again.

These people claim that show backers take too much money out of Duluth. They do not stop to consider that if the thousands of people that patronize shows do not wish to give up their good money there is no law compelling them to attend.

On the other hand the Wild West show left much money in Duluth. Col. Cody carries 99 men and 99 horses. Provisions for this small army were purchased in Duluth and paid for in spot cash as fast as the merchants could deliver the goods. There were big orders for feed, laundry, ice, groceries and even clothing.

The show also brought in several thousand strangers and merchants report a good day's business in out-of-town trade.

There is a general impression that all big shows have a large number of toughs and criminals as hangers on. Such was not the case with the Wild West. The show carries a well-equipped detective force and the moment a crook or a suspicious acting person appears in the crowd, he is spotted and given just so many minutes to leave the town.

This detective department was augmented by Chief Troyer's plain clothes men and several detectives from West Superior, so that they had a big force of criminal detecters mingling with the crowd.

However, there was not a thing for the detectives to do. In all the 19,999 people that visited the ground there was not a pocket picked or even a fight. Not a loss of any kind was reported to the police.

About the only accident happened to a young Arrapahoe Indian during a race at the afternoon performance. The Indian was doing some spectacular riding at break-neck speed. He leaned too far over his horse while looking back at a Cossack that was trying to outride him, and struck a big pole. He fell to the ground as if killed, but was soon able to get back to the Indian quarters, where he received the most unmerciful joshing from the other Indians. This made the youngster so angry that he called for his pony again and insisted that he could outride any and all members of the tribe. Several were anxious to take him up and for a time it seemed that there would be an Indian race not on the program, but Col. Cody would not permit it.

A great many sentimental persons expressed the opinion that the bronchos were trained for the bucking performance. This, however, is erroneous. The animals are just about as wild as can be found anywhere on the Western ranches. When they get tame after several months of cowboy riding a fresh installment of horses are brought in from the West.

A DEADLOCK.

Senatorial Fight at Superior Is Decidedly Interesting.

The Eleventh district Republican senatorial convention, of Wisconsin, which was held in the city hall at West Superior, yesterday afternoon, resulted in a deadlock which may or may not be broken at another session of the convention today. Up to 6 o'clock last evening 296 ballots had been taken and there was no nomination.

L. B. Dresser, of St. Croix Falls, was in the lead with ten votes, George B. Hudnall, of Old Superior, had six votes, and Solon L. Perrin five. There is a feeling that unless the Douglas county delegations combine on either Hudnall or Perrin, the St. Croix Falls candidate will eventually secure the nomination.

An attempt was made by the Dresser delegation yesterday to have a secret ballot, but this was defeated.

It is rumored that if the Douglas county delegations cannot agree on the candidates already in the field, they may unite on a third not already mentioned, but both Mr. Hudnall and Mr. Perrin are confident that their delegations will not desert them.

HOME ON FURLOUGH.

Lieut. Richmond Smith Visiting On Park Point.

Lieut. Richmond Smith, of the Twelfth United States infantry, arrived yesterday from Fort Duquesne, Utah, where he is now stationed, to visit his mother, who is spending the summer with friends on Park Point, and friends in West Superior. Lieut. Smith is an old West Superior boy, having spent a number of years in that city in the newspaper business before securing his commission in the regular army. He has been absent from the head of the lakes for three years, most of the time being spent in active service in the Philippines. He has two months' furlough and will spend the greater part of the time in West Superior. Fort Duquesne, where he is stationed is seventy miles from the nearest railroad.

MISS STONE COMING.

Ransomed Missionery to Speak In Duluth Friday.

Friday evening at the First Presbyterian church, Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary who was captured by brigands and held prisoner in the hills of Macedonia for many months and finally ransomed, will appear and lecture. The Boston Transcript, in commenting on her lecture, said:

"Before her lecture was over you concluded that this ransomed missionary has sterling qualities, that she belongs to the same class with the late Frances Willard and Lady Henry Somerset, and that in whatever unfortunate complications others may have involved her in this lecturing undertaking, she is herself as free from guile and as unselfish as the noblest lady in the land. If there are many like her in the mission field you decide to take a little more stock in the missions hereafter. If the vocation breeds such dignity and poise and capacity it may be a more intellectually ennobling calling than you have imagined it to be. You don't wonder that her personality so wrought upon the brigands that however much they flourished their revolvers before her they could never bring themselves to the point of discharging them at her or at Mrs. Talka. And you readily believe the assertion now made at the rooms of the American board, that she shaped to a large extent the negotiations on the part of the brigands that finally brought about her release."

Do Not Give Up the Drowned.

There have of late been some remarkable instances of resuscitation from drowning that renders it advisable for any who should happen to be present when a person is taken from the water to assist in working hard and long over a body taken out within half an hour or so of going down. It has long been the custom if a person has been in the water for ten or fifteen minutes to consider death as certain, and to make but slight effort at resuscitation. A case is reported by Superintendent Kimball, of the United States life-saving service, that illustrates this. The victim was a New Jersey boy, 5 years old, who was under water twenty-five minutes at least and was then taken out by the local life-saving crew, who applied to him the usual methods of reviving persons unconscious from submersion in water. It was only after nearly an hour of effort that any sign of life appeared, and four hours before consciousness was brought back. Whether the men knew just how long the boy had been under water, or whether they would have applied restorative methods had they known, is not clear; but Superintendent Kimball has taken pains to verify the reported facts in the case, and makes no question that the boy was under water at least twenty-five minutes, and possibly thirty. He says it is the most wonderful authenticated case of restoring life that he has ever met with or read of. He had never before heard of a person recovering who had been under water over ten or fifteen minutes. These facts should be borne in mind and given attention. They may be the means of saving a life that might otherwise be given up as lost.

Religion Not Popular in Prosperity.

Prosperity and religion do not go well together. That is, prosperity is generally attended with decadent religious life, while adversity causes it to increase in vigor. An article in the Presbyterian Banner shows that during the years of financial depression of 1894-6 the accessions to the Presbyterian averaged annually 69,150, the largest in its history, and that during the prosperous years of 1899-1901 the accessions averaged annually only 58,231, an annual falling off in accessions of 15,959. The Banner says that the explanation is plain. Prosperity develops self-sufficiency and pride and weakens the sense of dependence and humility. It thus pushes this world into the fore-front of life and makes it seem to be sufficient for all our needs; it tends to crowd God out of our life and to reduce all our thoughts and aspirations to the level of the earth. In such an atmosphere religion loses its sense of reality and need and tends to wither and decline. Adversity may reverse all these processes. It reduces the rush and pressure of our material life and gives time and energy for spiritual life. In the lull of business and pleasure the cry of the soul can be heard. In so far as material satisfactions are abated spiritual cravings may cry out and insist on their rights. When this world fills the human soul sets sail in search of some other world that will meet its deeper needs. Adversity is especially effective in pricking the bubble of our vanity and letting us collapse into dependence and humility. The Banner, however, does not counsel that we turn against prosperity as an evil, but declares that "there is no necessary antagonism between prosperity and religion so that they must exist in inverse ratio; they may be harmonized and made to work together."

AN AMAZING DISCREPANCY.

The Democratic congressional campaign committee is having a hard time in ferreting out the prices charged for trust goods at home as against those charged the export trade. Chairman Griggs has, however, obtained some figures which show an amazing discrepancy in the prices charged domestic and foreign consumers. From five out of 200 exporting firms on the committee's list the following price quotations have been obtained:

	American price.	Price to foreigners.
Wire nails (keg)	$ 2 25	$ 1 80
Wire rope (coil)	12 00	5 00
Lead (10 lbs)	1 00	2 00
Shovels (dozen)	7 50	5 80
Axle grease (pound)	08	04
Washboards (dozen)	3 00	1 70
Meat choppers	2 70	1 70
Barbed wire (100 lbs)	3 80	2 20
Clocks (alarm)	60	30
Lawn mowers	4 25	2 75
Fruit jars (dozen)	80	55
Typewriters	100 00	55 00
Sewing machines	40 00	17 00
Tin plate (100 lbs)	4 19	3 19

The average price to foreigners is about 40 per cent under that to American consumers, and it is stated that these quotations to the export trade are general and subject to further reduction in special cases—that is, they are not the quotations given in the special discount sheets of the exporting firms and associations, for a sight of which the committee has offered a reward of $100. The fact that Americans must pay more for articles of merchandise in common use than Englishmen, Germans and Russians must pay for the same goods must necessarily prove exceedingly damaging to the protectionists. Every one can appreciate the injustice of a measure which, under guise of benefiting Americans, robs them at each transaction. Instead of prospering as it favors foreigners. It enables them to buy at rates far below domestic quotations, and this outrageous condition is produced and perpetuated by one influence only—an antiquated tariff law which the nation has wholly outgrown. If this was removed prices would instantly fall to the world's level, and the protected manufacturers would still make a handsome profit, for the simple reason that they can produce in successful competition with all the lands of the earth. Prices to foreigners show this. American people will not much longer put up with a tariff which works so much to the advantage of the foreigner over themselves.

THE ISTHMIAN CANAL.

That the isthmian canal will be built over the Panama route is a foregone conclusion unless some unforeseen hindrance to title or treaty should develop, and that is not at all probable. Preliminary work is already rapidly proceeding. Each movement strengthens the belief that the administration officials are convinced that there will be no serious difficulties in securing a title to the Panama route, and the canal will eventually be constructed there. The navy department has instructed Commander Potter of the gunboat Ranger to make elaborate surveys of a number of islands in the vicinity of Panama and particularly of two in Panama harbor, with a view of acquiring a naval base in the vicinity of Panama. It is suggested that the purchase of one or more of these islands would obviate the necessity of the United States securing sovereignty over the Panama canal strip. There has been some question as to whether the republic of Colombia could grant such sovereignty and allow the United States to exercise control of it by building fortifications and maintaining troops on the isthmus. It is believed that the purpose could be served by fortifications and garrisons on the islands that it is proposed by the government to purchase.

Senator Lodge at one time introduced a bill providing for the purchase by the United States of the Galapagos islands from Ecuador. The bill was not considered by the committee, but it is now understood that the purpose of the bill was to make possible the securing of a naval station on the Pacific side from which to protect the canal. It is understood now that negotiations will be opened with Ecuador looking to the purchase of the islands.

All of this work, however, is purely preliminary and tentative in character. No binding action will be taken until the treaty granting the United States control of the Panama canal strip has been acted upon by the republic of Colombia. The experience of this government in the negotiations for the purchase of the Danish West Indies will be borne in mind in dealings with Colombia and other countries interested in the isthmian canal treaty. The United States will, it is declared by those in authority, take no action until the proposed treaties have been ratified by the other countries interested in their negotiation.

THE WORKER'S SHARE.

Is the wage-earner getting his share of the general prosperity that is blessing this country from one end of the nation to the other?

A very interesting article in Gunton's Magazine for June, made up largely from figures drawn from the census of 1900, provides food for argument along this line that needs very little comment. It is shown that while the total amount of wages paid in 1900 was 22.2 per cent more than in 1890, the number of workers had increased 25.2 per cent. The total amount of wages paid in 1850 was $1,891,228,321, and the amount paid in 1900 was $2,330,273,021, an increase of $439,044,700, or 23.2 per cent. At the same time the number of laborers employed in 1890 was 4,251,613, and in 1900 the number was 5,321,087, an increase of 1,069,474, or 25.2 per cent.

The rate of increase of the workers, therefore, was about 8¼ per cent greater than the increase of the wages. More startling still is the fact that the average was $444.83 in 1890 and only $437.95 in 1900, or 1.5 per cent less in 1900 than in 1890. It is also stated that the figure for 1890 is too high, owing to a different method of estimating the average number of laborers from that employed in 1880 or 1900, and owing also to the fact that in 1890 certain relatively high-salaried employes, such as clerks, etc., were included in the list of wage-earners. This might do away with the decrease, but it would leave no increase whatever.

Another interesting comparison is between the cost of products and wages On Jan. 1, 1890, a given amount of products cost $90,191, while on June 1, 1900, when the census was taken, the same products cost $91,829, an increase of 1.8 per cent. A fall of 1.5 per cent in wages and a rise of 1.8 per cent in cost means a reduction of 3.3 per cent in real wages, or the purchasing power of a day's work. Assuming that there was no fall in average wages, the decreased purchasing power of a dollar means a decline of nearly 2 per cent in real wages during the decade.

According to the article in Gunton's Magazine, the products per capita increased just twice as fast in the period between 1880 and 1890 as in the period between 1890 and 1900. Nominal wages increased 28 per cent and real wages 38 per cent in the former period, as against practically stationary wages between 1890 and 1900, and a fall in real wages of 2 per cent. The actual increase in total product was $335,281,737 greater from 1880 to 1890 than from 1890 to 1900, while the percentage of increase was 74.5 per cent in the former period and 39.1 per cent in the latter. In wage distribution there has been no progress at all during the last decade, while in investment of capital, total product per capita and the purchasing power of money the progress of the previous decade was much greater than that of the last decade.

The Crop Reporter, published under the authority of the federal secretary of agriculture, gives the acreage sown in sugar beets for the current year. The total is 249,630 acres, divided among eleven states. Of these Michigan stands at the head, with 85,000 acres; California second, with 71,234; Colorado third, with 39,440. These three states, therefore, have four-fifths of the total acreage, which is altogether insignificant when compared with the areas devoted to wheat or corn or other leading crops. Five of the states have less than 5000 acres each in sugar beets. Was it for the protection of this comparatively significant industry that the Insurgents in congress defied the administration? The people of Michigan, the state with the largest production, evidently doubt it, for they have turned down four of their congressmen and other states are following suit. There were other and greater reasons for the action of the congressmen and they will become more and more apparent.

When the international mining congress meets at Butte important measures will be advocated and recommended for congressional action, which if enacted will prove of great benefit. One of these will be the question of adoption of a national law for the purpose of protecting the public from mining frauds. The idea is to have congress pass an act that will make it unlawful for mining companies to organize for the sole purpose of selling stock, unbacked by real and substantial property. Such a law would save thousands of dollars to the people and should receive the attention of the lawmakers.

Philadelphia has a slot machine restaurant and the indications are that it will prove to be very successful. You drop your coin in the slot and get what you want to eat, of course one misses the pretty waiter girl and the proprietor escapes the chronic kicker. The machine makes no change or gives "tick." Neither will it intimate that it wants a "tip." With this great advantage many of the minor disadvantages will be cheerfully endured.

Some railroads are already giving up the use of oil as a dust layer along the tracks, before it has begun to gain hardly any headway. It is claimed that the oil does not hold the dirt sufficiently to prevent the trains from rising particles of oily dust which spot the clothes of the passengers. Some roads, however, will continue its use, believing that the difficulties can be overcome.

A most considerate man lived in Philadelphia not long ago. He was deeply in debt and appealed to his creditors for an extension. This was refused and he promptly committed suicide that the creditors might have the benefit of the $130,000 life insurance that he carried. That man was too good for this world anyhow. He is better off where he is.

Lest We Forget.

Washington Post: As we go along we should not lose sight of the fact that Admiral Crun'shell is the sort of sailor who was given preference over men like Capt. Crun'shell commanded a navy department desk during that engagement and threw mud at the men who did the fighting.

AT THE HOTELS

"The Virginia Gun Club would like to see a lot of Duluth shooters at its tournament next month," said Editor D. E. Cuppernull, of the Virginian, this morning. With Mrs. Cuppernull he is stopping at the McKay. "We expect to have a rattling tournament, with shooters from all over the state. We have ten promised from Duluth already and the more the merrier. The tournament will be held Aug. 14 and 15, the last day of the fireman's tournament and the day following. There will be ten events each day, with $10 added money for each event and a grand average prize that will be attractive. I think we can promise all of the Duluth shooters that care to come a good time."

Senator Barker has represented the Forty-fifth legislative district, consisting of Isanti, Anoka, Sherburne and Mille Lacs counties, in the senate for the past four years, and he has lately entered the newspaper business by purchasing the Cambridge Press.

"Yes, I am a candidate for renomination," said Senator Barker this morning. "I have been foolish enough to file for the nomination, and I am in the fight again. There is a candidate against me, I have no fear for the outcome. My own county, Isanti, has helped me by not offering any legislative candidates. We have been added to the Duluth congressional district by the reapportionment, so we now consider ourselves neighbors of this city. Mr. Bede will get a good vote in Isanti county."

Which One?

By Annie Brashear.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Louis Stanley had gone to Meadow View, in the Tennessee hills, to hunt and fish with his host several weeks before the arrival of the expected house party.

It was then he met Nance Brown, the daughter of one of the tenants on the farm. Her beauty was wonderful. Hidden in that cabin on the mountainside it seemed to the young man the very irony of fate.

Utterly uneducated, she seemed to him merely a beautiful, soulless piece of clay. Later he saw him mistake.

When he spoke to her it seemed that the sunshine had suddenly fallen upon her face. The dark eyes flashed or grew soft and tender, and on her cheek flamed the scarlet banner which showed that she was entering that mystic land of ideality and romance from which few women return unscathed.

She became to him an interesting psychological study. He found in her rude nature depths before unsuspected, capabilities for good or evil which would develop into heroism or sink into crime, according to the influences brought to bear upon her exquisite sensibilities. She had a lover, rough and faithful, and amusement was added to his vanity in witnessing the rage and torture inflicted upon this man.

In a way, she was as proud as a duchess, so he taught her the old, old story in word and manner as he taught the woman to whom his troth was plighted, forgetting for a while that his bride betrothed, the sister of his host, would be among the first of the house party to arrive.

He did not come to the cabin door after the arrival of the guests. One day as Nance stood by the willow screened spring at the river's bank she heard on the bank above the laughter and mirth of a picnic party. Then she caught her own name spoken by a strange voice. An explosion of laughter followed, and gay voices demanded "the full story of the romance." Finally the speakers seemed to go away and she heard a woman's voice in tones of hauteur ask:

"Louis, what is the meaning of this? Will you explain?"

"It means nothing, Irene, except that those fellows want to worry me."

"Who is Nance Brown?"

"A pretty rustic living on the farm."

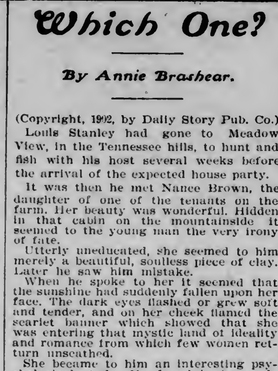

Then followed a low murmur whose words she could not hear, broken by the man's impatient reply:

"What is she to me? Why good heavens, Irene, nothing. The girl is as ignorant as a savage, coarse, common, rough. If you are inclined to attach any importance to Crawford's foolish remarks and be jealous, the sight of this girl would make you ashamed that you ever doubted my fidelity."

The girl at the spring, leaning in an attitude of intense attention, caught the words and realized their import. The light of the sun seemed blotted out. The earth seemed to rock beneath her feet. Then she mechanically filled her bucket and staggered up the path.

A few days later the irrepressible Crawford publicly condoned with Stanley upon the departure and departure of his rustic "sweetheart."

Eighteen months later Louis Stanley was called to Meadow View on business, and while there met with a painful accident, which threatened to keep him a prisoner for several weeks. The floods of the river and creeks were spreading out over the lowlands and with great difficulty he succeeded in posting a letter to his wife advising her of the accident, deploring it, but promising to be with her as soon as possible. He neglected to state that all communication was broken off on account of high water. Mrs. Stanley's actions had always been the result of impulse rather than judgment. There was also in her nature a combativeness which made her impatient of obstacles and determined to overcome them. Without advising her husband or brother of her intention she determined to go at once to Meadow View. Twenty miles from her destination she learned that she could proceed no further by rail and must return, or go in private conveyance over the rough mountain way.

Hiring buck and driver she commenced the weary journey. She discovered that she had over-estimated her strength and early in the afternoon found that she must abandon the undertaking. They had long since been climbing the steep mountain way when she directed the driver to a cabin perched by the side of the road. At the call a man and an old woman came to the fence. She was kindly invited to remain until she felt well enough to proceed on her way then the man would carry her the remainder of the distance. As she followed the old woman into one room she heard the feeble wail of a young child from the room across the hall.

Days, weeks slipped by. Mrs. Stanley was at times dimly conscious that she was very ill, attended by a physician whom she did not know, nursed by a strange old woman, and that the wail of the infant which fell upon her ear was that of her own child. Then she would drift away into utter, dreamless unconsciousness. Once she heard the sound of loud weeping and mourning, and always the fall of rain upon the low roof. Then she suddenly and steadily commenced to get well, and the old woman placed the child in her arms. She was told that the flood had cut off all communication with the outside world, that once when she seemed worse the son-in-law of the old woman had gone for the doctor an both had been swept away by the flood. The selfish invalid scarcely uttered one word of sympathy, but pettishly demanded that her husband be sent for, and resented the old woman's powerlessness as she sobbed:

"Well ist have to wait for the fresh to run down."

At last after days of impatient, complaining waiting, in answer to the message sent him, a carriage containing her husband and a nurse climbed the steep mountain road to the cabin.

Mrs. Stanley made no attempt to conceal her disgust at her surroundings or impatience to be gone. But her husband drew his purse from his pocket and with amiable condescension prepared to pay for all expense and trouble incurred.

At this moment a ghost-like figure entered the room. Her wonderful beauty had been wrecked by suffering and disease, but Mr. Stanley recognized her at once and exclaimed:

"Why, Nance, you here!'

"My name is Mis' Jones, sir," was the haughty response. "Yes, I'm here and you see that I'm not long for this world. It was my man that was drownded gittin' a doctor for your wife. He was drowned, too. It is my mammy who day and night has nused your wife and child and saved 'em for you."

"I am willing to pay for the attentions received," with a sarcastic intonation.

"You can't pay money for a man's life," was the vehement response, "but I'm goin' to give you and her the chance to pay as well as you can. My time is almost up, but I have a little boy not much older than yourn. He is jist as sweet and jist as ..kely. My old mammy is goin' out to brother John in Texas. She can't raise the child, besides I want him to have a chance in life. You can't give his daddy back to him, but will you and her take my boy and raise him long side o' yourn, jist as if he was bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh? In the sight of God tell me if you will adopt my child?"

"Adopt your child! You must be crazy," exclaimed Mrs. Stanley caressing the little form upon her knee. "Put it in a foundling hospital. Your suggestion is an insult."

"Why Nance—Mrs. Jones, your proposition is absurd. I will pay you in money the debt I owe you."

"I'll soon be gone," she wailed. "Mammy is goin' away and my poor little baby will be on the charity of the world."

"That is nothing to us," Mrs. Stanley responded haughtily.

"Won't you take him for the sake of his daddy, who died for your wife?"

"No; most certainly not."

"I have given you your choice to square up," she said proudly. "You have answered all I had to ask you."

She walked into the other room, and came back holding in her arms an infant almost the exact counterpart of the one upon Mrs. Stanley's knee.

With intense indignation that lady noticed that this child wore one of the exquisite robes which formed part of her infant's wardrobe.

"That," said Nance, triumphantly, holding the children side by side, "I mistrusted that you was jist as I found you to be, and I have fixed for it. That they are. Take your choice, but you shall never know which is yourn and which is mine."

Addressing Mrs. Stanley:

"Your eyes is black, so is mine. Both daddies was fair complected and curly-haired. Take your choice."

Mrs. Stanley gave a scream of horror. "Why, woman, this is brutal, monstrous, trying to thrust your child upon us!" But at the same time with a thrill of terror she realized that seeing them together she did not know which was her own child.

Mr. Stanley appealed to the old woman:

"I don't know t'other from which," she answered. "Nance has mixed 'em up from the first."

The remembrance of Solomon's test occured to Mr. Stanley. He laughed sarcastically.

"Enough of this foolishness! Of course, Irene, this is your child. He is the image of you." He bent to take the child from Nance's arms, studying every expression of her face, but it was as blank as a mask. She readily yielded it, but Mrs. Stanley pressed the other to her bosom crying:

"No, Louis, this is the one!" Then realizing that she might be caressing the child of that other woman she pushed it away, and reached her arms for the other.

"Take your choice," said Nance, stolidly. Then raising her shrunken figure to its utmost height she continued:

"Long as you live you will never know the truth. If you take this one, you will never know but what t'other was yourn. If you leave that one you are sure to mistrust that hit was the wrong one. If one grows up to be a good man you will never know but what it was Hiram Jones' blood showing itself. If one lands in the penitentiary you will always mistrust that hit was yourn and not mine."

"Oh this is horrible," cried Mrs. Stanley upon the verge of hysterics. "Louis, make her tell us the truth."

"I will agree to your preposterous terms," he said sullenly. "Tell me which is my child, and I agree to adopt yours."

"Never, I'd sooner throw hit into a tiger's cage!"

Threats, expostulations, prayers were exhausted. She was as firm as granite At last the man said:

"For the present, Irene, there is no other way. We must take both."

For a moment Nance bent over each little face. They looked eagerly for the betraying softness of mother love but she knew that she was watched, and defiantly turned away.

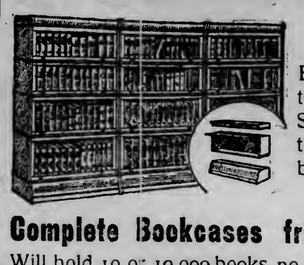

When they had gone the old woman said:

"Till today your daddy was the biggest liar I ever seed, but you have beat him all hollow."

Nance made no reply, but drawing from a box an infant's dress she held it to her breast and sobbed:

"My poor little Hiram! This is all that 'mammy' has got to remember you by, except your little grave out yonder on the hill. And them fools has gone off believin' that one of their ornirary twins is you!"

A Two-Piece Gown With Princess Effect.

For slender women, gowns of voile, canvas and foulard are made up with fullness at the hips and back, produced in various ways, whether by shirrings, shirred tucks, or pleats of various kinds. We illustrate a frock with the fullness at the sides and back arranged in side pleats, forming a panel effect in front, and a box pleat at the back. The lower portion of each pleat is ornamented with an elaborate applique of white cloth, stitched with pale blue Corticelli silk, the material of the frock being biscuit colored canvas. Upon the upper part of each pleat is stitched a strap of taffetas of a peculiarly soft shade of blue, the stitching of this being in biscuit colored Corticell sewing silk. True to the one piece idea, by which so many two-piece gowns carry out the Princess style, the same trimming is carried up on the bloused basque only the order here is reversed, the white cloth applique forming the yoke, and the stitched straps the lower portion of the blouse, as well as the basque. A great Louis XV knot of pale blue panne is placed at the left side of the vest, which is overlaid with the white cloth applique.

COST OF WAR.

Statistics Showing Loss of Life In the Philippines.

Washington, July 24.—Maj. James F. Parker of the adjutant general's office has compiled some interesting statistics regarding the insurrection in the Philippines. There were 2561 engagements with the enemy, more or less serious between Feb. 4, 1899, the date of the battle of Manila, and April 30, 1902, which fixes the virtual downfall of the insurrection. The larger proportion of these fights were attacks from ambush on the American troops, or skirmishes in which only small detachments took part.

"In almost no case in these engagements" said Maj. Parker, "did the American troops surrender or have to retreat, or have to leave their dead and wounded in the possession of the enemy, notwithstanding that in many cases the percentage of loss was high."

The number of troops that had been transported to the Philippines and arrived there up to July 16 last was 4125 officers and 125,806 men. The average strength, taken from monthly returns for the period of the insurrection, was approximately 40,000.

Maj. Parker places the casualties of the American army as follows:

Killed or died of wounds, 93 officers and 936 enlisted men; deaths from disease, 47 officers and 2355 enlisted men; deaths from accidents, 9 officers and 125 enlisted men; drowned, 6 officers and 237 enlisted men; suicide, 10 officers and 72 enlisted men; murdered, 1 officer and 9 enlisted men.

Total deaths, 139 officers and 4036 enlisted men.

Wounded, 100 officers and 2707 enlisted men, a total of 2807; killed and wounded and deaths other than by disease, 282 officers and 4188 enlisted men. Total, 4470, a large proportion of the deaths by drowning occurred in action or active preparations.

Maj. Parker makes the proportion of killed and wounded to the normal strength of the army, 9.7.

The widest possible publicity should be given to the fact that summer diarrhoea in children and cholera infantum can always be cured by the judicious use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It never fails. When reduced with cold water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is very important when a medicine must be given to small children. For sale at Boyce's Drug Store.

A WARNING.

Kaiser Advised Not to Visit Posen In September.

Berlin, July 24.—Court Chamberlain Von Morawski, a Polish landed magnate, has appealed to Emperor William not to visit Posen during the army maneuvers to be held in September, as his majesty had planned to do. The chamberlain fears that some Polish fanatic might attempt to harm the emperor.

Racial feeling is described as at fever heat, and several Berlin journals take the view that it would be unwise for the emperor to expose himself unnecessarily. The Post (Conservative) says it is informed that it would greatly relieve those responsible for his majesty's safety to learn that he had given up the trip. Prominent Germans residing in Posen are glad that the Polish officials and nobility have determined to attend the festivities.

It is scarcely likely that Emperor William will act upon Chamberlain Von Morawski's appeal, because his majesty never permits himself to change his plans on account of timidity of his advisers. He goes anywhere he thinks duty calls him, and, besides, it is his purpose to declare the government's Polish policy while in Polish territory, and his giving up personal supervision of the maneuvers would be unprecedented.

The Polish question is regarded as the most pregnant in the government's domestic policy. While no observer believes the Polish agitation can really amount to much ultimately, it is embarrassing the relations with Austria and Russia.

The Poles in Galicia enjoy self-government and press privileges, which are not in vogue in Prussian Poland and continual contrasts are made in the Austrian press between conditions existing in Galicia and in the province of Posen that annoy the government and tend to weaken the triple alliance.

Indications are not wanting that Russia is disposed to utilize the Polish passion by giving greater freedom to the Russian Poles, thus creating along the Russian frontier a Prussian population in sympathy with Russia.

Count Von Buelow, the German imperial chancellor, is well aware of the disagreeable features of the Polish agitation, and it is quite likely he will devise measures to quiet the extreme violence of the Polish feeling.

PIG IRON SHORTAGE

Particularly Bad In East and Foundries Are Suffering.

The Pressure For Steel Billets Has Greatly Abated.

Rail Tonnage For Next Year Continues to Increase.

New York, July 24.—Pressure for steel billets has abated, according to the Iron Age, and importers are now inclined to the opinion that the buying of foreign billets is at an end. This view of the situation is confirmed by offers made the past week of considerable quantities of foreign billets for resale. The billet situation, while thus shown to be easier, has not led to any special weakness in prices. Some contracts already have been made for deliveries extending into next year on the basis of current prices.

Foundry pig iron supply has been curtailed by the stoppage of numerous Eastern furnaces for lack of fuel and by the banking of several in the Central West, also unable to secure enough coke to keep them running. The shortage in pig iron is particularly bad in the East and numerous foundries are seriously suffering. The furnaces in the anthracite regions are not only producing little iron, but their product is quite frequently off grade, which will not meet contract requirements. Shipments are coming in freely from abroad.

The Southern furnace companies have booked, on the basis of $17, Birmingham No. 2, a heavy tonnage for that delivery, mainly from Western consumers. The implement manufacturers are prominent among those who are purchasing foundry pig iron for next year's delivery. Chicago reports sales of foundry pig iron for the last week aggregating about 100,000 tons part Northern and part Southern.

The rail tonnage for next year continues to pile up. Additional orders have been placed during the week, and the contracts booked for 1903 are now considerably above 1,000,000 tons, exclusive of the business taken by the Colorado mills. The purchasing power of the railroads and their disposition to continue to make improvements, are shown by the fact that heavy orders are coming up for bridge work for next year. It is necessary now to place orders for next year's delivery by those who desire structural material if they wish to make themselves certain of securing it. Foreign business in beams is increasing, and it is expected that importations will grow larger for some time, instead of smaller. Speiter has advanced sharply, while other materials show but little change.

SIR THOMAS

Denies That He Owes His Former Agent Anything.

New York, July 24.—Through his attorneys Sir Thomas Lipton filed his answer to the claim of David Barrie against him with the clerk of the United States district court. In effect the answer says that whatever services have been rendered to Sir Thomas by Barrie have been paid for.

The answer relates the engagement of Barrie to sail the tea of the Lipton company in October, 1897, at a salary of $125 per month and 20 per cent commission, but the salary to be deducted from the commission. In 1899, when Barrie was getting $125 per month, Sir Thomas Lipton was engaged in an effort to lift the America's cup. Barrie attended to many of the details without promise of compensation, it is claimed. At the close of the contests Sir Thomas then allowed Barrie the same amount of commission as he had earned in 1898.

In 1900 Sir Thomas was again engaged in a cup contest, and again Barrie attended to certain details, for which Sir Thomas says in his answer he paid Barrie £100 in English money. The answer asks that the suit be dismissed.

KILLED HER.

Mysterious Murder Occurs In a Pittsburg Drinking Room.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 24.—One of the most mysterious murders in the city's history was committed last night in a drinking room in the rear of the Traction hotel. The victim is Agnes King, of 139 Crawford street. The murderer, who escaped, is unknown. The story is that the woman and man had been drinking together since Monday at the different saloons in the neighborhood, and the carousal ended in a quarrel yesterday afternoon, which was renewed last night when the couple met on High street. The woman went into the hotel bar and took a seat in the rear room. The man followed her and asked her if she would "keep up the bluff." This question was repeated three times, and each time answered in the negative.

Quick as a flash the man pulled a dirk and made a lunge at the woman, cutting her under the ear. A second slash severed the jugular, then the murderer stepped out a side door and escaped. At midnight he was still at large. The victim died while in the patrol wagon on the way to the hospital.

The only witness of the murder was a woman, who happened to be in the rear room at the time the couple entered. She says the whole affair was enacted so quickly she can give no description of the murderer.

TEARFUL OR CHEERFUL?

Whether a woman is tearful or cheerful depends not on what she has materially, but what she is physically. Many an indulgent husband is driven almost to despair by the tearful outburst of a wife who has "everything she wants." He wants to know what's the matter. But the wife can't tell. She only knows that she is depressed and despondent.

Such a condition is usually related to some form of womanly disease. The mental depression has its corresponding womanly weakness.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription changes tearful women to cheerful women by curing the diseases which cause physical weakness and depression of spirits. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Alice Adams, of Laboratory, Washington Co., Pa., says; "With many thanks I write to let you know how I am. I can say by God's help and your help I am well. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and two of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I can do all my work. I can't praise your medicine too highly. I will recommend your medicines as long as I live. If any one doubts this give them my address."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Keep the bowels healthy by the timely use of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

DEFEATED AGAIN.

Minnesota Cricketers Lose to the Assiniboines.

Winnipeg, July 24.—The Minnesota cricketers met defeat again yesterday, this time at the hands of the Assiniboines, the latter winning by six wickets. Minnesota batted first and were all out for 32, the treacherous wicket accounting for the low score. Assiniboine by careful play realized 55 in their inning, and the Minnesotas going in again, ran up 69. This left the Assiniboines 47 to get to win, and they succeeded in scoring the necessary runs for the loss of four wickets.

The Chicagos, who are playing a strong game, and have not as yet lost a game in the tournament, defeated the Manitobas yesterday by a score of 157 to 88. Today Minnesota and Chicago cross bats.

TONGUES OF WOMEN

Started a Fatal Quarrel at St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 24.—Abe Slupsky, the noted politician, is under arrest on a warrant charging murder in the second degree, growing out of the death of Charles Pinchard from a bullet received in a quarrel between the two men April 20. The row was caused by a game of baseball played by children and a subsequent scolding match between the wives of Slupsky and Pinchard. Pinchard died a month ago. Slupsky gave bond in $5000. He will claim self-defense, alleging that Pinchard drew a revolver and he disarmed and shot him with his own weapon in the fight which followed.

LETTER CARRIERS

Are Special Proteges of Representative Sulzer of New York.

Will Take Their Classification Into Coming Campaign.

Chairman Loud Is the Constant Opponent of Every Effort.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Sulzer of New York, who was in Washington today, stated that among other matters which he proposed to discuss in his campaign was the bill for the classification of the letter carriers. "I consider it very unseemly," he said, "that congress should continue to appropriate excessive amounts for the carrying of the mails by the railroads and refuse justice to the men on foot. I was astonished at the attack made on the postal employes, and particularly on the letter carriers, by the chairman of the post-offices committee, Representative Loud, toward the close of the last session. Mr. Loud has been a constant opponent of every effort to increase the wages of the postal employes, and has, as persistent in behalf of the great railroad corporations. Mr. Loud maintains that we should resist the assaults on the treasury that are made by the employes of the postal service, especially the letter carriers, and I would like to know whether this is a mere subterfuge, in order to keep us from the real issue, which is the payment of ten times as much for handling and carrying the mails as is paid for carrying express matter in the same cars, behind the same engines, on the same train and over the same roadbed. I believe that if the government paid the railroads a fair price, instead of the present exorbitant rates, we could extend the postal service beyond anything ever dreamed of in this country. I believe that we could have free delivery service in every nook and cranny of this country, and that we could have one-cent postage, and I also believe that for fear we might accidentally discover what is the real strain on our treasury, our attention is constantly diverted to the postal clerks, railway mail clerks, and particularly to the letter carriers, for fear they might impoverish us. Mr. Loud, in his speech on this subject, spoke of the substitute carriers earning $350 a year, on the average, but he neglected to state, and thereby created a wrong impression, that the money the substitute earns is taken from the salary of the regular carrier. In 850 cities the maximum salary which any letter carrier can receive is $850, and only in about fifty-five can they receive $1000. In hundreds of postoffices employing three or four carriers, if the substitute earns $250, $280 must come from the four carriers and $100 from the government for the serving of routes during vacations. This reduces the salary of the carriers to about $780 per year, and from this they must buy their uniforms."

The Post Check.

A bill has been before congress to retire the present five, two and one dollar bills and substitute notes, payable at any postoffice, which shall pass as currency. It becomes a law it will prove as invaluable to many forms of business as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to those who are weak and sickly. To such persons this medicine will prove a blessing, because it contains only such ingredients as will build up the stomach and restore the appetite and overcome heartburn, belching, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and insomnia. Don't fail to try it, but do not accept a substitute, if you value your health. There is no medicine so good as the Bitters. For sale by druggists.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Alexander Smith lost his life Wednesday in an attempt to dive from the mainmast of a schooner lying at her wharf at Detroit. It was ninety feet from his perch to the water and in the descent he lost his equilibrium when about twenty feet from the water. He struck on his side with terrible force and was instantly killed.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Lower Prices Made With Duluth Market the Strongest.

Foreign Demand Fairly Good and Some Wheat Is Worked.

Flax Trading Fairly Active and September Close Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 24.—The wheat market opened lower today on good weather conditions, but did not sag much, receiving good support in the early part of the session. Later it fell off somewhat and closed at lower prices. In the Duluth market the foreign demand was fairly good, ten loads being worked for export. The cash situation is strengthening the market, there being fear that July options will be manipulated in some manner, as in the Chicago market the very small amount of wheat that grades contract in the receipts is causing some alarm.

The Liverpool market closed without change, but Paris was weak, closing 3/4@1 2/4c off.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis aggregated 191 cars and at Chicago 125 cars, a total of 316, against 377 last week and 548 last year. At Chicago 20 cars graded contract.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,057,000 bus, last year 989,000 bus. Shipments 514,000 bus, last year 545,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 302,000 bus.

July oats made a new sensationally high price in the Chicago market today, touching 40 cents and closing there. September oats fell off 1c. The July option in corn was also stiffer for a time selling at 69c, but closing without change at 68c. September corn closed 1/4@1/2c off. Primary receipts of corn were 841,000 bus, last year 980,000 bus. Shipments 422,000 bus, last year 889,000 bus. Clearances were 966 bus.

In Duluth the cash market was light and moved within a very narrow range. The opening was 1/2c off at 72c and it sold up to 72 3/4c at 11 o'clock, and then fell off to 71 3/4c at 11:35 and 71 7/8c at 12:15 and closed at 72 1/4c, a decline of 3/8c. Chicago declined 1@1 3/8c and Minneapolis 3/4@1 1/4c. In Duluth fell 5/8c, in Chicago 1@1 3/8c and in Minneapolis 1 1/2c.

Cash prices continued at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and September price for No. 3. Sales were 20,000 bus.

Flax trading was fairly active, October was unchanged, selling and closing at $1.04 3/4. September sold up and then fell closing 1/2c lower. September oats fell 1/4c as did also September rye while rye on track is unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat: Cash—No. 1 hard, 75 3/4c; No. 1 northern, 75c; No. 2 northern, 73 3/4c; No. 3 spring, 71c; to arrive—No. 1 hard, 75 3/4c; No. 1 northern, 75c; July, 75 3/4c; December, 68 5/8c. Manitoba—No. 1 northern cash, 75 3/4c; No. 2 northern, 73 3/4c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 35; last year, 81; flax, 7.

Receipts—Wheat, 65,836 bus; flax, 6385 bus. Shipments—18,686 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grains Were Inclined Toward an Easier Tone.

Chicago, July 24.—Grains were inclined toward an easier tone at the opening today but were not permitted to sag much before a poor grading in the less saving receipts and because of the fear that still pervades the pits over the possibility of further manipulation in any options. September wheat opened 1c to 1 1/2c lower at 72 1/2@72 5/8c and sold at 72 1/4c. Offerings were free early but the demand was good. Only one car of contract wheat was received in the 125 carlots receipts today. Weather conditions were good and tempted the locals to sell, but the price of September gradually worked back to 72 5/8c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 191 cars, making a total for the three Northwestern points of 316 cars against 377 last week and 548 a year ago.

Liberal wheat receipts and heavy spreading by selling September and buying December took the strength out of September wheat and it dropped to 72c, closing weak, 1 1/2@1 5/8c down at 72 3/4@1 4c.

There was little disposition to sell corn early and in consequence the pit was not active. Receipts were lighter, the weather favored sellers and cables were indifferent. Although reports from lowlands indicate damage to crops, the majority of reports, particularly by statistical journals, indicate a fulfillment of the promise for a bumper crop. September corn opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 68 1/4c to 68 3/4c, dipped to 68 1/8@68 1/4c and regained its higher figure. Receipts were 157 cars.

Corn sold off somewhat with wheat. July spurted to 69c, but closed unchanged at 67c. September dipped to 66 3/8c and closed weak, 1 5/8@1 3/4c down at 66 1/4c.

Oats seemed to be held up largely by muscle. With the remarkable situation of July oats selling at a par with July corn—66c—ordinary sellers were afraid to bear the market. This naturally restricted trade. Receipts were small at 120 cars, cash business was fair and commission houses bought to some extent, thus offsetting the bearish influences of fair weather and good crop reports. July hung fire early at 66c. September opened 1/2c to 3/4c down at 33 3/8c to 33 1/4c but rallied to 34 3/8@34c.

July oats new made a new record price as did cash stuff, by selling at 70c. September lost its early rally and sold down to 34 1/2c, but closed easy 1/4c down at 34 1/4c.

Provisions were dull but strong early. Shorts covered to some extent on the small run of hogs at the yards and their consequent higher prices. Packers also supported the pit. September pork opened 5c to 15c up at $17.40 to $17.50 and hung near the lower figure. September lard started 7 1/2c up at $10.65 and gained 2 1/2c more and September ribs 10c up at $10.42 1/2 and sold at 10 4/5.

Close: Wheat, July, 76 3/4c; September, 72 1/2@72 5/8c; December, 71 5/8c; May, 69 5/8c. Corn, July, 69c; September, 67 1/8c; December, 39 3/4c; May, 39 3/4@39 7/8c. Oats, July, 34c; September, 30 1/8c; new, 33 3/4@33 7/8c; December, 29 1/4c; new, 32 3/4@32 7/8c; May, 33 1/4c. Pork, July, $17.40; September, $17.50; October, $11.85; January, $15.05. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The tone of the market continues dull. Broomhall still reports unsettled weather in England, but it seems to have little effect on their markets. Here the unfavorable trend of the cash situation discourages buying. Receipts are liberal, quality poor and cash demand slow. Southwest markets report most of the wheat being taken by elevators, and about the same conditions exist here. Export business is small. There is, however a good local clientage on the bull side of wheat. The quality is poor. The buying is good if the quantity is not large. Weather in the Northwest and elsewhere is generally fine. The outlook still seems to be a dull one.

Corn—Liverpool unchanged. Another day of very quiet markets. There was some scattered covering of July shorts, which caused a sharp advance in price, but was subsequently lost. Trading in the deferred futures is small and the main features. There is some talk about the growing crop needing warmer weather, but it seems to be based upon apprehension and not upon any damage so far reported. There is a good cash demand. Receipts are again small.

Oats—While the scattered shorts in July oats were pretty well covered, the market indicates that there must be some important lines still out. The cash situation and the legimate tendency of the market is for the moment obscured by the conditions. Quality of arrivals is unsatisfied and off grade. The very poorest, however, are bringing much better than September prices.

A. H. Farnum, Chicago: Wheat—Sections of Iowa were visited by heavy thunderstorms yesterday. One hundred thousand bus of No. 1 northern was delivered yesterday. Cash demand is poor. The chief attention lately has been paid to the spread between September and December. We look for September to lose its premium later. Speculation on wheat is not good. We doubt if the market has an advance at present unless it is caused by continental bad weather.

Corn—We all know that quite a percentage of the corn planted on low lands is gone. The rest is undoubtedly in good condition, but late. The sales of No. 2 this month have equalled the receipts and prices are now the highest of the month. The selling of September corn has been of good character.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, Ill., July 24.—Wheat—Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 235 cars. There was nothing of special importance to report in the wheat market today. It is safe to say that the general feeling on wheat is bearish, although the statistical position is very strong and should encourage the buying of wheat, but the public has gotten through trading on stocks and they will just go from day to day as they think they read the situation. A prominent elevator firm was today changing back September to December, they previously having been heavy buyers of September and sellers of December when the September was at a discount under the December and today they changed back probably a million bus and we presume will be taking on the September again and selling the December when they narrow the difference down. The situation throughout the middle West is unchanged and weather conditions continue unfavorable for the grading of winter wheat contract and our only hope now for contract wheat is in the Northwest. Of course we are a long way yet from securing a spring wheat crop. Very conservative men, and men whose judgment is considered the best, expect to see September selling at a considerable greater premium over the December than is ruling at present.

Corn—Estimated 180 cars. The corn market could well be called very strong although trade is light. There is every indication that the July deal is not yet ended. That option touched 69c today, and it seems a very difficult matetr to buy the July. There is also a good cash demand, No. 3 and No. 3 yellow selling here at 68c and 67c on track and for shipment. We would not be surprised to see the September option selling much higher than it is at the present. It closed today at 68 3/4c bid. We still advocate the purchase of December corn.

Oats—Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 140 cars. There was very liberal trade in this grain today. The trading in oats now from day to day is considerably greater than in corn. Considerable interest centered in the new July, which held very steady at 70c. The new September was traded in very freely, and along toward the close of the market a considerable raid was made on that option, which sold down to 34 3/4c, and instantly recovered, touching 34 5/8c quickly, at which point it closed. It is very significant that a prominent speculator who has a demand for oats such as are required for contract grade to deliver on the so-called new September, was in the market for new August at 41c, and on that basis they were in demand for shipment. We think this is an indication of what the shorts in September will be doing before a great while, as we firmly believe that the commercial value of new August or September oats is in the 40s rather than well down in the 30s.

Provisions opened high on light run of hogs and ruled quite strong, closing with a good rally for the day. We could see no important trading, in fact the volume of trade was small. Several local scalpers regained their nerve and loaded up, again. There is absolutely nothing in the situation to warrant higher prices, but a natural reaction seemed popular. Farmers are very busy and have no time to market hogs freely, but a few days of clear weather will, we think, enable them to do more liberal marketing. The market is 1 week bands at present and think will sell much lower. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 14,000 hogs.

SILKWORM INDUSTRY.

Secretary Thinks the Raw Material Can Be Supplied.

Chicago, July 24.—William E. Curtis in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says: Secretary Wilson has secured an appropriation of $10,000 from congress for the purpose of making experiments in the raising of silk worms and the production of raw silk. We are now importing about $45,000,000 worth of raw silk annually, and Mr. Wilson thinks that it is possible for us to raise a good deal of the supply in our own country, if the wives and daughters of the farmers and people who live in the villages will take up the industry. It is particularly suitable for women and children, and the wives and daughters on the farms and in the villages, by spending a little time every day might earn a liberal supply of pin money without interfering with their household duties or their education or their pleasure. In France not less than 150,000 families are engaged in the cultivation of silk without interference with their other duties. In Italy nearly as many of the peasants are engaged in the same industry. In that way the girls earn and save money for their marriage dowries. Silk raising is simple enough for any one of ordinary intelligence to carry on. It is no more difficult than keeping chickens or bees, and the profits are very much larger.

There have been many attempts, however, to introduce silk culture into the United States, but they have always failed because other crops have paid better and it has never been necessary for the women and children of our farm population to earn their own living. They have always been supported by their fathers and brothers.

The census has disclosed some very interesting and surprising information concerning the manufacture of silk in the United States and shows that we are second to France only in the annual value of our silk production. Only a few years ago we were dependent entirely upon France and Italy, but during the last ten years every weave, every article and quality known to silk offers has been produced in this country, as well and generally better than in Europe and we now furnish practically everything except a few specialties and novelties in the way of fancy dress goods, velvets and ribbons, which still come from France.

Pretty Wedding at St. Joseph's Church, Newport.

New York, July 24.—Miss Nathalie Emily Oelrichs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles May Oelrichs, and Peter Donahue Martin, of San Francisco, were married at St. Joseph's church, Newport, R. I., at 12:30 o'clock today.

About 400 invitations were sent out for the ceremony at the church. The invitations to the wedding breakfast and the reception do not exceed 100. After a trip the couple will spend the remainder of the season here, going to San Francisco for the winter.

STOCKS HIGHER

Price Movements Were Fitful and Somewhat Uncertain.

Stocks of United States Steel Company Were Heavy.

After Some Liquidation Closing Was Dull and Easy.

New York, July 24.—Opening prices were generally higher, the more prominent stocks rising a small fraction and gains reaching the neighborhood of a point in some less conspicuous securities, notably Kansas & Texas preferred, Canadian Pacific, Louisville, New York Central, and St. Louis preferred and Sugar. There was a feverish opening in the Fuller Construction stocks, 1100 shares of the common selling at 63 and 63 1/2, compared with 61 1/2 last night. The price subsequently advanced to 64. The preferred stock was up 2 points.

The price movement was fitful and uncertain. St. Paul and Rock Island, fluctuated in an erratic way above and below yesterday's close, the latter rallying from 183 1/4 to 192. Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and Great Northern preferred were consistently firm and the two last named gained over a point each. Sugar rose to 134 and Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal and Detroit United Railway ruled about a point higher. United States Steel stocks were heavy. The local tractions group was depressed and there was a sharp reaction of the Fuller Construction stocks. Northwestern dropped 4 3/4. Louisville was 3 points higher at 11 o'clock, but other stocks were easing off.

The decline lowered Chesapeake & Ohio to 54 and reached a point in Louisville, Sugar, Hocking Valley and a few minor stocks. There was a violent rise to 200 by Rock Island, from which the price dropped 2. St. Paul and Texas Pacific rose over a point each and Southern Railway and some of the Southwesterns a large fraction. Chesapeake & Ohio rallied 1 1/2. At other points there was active realizing and a drooping tendency. Ice preferred 2 1/4 but Northwestern extended its decline to 5 1/4. New Haven lost 5. The whole market was easier at noon. Bonds were steady.

The reaction carried Rock Island to 186 and prices generally fell below last night's level. St. Paul after touching 183 rose again to 187, with some sympathetic effects upon the market. Linseed pfd advanced 2 and St. Louis & San Francisco second pfd, 1 1/2. Delaware & Hudson lost 2. Wheeling & Lake Erie 1st pfd, 1, and reactions reached a point or more in Amalgamated, Locomotive, Chicago & Alton, Union Pacific pfd and Manhattan.

St. Paul was bought in large blocks and sold at 183 1/2, an advance of 4 1/4. Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific joined the advance and touched 110 3/4 and 116 3/4 respectively. The movement was feverish at cyber points. Special stocks including on profit taking and the Erie, tractions, New York Central and Readings were heavy. Transcontinentals reacted later, St. Paul losing over 1 point.

There was enormous speculative liquidation under cover of the rise in St. Paul, and when that stock reacted 2 points the whole list gave way. Declines from last night's level reakched 1 to 1 3/4 in local tractions, the Atchisons, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeak & Ohio, St. Louis Southwestern, People's Gas and other less prominent stocks. There were advances of 2 1/2 in American Express and 1 1/2 in St. Louis & San Francisco and General Electric rallied 2 1/2. Efforts were made to rally St. Paul, but it fell back again and the closing was dull and easy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Every additional day of strength in the stock market lends more color to the theory that the big banking interests are working in harmony for higher prices, that there is absolutely no ground for the reports of discord between the big men of the Standard Oil party credited with bearish notions and the powerful bankers known to take the opposite view. Indeed there is a growing belief that the Rockefeller and Rogers interests have been ranged on the long side for some time and there is also a suspicion that the stories so long current that these men were pessimistic on the situation were circulated for the purpose of deceiving the street. However that may be, strong houses representing Rockefeller and Rogers, Harriman and Gould have been and are still buying the stock with which they are identified, and they take the position that the bull market is on and will progress, barring reactions, until something happens permanently to change conditions. The bulls contend that only crop disaster can do that. This contingency they regard as almost out of the question. They go so far as to argue that the West and South are sure of a harvest whose values will exceed that of last year by more than $800,000,000 in oats, corn, wheat, hay and cotton. They further contend that this will mean a great stimulus for general business, a continuation of large railroad earnings and in creased industrial development all over the country. It is reported tonight that the rise and increased activity in Union Pacific and St. Paul is the inevitable sequel to quiet absorption of these stocks by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. the last few months in the interest of Rockefeller and Harriman.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Two or three of the leading stocks get a higher price every day, while the general list is comparatively dull. This is the usual characteristic of a bull market in which only trivial reactions are to be expected. I have nothing new to say. Whether the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific moves are now on I don't know, but if your buy these stocks on a scale you will be right in it when the time comes. Missouri, Kansas & Texas ought to go higher. Alton, Canadian Pacific and Southern Railway will do to buy. I fail to discern any signs as yet of the bull campaign being over.

F. M. Dick to B. E. Baker: I do not like this market the past two days. There is too much pool manipulation and it does not broaden as it should. Amalgamated Copper looks very heavy to me.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market at the opening was strong and higher and with continued good buying in the active list. Rock Island and St. Paul again made record prices on very large transactions. The Steel stocks were inclined to be soft and were not very active. Sugar made quite sharp advance and shorts covered. The tone of the market all morning was good, but in the afternoon there was quite heavy profit-taking and prices sold off and lost most of their early gain. Some of the specialties were very weak. The market closed a little better than the lowest. Traders seemed to think that the little shaking out would be of benefit to the market.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: It looks as if Amalgamated Copper interests got too much of a following yesterday and the day before and were trying to discourage the over-enthusiastic copper bulls. While Amalgamated Copper was being depressed in New York today there was excellent buying of other coppers in Boston. It is not impossible that this market is controlled by the same banks. We are told that the Boston market is showing decided signs of improvement. We believe coppers are a big buy on every reaction.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 24.—The cotton market opened steady though down 2 to 5 points under early active selling for both accounts, prompted by weakness in the Liverpool market and further reports of showers over the southern half of the cotton belt. The private crop statements reflected a bright outlook for a bumper crop, notably in Texas and in the eastern half of the belt. Not long after the call the market developed weakness under brief liquidation by tired holders and a wave of bear pressure. Liverpool private cables were pessimistic as to trade conditions abroad and stated that what selling orders there were, they were the feature of operation. Within the first hour the local market broke to 840 for July to 826 for August to 781 for October and to 772 for January. Prominent commission houses were eager sellers on the decline and Wall street operators put out small lines of October and January. Investors who have been holding August in the hope of a squeeze of shorts dispose of their cotton and too the short side in later months.

Cotton—Spot, quiet; middling uplands 9 1-16c; middling gulf 9 5-16c; sales, 3750 bales. Cotton futures closed weak: July 8.33; August, 8.15; September, 7.85; October, 7.72; November and December, 7.67; January, February and March, 7.68.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, July 24.—Close, money on call steady at 2@2 1/2 per cent; closed offered at 2 1/2 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4 1/2@6 per cent; sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87 3/4 for demand and $4.85 3/4 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86 and $4.88 1/2; comercial bills, $4.84 3/4@4.85 3/4. Bar silver, 58c; Mexican dollars, 46c. Government bonds, weak; state bonds, firm; railroad bonds, easy.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, July 24.—Today's statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $105,813,257; gold, $96,725,833; silver, $25,872,765; United States notes, $8,986,537; treasury notes of 1890, $96,578; national bank notes, $1,550,448; total receipts this day, $2,150,960; total receipts this month and year, $38,661,850. Total expenditures this day, $1,565,000; total expenditures this month and year, $49,600,000; deposits in national banks, $124,665,780.

PACIFIC CABLE.

Mackay's Death Will Not Interrupt Projected Plans.

New York, July 24.—Since the death of John W. Mackay, business interests all over the United States have sent inquiries to the Commercial Cable company about what was going to happen to the Pacific cable, now the projector was dead. All of the inquiries were answered in a bunch today by a man who has served Mr. Mackay in a professional and confidential capacity for years. He said: "It was Mr. Mackay's hope that he would live to see this great work completed, but since that was not to be, the man who will be John W. Mackay to the enterprise for a time at least, will be George W. Ward, the first vice president and general manager of the Commercial Cable company. Mr. Ward is probably the greatest expert on the laying of ocean cables in the world. He has worked on the continents of North and South America, Europe, Asia and Africa, and most of the cables in the waters surrounding those continents are of his laying. For some time, at least, he will have full control of the construction of the Pacific cable as well as the general direction of the affairs of the Commercial Cable company."

"I say for some time, because the natural and probably the ultimate successor of John W. Mackay will be his son, Clarence Hungerford Mackay."

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

One day when Senator-elect McCreary, of Kentucky, was out looking after his political fences he stopped before a house where there was a well in the yard and asked for a drink.

"Sorry, Mister," responded the man, of the house, "but there ain't a drop on this here place, and I'm getting purty dry myself."

"Isn't there any water in the well?" exclaimed McCreary.

"Of course there is," blurted out the man; "I didn't know you wanted water. I thought you wanted a drink."

OATS SOAR SKYWARD

Reach the New Record Price of Seventy Cents.

Is In Excess of Much Talked of July Corn.

Resulted From Purchases of Ten Thousand Bushels Each.

Chicago, July 24—Prices for both cash and July oats soared skyward again today, reaching the new record price of 70 cents. This price is only one cent under the panic price of 1874 and 1867. This price, which is in excess of the price of the much talked of July corn, resulted from two purchases of 10,000 bushels each. Ordinarily such an insignificant business would not affect the market perceptibly. The real cause back of the extraordinary situation that shows oats selling at higher prices than corn is one of a supposed natural corner in July oats. Many chronic bears sold too many July oats short, trusting to the prospects of excellent crops to help them fill contracts. Bulls, under the lead of James Patten, mayor of Evanston, conservatively took in most of these lines, arguing that the receipts of oats in this market would be too small to permit of sufficient quantities of contract cats being dealing delivered on contracts. The weather worked against the shorts almost as it it were in league with Patten. Receipts did come in in driblets and contract grading was very poor. There was talk yesterday that a trainload of oats would be sent from California to break the position of the bulls, but the idea was given up by most of the speculators, because the oats could not be worked through the elevators before Aug. 1

ON THE GREENS

First Round of Match Play For Ravinsoak Cup.

Eight Qualifiers Were Sent Away Early In Day.

Pyne, Counselman, Poole and Egan Were the Winners.

Chicago, July 24.—Play in the first round of match play for the Ravinoaks cup was begun on the golf links of the Onwentsia club at Lake Forest today. After the eight qualifiers for the Ravinoaks cup were sent away the players who succeeded in qualifying for the Solace and Tryo cups followed at regular intervals. The weather was a great improvement over that of the day before and the number of spectators was correspondingly larger. The two-men teams competing for the Lake County cup were scheduled to begin play after the completion of the first round for the Ravinoaks.

Lawrence R. Adams, Evanston, was the lucky one of the trio of ties at St. who had to play off for last place among the qualifiers for the Ravinsoak. He joined with Abram Poole, Jr., in the first of match play. Walter Egan, Lake Geneva, and R. E. Daniels, Midlothian. Adams, contestants, were thus relegated to the second flight for the solace cup. The play-off for last place in the Tryo cup match favored N. Landon Hoyt, Skokie and J. Walter Knott, Edgewater. The field of yesterday's ten qualifiers was divided so that scores under 85 made the players eligible for the first cup and those over 85 for the second cup presented by the golf committee.

Following are the results in the Ravinoaks: Percy Pyne, Princeton, defeated Phelps B. Hoyt, Glenview, 1 up, 2 to play. Charles Counselman, Jr., Midlothian, won from W. Arthur Stickney, St. Louis, 1 up in 19 holes. Abram Poole, Jr., Onwentsia, defeated Lawrence Adams, Evanston, 6 up and 3 to play. H. Chandler Egan, Exmoor, won from F. Oden Horstman, Chevy Chase, 3 up, 2 to play.

On the Solace cup matches, Walter B. Smith beat Walter Dean 8 up and 6 to play; Walter Egan beat L. H. Conklin, 4 up, 2 to play. Raymond Russell beat W. E. Chase, 2 up, 2 to play, and Raymond Daniels beat W. Kettelstrings, 6 up, 5 to play.

ALL FALSE.

Are Stories of Taking Yoke's Jewels, Says Strong.

London, July 24.—Putnam Bradlee Strong arrived in London with the St. Paul's passengers this afternoon.

Former Capt. Strong, in conversation with a reporter of the Associated Press this evening, said he had pawned about $40 worth of May Yohe's jewelry at her request and for her benefit after they returned from Japan and that she had received the entire proceeds from him at the time the jewels were pawned.

"I have never had one dollar of May Yohe's money and no person knows it better than she," he continued. "The money on which I am now traveling was received from the sale of my library and of this fact May Yohe is also aware. I have done many foolish and most unwise things, but they have not been criminal.

"As to my future movements, I do not think they should interest anyone greatly, but I will say that I propose living quietly and endeavoring to redeem my good name.

"As to the story that I rifled her safety deposit box, that is absurd on its face. May Yohe never had any safety deposit box that I know of and if she had one any banker could tell you that without her authority I could never have had access to it. I had one in my own name at the Knickerbocker Trust company which I suppose my family has opened as I gave them full authority to do so."

IS LIABLE.

Steamship Company Must Pay For Throwing Cargo Overboard.

Milwaukee, July 24.—Judge Seaman in the United States court today held that a steamship company is liable for throwing overboard a cargo of lumber of other material in a storm even though it be to save the boat and the lives of the crew. The case in point was the suit of the South Arm Lumber company against the owners of the steamer Wolverine from which vessel a cargo of shingles was jettisoned.

DEATH LIST.

Galena, Ill., July 24.—Robert H. McClellan, a pioneer resident of Galena, is dead. He was born in Washington county, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1823, and came to Galena in 1850. In 1864 Mr. McClellan became president of the Bank of Galena, later the National Bank of Galena, remaining in this capacity for over twenty years. He was largely interested in local manufactories and financial institutions of Galena. He served as Republican representative in 1881-82 and as state senator from 1876 to 1880.

New York, July 24.—Royal E. Robbins, founder of the American Waltham Watch company, of which he was treasurer forty-five years, is dead at Beverly, Mass. He was 78 years old.

New York, July 24.—Private advices from Calcutta announce the death in a monastery near there of Swami Vivekananda, the Hindoo monk and philosopher, who preached himself into New York's exclusive society. His original mission here was as a delegate to the parliament of religions at the World's fair. He remained long after the fair was over in response to invitations by prominent members of the "higher thought" movement in this country, who were greatly impressed by his teachings.

LA FOLLETTE TO REVIEW.

St. Paul, July 24.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: According to present plans Governor La Follette will review the First regiment and battery, Wisconsin national guard, at Camp Douglass Monday, Aug. 4; the Second regiment and cavalry, Aug. 14 or 15, and the Third regiment and battalion Aug. 21. The First regiment and battery go into camp Aug. 2.

CAN PULL OUT.

Candidates Who Have Filed Can Withdraw Their Names.

Candidates who file for nominations under the primary election law must bid good-by to their filing fees, but if they think better of it they can get out of the game again and keep their names off the primary election ballot.

This is the effect of an opinion given by the attorney general's office yesterday. Senator Joseph Underleak, of Chatfield, asked for an opinion, and it was given by Assistant Attorney General Somerly. He says, however, that the candidate who becomes afflicted with cold feet will have to give notice of his withdrawal in the same manner that he gave notice of his candidacy. His opinion follows:

"In my opinion, candidates for nomination who have filed notice of their intention with the proper official and have paid the required fee, may withdraw their names by a proper notice executed with the solemnity of the notice of intention to run. They cannot, however, recover the fee paid. The right of withdrawal, in my opinion, is clearly implied from section 25, chapter 340, laws of 1899."

This refers to the primary election law, and the section referred to provides for filling vacancies on a ticket in case of a vacancy occasioned by a death, removal or resignation of any candidate.

The decision is very interesting, because County Attorney Boardman held that a person could not withdraw from the ticket. He held this in the case of Norm King, the Minneapolis police officer, who was sentenced to three and a half years in the penitentiary, and who had filed for the Republican nomination for sheriff.

HIT BY CARS.

Freight Train Smashes Into Hack Near Booth Dock.

A string of freight cars smashed into a hack full of people near the Booth dock last night and it is a wonder that all were not killed.

The hack had a load of Park Point people on their way home from the Wild West show. It was driven by Harry Stewart and in crossing over from Lake avenue to the ferry dock it is necessary to cross railroad tracks between buildings making the passage dark and dangerous.

Just as the hack was crossing these tracks a shifting engine shoved a string of cars out of the darkness. The hack was upset and it was necessary to knock the top off before the passengers could be released.

None were seriously hurt though one young lady fainted. Mr. Stewart, the driver, was thrown from his seat, but held on to the horses thus preventing a runaway. Had the animals got a start they would probably have dragged the tangled mass of humanity inside the wrecked hack directly into the lake avenue slip.

TARANTULA.

Candy Store Proprietor Finds One In Bunch of Bananas.

Andrew Nelson, proprietor of a candy store at 2007 West Superior street, ran into an immense tarantula in a bunch of bananas as he was closing up about midnight last night. After he had recovered from the shock that the encounter gave him, he captured the insect and put it in a glass jar. An interesting feature was the discovery of one of the tarantula's eggs, or rather a bunch of eggs as large as a small hen's egg, in the bunch of bananas. The bunch was colored brownish-black and white.

The discovery fo tarantulas in bunches of bananas occurs occasionally, but those who saw this one say it is a monster. It stood one and a half inches high, and when its feelers were drawn up it covered a space three inches in diameter. It is light brown with a black stripe down the center of the back.

The bunch in which the bug had made its home was received at the store Tuesday, and the stalk was nearly stripped of fruit before the tarantula was located. The tarantula's bite, while not necessarily fatal, is very painful and dangerous.

Home From Markets.

T. C. Phillips, of Phillips & Co., returned today after a month's absence in the Eastern markets, where he selected the fall and winter stock for his store. Mr. Phillips says business has not been up to expectations with the wholesalers, and that many have suffered by cancellation of orders, leaving them with large amounts of merchandise on hand, and that such tempting prices were made him that he made several large purchases of footwear for men, women and children. Business at the Phillips' shoe store has been better this year than ever before.

CHANGE OF VENUE

Asked By Cockrill Who Gives Strange Reasons.

Lexington, Ky., July 24.—The petition of Tom Cockrill charged with killing Ben Hargis at Jackson, asking for a change of venue to any other county than Breathitt, except Knott and Lee, and which is made public here today, makes the extraordinary statement that Breathitt and the other counties named are so completely under control of his enemies who are wealthy and influential that he would be certain to be adjudged guilty.

The plea contains a bitter arraignment of the Hargises. A number of Jackson citizens who are here are afraid to go back until the storm blows over.

RIVAL FOR TAWNEY.

Senator Knatvold Candidate For Congress.

St. Paul, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Senator T. V. Knatvold of Albert Lea, announced his candidacy today for the Republican nomination for congress in the First district.

He said that he had been moved to come out by dissatisfaction in the district with Congressman Tawney's course.

HER SEX BETRAYED

Pretty Cabin Boy Proved to Be a Girl.

Charming Ruth Preferred To Bunk All Alone.

Sex Betrayed By Order For Her Arrest.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 24.—A beautiful girl, with eyes that rival the blue of the summer sky, hair of rich auburn, cropped closely enough to give the boyish effect, and a form of faultless grace and symmetry are the possessions which Mabel McElhany, alias Dave Kyle, has succeeded in keeping well concealed for the past several years.

She palmed her charms off on the crew of the steamer Ruth when she applied for a position as cabin boy there.

She became infatuated with the faultlessly dressed and debonair second clerk, Earl Cline, and so exhibited her affections that her sex was soon suspected by more than one of the boat's crew. Upon her flat refusal to sleep with the cabin boy there was yet stronger evidence that something was wrong. She succeeded, however, in pulling the wool over the eyes of Capt. M. B. Davis, Clerk Roy Moore and Steward Richards, as well as the passengers, for a number of trips between this city and Sistersville.

A youth applied to Capt. Davis for a position as cabin boy some weeks ago while the boat was lying in the harbor, but at that time he had to turn down the application for want of a vacancy, promising, however, that as soon as there was a vacant place he should have it. The captain had the acquaintance of the boy for several months, he being known as Dave Kyle about the hotels in Sistersville, where he worked, and the charming manner and boyish actions of the youngster had their effect upon the old riverman, who was eager to secure a place for him.

A few days ago, when the Ruth was about ready to leave Sistersville on the northbound trip for Wheeling, Kyle again appeared at the wharf and asked if the place was not vacant, and being answered in the negative, he requested that he be given some other work to do.

He said he was tired of performing the menial service of a hotel porter and wanted to learn the river. The captain was again touched by the youth's boyish appearance, and desiring to assist him in a laudable ambition, he consented to give him a trial, first as cabin boy, and if he proved satisfactory he assured him that a better place awaited him in the office.

Kyle went aboard and began his duties on the return trip, and was an adept in his chosen line from the start, although he made some objections to blacking the officers' shoes and cleaning the spittoons. However he got along nicely and made a favorable impression upon all. He was remarkably proficient in the use of profane language, and cursed like an old tar. He had the cigarette habit "down fine," and talked in a sea fashion of his loves and sweethearts that he had left in the oil town. Wild West stories found inside yellow covers also appealed to the cabin boy, and he played his part well in every respect.

When it came time to retire to the respective staterooms, Kyle bucked on being placed in a room with the other cabin boy, and applied for admission to another chamber. The officer observed this and became suspicious. From day to day suspicions grew stronger as the cabin boy attempted to worm himself into the good graces of the clerk, and his strange actions toward all the handsome men who happened to be traveling on the boat.

Today while the boat was lying at the Wheeling wharf Capt. Davis received a telephone message from Sistersville asking if Dave Kyle was still with him, and if so to hold him, as he was traveling under false colors, being none other than Mabel McElhany, and that her father was in quest of her.

The young lady evidently had got wind of the disclosure of her identity, for some hours before that she left the boat, and a party answering to her description left on the afternoon Wheeling and Lake Erie train in company with an oil driller from the lower fields, bound, it is thought, for Cleveland.

Mabel was reared in the little town of Elk Fork, seated in the quiet, derrick bristled hills, a short distance back of Sistersville. She still has two brothers there, Guy and Ernest McElhany, one an oil driller and the other a tool dresser. Her father, John McElhany, also lives there, and follows the oil business.

About three years ago her mother died, and she is said to have taken the matter very hard. A short time after she went to a friend in Sistersville and told him she wanted to leave home, and asked him to cut her hair. Her hair was a rich auburn, and it seemed to him a sacrilege to comply, but he responded to the girl's appeal and sacrificed the long ringlets of gold to the tonsure.

She then donned her brother's clothes and disappeared from the section of the country until a short time ago, when she again turned up, but in such togs as not to be recognized by any but the man who did the barbering, and one or two others who kept silent out of consideration for her feelings. Only the policeman who telephoned the information to the clerk of the steamer gave the snap away.

In her home back in the hills at Elk Fork, Mabel lived the life of another Mary MacLane. Pretty and impetuous, she walked late at night into the cool air and apostrophized the barren hills, which presented nothing but ghostly derricks and a sickly green verdure. Her melancholy was added to by the death of her mother.

It was the breaking of the last link which bound her to the barren hills that led her to leave in the peculiar manner described in the foregoing.

Mable is "well set up." With her faultlessly symmetrical form it is surprising that she has been able to hide her identity so long. Men who came in contact with her acknowledge her peculiar attraction for them, in the language of the well known street song, "They don't know why they love her, but they do."

The clerk, the mate and the steward of the boat gave the handsome, but "bogus" Dave advantages unprecedented in the history of navigation in this section.

She would not clean cuspidors, for instance, and when she said this to the steward he made no objections. She had innumerable other "wont's" which she rigidly adhered to. As a bedmaker and a kitchen worker, however, she had all other cabin boys outdone. One of her first duties when she took the position was to scrub the floor of the cabin. She went at the work with a will and soon had it shining. Many little feminine touches were also given to the interior of the boat which surprised the crews.

POMPEII

The City That Fell Before the Wrath of Vesuvius.

Many Interesting Sights Seen In Once Beautiful Place.

Pompeii is the cleanest city we have seen in Italy. It is swept and garnished; the pavements are as neatly kept as a Dutch kitchen, and there is no filth or dirt or smells in any of the houses. This is perhaps due to the fact that it has no inhabitants, but it is nevertheless a matter of surprise and satisfaction that any town in Italy should be clean, says the Naples correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald.

Pompeii is about fifteen miles from Naples, and can be reached by a carriage in about three hours or by rail in an hour. Most people go by rail, but the carriage drive is more interesting, because it takes you through a busy part of the city of Naples and a series of villages so close together that one cannot detect the boundary lines. The people along the route are all working in the streets, polishing and drilling coral for necklaces and other ornaments, carving intaglios and canoes, making ornaments of sea shells and pieces of mother of pearl, and engaged in other and less delicate occupations, such as shoe making, cabinet making, washing and ironing, cooking, knitting and other forms of household work. The people of the tenements use the sidewalk for a kitchen and laundry as well as a dining room and rawing room, and there is a cluster of women around every doorway and a group of dirty children playing in every gutter, regardless of the unspeakable filth and the smells which rise to heaven.

It was St. Anthony' day when we went to Pompeii, and unusual features were added to the landscape and the interest of the scene. Men were leading young horses, with their manes and tails braided with ribbons and strips of cotton of bright colors and with garlands of flowers around their necks. These colts were being taken to the churches to be blessed by the priests, for St. Anthony is the patron of horses. Every coachman, hackman and teamster had some little decoration upon his harness or his whip in honor of the occasion, and some of them showed a great deal of taste. As we were driving homeward in the evening preparations were being made upon almost every block for bonfires, and some of them were already burning. Fuel is scarce in Naples. Both the hills and the plains have been stripped of trees for centuries, and timber and lumber of all kinds are scarce and expensive. The material of which the bonfires were made was mostly packing boxes and old furniture. This is the orthodox way of celebrating the anniversary of St. Anthony, and during the nights there were fires in every direction.

Pompeii was once a prosperous provincial town of 25,000 people or so, and a favorite resort of the wealthier class of Romans. Our earliest knowledge dates from the sixth century before Christ. Cicero had a villa there, where he wrote his "Offices." Seneca spent his boyhood and was educated in Pompeii. Young Augustus remained there several months, pleading for the protection of Cicero against Antony. Claudius amused himself in the town until his son Drusus lost his life there in a chariot race, after which he never entered the gates of the city again. By reason of its beautiful location on the Bay of Nayles and the river Sarno, which was navigable at that time, Pompeii had considerable commerce, and was one of the richest and most prosperous cities in Italy until the year 63 A. D., when a fearful earthquake occurred and destroyed many of its temples, theaters, business houses and private dwellings, but the inhabitants, who had plenty of capital, immediately began to rebuild in a more elaborate and expensive manner than before, and the city was almost fully restored when, on Aug. 24, 79, Vesuvius had the most disastrous eruption in its history.

The first sign was a dense shower of ashes which darkened the air like midnight and covered the streets and the houses to a depth of more than three feet. Most of the inhabitants fled at this time, but several thousand remained and many returned the next day, perhaps to rescue their valuables and perhaps with confidence that the trouble was over, but upon the following day the eruption was renewed and the town was buried under a flood of lava and ashes which poured down upon it from the side of the volcano until it lay under a mass of liquid fire twenty feet deep.

According to the traditions about 2,000 people perished. The excavators have found 286 human skeletons and those of nine horses and five dogs.

The best account, and in fact the only account that we have by an eyewitness, was written by Pliny the younger, who narrowly escaped with his mother. Pliny the elder lost his life. "My mother entreated me," said the former, "to look for means for saving myself, demonstrating to me that it would be easier at my age, but that she, on the contrary, weighed down with years and with flesh, could not follow me; that she would die content if she knew that I were saved. I declared that I would not know how to live without her, and, taking her by the hand, compelled her to follow me. In spite of herself she yielded, reproaching me that she was making a great delay. The ashes had already commenced to fall upon us, and as I turned my head I could see a dense smoke spreading over the earth like a torrent; the darkness increased to such an extent that one could imagine himself to be in a dark night without a moon or in a room in which the lights had been extinguished. Nothing was heard but the lamentations of the women, the complainings of the children and the clamor of the men. I consoled myself for flying by thinking that the universe was coming to an end."

Herculaneum and Pompeii were entirely destroyed while people sat in the theater, and the ashes fell in Africa, Syria and Egypt. In Rome the air was so full of them that the sun was obscured.

There is a museum at Pompeii for the exhibition of relics which have been found during the excavations, and in glass cases are preserved casts of several human bodies and one of a dog, which seems to have died in convulsions of agony. Although the flesh had decayed in the course of time the forms of the bodies remained imprinted upon the ashes, which afterward hardened, and in 1863 Signor Fiorelli, the archaeologist, in charge of the excavations, succeeded in the ingenious experiment of carefully removing the bones and filling the cavity with plaster, by which he was able to secure models preserving the figures and the attitudes of the dead. Some of the people had divested themselves of most of their clothing, thus the outlines of the figures are most distinct. Among these ghastly relics are casts of a young girl with a ring on her finger, two women, one tall and elderly and the other young; a man lying on his face, and another upon his left side with remarkably well preserved features.

After the catastrophe the people who escaped dug recklessly into the ruins endeavoring to recover valuables and other property, and at times during the nineteen centuries that have passed parts of Pompeii were searched for treasure, but it was not until 1748 that systematic investigations were begun, and at that time the amphitheater, the theater and parts of some of the houses were uncovered. Work was then suspended for nearly 100 years, and it is only since 1858 that it has been resumed. About half, and probably the most important part of the town, with the principal temples and public buildings, are now entirely open and the ruins are being preserved with a great deal of care. The work goes on steadily, but at the present rate it will take at least sixty years and require an expenditure of $1,000,000 to clean up the whole city. The expense is entirely paid by the fees collected from tourists, who are charged two francs each for the privilege of inspecting the ruins, and average about 100,000 francs a year.

The streets are heavily paved with large blocks of lava, showing ruts made by the wagons; the walls of the houses are mostly concrete and brick, and were stuccoed with plaster, like those of modern Italy. The numerous staircases show that they were generally two and three stories in height. Many of the counters in the shops were of marble, and large earthen vessels used for wine and oil are still preserved. The great number of these shops demonstrates the importance of the retail traffic of Pompeii.

The dwelling houses vary considerably in size, and we can judge of the wealth and taste of the owners by the manner in which they are fitted up. As is now the custom in many of the towns of southern Europe, the outside walls are blank and without windows. The door from the street led into a court, around which the living rooms were built and from which they obtained light and air. The walls were handsomely decorated with bright and glaring colors, chiefly red and yellow, and the decorations were artistic. A model of the house of Pansa, one of the finest of those uncarthed, has been erected at Saratoga, N. Y., and is doubtless familiar to many of my readers.

The temples, the forum, the theater, which would seat 5,000 people; the enormous baths, which were richly fitted up, and other important buildings have been described frequently. But within recent years several important disclosures have been made which are not included in the published works upon Pompeii. About a year ago the finest residence yet found was uncovered, which was undoubtedly the home of a wealthy and important man named Vetti. A body, probably that of the owner, was found in a passage way near the entrance, and beside it was another, which was evidently that of his servant. It is conjectured that, the family having escaped, the owner, with a slave, went back to the house to secure valuables, but when they attempted to leave the house again they were unable to open the door and were buried under the liquid lava.

The mural decorations in the house are preserved in the most remarkable manner and surpass in beauty and variety those found in any of the other houses. Several pieces of marble statuary of a high class of art have also been discovered.

The site of Pompeii is owned by the Italian government and has been fenced in, but outside the walls are many villas which are buried under the soil now being cultivated by the present owners, who in several cases have been conducting excavations on their own account. This has caused considerable friation with the officials. The theory of the government is that the title of the owners is only skin deep, so to speak, and does not extend beyond the soil. They can cultivate the surface, but everything that lies beneath is public property, belonging primarily to the government and secondarily to such persons as shall receive permission to dig it out. As a compromise, however, a rule has been adopted under which all objects obtained by excavation are divided into three parts—one-third to the government, one-third to the owner of the property and one-third to the man who makes the excavations. The government officials control the division, and in case of dispute everything is sold at auction and the proceeds divided. When valuable objects of art are found the government claims them for the museum.

Permits to excavate are not easy to obtain without a strong political pull. Dealers who have influential friends at court can obtain permits to dig in any man's property. He cannot prevent them, nor can he make excavations on his own property, and government inspectors are constantly watching land owners in the vicinity to detect violations of this law.

PAID FOR THE WAGON.

Joseph Reed and Frank Horan of East Dorset, Vt., started to drive to Dorset in a business wagon, drawn by two horses. They were obliged to cross the tracks of the Bennington division of the Rutland railroad at Harwood crossing. The place is very dangerous, because it is impossible to see more than a few wyards up or down the track until one is directly upon it, says the New York Herald.

No trains were due for an hour after Messrs. Reed and Horan reached the track, and they drove upon it without taking any extra precautions. Just as the front end of the wagon had passed over the rails, the Nehasane,

Dr. Seward Webb's private locomotive, drawing his car, the Ellesmere, crashed into it. Both men were thrown several yards, but neither were seriously injured. The wagon was smashed to pieces.

Dr. Webb's train backed up to the crossing, and, to the surprise of Mr. Reed, who owned the wagon, Dr. Webb gave him a check which covered the value of the vehicle several times over. Mr. Reed is a poor farmer, and the money was decidedly welcome.

Board of Equalization Fixes Valuation of Iron Mines at $30,154,905.

An Increase of 300 Per Cent Over Last Year.

Figures Will Prove Generally Satisfactory.

Thirty million dollars is the valuation put on the iron mines of St. Louis county by the board of equalization this morning.

The work of introducing a resolution and passing the same calling for that assessment passed off with scarcely a turbulent ripple. Most of the members of the board, if not all, had been consulted before the morning session was called and from the sentiment it was plain that nearly all were satisfied.

The exact figure of the valuations in the aggregate is $30,154,905. This is just $30 per cent of the total submitted by the mine owners, after having had a conference.

Auditor Halden introduced the resolution placing the valuation given on the mines, and Commissioner Morcom, of Tower, seconded it in a hurry. Before it was put to a vote Commissioner Kugler jumped out of his chair and asked that a copy of the resolution containing the valuations, and those given them by the assessors, be handed each member of the board before a vote be taken. He said he wanted to vote intelligently, and thought that it could be done only by perusing carefully the resolution. He then put his idea in the form of an amendment to the motion, calling for a vote tomorrow morning instead of today. Commissioners McInnes and Morcom, with Auditor Halden, thought no good could come from postponing the vote, and Commissioner Kugler's amendment was lost, his only other supporter being Commissioner Berg. On the resolution all voted aye with the exception of Commissioner Kugler, who voted against it, because, as he said, he didn't know what he was voting for except that the valuations of all mines amounted to something over $30,000,000.

It was generally understood among the members of the board that the relative valuations submitted by the mine owners should be lived up to, and that when they were raised a horizontal percentage should be followed, that each property might be similarly affected. A raise of 330 per cent was decided on.

Thirty millions is two and a half times the valuation placed on the mines by the board of equalization in 1900. Before casting his vote Commissioner Berdie stated that he wanted to explain why he was going to vote aye.

"I feel," said he, "that this is the most important question ever considered by this board. It is important not only to Duluth, St. Louis county and the state of Minnesota, but all over the country the eyes of the people are turned on us. What we do here at this time will either carry the respect of the taxpayers of this section or bring condemnation down upon us. It has been stated that this board has been bought and sold by corporations, but I think with a raise of 350 per cent from the figures submitted by the mine owners, the taxpayers of Duluth or this county will have no complaint. Neither will the state board of equalization after our valuation, and the continual harping from the farmers in the lower parts of the state may cease. There are other interests besides the mines in this county that need earnest consideration and I hope that before we have finished our work we will see that some of the lumbering interests pay their just proportion. I'm not bought by a mining company. No one has approached me."

The average rate of taxation of the mines of this county is a little over 2 mills, and the revenue coming from them this year will amount to over $600,000. Of this amount $90,000 will go to the state, $100,000 to the county, and the remainder, over $400,000, will find a resting place in the treasuries of the little cities, towns and villages of this county where the mines are located.

The valuation given to the mines this morning puts nine properties in the million dollar class. They are the Fayal, $3,093,750; Mahoning, $2,062, 500; Adams, $2,062,500; Stephenson, $1,650,-000; Pioneer, $1,546,875; Chandler, $1,-237,500; Mountain Iron, $1,237,500; Biwabik, $1,185,937; Spruce, $1,031,240.

The mining men are generally satisfied with the valuations given by the equalization board, and many people find it a great deal more than they expected. The fact is pointed out that the fee owners of the mines are men who generally live in the East, and who pay no taxes. They gather in a royalty of 25 cents a ton each year for the ore mined and contribute but little to the business interests of Duluth and St. Louis county.

The board of equalization took up a number of city matters this afternoon. It is expected that the sessions will continue until next Wednesday. At that time the board of county commissioners will meet to consider the tax levy for the next year.

The revenue that will be produced for the mines for the public treasuries under this assessment will be just about what would have been produced if the Jacobson bill taxing the output of the mines at 5 cents per ton had gone through the legislature last winter. The mines this year will ship about 12,000,000 tons, and at 5 cents a ton that would mean $600,000, which is about the same figure that the mines will yield under the new assessment.

Last winter, while the legislature was in session, State Auditor Dunn expressed his belief that the mines should be assessed at about $30,000,000 this year, and that the state board of equalization would raise them to that figure if the local board did not.

A STRONG PROTEST

Made By Lumbermen Against Continual Change In Rates.

Unable to Figure Ahead on Account of Uncertainty.

Rates Standing Two Months Cannot Legally Be Changed.

Minneapolis, July 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lumbermen of the northern part of the state are protesting strongly to the Minneapolis-Duluth lines against the continual changes in lumber rates to St. Louis and Southwestern points. They say they are unable to figure ahead on contracts for delivery owing to the uncertainty of lumber rates.

One week rates may be advanced a couple of cents and the following week they may be reduced. If the Minneapolis-Duluth lines see fit, they announce a change in rates of 1 or 2 cents. Then the lines running southwest from Minneapolis become offended, and they may either lower or advance the rates 1 or 2 cents.

It seems, too, that there is a law in this state which provides that where a reduced rate has been in effect sixty days it cannot be raised again without the consent of the state railroad commission. Just how closely this law has been observed either by the railroads or by the commission is a matter of dispute among local officials.

Now, however, the present lumber rate was published on June 25. If no change be made in it before Aug. 25, no change is possible under the law except with the consent of the railroad commissioner. But just how many moves the railroads may make before that time is a matter of speculation.

MET AWFUL DEATH

Passengers on Pan Handle Road Caught In Wreck and Slowly Burned Alive.

The Train Was Running at High Rate of Speed.

Crashed Into Wild Car With Fearful Results.

Xenia, Ohio, July 25.—A frightful wreck occurred at 10:30 last night at Trebein station, three miles from here, when train No. 2, the Pennsylvania limited from St. Louis to New York, was met by a wild coal car at the foot of a heavy grade. The number of dead and injured was not easily ascertained, because the wreckage took fire and all but the two Pullman cars in the rear were burned. The train was behind and was running at the rate of seventy miles an hour to make up lost time.

Besides the postal and express cars, it consisted of a day coach and several sleepers.

In some manner a car loaded with coal had become unloosened from its couplings and started down a three-mile grade, gaining velocity as it went. At the bottom of the grade it crashed into the engine of the passenger train.

There was no warning.

Of the coal car there is scarcely to be found a trace, so completely was it splintered. The passenger engine is a mass of ruins, while the postal and express cars were piled on top of it in a promiscuous heap.

Almost simultaneously with the first crash the gas tanks under the cars exploded and set fire to the ruins.

Instantly cries could be heard from the mass of wreckage.

An engine from Xenia was hurried to the sceen and two Pullmans that remained safely on the track were hauled to a place of safety, serving for the time being as a refuge for the less seriously wounded.

The badly injured were taken to Xenia, where not only the hotels but private houses were opened for their accommodation. The others were later taken to Columbus to resume their journey.

The engineer, William Clark, of Columbus, was buried beneath his engine, and his body was burned to ashes. His fireman, William Dwyer, of Cincinnati, was horribly mangled, but was thrown clear from the engine. Of the four postal clerks on the train, two were killed, M. M. Peters, of Columbus, and Charles McGowan, of Greenfield, Ind.

George A. Gifford, of Indianapolis, and William G. Forsythe, also of Indianapolis, were injured, Gifford but slightly, Forsythe seriously. The surgeon does not regard his injuries as fatal.

The dawn of this morning brought to full view the horror of the wreck. The train had been running at a terrific speed and the wild car had almost attained its greatest momentum when the accident occurred at the end of a steep grade. When the crash came the train, with the exception of two rear sleepers, left the track and piled up in a heap. A moment of silence followed and then could be heard the cries for help. Those of the passengers who extricated themselves from their perilous positions rendered all assistance possible and rescued many from the debris, but a gas tank exploding beneath one of the cars set the wreckage on fire and the intense heat from the flames soon drove the rescuers back so that those who were pinned beneath the train were consumed by the flames. It was a most pitiable sight; cries and moans coming from those who could not be rescued and those who were slowly being burned to death, and it was sometime before any of the bodies were reached. Engineer William J. Clark, of Columbus, and Fireman Dwyer, of Cincinnati, were the first found, both being mutilated and horribly burned.

Postal Clerks McKown, of Greenfield, and M. M. Peters, of Columbus, were also killed, and their bodies were gotten out and brought to this city this morning.

Conductor Huges, who was on the wrecked train, reported that there at least three or four passengers who could not be gotten out and whose bodies are still in the ruins. It will likely take some time before the full list of dead can be ascertained, as all the baggage in the train, with the exception of two pieces, and a corpse, was consumed in the flames.

James McFadden, also of Indianapolis, who was on his way to Ireland, received a bad gash on the bridge of his nose and a slight scalp wound, but he was able to renew his journey this morning. The passengers on the train who had baggage lost about everything they had and most of them seemed thankful in having escaped with their lives.

The following is a corrected list of the dead and injured at 11 a. m.:

Dead:

WILLIAM CLARKE, engineer, formerly of Xenia, now of Columbus, trunk of body and one leg found; leaves wife and three children.

PATRICK DWYER, fireman, residence Cincinnati.

M. M. PETERS, mail clerk, residence Cincinnati.

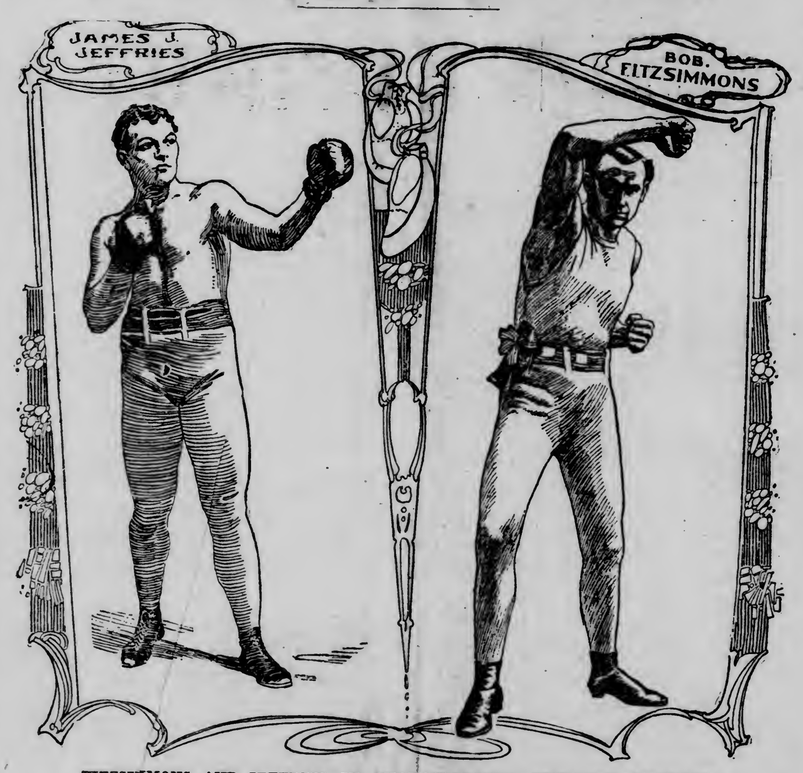

E. F. M. McKOWN, mail clerk, Greenfield, Ind., body not recovered.

The injured: Joseph Converse, aged 27, Elmira, N. Y., scalp wound, not serious; Bessie Donovan, aged 18, Irwin, Pa., cut about head, not serious; William G. Forsythe, Indianapolis, Ind., mail clerk, dangerously hurt; W. A. Gifford, Woodstock, mail clerk, cut about head and arm; dangerously hurt; James McFadden, Indianapolis, nose fractured, not serious, had a ticket for Ireland; Mollie Collins, Louisville, Ky., head cut, not serious.

The story of a woman and child having been burned to death is not confirmed and is discredited. Ten or twelve people who are not included in the above list were injured, but not seriously.

BOTH MEN CONFIDENT

The Pugilistic Contest Between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries Is at Hand.

FITZSIMMONS AND JEFFRIES IN CHARACTERISTIC FIGHTING ATTITUDES.

San Francisco, July 25.—Both Jeffries and Fitzsimmons express themselves as confident of winning tonight's contest for the heavyweight championship of the world. The betting is still quoted at 10 to 4 in Jeffries' favor. Regarding his plans for the fight Fitz is quoted as follows:

"I made a mistake when I met Jeffries before. I won't make it this time. I underrated his strength and ability. This time I am going to dodge his strength and play to his weakness.

"I believe there is not another man in the world as big as Jeffries who can handle himself as well. For that reason I don't know a man who has a chance to beat him in a stand-up, give-and-take fight.

"But there is a way to get him, and I know the way. If he rushes at me from the start I will play for an opening, and once I get it you will see that Bob has the old punch still with him. Jeffries' size will not protect him, for bulk does not cut any ice when a good blow lands on a vital spot. I have got that sort of a punch and I am going to use it.

"My style of fighting will depend entirely on what Jeffries does in the ring. If he makes me come to him I will do it, but after all his boasts of how easy it will be for him to get me any time he sees, I think it is up to him to do some of the fighting, and I don't believe the crowd will stand for anything else.

"Unless a chance punch is delivered by either one of us, I think the bout can hardly be finished in less than ten rounds."

Jeffries will not admit that he can be beaten. He says: "I never felt better in my life. I have trained carefully; my wind is good; I am at my best fighting weight, and no matter what pace Fitzsimmons may cut out, I will be right with him from the first sound of the gong and will surely bring home the money.

"Everything about this battle is to my liking. The referee suits me. I would rather fight Fitzsimmons than any man alive, and when I whip him, as I surely will, I intend to keep right on at the fighting game as long as there are any aspirants for heavyweight honors left.

"As to how I will fight, or what my tactics will be, that is something I can say nothing about it till I step into the ring. I never went into a battle with my mind made up as to what I would do. Plans can be made in advance, but they will all go wrong if the other man failed to come at you in the way you expected. I can only say this: I will meet Fitz at any game he may spring, and the faster he comes at me the better I shall like it."

After exercising at the Reliance club a short time this morning, Jeffries spent the remaining time before the big battle resting and playing cards with his friends.

Jeffries will have for his seconds, Billy Delaney, Joe Kennedy, Jack Jeffries and De Witt Vancourt.

Fitzsimmons retired early last night. Aside from a short walk this morning he will spend the day quietly in his hotel. During the afternoon just enough phantom sparring will be indulged in to keep his muscles limbered up. Behind Fitz when he enters the ring will be George Dawson, Hank Griffin, Jack Stetsener and Billy Haberty.

Should Fitz succeed in defeating Jeffries he will tour the Northwest, but if he loses he will leave after a few days for his home at Bensonhurst.

FRED AMES RETURNS

Superintendent of Police of Minneapolis Said to Have Come Back and Is Willing to Stand Trial Under Indictments.

Minneapolis, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames has returned to Minneapolis. This is the story which is current today. No one can be found who has actually seen him, but the police officials have been notified that they may expect him at the city hall at any moment.

It is generally believed that he has returned and is willing to stand trial under the indictments found against him now that all the cases have gone over to the September term.

The reforms instituted are expected to have the effect, by that time, of turning public opinion in favor of the accused officials.

Mayor Ames went to Chicago yesterday from West Baden and at the Palmer house had a conference with Fred Ames, who also went to Chicago for the purpose.

NO CHANCES TAKEN

Oyster Bay, July 25.—President Roosevelt and the party which accompanied him to Sengrist yesterday, arrived off Sagamore Hill in the Mayflower at 8:55 this morning. The Mayflower remained at anchor off Tompkinsville from 6 o'clock last night until about 6 o'clock this morning. Lieut. Commander Albert Gleaves, in command of the vessel, concluded last evening that he would not take the chance of going through Hell Gate in the fog that then prevailed. The president approved of anchoring for the night. The trip from Tompkinsville to Sagamore Hill today was absolutely without incident. President Roosevelt found upon his arrival here an accumulation of matters demanding his attention and he and Assistant Secretary Loeb were busily engaged until luncheon in their consideration.

George V. L. Meyer, ambassador of the United States to Italy, was a guest of the president at luncheon today. Mr. Meyer's call upon the president was said to be purely social. Secretary Shaw, of the treasury department, is expected to arrive at Sagamore Hill late this afternoon on a treasury vessel. William H. Moody, secretary of the navy, may arrive tonight on the Dolphin, but he is not expected fully before tomorrow.

LE SUEUR WOMAN SUICIDES

St. Paul, July 25.—A special to the Dispatch from Le Sueur, Minn., says: This morning at 7 o'clock, Jennie Davis, wife of Samuel I. Davis, proprietor of the Park hotel at this place, committed suicide by shooting herself through the head with a revolver. No cause is assigned unless temporary insanity induced by poor health and worry over housekeeping troubles in the hotel. Formal inquiry will be made by the coroner.

WERE BUMPED BUT NOT HURT

Joliet, Ill., July 25.—The Alton passenger train which arrives in Chicago at 8:10 a. m. ran into a freight engine in the yards here this morning. The passengers were thrown from their seats or berths, but no one was seriously hurt. A colored Pullman porter named Bradshaw, of Chicago, was thrown off the train and had his head badly cut. Both engines and one car were wrecked.

CONSTERNATION AT CAIRO

London, July 25.—In a dispatch from Cairo, Egypt, the correspondent there of the Daily Telegraph says that the utmost consternation prevails owing to the terrifying progress of cholera. All hope of localizing the disease, says the correspondent, has been abandoned, and there is no doubt that Egypt will have to meet a devastating epidemic. The disease appeared Thursday in practically every quarter of Cairo, forty-two new cases being recorded. Several natives fell dead at their work. Temporary hospitals are being erected. The British regiments at Cairo will leave to camp in the desert at the earliest possible moment. Slightly better reports, according to the Telegraph's correspondent, have been received from Upper Egypt.

BAD BLAZE AT ALBANY

Disastrous Conflagration Causes Loss of Life and Property Damage Amounting to Nearly Three Quarters of a Million.

Albany N. Y. July 25.—One fireman dead, one in the hospital believed to be dying and a number seriously injured, in addition to a monetary loss variously estimated at from half to three-quarters of a million dollars, is the result of a fire which broke out in the heart of the business district shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. The dead fireman is D. K. Bishop, an auxiliary member of the insurance patrol and prominent in the city's social and financial circles. James J. Shelly, a fellow-member of the patrol, was dug out of a mass of wreckage terribly burned and with both hips dislocated, both legs broken, one arm shattered and severe internal injuries. He will probably die.

Another fireman who is seriously injured is Frank H. Wetherwax, superintendent of the insurance patrol, who is suffering from concussion of the spine and internal injuries.

The fire started on the top floor of the public market building on Beaver street and spread rapidly to the Columbia hotel and the Elks' clubhouse, which adjoin it west and east respectively. While the firemen were at work the front wall of the market building buckled and almost immediately fell, carrying with it the upper story of the Columbia hotel. It was in the latter building that the firemen met their fate. They were spreading tarpaulins on the upper floor and were caught under the mass of wreckage.

Before the fire was finally under control it communicated to the Unconditional Republican clubhouse and the building occupied by the Evening Times Union. Neither of these establishments suffered to any great extent.

Among the heaviest losers will be the Lang Rubber Stamp works, the Crucible Steel company, Lester Parker Furniture company, Albany Rubber Tire Wheel company, Hethe & Fisher Shirt factory, United Shirt and Collar company, Cadby Paper Box compani, Wertheim Bros., clothing manufacturers, Columbia Hotel company and Albany lodge of Elks.

RAINS FLOOD TEXAS

Continued Fall For Seven Days and Seven Nights Send All Rivers Out of Their Bank and Delay Traffic.

Dallas, Texas, July 25.—There has been almost a continued fall of rain covering practically the entire state since Sunday, the downpour being particularly heavy in Western Texas. In Scurry county it has been raining for several days and nights and all streams are out of their banks. The town of Snyder has had no mail for three days and is cut off from all communication except by telephone.

Traffic on the Texas & Pacific is almost completely tied up at Abilene. No trains have arrived there from the west for three days. At Big Springs the town is under water from three to ten feet and there is much damage to the surrounding county through the floods.

At Pecos, the Pecos river is twelve miles wide and is flooding the alfalfa and corn farms north of the town. The railways have declined to receive any freight or express for shipment.

There are many washouts along the line of the Texas & Pacific west of Abilene, and general traffic will perhaps be interrupted for several days, although an attempt will be made to get a train through today.

At Waco, the Brazos river rose from fifteen to twenty-eight feet within a short time yesterday, but is reported to be falling this morning.

In and around Dallas a driving rain began falling last evening at 6 o'clock and continued throughout the night.

The cotton fields have received a thorough drenching which will materially help that staple.

BIG WAVE WASHES BOY AWAY

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Wopatek, 12-years-old, residing with his parents at 763 Butternut avenue, was drowned in the river near Banholzer's brewery, yesterday afternoon, shortly before 3 o'clock. The boy, accompanied by a younger brother, was down to the river paddling, as neither one of them could swim. Frank was lying on the bank close to the edge of the water, when a steamboat passed, which raised a swell, driving the water farther up shore. The receding wave took the boy out into the stream. Mrs. Wopatek, crazed with grief, jumped into the water, and was saved from death only by the combined efforts of her husband and a woman who arrived at the moment that the mother plunged into the water.

WILE WORK TOGETHER

Duluth and Superior to Go After Naval Training School.

Minnesota Point the Proper Place For Its Location.

Mackinac Strongest Competitor Up to This Time.

Duluth and Superior will pull together for the location of the United States naval training school on Minnesota Point.

The action recently taken by the Duluth Commercial club was endorsed by the Hundred Thousand club of Superior last evening. The latter organization also decided to get out and hustle for the training school.

This insures a very formidable congressional delegation to work for the head of the lakes location. Congressman Morris is leading the fight at present, backed by senators Nelson and Clapp and practically the entire Minnesota congressional delegation.

The action of the Superior club will bring the influence of Senator Quarles and Senator Spooner and Congressman Jenkins to bear on the navy department.

It is now practically assured that the naval board looking up suitable locations for the proposed training school will visit the Minnesota Point site, though the date of the visit has not been announced definitely.

Influential men with summer homes at Mackinac are said to be urging the government to locate the naval training school at that summer resort. In fact Mackinac at present seems the strongest rival that the head of the lakes has at present, though Buffalo is looming up in the distance with a strong backing.

Mackinac is dead to the world about nine months out of the year, and it would be like sentencing naval cadets to solitary confinement to have their training school located in that beautiful, isolated island.

Buffalo is said to have strong backing, but is scarcely able to compete with Duluth when it comes to a question of site. Buffalo's harbor facilities are not to be compared with Duluth's, and it is said to be very essential to have extensive harbor facilities for the thraining school.

Erie is also suggested as a possible location for the school, but Erie seems a little late in getting into the race. This Pennsylvania port is said to have a number of good sites and everything that would go to make up a good location.

With Duluth and Superior working together, the chances for the Minnesota Point location have brightened considerably.

NO BREAK.

Senatorial Deadlock at Superior Continues Without Change.

The deadlock in the Republican senatorial convention now being held in West Superior continues, and when the convention adjourned yesterday it was no nearer a nomination than it was when the session first began Wednesday. At the time of the adjournment yesterday 327 ballots had been taken, but there was no indication of a break among the delegations of the three contestants. Rumors of a dark horse were freely made, but there has been nothing yet to show that the Douglas county delegations will desert their candidates, G. B. Hudnall and Solon L. Perrin.

When the adjournment was taken yesterday afternoon the delegates to the convention were taken for a ride about the bay in a gasoline launch hired by the Douglas county candidates for the nomination.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB.

Meeting Tonight With Several Matters Coming Up.

There will be a meeting of the Business Men's club this evening in the club rooms in the Normanna building, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. Several matters of particular interest will come up for attention and for action on the part of the club.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to confer with the street railway company relative to the continuance of the street car service through the West End on Superior street, to West Duluth, will have a partial report to make. It is understood that before there can be a resumption of the service over the old route the Jenswold street subway must be completed and the new track laid. There is no question but that the street railway company will resume its service on Superior street just as quickly as possible and that there is nothing in the talk that it intended abandoning that route to West Duluth for the one used temporarily on West Third street and Thirty-ninth avenue west.

Places For Teachers.

"We can place all the first grade teachers that have attended the summer school," said A. T. Park, county superintendent of schools this morning. "I have received many inquiries and the salary ranges from $50 to $60 a month." Prof. Park will go to Aitkin Tuesday, where he will deliver two lectures at the summer school there, one on "School Management and Discipline," and the other on "Dos and Don'ts."

BIG SCHEME.

Tesla to Have Elcctric Currents Furnish Motive Power.

New York, July 25.—After working for more than three years on the transmission of electrical energy without wires Nicola Tesla announces that he has completed an invention by which it will be possible not only to send wireless messages for thousands of miles without wires, but that he will be enabled to send ocean liners to Europe and have railroads carry passengers 100 miles an hour by drawing their power from the air.

Mr. Tesla has completed a large power house at Warden Clyffe, on Long Island, and is building others throughout the country and one in Scotland, between which he says he intends to send electric currents of sufficient voltage to enable steamships and railroads to draw all their power. The powerhouse at Warden Clyffe occupies nearly three acres of ground and is fenced in so that no one can get a view of it except those working within the enclosure.

"I expect to make a complete announcement of my plans shortly," Mr. Tesla said, "and when I do many persons will be surprised. I have been taking out patents on my inventions on the transmission of electrical energy without wires for the last three years.

"By means of the current which will be sent between the different stations I will be able to draw power for almost any purpose. That I will be enabled to get force with which to operate railroads and steamships from currents passing through the air between power houses is an assured fact. All my experiments so far have proved successful and I am now devoting all my time toward getting things on a working basis.

"The whole idea in a nutshell is simply an extension of the plan to send wireless telegraph messages."

About 200 men are working on the Tesla plant at Warden Clyffe. The house is a large round iron structure and looks like the ordinary gas plant. There are several poles about sixty feet in height rising from the top of the house and from these power will be sent.

Mr. Telsa asserted that there was a similar power house in Scotland, and that this one was almost entirely completed. Other houses are being built near Chicago and San Francisco.

"We have been sending wireless messages for long distances from this station for some time," Mr. Tesla concluded, "but whether we are going into the telegraph field on a commercial basis I cannot say at present."

SWORE OVER PHONE.

St. Louis Man Is Fined For His Profanity.

St. Louis, Mo., July 25.—In Judge Sidener's court Dr. S. L. Gettys, a West End physician, who was arrested for "swearing at" a Bell telephone operator, was fined $5 and costs for "disturbing the peace." The judge decided three interesting points, to-wit: First—That profanity has no sufficient provocative.

Second—That it is always aggressive, never protective, and heretofore never excusable on the plea of self-defense.

Third—That the working principles of laws have not been invalidated by modern invention; that crimes or offenses committed at long distances, suc has the hurling of oaths at persons in another jurisdiction over the telephone, are amenable to the laws in the jurisdiction in which the offense was committed.

Dr. Gettys admitted that he swore over the 'phone, but declared that he "cussed" the service, not the operator, and pleaded that he, therefore, did not disturb the operator's peace.

Immigration Officials Actively Enforcing Laws Relating to Chinese.

Washington, July 26.—Wholesale deportations of Chinese laborers who have come to the United States in violation of law will occur during the present month and for the remainder of this year. There is great activity on the part of Commissioner General Sargent, of the immigration bureau, and his assistants, who have filled the jails along the northern border with Chinese who have slipped into the United States when the officials were not looking. The culprits were apprehended later, however, and as a result thirty-one coolies will sail for their native land next Monday. They will embark at San Francisco, and come from a number of Eastern and Western cities, where they were arrested.

These Celestials do not return to the Chinese kingdom with that thrill of joy which generally marks the arrival of a taveler in the land of his birth. They go much against their wills, and their long voyage is directly due to the wicked immigration inspectors, who offered sufficient evidence to convice the innocent looking coolies of coming into the United States without invitations and in direct and gross violation of law.

Each Celestial made a desperate attempt to prove he was a native born American citizen, but the inspectors would not take their words for it. Neither would the judge nor the jury, and as a result the country is short exactly thirty-one expert laundrymen.

The Chinese who department from San Francisco on Monday can impart to their anxious countrymen the news that the population of the Flowery kingdom will be increased to the extent of 200 or 300 souls within an extremely short time.

ICE CREAM POISONED.

An Attempt to Destroy an Entire Congregation.

Logansport, Ind., July 25.—An attempt to poison the entire congregation and visitors of the Dunkirk Colored Mission, at Kenneth, near here, has just come to light, the police and physicians keeping the case under cover in hope of apprehending the culprits, who place so little value on human life.

It was at an ice-cream social held in the church that the crime was attempted. Poison had been placed in the ice cream, and those who partook of it became deathly sick. Dr. Hetherington, of this city, was called and administered to the wants of almost half a hundred people.

It is not thought that there will be any fatal results, as the poison was not in large enough quantitly and seemed to be well distributed.

The cause is laid to the dislike of certain residents who objected to the church being started. Rev. Mr. William, an evangelist, paid no attention and opened up the church with the aid of subscriptions from the citizens of this city.

YACHTS WILL RACE

Two Lively Races Are Scheduled For Saturday Afternoon.

Boats Are Divided Into Two Classes, Seven In Each.

Class A Will Sail Nine Miles and Class B Six.

Two interesting yacht races have been arranged for tomorrow, and it appears, from the enthusiasm shown, an afternoon of rare sport is in store for the lovers of yachting.

Many people are planning to see the contests, and a much larger crowd than was present at the first of the series will be on hand. The boats have been divided into two classes, as follows: Class A, Arnetta, Siren, Mildred J, Betsy Jane, Fritz, Sharpee and Margie. Class B, Thelma, Marguarette, Shamrock, Stranger, Sweetheart, Black Cat and Lockby. The last two are from Superior.

A handicap or time allowance has been made. In Class A, the Arnetta will give the Siren 16 seconds; the Mildred J, 43; Betsy Jane, 46; Fritz, 52; Sharpee, 58, and Margie, 61, for each mile of the course. This is made necessary by the different lengths of the boats. In Class B the Thelma will allow the Marguarette 50 seconds; Shamrock, 80; Stranger, 85, and Sweetheart, 88. The Black Cat and Lockby have not yet been measured. The races are called for 2:30 o'clock, and the boats will be sent away at 3 o'clock. They will carry numbers, so the spectators can follow their positions. The Class A boats will race over a 9-mile course, and Class B will cover six miles. There will be a thirty-minute lapse between the starting of the two races, which will be sailed over the same course.

The officials of the day are as follows: F. R. Leslie, commodore; Mr. Marshall, vice commodore; George Spencer and F. H. White, judges of the course. F. R. Leslie, H. R. Patterson, C. P. McCormick and Capt. Falconer, sailing committee, and J. D. Mahoney, timekeeper and starter.

THIEVES.

Young Ones Embarrass Hostesses of the East End.

Juvenile thieves threaten to break into the most exclusive East End society.

Scarcely an important society event occurs but the thieves that move in this particular juvenile set steal refreshments and bring distress and embarrassment to the hostess of the occasion.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Comstock, of 1320 East Superior street, entertained. The thieves broke into the basement of the house during the evening and stole salad and other refreshments.

The long suite of the society thieves is ice cream, and this stealing has been going on more or less for the past two years. Frequently when the ices are to be served the maid astonishes the hostess with a report that the refreshments have disappeared, and more than one society woman has burst into tears as her last guest departed on account of the embarrassing position she had been placed in by the thieves.

So far the gang has been able to evade the police, largely on account of the fact that the police force is not large enough to have an officer constantly on duty in the East End district.

It seems to make little difference how much trouble a person takes to hide the refreshments, the youngsters have spies hidden about the premises and manage to get hold of what they want in some manner.

They have been so bold as to go right into the kitchen and snatch a freezer of ice cream off a table.

The stealing of the Comstock refreshments last evening was particularly daring. The salad had been placed in the basement and the doors locked, but the boys got in, and from all accounts, "a pleasant time was had."

The French consul at Batavia lays stress on the importance of bamboo as a material for constructing builders' scaffolding, and he states that in Java even a lighthouse has been built with its help. The power of resistance of a bamboo cane measuring eight inches to ten inches in diameter, even with a length of sixty-five feet, is enormous. Moreover, bamboo is said not to rot either when in the ground or in water, while the drier and older it grows the firmer it becomes.

Fools make a mock at advertising, but the wise man sayeth not a word, and secureth additional space.

THE BOY BURGLAR

Boy of 13 Accused of Burglaries Worthy a Professional.

Admits Having Done Dozen Crimes---Seems Proud of It.

Owing to Youth He Will Probably Not Go to Prison.

A dozen daring burglaries in two weeks is the astonishing criminal record of a 13-year-old boy arrested this morning by Detective Mork.

The young thief came very near stampeding the police with the boldness and cleverness of his operations.

The name of this child burglar is Louis London, known among the newsboys as "King Edward the Limit."

The police claim that during the past two weeks he has burglarized the candy store of Summers & Son four times, the grocery store of Henry Folz twice, a little East Superior street candy store twice, M. M. Gasser & Co. once, the Palladio Cigar store once, and the clothing store of Floan, Leveroos & Co. once.

Until yesterday morning the police were of the opinion that these burglaries were the work of some clever professional. Every job furnished evidence supporting this theory. At about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, however, a boy in short trousers was seen breaking into the grocery store of Henry Folz at 333 West Superior street. As soon as he was discovered he jumped on a bicycle and got away.

A fairly good description of him was given the police by the man that saw him, and last night Detective Charles Mork and Officer Gear patroled the district where the burglaries have been occurring.

At 6 o'clock this morning Detective Mork discovered a boy in short trousers prowling through First alley between Lake and First avenues east. The boy was taken in custody and at first put up a strong bluffing game, but soon admitted that he had been doing the work and was on his way to do another job when apprehended.

The most singular part of his daring work is that he always, according to his confession, broke into buildings just before 6 o'clock in the morning. This was for the purpose of throwing persons that might see him off the track, by giving an impression that he was opening up the store for the day's trade.

London says that he is only 13 years of age, though he looks to be 16. He says he began his career as a burglar only a few weeks ago, and has counted that day lost when he could not successfully rob a cash drawer before most people were out of bed.

His most sensational work was done Sunday morning, July 13. At that time he robbed the cigar store in the Palladio building of $30 and the grocery of M. M. Gasser & Co. of $18.

He got into the Palladio building by taking out a heavy plate glass window. The Gasser store was entered by forcing in a rear door.

The clothing store of Floan, Leveroos & Company was robbed of $10 just after daybreak Wednesday morning. Young London got up on the roof at the rear of the building and then dropped through the skylight within a few feet of the cashier's desk.

Just after daybreak last Monday morning he broke into the grocery store of Henry Folz for the first time, securing $15.

London had a particular liking for the candy and fruit store of Summers & Son at 212 West Superior street. He robbed it four times in two weeks, but only got small amounts of change each time. He gained entrance by crawling under the building and pushing open a trap door in the floor.

The boy never took anything but money, and the only time he left any clue behind was when he was frightened away from Folz's store yesterday morning. He dropped a screw driver and a heavy piece of wood as he mounted his wheel.

Chief Troyer says that in all his experience he never ran across the equal of London, even in much older and more experienced criminals. His work showed careful preparation, extreme boldness, and a persistence worthy of a better cause.

London is so young that he will probably only be sent to an industrial school instead of prison. He is inclined to talk about his brief, but active career as a burglar in a somewhat boastful manner, especially the two times he broke into a little candy store nearly opposite police headquarters. His home is at 312 East Ninth street.

AN INCREASE.

Tarantula Population of Duluth Is Increased By 300.

There is another chapter to the story of the capture of an immense tarantula by Andrew Nelson in his candy store at 2007 West Superior street night before last.

The bug was found in a bunch of bananas, and it was accompanied by an egg, or rather by a round bag full of eggs.

This morning the eggs hatched out, and Nelson has a collection of 200 or 300 small bay tarantulas, besides the old one, which is still alive.

About 10 o'clock last night the tarantula mounted guard over its eggs, much as a hen might over its kind of egg. It at once began to work at the bail with a couple of pinchers protruding from its head, and it appeared to be trying to open up the sack, which was composed of a soft, pulpy material. This continued all night, and at 10 o'clock this morning the interesting event took place, and several hundred infant tarantulas first saw the light.

The collection is attracting great curiosity down in the West End. While tarantulas have been found in bananas before, none have been found so large as this, and no births have been reported.

Nelson had a narrow escape from being bitten by the tarantula yesterday while changing it from one glass jar to another. He took the cover off the one in which the bug was jailed, and immediately the insect jumped about twenty inches up into the air, striking the shade of an electric light above, and dropped back, narrowly missing Nelson's hand. He dropped a glass jar over the bug, which had fallen upon the counter, and by slipping a paper under it he soon had the jar right side up with the tarantula safely enclosed.

NEARING THE END.

Hubbard & Vincent Mill Toward End of Hines Cut.

At the present rate of sawing, it is claimed that the Hubbard & Vincent mill will soon finish its contract with the Edward Hines Lumber company. The mill has been cutting all the late spring and summer on the Hines timber and unless other contracts are closed within a few days it will be compelled to close down for the season. It is rumored that Hubbard & Vincent will cut some of the Alger-Smith logs as soon as it finishes the Hines contract, but the report has not been confirmed.

There are said to be a number of lumbermen with timber to cut, looking for a mill to place their contracts, but the question of price has been a drawback. Local manufacturers will not saw logs so cheap this season as they did a few season's ago on account of the increased cost of operating and the better prices which the owners receive for their lumber.

MONEY IN MERGERS

Experts Say Pacific Road Earnings Due to Merger.

Claim That Competition Has Been Done Away With.

Saving From This Makes Larger Increase In Earnings.

The unprecedented increase in the gross earnings of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads is being dissected by railroad experts just now, and while greater prosperity and a continued rush of traffic is held to be largely responsible, the merger is given credit for some of the increase.

Officials who are acquainted with conditions say that the increase may be largely assigned to the fact that competition between the two systems was eliminated last year with the inception of the Northern Securities company.

In former years both systems were understood to resort to deep rate-cutting at times in order to secure traffic. One would offer a Western shipper a much better rate than quoted in the tariffs, and knowledge of this would impel the competing system to "get busy." Especially was this true to points like Spokane and Seattle, the strong competitive points on the systems.

Prior to the inception of the merger a closer understanding was apparent between the systems. During the past few months there has been ostensibly a move by representatives of each system to secure business away from the other, but this, it is said, was merely to mislead.

There is now no such thing as getting a better rate from one road than the other, the only concessions possible being to points touched by the Soo, Milwaukee or North-Western in the west.

Men Are Needed.

Railroad Contractor Archie Guthrie, who has charge of all the operations in connection with the new spur tracks for the Great Northern road, was a business caller in the city today. Mr. Guthrie says the new track work is well under way, but there is a great need of more men.

CAT HAD HIS FINGER TIP.

If Joseph Cole, a laborer, comes out of his latest accident with a whole finger he will have to thank Dr. C. W. Strobell, a local physician. Dr. Strobell has amputated scores of fingers in the course of his many years of practice, but until yesterday he never sewed one on that had already been cut off, writes the Rutland correspondent of the New York World.

Cole, who lives in Harrison avenue, is employed in the yards of the Columbia Marble mill. While assisting in placing a block of marble on a sawing gang his hand was caught in the machinery and the middle finger was severed at the first joint. He wrapped the wounded member up in a rag and went home. Dr. Strobell arrived shortly after, and said that if he could find the missing part of the finger he believed he could sew it on.

Cole said that he had no idea where the finger end was, but he would wait while the doctor looked for it. Thereupon Dr. Strobell drove two miles to the mill. When he made known his mission the foreman said that the missing end had been swept into the rubbish heap. All hands started on a hunt, and soon espied a cat about to make a meal on the lost section of Cole's anatomy. The finger was rescued and washed, and the doctor started back with it. He sewed it on, and several physicians who have called to see Cole declare that the finger will be made whole.

WATERPOWER

Condemnation Proceedings Coming Up In District Court.

A swarm of attorneys representing owners of property to be affected will be on hand in the district court tomorrow morning, when a hearing for the appointment of commissioners in condemnation proceedings for the appraisal of land needed by the Highland Canal and Power company for its mammoth water power will take place.

The condemnation proceedings is another important step which will be followed shortly by some visible signs of development. Since receiving the charter from the city and the election of officers some weeks ago, the company has endeavored to buy up, as far as possible, the land through which the waterway will pass. Four surveying parties have been in the field for weeks, that the actual work of construction can be begun as soon as the land is acquired. Many of the owners of property refuse to sell and have secured lawyers to oppose the appointment of commissioners. The legal title promises to be an interesting one. S. T. & William Harrison are the company's attorneys.

AT WEST DULUTH

The renewed industrial activity in West Duluth has been marked this summer by an appreciable increase in the population of this portion of the city. The movement may yet be considered as in its infancy, and real estate men and business men are now looking for a greater season of prosperity next year. By that time repair and preparatory work that is going on at various institutions that will employ a large amount of labor will be finished, and with the starting up of the institutions places will be found for hundreds of workmen.

One real estate man estimates the increase of West Duluth's laboring population this year between 350 and 400 persons. He says that this is a conservative estimate and not taking much in account the families that have been brought to West Duluth. This movement has brought about better business conditions, and there is scarcely a West Duluth merchant that has not remarked on the increase of his trade over that of June and July a year ago.

The real estate market in this portion of the city has received an impetus that it has not enjoyed for many years past, and dealers claim there are more trades being negotiated every week now than there were in a month last year. While houses for rent are in good demand, so much so that property owners who have neglected their buildings to some extent in past years on account of a scarcity of renters, are now doing a great deal of repair and improvement work.

There is a strong demand by workingmen for lots on which to build homes. West Duluth property has not yet been reached by high values, although prices are much better than they were a year ago, and laboring people with moderate means are finding it to their advantage to locate a home before any rise in price comes, for real estate men here are confident that values have not yet reached the top in this portion of the city.

MACHINERY ARRIVING.

Several carloads of new machinery for the American Lumber company's new planing mill at the foot of Central avenue arrived in West Duluth yesterday. Among the new machinery received is a band resaw 18 inches in size, a 15-inch wood-matcher, a timber-dresser that will dress timber up to 24 inches square, a heavy rip saw, matcher and moulding machine. Still other machinery is to be installed, including, perhaps, another band saw. A timber dresser of the size installed by the company is not often seen in this part of the country.

The new plant has been turning out from four to five carloads of finished lumber per day, but with the new machinery installed the output will be increased up to twelve or fifteen carloads a day.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

William Woods, the young grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dorey, of Sixtieth avenue west, died yesterday. The funeral was held this morning from the St. James church and interment was made at Calvary cemetery.

A large and successful lawn social was held last evening by the ladies of the St. James church, at the corner of Cody street and Fifty-seventh avenue west. The grounds were gaily decorated and well lighted. Addresses were made by a number of the prominent citizens, and music was furnished by the band.

The funeral of William Shevallia will be held from the St. James church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, and interment will be made at Calvary cemetery. Mr. Shevallia died from a paralytic stroke at Kansas City last Sunday, and the remains arrived in West Duluth this morning. They were taken to the home of M. Le Clair, a brother-in-law of the decedent.

The picnic given at Fairmount park by Mrs. H. R. Patterson to her Sunday school class was a very delightful affair, and the young people thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The park, with the little improvement that has already been made, is growing in favor as a place for picnic parties, and many who have visited it for the first time are surprised at its natural beauties.

W. M. Brotherton returned yesterday afternoon from a successful fishing trip.

J. Dungay, of Scanlon, was a visitor here yesterday.

No word has been received yet from the Clouquet ball team relative to a Sunday game in that town, and the Leading Stars are casting about for a game with some other tem.

L. Merritt returned from Ely yesterday.

James and William Shevlin, who have been visiting relatives here, left last evening for their home in Northern Michigan.

There has been some inquiry as to the next meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club. Many of the members are expressing themselves as quite favorable to a discontinuance of the meetings during the warm weather months and resume regular meetings next fall.

Take the steamer Mary Mann for Zenith park Sunday. Regular trips all day. Fare 10 cents.

CAPTURE A MEDAL

Third Regiment Wins Honors For Guard Duty Proficiency.

Maj. Eva of Duluth Was Instructor In This Branch.

Guardsmen Anxiously Awaiting Report of Annual Inspection.

Duluth National Guardsmen are elated.

The Third regiment has again carried off the state gold medal for proficiency in guard duty.

This honor is particularly appreciated in Duluth, for the reason that Maj. H. V. Eva was the regimental instructor in this important branch of the service, and also for the reason that Companies A and C, of this city, did much toward the high standing of the regiment.

The guard duty rating of the Third regiment is 89.15, according to general orders received from the adjutant general's office yesterday. The Second regimenet ranked next to the Third with 84.15, and the First regiment was last in the brigade with a rating of 82.5.

The Guardsmen are now waiting anxiously for the company rating of the annual inspection held at Lake City in June. The Duluth men expect to make a commendable showing in this report from the adjutant general's office, and if they do, it will be far more important than the high ratings achieved in the past, for this year's ratings, for the first time, will be made from an actual demonstration of field service.

The Duluth guardsmen also cherish a generous ambition to get one of the candidates on the state rifle team. The shoot will occur at Lake City on Aug. 4.

The team that will probably go from here consists of: Maj. F. E. Resche, Lieut. Whitaker of A company, Sergt. Simpson of C company and Corp. Carl Anderson of C company.

A GOOD TIME.

Duluth Commission Men Will Be Entertained at Minneapolis.

Between twenty and twenty-five of the members of the Duluth Produce and Fruit exchange will leave on a special car over the Northern Pacific road tomorrow noon for St. Paul, where they will be the guests until Monday of the Twin City commission men. The local commission men are to be entertained in return for their hospitality to the Twin City commission men when they were in Duluth last summer. At that time they were given a banquet at the Spalding, a boat ride about the bay and a drive on the boulevard.

All of the local commission houses will close promptly at 1 o'clock tomorrow, and grocers who expect to get their supplies will have to start in early.

The entertainment provided by the Twin City commission men will consist of a banquet at St. Paul Saturday evening and a steamer ride on the Mississippi river Sunday. It is intimated that there will be other forms of entertainment that will not be divulged by the local men, but they say there is not the slightest danger of a rise in produce prices when they return next Monday.

Music on the car en route for the Twin Cities tomorrow will be furnished by the Exchange's Glee club.

EXPENSIVE.

Northern Pacific's New Sewer Is Costing Considerable.

The sewer which the Northern Pacific company is constructing alongside its tracks from the pond hole near the old National Iron works to the bay at the foot of Twentieth avenue west is said to be a very expensive operation for the railroad company, more expensive, in fact, than it would have been to have filled the hole up with sand. There remains about 100 yards of the sewer to be excavated and timbered at the upper, and the outlet is yet to be finished at the lower end.

The sewer is now built to a little marsh between the Northern Pacific company's main line and two of the Terminal tracks recently purchased by the company. It is understood that the Terminal tracks at this point, which follow the bay shore around to the new yards of the Northern Pacific company, will be torn up very shortly and the swamp will be completed out to the bay. A large part of the sewer has been excavated through some of the "built up" ground, comprised mostly of slab wood covered over with earth. When the workmen on the job struck the slab wood the work had to be done largely by hand instead of shovels. A large amount of heavy timber is being used in the sewer.

At the foot of Nineteenth avenue west the sewer runs directly under the branch house of the Minneapolis Brewing company. The pond toward which teh sewer is being constricted is gradually being filled in with earth and refuse. A large part of the refuse is being hauled from the Duluth Brewing and Malting company's plant.

FIVE THOUSAND BALLOTS.

Dallas, Texas, July 25.—The Democratic congressional convention for the Twelfth district, in session at Dublin, has taken 5500 ballots without choice. The balloting proceeds with good humor on all sides, but there is an absolute deadlock between the three candidates.

OUTLOOK IS FINE

Crops of Entire Northwest Are In Prime Condition.

Fine Harvest Weather Will Make Big Yield Certain.

Flax Crop Will Be Enormous---Large Crop of Barley.

All reports received by Duluth grain men and elevator companies indicate that the crop of the Northwest will be a large one. Small grains everywhere are steadily improving under the influence of the favorable weather. They have made fine progress during the past ten days and there is hardly an unfavorable indication at the present time. Letters received by grain men all say that the ground is damp and the weather warm and dry, an ideal condition at this period of the growth. Some counties would like a little more rain, particularly in the northern and central parts of North Dakota, but nowhere is there any fear of a loss of crop.

All that is needed to assure a fine crop this year is a dry harvest. The period when hot winds can damage the grain is practically past, and at any rate the ground is in such condition that serious injury would not be likely even though they were to come.

Storms have visited several parts of the state and have inflicted severe loss in certain localities and have started stories of heavy damage to the crop as a whole. Storms, however, rarely inflict any appreciable damage to the crop as an entirety even though they may be disastrous in certain communities. It has been estimated after investigation that the recent storms have not reduced the yield to exceed 1,000,000 bushels.

In some parts of South Dakota the cutting of wheat has already begun, but generally speaking it will not be fairly started until the latter part of next week. Two weeks from now will see it well under way.

The yield of wheat in the three great spring states last year has been estimated by the government as follows: Minnesota, 85,000,000 bushels; North Dakota, 57,000,000 bushels, South Dakota, 31,000,000 bushels. This is regarded as too high. Corn experts this year estimate Minnesota at 70,000,000 bushels, North Dakota as high as 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels and South Dakota from 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels.

These figures may seem rather high in view of the fact that there is known to be a considerably decreased acreage in some of the sections where there has always been a heavy yield, but the character of the crop is said to be much better this year than last and the prospect for a largely increased yield is excellent. The flax crop of the three states this fall will be enormous. It is placed as high as 35,000,000 bushels, based on an acreage of 3,500,000, and an average yield of ten bushels. This is about 10,000,000 bushels more than the country is supposed to have raised last year.

This unusually large yield would naturally suggest a largely decreased price, but up to this time flax has held and is still holding what is considered a very good price. The price of flax in this country the coming year will depend on the foreign crops of flax. In other words the export demand will fix the price. Up to the present time there is no reason to believe that the foreign situation will break the price here to any extent.

Reports of the condition of the flax crop are rosy from every section. Some elevator men say they have yet to hear a report of flax doing poorly.

The impression that the flax crop would be late because planted rather late has been general but reports from the West indicate that the crop is as far advanced as usual at this season of the year and that if anything it is ahead of the usual stage of this time in the season.

Duluth is today the greatest primary flax market of the country and probably of the world, but will break all previous records this fall. This fall will see enormous activity in flax in the Duluth market.

Duluth will also be a great barley market this fall. The Northwest is raising more barley this year than it ever did and it is commanding a fine price. There is money in barley raising this year. Barley runs from thirty to fifty bushels to the acre. It is probably not too high to put the average yield at thirty-five bushels. This means a yield of $12.25 an acre. This is about $3 an acre better than can be expected from wheat.

An instance of the largely increased yield of barley is found in the Dalrymple farms. They have about 2000 acres in barley. The harvesting of barley has already begun in many sections of the Northwest.

Corn will be produced in much larger quantities in the Northwest this year. The high price that grain has brought all year has stimulated production in the Northwest as well as in the central and Southwestern country.

WOOLEN MILL.

Superior Working on the Plan Also---Garment Manufactory.

The idea of establishing a woolen mill has been considered in West Superior as well as in this city. The parties from the southern part of the state who are most interested in the woolen mill have been conducting a canvass both sides of the bay, but the plan of procedure has not yet received an indorsement that will warrant the establishment of a woolen mill here.

The plan outlined by a gentleman who has been here for some days seeking to interest local capitalists in woolen manufacturing, has been to form a stock company in which the wholesale dry goods concerns at the head of the lake would take a large part of the stock. One wholesaler has signified his willingness to take some of their available money in extensive improvements in the way of enlarging their business during the past year that they do not feel in a position to enter heavily into a new venture just at this time.

It is claimed that a factory for the manufacture of ladies' garments is to be established very shortly in West Superior. This proposition was taken up some time ago by the Business Men's club of the West End and the sentiment of that organization was that the West End offered an available field for such a manufactory. Definite action was deferred, however, until other matters then pending had been disposed of. The West Superiorites seem to have stolen a march on the West Enders and adopted the idea before the Business Men's association could get any action.

AMUSEMENTS.

MOON BROS. THEATER.

"Two Maimed Women" drew another large house last night, at Moon Bros.' theater. The clever farce was well received and sent the audience home in a satisfied and happy frame of mind. "The Little Girl with the Big Voice" opens tonight and will no doubt draw well as she has been heralded as one of the most attractive features of the vaudeville profession. The play announced for tonight is the 4-act sensational drama "A Western Heroine," and an entire change of specialties between acts.

BREACH OF PROMISE.

Honeymoon Interrupted By Arrest of the Bridegroom.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 26.—A great stir was caused here by the arrest of J. Howard Whenel, son of the late William Whelen, of Philadelphia, on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Adelaide C. Harned, of Philadelphia, on a charge of breach of promise to marry. Mrs. Harned demands $20,000 damages as a balm to heal her wounded heart. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Mr. Whelen, with his young bride, has been at the Strand hotel for the last month. He was standing with his wife near the clerk's desk when Sheriff Johnson called him aside and notified him that he was under arrest.

Whelen's mother resides at Devon, near Philadelphia, where he has a fine country place. She is a niece of the late Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the Paris dentist, who left his millions to found the Evans institute. After being graduated from the university, Whelen entered the office of Townsend, Whelen & Co., brokers, Philadelphia, but, having ample means to gratify his tastes, he gave up business to cultivate political aspirations.

Mrs. Harned is an attractive blonde, 25 years old, and, like Whelen, has been divorced. Her husband was William Dunlap Harned, against whom she obtained her decree over two years ago, together with the custody of their child. She resides with her father, Risdon Clement.

New York, July 25.—Thirty or more representatives of the various companies which are to enter the strawboard combination known as the United Box Board and Paper company, have held informal conferences in this city, at the conclusion of which it was reported that the combination had been completed. It was stated that the principal business transacted was the transfer of plants to the new corporation which will have a capitalization of $28,965,400, of which $14,946,950 will be in 7 per cent preferred stock and $14,018,600 in common.

Brown, second vice president. Besides seventeen mills owned by the American Strawboard company, plants in the following cities are included in the new company: Muncie, Ind.; Peoria, Ill.; Waldron, Ill.; Mount Carmel, Ill.; Rockport, Ind.; Eaton, Ind.; Marion, Ind.; Vincennes, Ind.; Wabash, Ind.; Yorktown, Ind.; Urbana, Ohio; Middletown, Ohio; Norwich, Conn.; Shelton, Conn.; Fulton, N. Holders of American Strawboard stock will receive, it is said, $57.60 in the preferred stock of the new company and $35.40 in the new common for each $100 share of the strawboard. The terms upon which the other companies exchange their stock have not been made public. The headquarters of the new corporation are likely to be in this city.

CHAMPIONS.

Chicago Cricketers Are at Head of the Northwest.

Winnipeg, July 25.—By winning yesterday's game from Minnesota, the Chicago championship with a clean score. They won yesterday by eight wickets, the splendid bowling of Davis being an especial feature. Minnesota went to bat first, Richards making the top score with 18, the innings closing for 47. When Chicago went in to bat great things were expected but the bowling of Goodwin and Ramsay was deadly and the innings realized but 68, Wallister and Pool being the only players to run into double figures, with 12 and 16 respectively. Minnesota going in again were all out for 62, five men being stumped off Davis. This left Chicago with 42 to win and they secured it for the loss of three wickets.

The Manitobas were beaten by the Assiniboines by a score of 31 to 157, Hayward being the best bat with a total of 77.

Today the international match between all-Manitoba and all-American players will be played.

Army officers in Oregon express the belief that the incendiary fires discovered during the past week at Fort Stevens were the work of recruits who have become tired of army life. The services of detectives have been engaged and a systematic search has been begun by the government to arrest the guilty persons. Not Girls Enough to Go Around.

It is extremely fortunate for the male population of the United States that so many prefer to remain bachelors, for it has been discovered by the census bureau that there are not nearly enough females to go around. This never-failing source of information finds that in the aggregate, there are 6,726,775 bachelors of 20 years or over, and makes record of the remarkable fact that there are at present in the United States two and a half millions more single men than single women of that age and above. The exact figures are 4,198,146 maidens, so that the latter are in the minority of 2,-531,338. In other words, there are 2,531,-338 unattached males who could not possibly get wives unless they fell back upon the widows or upon girls under 20. Now, that is a very surprising state of affairs, in view of the belief which has hitherto prevailed that there was in this country a great surplus of spinsters who could not possibly hope to obtain husbands, because of the lack of an adequate supply. It is proved by the census office figures not only that this notion was incorrect, but that the surplus is actually one of bachelors. Even when all of the widows, and the girls down to 17 years of age are taken into the count, there are not nearly enough of them to go around. Even in Massachusetts, long supposed to be the spinsters' peculiar stronghold, there are more marriageable men than women by about 5000. Indeed, every state in the Union shows a balance to the bad, and when we come to some of the Western commonwealths the disproportion is so striking that it will cheer any despondent maid. There are but 88,755 spinsters for 229,501 bachelors to choose from in California. In Utah the ratio is about two to one; in the Dakotas, three to one; in Montana, eight to one; in Wyoming, ten to one, and in Alaska about fourteen to one. Even in New York there are only 566,224 women for 709,12 6men, and in Pennsylvania only 415,799 for 572,906, while in Minnesota there are 195,529 unmarried men to 85,-244 single women. There is certainly an excuse for some men in Minnesota remaining single. There are not girls enough to go around and with the courtesy born of the true Minnesotan many step aside to allow others to have a chance. The country needs more girls.

Territorial Exports and Imports.

The United States sent out $50,000,000 worth of exports to its noncontiguous territories during the present fiscal year. This is practically five times as much as the exports to those territories in 1897, when none of them excepting Alaska, was under the American flag. In round terms these exports went as follows: To the Hawaiian Islands, $20,000,000; to Alaska, $15,000,000; to Porto Rico, $10,000,000; to the Philippines, $5,000,000; total, 50,000,000. The exports to Porto Rico in the fiscal year 1897 were $1,988,888, and in the fiscal year 1902 they were over $10,000,000, the exact figures for eleven months being more than $9,500,-000; and while the figures for the twelfth month have not been received, it is certain that the total will exceed $10,000,000. To Hawaii our exports in the fiscal year 1897 were $1,029,075, and for the fiscal year 1902 the best estimate of the customs authorities is in round terms, $20,000,000. Exact figures of the shipments to Hawaii are not at present available, but it is known that the shipments from Hawaii to the United States during the year will amount to about $23,000,000, and it is believed that the estimate of $20,000,000 for our shipments to the Hawaiian Islands is a conservative one. To the Philippine Islands our exports in the fiscal year 1897 will be over $5,000,000, exclusive of shipments made by the government for the use of its troops or other officers in the islands. To Alaska the best estimate obtainable of the shipments in 1897 is $3,924,000, while those for the fiscal year just ended are estimated by the customs authorities at $15,000,000. This would make the grand total of shipments from the United States to its con-contiguous territory $50,000,000, exclusive of goods sent by the government for use of the army or its officials. In imports from the islands the increase has not been as great as that in exports. The total value of our imports from Porto Rico in the fiscal year 1897 was $2,181,624, and in 1902 will be about $8,000,000. From the Hawaiian islands the imports in the fiscal year 1897 were $13,687,799, and the total for 1902 will be about $22,000,000. From the Philippines the imports in the fiscal year 1897 were $4,383,740, and for 1902 the total will be over $7,000,000. The value of merchandise, including gold and silver, received from Alaska in 1897 is estimated at $5,000,000, and for 1902 about $15,000,000, making the total imports of 1897 from Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines and Alaska about $25,000,000, while the total for the fiscal year 1902 will be about $50,-000,000.

GREENE-GAYNOR CASE.

One would naturally think, from the action of the Canadian courts in connection with the Greene-Gaynor matter, that the United States had asked them to try the case for us. The technicality on which it is intimated that the Canadian authorities are liable to stand—that there is a variance between the offense for which we are demanding the extradition of the runaway contractors and that for which we purpose trying them in the United States courts—is absurd. To refuse extradition on the ground that they are not guilty of the crime for which we intend to try them, wholly apart from the question whether our demand is based on an offense which is recognized by the extradition treaty between the British government and ours, would be practically trying the case for us. If we were to demand the surrender of the two men for an offense recognized by treaty, and later try them for another and wholly different one, we should put ourselves into a position of extreme awkwardness, to say the least. Such a thing would have been considered, in the days when war was regarded less seriously than now, an international insult which could be wiped out only in blood. In these more practical times it would probably result simply in the service of diplomatic notice upon us by the British government of the abrogation of the treaty and we should stand in the presence of the world as a nation capable of a gross act of bad faith. But if we were to bring the men back under a demand couched in treaty terms, which covered under a slightly different phase the same actual offense for which we put them on trial in the United States, there would be no just ground for cavil. It seems foolish for the Dominion authorities to quibble over this matter. Even between friendly nations, where there is no treaty of extradition, it is by no means uncommon to surrender fugitive criminals on the ground of international comity. Perhaps in view of the stand of our neighbors, it would be well for the government to apply directly for the extradition of the two on grounds outside the scope of the treaty. It is hardly likely the request would be refused. The matter should be settled one way or another, that the two rascals may be brought to justice.

A RUBBER-TIRED PERIL.

The deadly automobile has taken a place in the workshop of the paragrapher and jokesmith alongside of those time-honored subjects the mother-in-law, the suburbanite and the plumber's bill, but a writer in Municipal Affairs calls attention to facts that remove it far from the field of humor. Louis Windmueller, the author of the article, takes rather a pessimistic view of the situation, but it must be confessed that there are grounds for his alarm.

Duluth has not suffered much yet, perhaps because her citizens are more considerate of human life and limb, and incidentally because they have not yet taken to the purchase of automobiles. That will come in due time, however, and in the meantime it behooves everybody who does not anticipate the purchase of one of the machines and an entrance upon a career of violence to study the situation and take thought regarding precautions that may be taken against the day when the "juggernautomobile" takes up its devastating career upon the streets of Duluth.

There is something stealthy about the approach of one of these cushion-tired machines that gives the pedestrian no warning of its coming, and this, taken with the speed at which they may be manipulated and the arrongance of their owners, is responsible for the loss of life. Ordinances regulating speed seem to be unheeded, and accidents resulting therefrom have not been punished with proper severity. In France the automobile reigns supreme, but in London the police department has raked up an old ordinance limiting the speed of vehicles to three miles an hour, and requiring them to be announced by a footman swinging a flag 100 feet ahead. When customary British conscientiousness enforced this rule, automobiles disappeared.

Of the future the writer says: "While they remain expensive the use of these vehicles is naturally confined to the few But a widely felt popular demand for them, stimulated by the desire to go with little effort as fast as possible, will increase production and improve quality. Increasing sales will reduce cost, until a fair mobile may be had for the price of a good cycle. When their use becomes universal they will be more dangerous than trolleys, which are confined to their tracks. Notwithstanding innumerable laws to prevent them, casualties are of daily occurrence, it will be difficult to restrain autos from killing pedestrians, from destroying the slower vehicles, and from injuring each other when thousands race at the rate of forty miles upon the highways."

Is the automobile to be ranked by future historians alongside of war and plagues as a destroyer of human life?

The refusal of Senator McLaurin to accept a place on the court of claims is a most welcome one and meets with general approval. This is the only court in which the government permits itself to be sued and handles a very difficult class of cases, involving larger amounts and interests than almost any other tribunal except the supreme court. If there is a collision with a government vessel at sea, or a money controversy involving an Indian treaty or a public land title, it goes to the court of claims. The relations of this court to the government and congress are so close that many persons think that at least two of its five members should be Democrats, in order that its decisions many not be branded by the congressional interests which happen to be affected adversely as those of "a Republican court." The only Democrat now a member is Judge Howry, of Mississippi, and were McLaurin to go there he would not be accepted as one. It is suggested that the president should look about among the younger men in the state courts for some man who has shown special adaptability for this class of work. These judgeships pay but $4500 per year and difficulty is always experienced in getting wholly available men for them.

That elastic fund, which provides for contingent expenses of the senate will be liberally "touched" this summer on account of a trip of four United States senators, who propose to go on a junketing trip to Havana for a couple of months. Those who will make the trip are Senators Mitchell, of Oregon; Foster, of Washington; Burton, of Kansas, and Blackburn, of Kentucky. Just before congress adjourned a resolution was passed authorizing a trip to Hawaii by members of the committee on Pacific islands and Porto Rico, and four men decided to make the trip. A couple of years ago a similar junket was arranged for about a dozen members of the house, headed by Cannon, of Illinois. They spent about six weeks in the island and brought back some racy stories of native life and some pictures of dancing girls that would not pass muster before the Anthony Comstock society. But the senators who propose going over next month protest that they do not go to study the Hawaiian dancing girls, but that they want to make an examination of the crown lands of the islands as wel as to look into the irrigation question as agitated in Hawaii. Any old excuse will do. That the principal object of the trip is a cheap vacation is well known and no disguise will hide it.

Already some of the Boer leaders profess to detect a serious departure from the terms of the peace treaty on the part of the British. This is due to the refusal of the British colonial office to allow two Boer ex-officials to return to South Africa without the permission of Lord Milner. It is sincerely to be hoped that no friction will arise between the two parties that will in any way detract from the good will heretofore expressed in the settlement of the war.

People who find ping-pong too strenuous for hot weather may be interested in "piff-piff," a new New Zealand game. It is played with a miniature pair of bellows and an air ball, which is very light. At each end of the table are upstanding goals, and the play lies in directing the ball through the opponent's goal. This, by a stroke of luck, may be done in a few minutes, or it may not be accomplished in a night.

A three-volume account of the campaign in China under the command of Gen. Waldersee is being made ready for publication under the direction of the German government. It omits all mention, it is said, of American achievements at Pekin and elsewhere in China. If we remember correctly the Americans were there, a fact to which even some of the Germants could testify.

By a blunder the sea pumps of the cruiser Bayon, built at Toulon for the Russian government, have been so fitted that instead of pumping water out of the vessel's engine room they pump it in. This should teach the Russians to have all their war ships built in the United States.

Thus far the Republican campaign managers seem to have paid no attention to the undisputed fact that American goods are sold cheaper abroad than at home. Perhaps it is a matter that they do not care to agitate.

It is to be regretted that the friar question is getting into some of the Protestant pulpits. The least said about the matter from this source, the easier it will be of settlement.

It was rather unkind of the microbes in New York to accept the invitation of the street commissioner to be photographed in such numbers as to spoil the plate. They must have been females.

Maj. Glenn admits that he ducked some of the natives of the Philippines. He should be praised rather than censured, if for no other reason than for giving them a bath.

Admiral Crowninshield's first trip to sea proved disastrous, but the doughty admiral can at least say that he has been on the ocean.

ALLEGED HUMOR.

Somerville Journal: If you don't believe that this is a hard world go out and try to dig a well.

Chicago Post: "The trouble is," remarked the successful man patronizingly, "that you don't seize your oportunities."

"Oh, I grab at 'em fast enough," returned the other, "but darn 'em! they're greased."

Philadelphia Press: "Yes, I still have the first dollar I ever made," said the gray-haired passenger.

"The idea!" exclaimed the traveling acquaintance, "and how did you keep it so long?"

"It was very imperfect, being my first, and I'd have had trouble in passing it."

Somerville Journal: One reason why the city boy often fails behind the country boy in the race for wealth and honor is that there is no woodshed available for the city boy's father to take him to for discipline.

Chicago News: Diggs—What became of your friend Waggs?

Biggs—He went out West about a year ago and married a widow worth half a million.

Biggs—Now, that's what I call taking time by the forelock.

Biggs—How so?

Diggs—Why, he celebrated his golden wedding fifty years ahead of schedule.

Philadelphia Press: "I am hard to discourage," said the rejected suitor, melodramatically. "Some day I'll make you say you love me and then—and not until then—I shall die happy."

"I'll say it now," said she promptly, "I don't mind telling a lie for a good end."

Washington Star: "You say you love this country?"

"Devotedly," answered the eminent actress.

"Do you think we have as much artistic appreciation as Europe has?"

"You have what is more than artistic appreciation; you have the money with which to buy tickets and are willing to spend it."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It is a short journey from becoming a mother-in-law to a grandmother.

All a man has to do to learn to understand woman is to learn that he can't.

When a bride and bridegroom get to playing ping-pong every night right after dinner the honeymoon is pretty nearly over.

There are very few women who don't act with other women about their husbands as if they could have done better if they had wanted to.

The man who can come down to breakfast smiling has the still power to keep from saying he never knew such a warm summer before.

AT THE HOTELS

Dr. T. W. Mayhew, of Grand Marais, is in the city for the first time in a year, and with his brother, Henry Mayhew, is stopping at the St. Louis. Dr. Mayhew's health has not been as vigorous as it might be since his home burned some time ago. The Mayhews, as everybody knows, are pioneers of the Northwest, and especially of Cook county. Henry Mayhew went to Grand Marais in 1857, when there was no Grand Marais, and Dr. Mayhew followed him there in 1872. "Matters are rather quiet with us just now," said Mr. Mayhew this morning, "but everybouy is well and happy, and even contented, though we are still hoping that somebody will bring us a railroad before long. There is not a great deal of mineral exploration going on in our vicinity just now, but we are having the usual run of summer tourists and fishermen. Bert Leston Taylor, of the Chicago Tribune, who used to be with the morning paper here, has just returned from Isle Royale and will spend the rest of his vacation at Grand Marais."

Charles L. Hyde, of Pierre, S. D., accompanied by his daughter Ruth, is at the Spalding today. Mr. Hyde is largely interested in Duluth property, having bought a considerable amount here this spring, and he is looking after his interests in this city.

SOLID SOUTH.

There Will Be No Break In the Democratic Ranks.

New York, July 25.—Former Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who has been in this city, is quoted by the Times in discussing conditions in the Southern states as having said:

"The question of principal interest with regard to the political attitude of the South is not whether it will adhere to the Democratic party, but what part it will take in the Democratic national conventions. Will it stand by the departure of 1896 at Chicago which was reiterated at Kansas City in 1900, or will it go back to the Democracy of Jefferson and Jackson, of Seymour and Tilden? It seems almost impossible for Eastern business men and even Eastern Democrats to understand the situation in the South.

Of first importance with us is local government. Our sufferings from 1868 to 1880 taught lessons which will make it impossible for many years to some for the white vote to divide. It is not so much a matter of race prejudice; it is a matter of protecting our state, county and municipal government from ignorance and incompetence. The large majority of the white voters of the South are really conservative, but their fear of bad local government causes them frequently to make no fight on a national question lest it might jeopardize that which with them is essential—good local government. The Democrats of the East may confidently rely upon cordial co-operation in 1904 from those of the South.

The South has made wonderful progress in the last few years. Manufactories of every sort are being erected. I do not regard the struggle for supremacy in the manufacture of lint cotton to be between New England and the South. The South produces 70 per cent of the lint cotton of the world which goes to manufacturers. Foreign mills increase the value of American raised lint cotton $500,000,000 by manufacturing it annually. It is this immense increase that the South covets."

SQUABBLE OVER QUEEN.

Elks of Calumet and Hancock Have Controversy.

Hancock, Mich., July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—With antlers interlocked the Elks of Calumet and Hancock have sullenly pawed the ground and kicked up much dust during the last week, while the spielers have spieled and the barkers have barked nightly at the Elks' Copper Country carnival in Hancock. All on account of a queen! Miss Lue Jones, of Hancock, was elected by a vote of 12,000, while Miss Clara Englehafdt, of Calumet polled only 6000. Miss Jones was declared to be duly elected queen of the carnival.

To this the Calumet Elks demurred. Although their representative received only 6000 votes they declared Miss Engehardt must be crowned queen. Can't be, said Hancock. Must be, said Calumet. Then we'll have two queens, said Hancock. Impossible, said Calumet. Then each began to get angry, and to prevent an open rupture Miss Jones withdrew and left the field to her rival. Miss Englehardt was crowned queen and given a handsome ladies' gold watch, but the reception she got from the people was not cordial.

Despite the ill-feeling this squabble aroused, the carnival has been a success. The Hancock Elks will start a building fund with the net profits, and hope in another year to possess a temple all their own. To that end they purpose to work energetically for the next twelvemonth.

THE DAKOTAS.

The Beer That McCormicks Drank Was Not Poisoned.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—The coroner's jury, called to investigate the death of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McCormick, met late Wednesday afternoon. No witnesses were examined, but it was expected that the report of the analysis of the stomachs of the dedeceased and the pail of beer would be ready to be submitted to the jury. This work has not been completed by the professors of the University of Minnesota, but during the afternoon a telegram was received by States Attorney Wieneman, which briefly stated that the beer had been analyzed and was found harmless, no trace of poison having been discovered. The contents of McCormick's stomach had been analyzed, and evidence of the active part of aconite, a deadly poison, had been discovered. Death hur evidently resulted from this cause. The examination of Mrs. McCornick's stomach has not yet been completed. The fact of the beer having been found harmless places the death of McCormick and his wife in a still more mysterious light. Immediately after the tragedy a most thorough examination of the premises were made, but no bottle or other vessel which could have contained the poison was found.

Jamestown—The police are certain that Charles McGuire, under arrest here charged with selling liquor without a license, is an accomplice of William Heavey, arrested at St. Cloud charged with stealing a box of shoes. McGuire admits he sold liquor, but says he had nothing to do with the theft of the twenty quarts of whisky, 200 cigars and the box of shoes missed by the Northern Pacific company. It is probable he will be tried on the more serious charge after he serves his sentence for selling liquor.

La Moure—Joseph M. Squles, of Grand Rapids, committed suicide last night by cutting his throat with a razor. Mental derangement, due to a railroad accident in 1901, is assigned as the cause. He was 42 years old, a bonanza farmer and stock grower, and one of the Republican leaders of the county. He left a wife and children in good circumstances.

Vlborg—Edward Crawford and Christopher Christensen, sons of prominent farmers, were arrested, charged with breaking into the home of Julius Johnson, and attempting to assault Mrs. Johnson. In default of $100 bonds each, they were lodged in jail.

Vermillion—The friends of Joseph W. Mauck, late president of the state university, in this city, receive with pleasure the announcement that he has been chosen president of Hillsdale college, Hillsdale, Mich., and has accepted. Since resigning as president of the state university of South Dakota he has made his home in Chicago.

The news that President Garret Dropers, of the university, is lending his efforts toward the organizing of a new political party is taken with salt here. President Dopers' ambition is to built up the state university, and he is averse to making politics with educational work.

Gary—Company F, of the Second regiment of the South Dakota state guards, returned home Wednesday. It won the state banner for being the best behaved and having more men present than any other company in the regiment. Frank Harkins is captain.

Woonsocket—The city council, under a writ of mandamus issued by the circuit court, set a date and ordered a hearing on the applications of two saloonkeepers for license to sell liquors at retail. At a former meeting the council refused to act on the applications, and suit was begun to compel the council to act.

The freight train yesterday was loaded with over 500 harvest hands heating their way to the wheat fields of the north. No attempt was made to put them off the train.

IN MICHIGAN.

George Hayden of Ishpeming Dies From an Operation.

Ishpeming—George Hayden, of this city, one of the best known attorneys in the upper peninsula, died Wednesday night at the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, from the effects of a surgical operation. Mr. Hayden was general attorney for the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company and the Cleveland Iron Mining company, general counsel for the Marquette & Southeastern Railway company; also prominently identified with the Lake Superior & Ishpeming railway. He successfully conceived and negotiated the building of the Port Smith & Western railway, in Indian Territory, and was president of Ishpeming since 1873, and has held many offices, including city attorney, member of the school board and prosecutor of the county.

Calumet—Angus W. Kerr, who has represented the first district of Houghton county in the state legislature since 1899, will not return next fall. Houghton county is divided into three districts, and just who the representatives will be this year is not known. R. H. Shields, superintendent of the Arcadian mine, will probably represent the Third district.

John Anderson and Henry Karanen badly wounded each other in a stabbing affair near the Allouez mine.

Several large bears have been killed in the upper peninsula. Louis Isliss shot one recently near the Otter river weighing 160 pounds.

Houghton—John Stanton, of New York, president of the Stanton group of mines, is now in the copper country, where he will remain several weeks. Mr. Stanton says he believes that low price for the metal has been reached, and if it were not for the coal strike copper would be selling at 13 cents, and there would have been no falling off in consumption in June. He expects a continuation of the heavy consumption, of the heavy consumption, domestic and foreign, that existed during the first five months of the year.

Escanaba—Near a rude cross, with only his head above ground, has been found the body of a man in the woods, thirty miles from here. Officers are trying to find a clue to the mystery. The man appeared to be about 40 years old.

HEALTHY SON

Was Substituted For Sick One In Insurance Examination.

Muncie, Ind., July 25.—The committee on claims of the Knights of the Maccabees, in executive session at the national headquarters in Port Huron, Mich., has refused to grant the claim of William J. Eddinger, a Muncie contractor and builder, for the sum of $1000, the amount of a policy held upon his son, John C. Eddinger, 14, deceased.

The refusal is made pending the full investigation of the case, as charges of attempting to obtain life insurance by illegal means has been made against Eddinger.

It is charged that Eddinger either substituted the person of his second son, Carl C. Edinger, at the time of the physical examination of the supposed John C. Eddinger for admission to Muncie Tent No. 38, Knights of the Maccabees, or, if it was John C. Edinger who was examined, false statements were maue in regard to the true state of his health to the Maccabees Dec. 9, 1901, by Dr. G. W. H. Kemper, in the presence of the young man's father. He was pronounced physically sound by Dr. Kemper. His chest expansion was unusually large, being three and one-half inches.

On Dec. 11 he received his certificate of admission to the Macabees with a policy for $1000 insurance.

On the following day, Dec. 12, he left for New Mexico, accompanied by his father.

The young man's death from consumption occurred at Las Vegas, N. M., on March 13, 1902. The body was buried at Las Vegas, but was later disinterred and brought to Muncie April 22. The immediate departure of Eddinger and his son for a more healthful climate following so closely upon the satisfactory physical examination and the subsequent death of the youth have given rise to the charges that either the younger son, Carl, was substituted for John during the physical examination by Dr. Kemper or that false statements were made in regard to the true condition of John C. Eddinger's health.

Eddinger said: "Yes the Maccabees have refused to pay me the $1000 to which I am entitled. I have employed attorneys and will make a fight for my rights. I am going before the board of trustees at Port Huron, Mich., on Aug. 8 to answer all charges."

EFFICIENCY
Is Not Tolerated By Men In King's Cavalry.

London, July 25.—Details of the remarkable case of persecution by brother officers of a young lieutenant of the Second Life Guards at Windsor, a regiment of which Kitty Edward is colonel in chief, show that in this crack cavalry organization, like many others, the officers are intolerant of the presence of anyone who takes his profession seriously. Second Lieut. C. D. Gregson, who secured a commision Feb. 15, 1902, was known to be a hard worker, efficient and popular with his men. On Monday night a number of officers of the regiment chased Lieut. Gregson out of his quarters, hunted him through the barracks with whips, at the same time using foul language; ducked him in a horse trough until he was half dead and subsequently wrecked his quarters and destroyed his entire kit. The victim was forced to spend the remainder of the night on the bare floor of his room, wrapped in an overcoat. The only explanation for this treatment is that Lieut. Gregson was socially undesirable. There is no question, in view of the lieutenant's record and the king's connection with the regiment that his majesty will order a strict investigation into the occurrence.

Spreading Rails Cause Fatal Accident Near South Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., July 25.—Passenger train No. 5 west bound, on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific road, was wrecked three miles west of South Omaha at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fireman was killed, the engineer is perhaps fataly hurt and two express messengers badly bruised. The dead:

VICTOR HICKSON, fireman, Fairbury, Neb., crushed to death between the engines.

Injured: Charles Porter, engineer, Fairbury, Neb., legs crushed and body bruised probably will recover. Henry Fisher and Charles Caldwell, express messengers, both badly bruised.

The train was known as the Chicago-Denver flyer and caried beside baggage and express cars two coaches, four sleepers and a diner. Shortly after the train came to a stop the passengers rushed out of the cars just in time to avoid an explosion of the gas tanks. None of the passengers were injured beyond a severe shaking up. The engine and three cars are a complete wreck. The train was running thirty miles an hour at the time of the accident, which is believed to have been caused by spreading rails.

ENTITLED TO TICKET

Populists Have the Right to Primary Election Ballot.

Attorney General Douglas Renders Opinion to This Effect.

Bede Headquarters Open With R. D. Haven as Secretary.

According to Attorney General Douglas, the Populists have a right to a primary election ballot of their own this fall, and their candidates are entitled to places on that ballot.

It had not been expected that there would be a Populist ticket at the primary election, because it was supposed that the Populists did not form a party under the law, as it had no candidate in the field at the last general election.

Attorney General Douglas, however, has made the somewhat startling ruling that they are entitled to places, and this will probably mean that an additional set of ballots will have to be printed for the Populists in this county, providing there are Populist candidates.

The opinion of the attorney general was made on the application of a Minneapolis man to file for congress on the People's party primary election ballot. The Hennepin county auditor would have refused to accept the certificate, on the ground that the People's party is no party, had it not been for the fact that the applicant had armed himself with Gen. Douglas' opinion.

The attorney general holds that under the primary election law any party that had cast 10 per cent of the total vote at the last preceding election for its leading candidate could participate in the primaries. The Populists had no candidate alone, but it had candidates with the Democrats on the fusion ticket.

"It is fair to presume," Mr. Douglas says, "that at least 10 per cent of the vote cast for the ticket was cast by Populists, and hence they have saved a place on the ticket."

There has as yet been no indication that the Populists are going to have candidates for any of the county or legislative positions, but as there is to be no fusion this year, doubtless there will be a few candidates before the lists close, and in that event the county will have to have ballots printed for the Populists.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the J. Adam Bede campaign committee at the Bede headquarters, 201 Torrey building, last evening, at which the organization work was advanced considerably. Roland D. Haven, president of the city council, was selected as secretary, and today he opened the headquarters, which were secured early in the week. They will be kept open constantly during the campaign. Some speeches were made last night by prominent supporters of Mr. Bede, and hearty support was pledged to the candidate.

Failing to secure recognition for his challenges to joint debate addressed to J. Adam Bede and Judge Edson through the papers, Jesse L. Jellison has appealed to them by letter. Mr. Bede yesterday afternoon forwarded his refusal to engage in a debate with a member of his own party. The Jellison letter follows:

Duluth, Minn., July 19, 1902.

"Hon. J. Adam Bede,
Duluth, Minn.,

"Sir—As I have through the News Tribune endeavored to enter a challenge to yourself and W. D. Edson for a joint debate, and not knowing whether you took notice of it, I here and now enter and take this opportunity to bring you both together with myself for a joint debate in the city of Duluth, at any date in this month, each one confining all remarks to the live issues of the present day.

"There are to be no personal remarks, each one to stand his third of half rent and go before the people. If you see fit to accept this challenge, please inform me under your own hand and seal.

"Very respectfully,
"JESSIE L. JELLISON,
"Cohasset, Itasca Co.,
"Minnesota."

To this Mr. Bede replied as follows:

Duluth, Minn., uJly 24, 1902.

"Jesse L. Jellison,
"Candidate for Congressional Nomination,
"Cohasset, Minn.

"Dear Sir—Yours of July 19 is just to hand. Replying to your request for a joint debate without any personal remarks, would say that as we both stand for the principles of the same grand old party, there is nothing for us to debate except personal matters, and as I am much better qualified for congress than you are I would suggest that you withdraw and throw your support to me.

"However, if you will file for the Democratic nomination, so that there will be something to discuss, I will gladly meet you and pay all the expenses of the hall. Or, if you can secure a debate with Edson, I will gladly act as moderator. But I must refuse to dispute with men of my own party.

"Very truly,
"J. ADAM BEDE."

Leading American Topics Are Talked Over In Simplest Way.

London, July 25.—J. On one side of the host sat Mr. Morgan and on the other Premier Balfour. The other guests included United States Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, William St. John Broderick, secretary of state for war; R. W. Hanbury, president of the board of agriculture; Sir E. H. Carson, solicitor-general; Sir Charles Dilke, M. P.; Sir R. B. Finley, attorney-general; Clinton Edward Dawkins, one of the partners in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Sir Thomas Lipton, bart.; Col. Hunsicker, chairman of the Nickel corporation; George Wyndham, chief secretary for Ireland; Arnold Foster, financial secretary to the admiralty; George Westinghouse, president of the Westinghouse Electrical company, and Gilbert Parker, member of parliament for Gravesend.

The dinner began at 8 o'clock in a private dining room within the precincts of the house of commons. With the exception of Secretary Wyndham, who was obliged to return to the house of commons for the Irish debate, a majority of the guests chatted until nearly 11 o'clock. The proceedings were informal and the conversation was peculiarly frank. The South African war, international yacht races, the shipping combine and King Edward's health were all discussed in turn. Mr. Morgan and Premier Balfour were both particularly animated. One of those present said to a representative of the Associated Press,

"It was one of the most remarkable gatherings in which I ever took part. Practically a quorum of the cabinet talked over, in the simplest, most open way, the leading American subject, which now vitally concern both countries. To see Mr. Morgan and Mr. Balfour together one could scarcely imagine that the former had ever been regarded as a bogey who threatened England's commercial existence. If some things which passed around that table could be repeated it would be an eye-opener to those who are fomenting commercial rivalries between England and America."

From another source the Associated Press learns that Mr. Morgan was jocularly sanguine that America will retain the yachting cup.

A feeling of uneasiness pervaded the diners with regard to King Edward's condition, even leading members of the cabinet displaying nervousness lest his majesty should be unable to fulfill his duties in the coronation ceremony. This was due to no little extent to the statement of the doctors that the king is not yet allowed to walk, and to the somewhat natural apprehension that the severe strain of a fortnight hence will prove too dangerous an undertaking. There was not the slightest whisper that the king was worse than the bulletins indicate. The only fear was that the doctors had been possibly too optimistic in setting the date of the coronation on Aug. 9. Mr. Balfour somewhat allayed the feeling of nervousness by explaining that the doctors had been instructed that under no consideration whatever must they decide upon the date for the coronation unless they were absolutely positive the king would not disappoint the people again. Mr. Balfour pointed out that, as the doctors had shown so far such splendid judgment, it would be presumptuous to doubt their judgment now, however difficult it might be for a layman to understand how a patient, who could not stand up today, could be crowned Aug. 9. There is no doubt, however, that the cabinet will follow anxiously the king's convalescence during the coming week.

CANNOT ACT.

Mayor Ames Cannot Exercise Functions of Office While Away.

Minneapolis, July 25.—Mayor Ames, while in a measure directing the operations of the police department from his retreat at West Baden, Ind., and in law, still chief executive of the city, is not the defacto mayor and cannot have the privilege of exercising the functions of the office. Alderman Fred Powers, by virtue of his office as vice president of the council, is, in the absence of President Jones, the legal acting mayor and upon him involves the duty of signing warrants, resolutions and ordinances.

This is the substance of a ruling made by City Attorney Frank Healy in response to Mayor Ames' telegram of Wednesday afternoon addressed to City Clerk Lydiard, directing that all warrants, resolutions and ordinances that may be passed by the city council at its meeting tomorrow night be sent to him at West Baden.

This settles officially the interesting question who is the defacto mayor of Minneapolis in the present situation, and makes it plain that in the event of an emergency requiring official action the police department will have to take its orders from some other person than the sick man at West Baden.

Mayor Ames, according to word received today, left West Baden yesterday morning to go to Chicago to meet Mrs. Ames on her way to West Baden.

The police committee of the council will meet to pass on the status of Chief of Police Ames, and the city attorney is prepared to make another ruling at that time to the effect that Mayor Ames has no authority, from the fact of his being out of the city, to extend Col. Ames leave to Aug. 1.

The members of the committee are not agreed as to what action they will take. They are pretty sure, however, to stop his salary from July 23; then guide their course of action by later developments.

Col. Ames' closest friends now insist he will be back very soon, probably not later than Monday next.

Chicago, July 25.—A conference was held at the Palmer house yesterday between Mayor A. A. Ames, of Minneapolis, Minn., Mrs. Ames and Fred Ames, Capt. Alfred Coffin was expected, but it is understood that if he was in the city he met his friends without anyone being afare of it.

Mayor and Mrs. Ames arrived from West Baden, Ind., in the morning. The mayor presented a letter of introduction to the manager of the Palmer house, in which he was referred to as "the house surgeon of the leading hotel in West Baden." To inquirers the information was given that the guest was not the mayor, but "Dr. Ames." It was not until in the evening that it became known about the hotel that the guests were Mayor Ames and his wife.

DECLINE IN TUBERS

Potatoes Are Now Down to a Poor Man's Basis.

They Sell at Forty Cents In Michigan Street Market.

Fruits and Fresh Vegetables Are Reasonable In Price.

Potatoes are on the decline.

Step by step the price has gone downward until today the most common of all vegetables is within the reach of all.

A bushel of potatoes sold this morning on Michigan street for 40 cents. This is the cheapest they have been for many, many months. Since the new potatoes began arriving on the market in large numbers, the price has fallen with the same regularity that it soared skyward last winter. Commission men say they will get no cheaper. The indications at the present time are for a very large crop. With potatoes selling for a dollar a bushel by the commission merchants last winter, farmers who had neglected to devote much of their time to raising them saw the error of their ways, and the result is that this year the crop will be larger than ever. Consequently the thrifty housewife is happy, while the farmer bewails his ill fortune. A prominent Michigan street merchant, in speaking of the potato market, said this morning:

"I hardly look for potatoes to get any cheaper. By the time we get our percentage and the railways have something for their haul and the other expenses incidental to getting the truck to the market, there is very little left for the farmer, and should the price drop still lower, the farmers would probably leave the potatoes in the ground rather than dig them for the little profit there is to be made.

A few boxes of fresh figs were received in the market during the week. They were grown in California, and commission men asked $1.50 a box. Very little of this class of goods is received in Duluth, owing to the difficulty in getting them here in good condition. This fruit is not made for long journeys, and but little of it is handled at this farway point.

California fruits are dropping slightly in price and are now reasonable. Peaches are sold for 90 cents a box and plums bring $1 and $1.25.

Cabbage is getting cheaper, being sold now at $1.50 a crate, and turnips, 65 cents a bushel.

This has been a quiet week for meats. The weather man can if he wants to work a greater injury to the packers than all the legal talent the government at Washington can command. During the hot spell but little meat is used, the people taking more fruits and a lighter diet in general. The meat men look for a quietude at this time. Notwithstanding the small demand, veal took a jump, the fancy selling at 8½, and the second grade at 8. Pork loins fell off half a cent and are now sold at a shilling.

COREA.

Her Independence Guaranteed By Great Britain and Japan.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—A special dispatch received here from Seoul, Corea, announces the conclusion of an important agreement between the British and Japanese ministers to Corea on one hand and the Japanese councilor Kato, special adviser of the Corean emperor, on the other, by which Great Britain and Japan mutually guarantee Corea's independence and pledge her their support and assistance in all important questions affecting her internal and foreign policy. Corea in return agrees to raise her naval and military establishments to a footing sufficient for her own defense, and also in case of raising a foreign loan she agrees to restrict herself to the markets of Great Britain, Japan and the United States. She further agrees that no foreigners shall be appointed to positions in the Corean state service; that measures shall be immediately taken for the protection of Corean territory, and that a protest shall immediately be made against any state or persons attempting to erect works or buildings situated so as to prejudice Corea's scheme for national defense.

Tracy Sends Out a Message to All the World.

His Pal Brings a Statement From the Bandit.

Tracy Aided Merrill to Escape to Kill Him.

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—"Go back to Seattle and tell the officers of the law and the newspapers, if you will, that I am not a hardened criminal; that I am not thirsting for the blood of innocent men; that I am persecuted; that I am inspired to do as I have done only that I may continue in the enjoyment of liberty, which I have purchased at so great a price. Tell them that I shall never be taken alive, and that I shall never be taken dead without first killing more than one of the men who succeed in accomplishing my end."

This is the last message to come from Harry Tracy, convict, fugitive, outlaw and most picturesque and sensational criminal that ever eluded the peace officers of the West. It was delivered to Louis Ward, an accomplice, in a lonely cabin on the shore of Sawyer lake, in King county, Washington, last Monday evening, the evening of Tracy's sudden and complete disappearance from public view.

Of all the peculiar and remarkable incidents in the recent history of the outlaw the account of his influence upon Ward, the man to whom this statement was made, is the most unbelievable. Ward was at one time an acquaintance of Tracy and engaged with him in a number of daring holdups in this and neighboring cities. For one of these crimes Ward was captured and served a term in the state penitentiary of Washington.

When Tracy came to Seattle to continue here his remarkable and picturesque career of crime, flitting hither and thither like a will o' the wisp through strong lines of heavily armed guards, killing officers of the law, impressing innocent persons into his service, holding up families and snapping his fingers at all of the machinery of the law, Ward was aroused by the offer of a heavy reward to undertake the capture. With this in mind he went to Sheriff Cudihee and told that officer that if he were given assurance that the whole reward would be paid him he would go into the woods in which the convict was hiding, locate him, converse with him, learn his plans and then tell them all to the officers and guide them to the spot where the much hunted man lay in hiding.

Taking Ward at his word, Sheriff Cudihee entered into an agreement to see to it that Ward received the entire reward in case the capture was effected as a result of his efforts. Ward then took the trail in pursuit of the convict, followed him into Sawyer lake, met him there, talked to him, remained for several hours, and during that time was so influenced by the spell which the hunted man casts around him that upon his return to where the officers were he lied to them regarding the success of his hunt, misguided them as to the whereabouts of his former pal, and in this manner contributed in a large measure to Tracy's successful escape. In addition to telling in full the conversation he had with the outlaw, which turned him from the purpose of delivering the convict in order to get the $6500 reward promised, Ward brought from Tracy a written and signed statement of his position and his motives, to be published for the benefit of the public and the officers who are pursuing him.

This statement is a poorly written scrawl and announces that the writer is innocent of the crime for which he was convicted in Oregon and sent to the penitentiary of that state; that he is innocent of any desire to kill unless he is forced to do so, and determined to retain the liberty which he has so dearly bought. In full, with grammatical corrections, it is as follows:

"I was not guilty of the hold-up in Portland, and I was convicted by lies and circumstantial evidence. I did steal in Utah, and I killed a man there, but when I got out of that scrape I made up my mind to reform, and I made an honest living until I was sent to the penitentiary by the lies of Dave Merrill. I have avenged that wrong by killing the cur like a dog. I killed the guards at the penitentiary because that was the only way to escape. I killed the officers at Seattle for the same reason. I have stopped at farmhouses to get food and clothing, but I have never harmed anyone who was not hunting for me. I have never threatened harm to any man except to keep him from squealing on me. I took Anderson with me because I needed his help, but I treated him well and did not harm him. Now I am free, I am not going to be taken again. If the officers try it it will only be the worse for them.

"I am not going to hold up any more farmhouses, and I am not going to show up again in Washington. I am going away where I will not be recognized and then I will live the honest life I long for.

"TRACY."

This message was written while Tracy and Ward were together at the Sawyer Lake cabin, Monday afternoon. Two miles away a posse of eight desperately determined officers of the law waited impatiently for Ward to return and bring them the information of the convict's whereabouts. Without apparent uneasiness or suspicion Tracy saw Ward depart. That was the last time Tracy has been seen by any man and the last the officers of the law have been able to learn. They were not even able to ascertain from Ward whether or not he had seen Tracy there that afternoon, Ward refusing absolutely to give up the information which he had previously promised.

From where he met and talked with Tracy Ward walked through the heavy tangled underbrush to where the officers were, declared that he could not locate the outlaw and so tangled himself up in his replies that the officers held him under surveillance while they pursued the hunt. At night they watched every possible avenue of escape, and at daylight formed a complete skirmish line about the cabin and closed in on it. But the bird had flown.

The evidences that he had been there were numerous, from scraps of luncheon and recently extinguished fires to tracks to the paths leading to the cabin. But there was no Tracy, and the most complete and careful search has so far failed to reveal his whereabouts.

"Ward would not give Tracy away because Tracy convinced his pal that he was persecuted rather than being pursued as a punishment for his crimes," said the third party through whom Ward's story was obtained. "Tracy is apparently a wonderfully magnetic man. He has the faculty in a high degree of convincing other men of the correctness of his views. Ward is a man who would not ordinarily be convinced by a 'con' talk. But Tracy overcame him so completely in a few hours that he went away and refused to direct the officers to his hiding place, though he could have received $6,500 for doing so.

"Ward said Tracy knew that he was surrounded, but did not evince the slightest uneasiness on that account. Tracy said that when he was ready to go the officers would not be in his way. The bloodhounds had caused him some little trouble, but he had always managed to throw them off his track.

Before Ward left him he gave him a long talk about what to tell the officers and the newspaper reporters when he went back to Seattle. But when Ward got to where the officers were he refused to tell them anything whatever of any use to them. He evaded their questions and confused himself in his answers, so that they held him for several hours. When they did let him go he got away as quickly as possible, for fear that he would be made to suffer for his refusal at the critical period to carry out his agreement with the sheriff. Since then he has been afraid to come out of hiding. The interview with the outlaw had to be obtained through another.

"The papers have printed a great deal about me that was not true," Tracy told Ward, "but they have done the best they could do. I have seen newspaper men everywhere. I've seen officers and a number of places where there were no officers in sight. The reporters were always on the spot before the officers. Some of them carried guns, and one of them, that man Sefrit, took two shots at me at Bothell. I took two shots at him, too, but I am glad now that I missed him. Had they come after me unarmed I would not have kept away from them so much.

"One injustice they all seem to do to me is to picture me as a hardened criminal, with a bloodthirsty desire to slay and kill whenever a chance offers. It ought to be a sufficient answer to this charge that I have never taken a chance shot at any of the many deputies who have passed near me from time to time while I was in hiding. Had I wanted to I might have killed a score of them, but they were not bothering me much, and, besides, they were many of them so slow and inexperienced that it would have been a shame to harm them. If I could get a shot at Cudihee, or at that man Carson, who has the bloodhounds, I might wing them, to show the other officers that I could do so, and make them quit pursuing me. All of the poor people I have taken things frm during my flight will hear from me when I get in a place where I can write. I intend to pay them all in full for what I have taken from them, and especially the man Johnson, who went to Tacoma and bought me this gun. It is the handsomest weapon I have, because it is almost as good as a rifle, and besides, I can carry it in my pocket out of sight. With it I can walk down the streets of a city without being recognized, while a rifle seems to make every man I meet look at me. I will shake the rifle as soon as I get in a place where it will be in the way.

"I wish the people could understand why I have done the things I have, because I am sure that a great many of them would sympathize with me if they did. If they knew that when I was in Portland I was trying to live down that nightmare of a past in Utah and Colorado, that it was by accident I met some of the men who knew me there, thot it was on account of being seen in company with these men that I was suspected of the crimes of which I was convicted. If they knew that it was that cur of a Dave Merrill, with his lies, that convicted me, they would understand why it was I killed him; why it was that I was willing to take such desperate chances to get out of the penitentiary; why I made the plan to get him out with me, and why since I got rid of him I have been trying to get out of the country. I had to wait until I got this revolver, for I would not trust myself with the other revolvers I had without having the rifle with me, and I can't carry the rifle where I want to go. I want to live an honest life. I know I can do it if I once get away where I am not known. I am going to write a note for you to take back to Seattle, telling them what I am doing and why I have done as I have. I know the officers are all around me, but they can't come upon me in this heavy timber, and tonight I will get away from here and not show up again in this country."

Great Demand For American Animals In Foreign Countries.

France Wants Our Best Horses For Her Army.

England Wants Our Mules to Till Boer Farms.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—There seems to be a great demand for American horses in France, according to a recent report of Walter T. Griffin at Limoges, made to the state department.

England, during her recent struggle to subdue the Boer farmers in South Africa, drew heavily on breeders of horses in America to supply her warriors with "ponies" on which her soldiers might ride. The horse is not a dead issue apparently, despite automobiles and trolleys and the American mule is a decidedly lively issue. Both are wanted by France and England. France wants American horses for her army and for agricultural purposes; England wants the American bred mule to kick the Boer farmer into submission.

As to France, Commercial Agent Griffin says: The French army purchases annually a large number of American horses, and on the farms they are gradually displacing cattle for draft purposes. For many years the soil has been cultivated almost entirely with the aid of cows and oxen, but for this work the superiority of the horse is fully acknowledged. The introduction into France of American agricultural machinery—such as mowers, reapers, drills, rakes, etc.—has also led to the use of horses in greater number than ever before. The exodus of laborers from the farms to the cities is still another explanation of the increased demand for draft animals. This exodus is also responsible for the increasing use of farm machinery. The scythe is giving place to the mower, the old fashioned method of sowing to the modern drill, and these machines are worked best by horses. A leading agriculturist stated recently that "the demand for agricultural machinery to replace hand labor on the French farms will be greater this year than ever before."

The importation of horses from Argentina and Russia has not been entirely successful—the mortality en route, the high freight rates, and the great change in climate (with regard to horses shipped from South America) make the selling prices in France almost prohibitive.

Colts 3 to 4 years old have been successfully imported from the United States. When shipped at this age, the animals are less liable to injury and less susceptible to climatic changes. Care should be taken to send only sound specimens. Upon arrival at French ports, the animals are carefully examined by veterinarians, who exclude all in any way defective. Closer attention should also be paid to the shipping of the horses, many of which arrive in a deplorable condition. Arrangements should be made for properly caring for the animals after they reach their destination. This could readily be done, and the expense incurred would more than be made up by the increased prices that would be obtained.

"Siberia is strongly bidding for better trade in the East," says Henry B. Miller, United States consul at Ninchwang, in a recent report he has made to the state department. Maybe it will reach Duluth and "do up" oleomargarine. However, Siberia must henceforth be considered as one of the factors in the manufacture of butter and may flourish like an American green bay tree unless an American butter foundry trust gobbles it up.

Consul Miller warns his American brethren engaged in the butter industry in the United States that the possibilities for the production of both milk and butter in Siberia are unlimited. Already, it is asserted, the Siberian butter is shipped eastward in considerable quantities to the chief commercial centers of Japan and China.

There are two grades of Siberian butter—table and cooking. The first grade—table butter—is put up either in two-pound rolls or in two-pound casks or tins. It contains very little salt, and cannot withstand a warm climate; consequently it is successfully shipped only during the winter months. The price of table butter at Tomsk is 12 rubles per pood, or about 16 2-3 cents per pound.

The second grade is used only for cooking purposes, and is put up in five-gallon oil cans casks, or rolls. It retails at Tomsk at 7 rubles per pood (about 10 cents per pound). The cost of shipping freight from Tomsk to Manchuria is 3.50 rubles per pood ($1.80 per 36,112 pounds), but it is hoped that this rate will soon be considerably reduced.

Walter T. Griffin, commercial agent at Limoges, informs the state department, June 20, 1902, that Pierre Faure, a well known engineer of that city, has invented a machine for decorticating ramie. The new process, says Mr. Griffin, is rapid, practically automatic, and entirely satisfactory. The decortication is thorough, and does not injure the fiber. The machine is transported without trouble, and no more power is required to operate it than to operate an ordinary thrasher. A field of ramie has been planted near Limoges, and in the latter part of July next the stalks will be harvested and decorticated by the new method.

Conveniences of Modern Railway Equipment.

Private compartment cars on railroad trains are a comparatively recent creation. It is a sleeper divided into eight or ten rooms—each room as complete and cozy as the daintiest apartment in a hotel. The private compartment cars operated on the Milwaukee Pioneer Limited—the famous train of the world—are higher, wider and longer than those in any other cars in America.

HEAVY FAILURE.

Havana Cattle Firm Fails For Large Amount.

New York, July 25.—The house of P. Duran, cattle importers, has failed for nearly $400,000, cables the Havana correspondent of the Tribune. Two general commission houses in New York are said to be among the creditors for $150,000. The assets of the failed firm are said to be about one-half of the liabilities.

The immediate cause of the failure was the death from disease in Cuban pastures of 4400 head of cattle, the cost price of which was over $120,000. This is the first failure of any consequence in several years.

KELLEY HARDWARE COMPANY

ARE NOT AS EXPECTED

Superior Street Paving Bids Are Disappointing to Officials.

Bituminous Macadam Bid Was Higher Than Was Expected.

Bids Are All Too High For Money On Hand.

The East Superior street paving bids opened this morning, were disappointing.

The bituminous macadam figures, which were expected to be within reach of the permanent improvement revolving fund balance, were $15,756 in excess of that balance and only $2,994.35 under the bid of the Barber Asphalt company for sheet asphalt.

The bituminous macadam bid was the greatest disappointment and the bid of the asphalt trust was something of a surprise.

The district to be paved is from Eighth avenue east to Sixteenth avenue east.

The Warren Brothers company, of Boston, bid $50,280 for bituminous macadam. Of this amount $1,456 would be paid by the street car company, leaving the assessment to the property owners $48,822.

The Barber Asphalt company, better known as the asphalt trust, bid a lump sum of $54,760 to do the paving with Trinidad Lake asphalt. Of this amount the street car company would be required to pay $2,942, leaving the net assessment to the property owners $51,818.

The Western Paving and Supply company put in a Trinidad asphalt bid of $55,446, less $3,185, leaving the property owners to pay $52,261.

The Western Construction company had the highest bid for Trinidad asphalt—$65,000, of which $3,000 would be assessed against the street railway company, leaving $62,000 to the property owners.

The board of public works will not act on the bids until next Monday morning and possibly not then.

The charter requires that no contract be let until such time as there is money in the permanent revolving fund sufficient to pay for the work.

Today there is $24,075 of the permanent revolving fund outstanding on unpaid contracts, leaving a balance in the fund of $33,067. The only macadam bid requires a balance of $48,823 and the lowest asphalt bid $51,818.

It was reported today that the asphalt trust would make up the deficiency by a temporary loan in case the contract was awarded to the Barber company.

The sentiment about the city hall, however, was that the East Superior street paving would be tied up indefinitely, unless the petitioning property owners could get togther on a cheaper paving material.

A bid for the paving of First avenue west was also opened. It was from the Warren Brothers company, which offered to pave fr... First street to Cascade Park for $...52.

GRANT WINS.

Gets Verdict For $100 In Bet With W. A. Wagner.

William Grant obtained a verdict of $109 against W. A. Wagner in the municipal court this morning.

This was the suit in which Grant claimed that Wagner bet him $100 that he would outrun him from the Catholic Cathedral to a saloon in the King block.

While on the way to the starting point he claimed Wagner got away from him and ran over the course without giving him an opportunity to start, and the bartender in the saloon turned the money over to Wagner.

The defendant in the case claimed that the race was a joke and that he gave Grant back his money and the latter spent it in the purchase of fizzling bubbles.

Charged With Forgery.

William O'Toole was arrested last night while trying to pass a forged check in two Bowery restaurants.

Chief Troyer recognized him as W. J. Turner, an old time Duluth billiard hall manager that has been away from the city for many years.

The check was for $36 and was on the First National bank with the name of E. C. Hunter, forged.

ALL MAIL DESTROYED.

Washington, July 25.—The postoffice department received an official dispatch this afternoon reporting that all the mail carried by the wrecked train was destroyed. It confirmed the press reports of the postal clerks killed and badly injured.

CITY WILL PROCEED

Illegal Sewer Connections Have Been Discovered By the City.

Inefficient Connections Have Been Made Without License.

Warrants Are Out and Some Arrests Will Be Made.

The city engineering department has unearthed what appears to be a big sewer fraud.

Without license or permit, persons have been quietly making sewer connections throughout the city in an illegal and incompetent manner.

City Engineer Patton consulted with Mayor Hugo this morning and will swear out warrants for the arrest of the men making these connections.

The complaints will be issued on three connections, that were first discovered by the engineering department in the West End, though other arrests may follow.

Sewer connections are only allowed on a permit from the engineer's office, and to licensed drain-layers. Owing to the fact that improperly connected sewers are liable to cause an epidemic of contagious disease, the utmost caution is exercised.

An inspector of the engineering department was about the city looking over the work of several licensed drain-layers, when he stumbled onto the fact that illegal connections were being made.

A quiet investigation was instituted by City Engineer Patton, and it was found that the schemers were making connections without traps and in a very inadequate and inefficient manner.

Owing to the fact that the work was only being half done, and only very poor material was used, the unlicensed drain-layers were able to more than compete with the licensed men.

The prosecutions will be watched with keen interest and delight by those that have been paying the city a license to connect drains. The health department may also take a hand in the matter, owing to the fact that the cheap, illegal connections have placed the health of many families in jeopardy.

President Loubet signed a decree submitted by Premier Combes, ordering the forcible closure of twenty-six Congregationalist schools in Paris and in the department of the Seine, which have refused to disperse voluntarily. SAYS IT IS ALL RIGHT

State Auditor Dunn Approves of Iron Mines Assessment.

Says It Is Fair and It Will Be Undisturbed.

Does Not Think State Board Will Make Any Change.

"I think the assessment or the iron mines made by the St. Louis county board of equalization this morning is a fair assessment," said State Auditor R. C. Dunn this afternoon, "and I believe the state board of equalization will let it stand."

Mr. Dunn came up from St. Paul this afternoon, arrived on the noon train and this afternoon he spent chatting with the county officers and members of the board of equalization.

He was asked by a reporter for The Herald what he thought of the assessment of over $20,000,000 made upon the iron mines of the county by the county board this morning, and his reply was as above.

"Yes, I think it is a fair assessment all around," he continued. "My figures all along have been about $20,000,000, and I have believed for months that that was what the assessment ought to be. I take no stock in the figures given by Mr. Schwab in his sworn statement in a law suit. I believe that the people here know best what the assessment should be, as they are on the ground and familiar with the circumstances, and as they are most interested anway.

"So far as the state board is concerned I can speak for myself only, as an individual member of the board, but I shall use my influence to have the assessment left undisturbed, and I think that is the way it will come out. I shall certainly go to no expense to prepare figures and valuations, as I did last year, because there is no occasion for it. I believe it is a fair assessment, and I think it will stand just as the county board left it."

DECISIONS

Handed Down By the Supreme Court of Minnesota.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among the supreme court decisions today was one from St. Louis county, in the case of Grace B. Cram, appellant, vs. Thomas Thompson, respondent.

Syllabus: An oral agreement was made for a lease of real property for a year to take effect in the future. The intended lessor requested certain improvements in the premises, which were assented to by the intended lessee, and money expended thereon by him. At the time when the lease was, under the agreement, to be executed, the intended lessee refused to accept the same or carry out the oral agreement on his part, the owner of the property formally offered to comply with its terms, but upon the refusal of the other party, then leased a portion thereof to a third party, and brought suit to recover damages for failure to execute the lease.

Held that an action would not lie for damages under these facts upon the ground that the agreement was void under the statute of frauds. Order affirmed. Lovely, J.

The supreme court, by Justice Lovely, today affirmed the decision of the Otter Tail county court in the case of Iver Thoraldson, appellant, vs. A. C. Hatch, E. A. Evarts and Arris Albertson, respondents. It is a dispute over a tract of land to which Thoraldson claimed an adverse title.

RAVINOAK TO EXMOOR

Prized Golf Trophy Goes There For the First Time.

Chandler Egan of That Club Handily Defeated Poole.

Walter E. Egan Easily Won Solace Cup From Smith.

Chicago, July 25.—The Ravinoaks this year goes to Exmoor for the first time in the hostory of the trophy events, Chandler Egan, of that club, handily defeating Abram Poole, Jr., of Onwentsia, today by two up. The game was watched by a large gallery of enthusiasts and was a very close contest. The medal scores of both players were the same out as in, Egan doing the eighteen holes in 82 and Poole in 84.

Two Chicago golfers, Abram Poole, Jr., and H. Chandler Egan, representing respectively the rival clubs, Onwentsia and Exmoor, began final play in the battle royal for the Ravinoaks cup today on the links of the Onwentsia club at Lake Forest.

Particular interest centered about the play of the Exmoor man, inasmuch as he defeated two formidable Easterners yesterday — Horstmann, of Chevy Chase, and Pyne, of Princeton. Furthermore, Exmoor has never had possession of the Fuller trophy, and chances today seemed very favorable to gain the coveted cup. At the start of play weather conditions were threatening. Following were the pairings for finals in the other cup events:

Solace cup—Walter E. Egan, Lake Geneva, vs. Walter B. Smith, Onwentsia.

Tyro cup—W. Houghteling, Skokie, vs. George A. Thorne, Glenview.

First committee cup—R. McKittrick, St. Louis, vs. C. B. Hirschberger, Onwentsia.

Second committee cup—R. D. Bokum, Jr., Glenview, vs. K. L. Ames, Glenview.

Lake county cup (mixed foursome)—Walter B. Smith and Abram Poole, Jr., Onwentsia, vs. F. Oden Hortsmann and Percy R. Pyne, Lakewood. Play in all events was eighteen holes.

Walter E. Egan, of Lake Geneva, won the solace cup, defeating Walter B. Smith, of Onwentsia, one up in nineteen holes. The Tyro cup went to George Thorne, of Glenview, who won from W. Houghteling, of Skokie, 2 up, 1 to play. R. McKittrick, St. Louis, secured the first committee's cup, winning from C. B. Hercberger, of Onwentsia, in 4 up, 3 to play. K. L. Ames, Glenview, defeated R. D. Bokum, Jr., in 2 up and took the second committee's cup.

Both Poole and Egan played an excellent game and the match was very close, the latter leading by one up at the first nine holes. The medal scores out were: Egan, 41; Poole, 42. The medal scores in were: Egan, 41; Poole, 42. Egan total, 82; Poole, 84.

BRYAN

Addresses Five Thousand People In Littlefields Home.

Rockland, Me., July 25.—A night in a railway train, breakfast at the hotel, greetings by representative Democrats of this section, an open-air speech delivered to 5000 people, composed the program of William J. Bryan from the time of leaving Boston yesterday, to the hour of his departure from this city before noon today.

With Mr. Bryan were Senator Carmack of Tennessee and Charles S. Hamlin of Massachusetts.

After breakfast and a brief reception the party was driven to the courthouse where a stand had been built out from the steps. From this platform, Mr. Bryan and Senator Carmack addressed an audience of at least 5000 people.

Mr. Bryan discussed taxation, the money question, trusts and imperialism. He recommended as a measure for needed reform in taxation, a tariff for revenue only and an income tax.

He said that the money issue was by no means dead ald that he hated a private monopoly as he hated a monarchy.

"We had no business to make a war in the Philippines as there was no occasion for war. Had we treated the Filipinos as we did the Cubans, there would have been no war. I want the same moral victory in the Philippines as in Cuba."

Bath, Me., July 25.—William J. Bryan and his party reached here at noon. No arrangements had been made for a reception here, but a crowd of 1000 assembled at the station. Mr. Bryan addressed them from the car platform and in his speech feelingly alluded to the late Arthur Sewall, who was the vice presidential candidate in 1896 on the ticket with Bryan. A handsome bouquet of pinks was sent to Mrs. Sewall, the widow of Arthur Sewall, by Mr. Bryan. Senator Carmack also spoke briefly.

St. Paul Man Slumbered For Thirty-Six Hours.

St. Paul, July 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lafayette Porter, 25 years old, a workman employed in the Great Northern shops and living at 934 Brown avenue, alarmed his relatives by falling into a cataleptic slumber Wednesday night that was not ended till this morning, after thirty-six hours.

During all that time his relatives were in a state of terror over what might be the matter with him, for he could not be awakened by any method tried, and the attending physician could not account for his condition.

ROCK ISLAND.

Plans Outlined For Readjustment of Company's Securities.

New York, July 25.—A leading official of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad outlined today the plans under consideration for the readjustment of the company's securities. The readjustment will be along the lines of that used in the case of the Chicago & Alton. It will be on a basis of 200 bonds at 4 per cent for 100 shares of existing stocks 75 to 77 per cent of new preferred stocks and probably 1 per cent of new common stock. It is also stated that the Rock Island will take over or lease another large railroad system and that it is also proposed to build a direct road from St. Louis to Joliet, Ill. The entire matter is now in the hands of the Rock Island legal advisers and a formal statement will probably be made next Tuesday or Wednesday. The exact date of next week's directors' meeting depends upon when a quorum of the board can be gathered in the city. The plan now under consideration by Rock Island involves the formation of a holding or securities company.

DEALERS

In Binder Twine Are to Be Prosecuted By State.

St. Paul, July 25.—A Stillwater, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Warden Wolfer has caused criminal proceedings to be instituted against five dealers in binder twine in different parts of the state and will prosecute others. The offense is selling twine made at the state prison at prices higher than allowed by law. Complaints were received by Warden Wolfer from farmers that they were being charged exorbitant prices for twine by dealers. Inspectors were sent out by the warden who verified the charges, and acting under advice of the attorney general, the county attorneys of various counties were directed to begin proceedings. The penalty is a fine of from $25 to $300.

LIGHTNING

Killed Plymouth, Wis., Woman While Milking a Cow.

Milwaukee, July 25.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Plymouth, Wis., says: Mrs. Joseph Harter, residing on a farm about two and a half miles south of here was struck by lightning while milking early today, being instantly killed by the bolt.

Mr. Harter and one of the boys were rendered unconscious by the same bolt, but they recovered several hours later. Five other children of the family who were in the house were also slightly shocked by the bolt. The storm which raged here was one of the worst experienced here in years. Besides the Harter barn, four others all within a radius of one mile, were struck and destroyed by fire.

The barn of Ed Curtis, which is the largest in Sheboygan county, was struck and burned to the ground. Several horses and a number of cattle were destroyed. The barns of Robert Vater and Mrs. A. Aderholt, also near by neighbors, were also struck and destroyed.

RUSSIA

Sends a Copy of the Note Touching Upon Trusts.

Washington, July 25.—Through the United States charge of the embassy at St. Petersburg, Mr. Riddle, the state department has just received a copy of the Russian note touching upon trusts, which has excited so much comment in Europe. This note, which takes the form of a circular, was identical and was handed in St. Petersburg to the representatives of all the powers that participated in the Brussels sugar conference and, in addition to Mr. Riddle, for transmission to his government at Washington.

Just why this was done in view of the fact that the United States government was not represented at the Brussels conference can only be conjectured and it is mater of information and as a courtesy. Certain it is that in the present view the United States executive cannot participate in such an onference as it described, because of the constitutional limitations that cannot be escaped, even if there were no other objections.

The state department cannot do more at this stage, than it has done, namely the return of polite acknowledgement through Mr. Riddle of the note and watch developments in Europe.

CROWD

Recognized Kitchener and He Had Hard Work to Escape.

London, July 25.—Lord Kitchener, who has been largely lost to public view since his triumphal re-entry into London July 12, received an unexpected demonstration of London enthusiasm today, when a cab in which he visited the city was actually mobbed close to the Bank of England and the conqueror of South Africa had to be rescued by the police. Lord Kitchener drove to a private bank near the Mansion house. He was instantly recognized and such a crowd collected outside that he had to escape by a side door. He was detected, however, and drove off amid frantic cheers which he smilingly acknowledged with a salute. While passing through Queen Victoria street, Lord Kitchener was again recognized and the cab was held up by a cheering crowd. The police had to open the way before the vehicle could proceed.

SAWMILL BURNED.

Seattle, July 25.—The mill of the Bryant Lumber company at Fremont, a suburb of Seattle, is on fire and will be a total loss. It is one of the largest mills on the sound. A strong wind is fanning the flames and surounding buildings are in great danger.

REV. T. C. REED DEAD.

Upland, Ill., July 25.—The Rev. T. C. Reed, president of Taylor university, died today.

"The average person, man or woman, wears the left shoe out sooner than the right," said an old cobbler to the Philadelphia Record. "Many people wonder at this and can't understand why it should be. Long experience has taught me that it is a peculiarity of most people to come down harder on the left foot, throwing the right foot a little forward. This is borne out by the fact that every one takes a longer step with the right foot than with the left. People who get lost in an open country, such as our Western prairies, always travel in a circle if they have no compass to guide them. That is because one foot takes a longer step than the other, and that is also why the left shoe wears out soonest."

Wheat Opening Is Lower But Weakness Not Marked.

Cables Lower, Weather Fine and Receipts Fairly Large.

Amount of Contract Receipts at Chicago Very Light.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 25.—Wheat opened at slightly lower prices today and held within a narrow range all morning. Cables were lower, receipts were fairly large and the weather was generally good. Contract grading in the Chicago market continues abnormally small but the fact private elevators are said to be making contract wheat quieted the fears of the shorts to some extent. In Duluth about ten loads were worked for export.

The Liverpool market was 1d lower, Paris unchanged to 1c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,026,000 bus, last year, 1,031,000 bus. Shipments, 257,000 bus, last year, 1,055,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 248,000 bus. Bradstreet reported clearances of wheat and flour for the week of 3,981,000 bus, against 3,755,000 bus the previous week and 6,355,000 bus a year ago. Argentine shipments for the week were 40,000 bus, against 24,000 bus last week and 288,000 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth were 76 cars and at Minneapolis 126, a total of 202 cars, against 196 last year. Chicago received 206 cars, a total for the three points of 407 cars against 424 last year. Of the Chicago receipts only 2 graded contract.

Duly corn in the Chicago market fell 2½c, and September corn declined ⅝c. July oats sold at 72c, and closed at 70¾c. September oats declined ⅝@⅝c. Primary receipts of corn were 1,366,000 bus, last year 715,000 bus. Shipments 244,000, last year 240,000 bus. Clearances were 11,331 bus.

Bradstreet reported clearances of corn for the week of 80,000 bus, against 130,000 bus last week and 1,155,000 bus last year. Argentine shipments of corn were 1,304,000 bus; last week, 1,085,000 bus; last year, 1,552,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very light. The quality was ½c off at 71½c, and sold at that price all morning, except for one sale, at 71⅝-½c. The closing was at 71⅝c, a decline of ⅜c. Minneapolis declined ⅜@½c, and Chicago ⅝@⅞c, July in Duluth fell ½c, in Minneapolis ¼c and in Chicago, ¼c.

Cash prices continued at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and September price for No. 3. Cash sales were but a few cars.

Flax trading was fairly active and the market though weak early rallied. September sold off 1½c. Soon after the opening and then rallied 1½c. The close was weaker, being at yesterday's price. October declined ¾c and then advanced the same amount, closing unchanged. September oats closed ½c off. Rye on track fell ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, 1 hard, 78¾c; 1 northern, 75¾c; 2 northern, 73⅝c; 3 spring, 71⅝c. To arrive—1 hard, 78¾c; 1 northern, 75¾c; July, 75¾c; September, 71⅝c; December, 68¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

July New Oats Made New Record at 72 Cents.

Chicago, July 25.—September wheat opened 78@78¼c to a shade lower at 72c to 72⅝c on slightly lower cables, fair receipts and dull trade. There was a penty of September to be had from big interests and the option eased off to 71⅞c but steadied later at the even figure. A few showers were reported but the weather map was considered favorable rather than otherwise. The contract grading still continues abnormally small. Local receipts were 206 cars, 2 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 202 cars, making a total for the three points of 407 cars against 424 last week and 387 a year ago. Argentine shipments were 40,000 bus against 296,000 bus last year.

Wheat trade continued dull and the pressure was light. September dipped to 71⅝c and closed weak, ⅝@⅞c down at

Corn opened easier on fair offerings and good receipts. There were 61 cars of contract out of 241 received today. September opened 58c to ¾c down at 61c to 60⅞c, dipped to 60¾c but steadied a trifle higher. Cables were firm. Trade was characteristically dull, restricted by fears of July manipulation. The near future was offered at 61c and sold at 60⅝c.

There was fairly free offering of July corn and the price broke, closing weak, 1½c down at 65½c. This influenced September to dip to 60¼c and brought a weak close for that option, ⅞c down at 60¾c.

July new oats made the new record of 72c at the opening. It was said that the Patten interests would have allowed the shorts to settle yesterday at 70c but they refused. After one or two small covers July eased to 71c. September opened ⅛c up to unchanged at 34⅝c to 34½c in sympathy with July. Receipts were fair at 140 cars, and some stuff was offered. September declined to 34⅝c and steadied.

Provisions had the strong support of the packers today but it seemed to be only for the purpose of selling plenty of stuff on the hard spots. Hogs were higher at the yards and influenced the advance. September pork opened 2½c to 15c up at $17.57½ and $17.70 and steadied near $17.60; September lard started 10c to 15c up at $10.90 to $10.95 and touched $11.00, and September ribs 5c up at $10.60 and sold at $10.62½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Snow's weekly crop report says that winter wheat threshing is now well advanced and the reports show a rate of yield decidedly above what was generally anticipated. The heavy yields are very marked in the states from Ohio to Missouri, while in Kansas they are larger than expected. The quality of the grain has been lowered somewhat by wetting in shock, but the total loss from this cause is not great. Spring wheat condition has been fully maintained except in Minnesota, where there is unusually widespread complain of the appearance of rust, it being already serious enough to lower condition materially in some important counties.

Corn conditions continue high over the whole belt except in Iowa and even here the loss on bottom lands is in a measure offset by high promise on uplands and well drained prairie.

Oats harvest was seriously delayed and the quality of the grain much lowered by the excessive rainfall of the past two weeks. In Iowa the volume of the crop is greatly reduced, but elsewhere the greater part of the damage is in lowered quality.

F. P. Frazier, of Chicago: There has been a great deal of damage done to the growing crop of late. Iowa has caught it the worst and there will be a reduction probably of 30 per cent. In a large portion of Illinois there will be large reduction. Michigan is poor and so is Wisconsin. Of course I have no idea what the government report will be, as our reports are not all in yet. I believe, however, new December oats should be bought as they are not very high, and if corn is going to rule high there will be a large demand for oats. Some think it is better to buy the September even at the premium, as we know corn will be high in September and there will be a large demand for oats for consumption at the present prices September and December oats are selling at.

Broomhall—The visible supply of wheat in the chief ports of Argentine today, 352,000 bus, a week ago 624,000 bus, a year ago 2,282,000 bus. The visible supply of corn today is 1,684,000 bus, a week ago 848,000 bus, a year ago 2,960,000 bus. The tone of the Argentine wheat market is dull with an absence of demand for export. Arrivals are small. The corn markets are steady with a moderate export demand.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—The market dull with a dragging tendency to prices. Speculative operations are small and of a scalping nature. Cables seem more disposed to follow declines here than advances. The cash situation is still unsatisfactory. The receipts in this and Southwestern markets are mainly going to elevator people. Broomhall cables that a leading millers' paper in France says the official report indicates about 300,000,000 for the present crop or about the same as a year ago. Modern Miller says harvesting operations are progressing and threshing on the whole shows a yield fully up to expectations. Quality poor and farmers selling freely. The outlook seems to us still dull.

Corn: Liverpool unchanged to ½d higher. Market dull and easier. General supposition is that Gates' part is heavily short the December and the fear is that if such is the case when the July deal is cleaned up they may exert a pressure on the December with the use of the cash stuff. Volume of trade is small. Cash demand fair.

Oats: The market is quiet and tone rather easier for the deferred futures. Speculative operations are still restricted by uncertainties regarding the cash situation. Weather is on the whole seasonable and a rapidly increasing movement of oats is likely.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, July 25.—Wheat was easier and the trade rather slow. There was a great deal of bearish news afloat. South Dakota reported it was already harvesting a good crop of wheat. Domestic receipts were larger at all points and the grading showed considerable improvement. Primary arrivals were 1,037,000 bus today, against 1,031,000 bus the corresponding day last year. St. Louis and Kansas City had 500,000 bus, against 449,000 bus for the corresponding day a year ago. Exports were light at 240,000 bus. The Modern Miller reported that the yield of wheat was up to, if not in excess of expectations, but the quality was poor. Exports for the week, 4,180,000 bus. Out of 205 cars received here today only 2 were contract. Considerable selling today was by professional speculators of heavy sort.

Corn was lower. The pressure on the September was of about the same sort as yesterday and there were indications that it was growing in importance. Influential local speculators are bearish. Out of 241 cars in today, 61 were contract. Receipts of contract from all sources were 20,000 bus, while the shipments were 200,000 bus. Total primary market arrivals today were 566,000 bus, against 414,000 bus a year ago. Some of the local elevator people did a little buying on weak spots.

Oats were lower, except for the July, and shorts were given another twist. Nevertheless the closing price in this was not much above that of yesterday. Cash oats were firm with everything of contract grade or near it wanted by the bulls. Receipts were 140 cars, with 20 contract. The selling was largely local and appeared to be private interests.

Provisions ranged higher early but a large quantity of stuff was put on sale at the advance and a bad break followed. The close was considerably lower than yesterday all around. The early buying was by the bull crowd in lard which sold September pork and ribs very heavily on the advance. Hogs at the yards were up 10c on account of light receipts. Total Western receipts today were 50,... against 32,500 a week ago, 82,0... a year ago. Shipments of meats were larger than those of last year while of lard they were considerably less. Cash trade was poor.

WAS MUCH CONFUSION

In Early Opening of Stocks In Wall Street.

A Continuation of Thursday's Mixed Realizing and Buying.

Prices Fluctuated Considerably and Closing Was Dull.

New York, July 25.—There was much confusion and irregularity in the opening movement of prices, indicating a continuance of yesterday's mixed realizing and buying. St. Louis & San Francisco shot up 2½ and Southern Pacific on running sales rose an extreme ⅞. Louisville & Atchison preferred made good fractional gains. Among the losses, Baltimore & Ohio and Sugar were conspicuous with a large fractional decline. Rock Island opened off ½ and rallied a point. The grangers fell into the background in point of speculative interest and the Southern group was brought forward as leaders. Louisville & Nashville headed this division with a rise of 2¾ and Illinois Central moved up 2⅜ simultaneously. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis gained over a point. Some of the Southwesterns were heavy and Rock Island was very erratic on a point range. The market in general was spotty and interest shifted from one stock to another. Other strong stocks included Amalgamated, Tennessee Coal, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Denver & Rio Grande, Pacific Mail and Fuller Construction, which was a point or so better. Sugar wiped out its loss. Declines reached 6 points in Anaconda, 3 in Rubber Goods preferred and 1 in Grass Twine and Kansas & Texas preferred. Prices all around were lower at 11 o'clock, St. Paul, Rock Island, Illinois Central and Louisville and Nashville reacting from 1 to 1⅜. Union Pacific and Atchison fell below yesterday's close.

The market continued very uneven, stocks rising vigorously in new quarters, while others suffered from liquidation. Western Union made an attempt decline of 3½, New York Air Brake, General Electric, Rock Island and Great Northern preferred, 1½. Meanwhile the St. Louis & San Francisco stocks were rising, the common touching 75¾. The regular leaders moved little until the Eastern trunk lines and Missouri Pacific took the lead. The purchases of these stocks were very large, resulting in a gain of 2¾ in New York Central, 2¼ in Pennsylvania and 1¼ in Missouri Pacific. The grangers and Southern stocks joined the rally, St. Paul reaching 168¾, its best figure in the movement. The Pacifics improved and Manhattan and Brooklyn Transit showed strength. Bonds were steady at noon.

Prices reacted in the extent of a point in St. Paul, Pennsylvania, New York Central and St. Louis & San Francisco. Missouri Pacific held firm and Manhattan and Chesapeake & Ohio continued their advance. There were gains of 1 to 2 points in Northwestern, Colorado Southern and the first preferred, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati & St. Louis, Republic Steel, Tennessee Coal, and in Westinghouse Electric. New York Central and Louisville rallied again to the top and prices elsewhere hardened.

The Atchison and Southern Railway, which had not been moved earlier, were taken in hand and lifted a point or over. Missouri Pacific also continued upward and reached 118½, and New York Central was higher. Elsewhere the movement was hesitating and some important stocks were dropped. Rock Island dropped 3 from the highest, touching 153. Missouri Pacific reacted a point later and by 2 o'clock the market was generally on the down grade.

Prices ran off in the final hour. St. Paul receding to 167¼. The reaction ran to 1¾ in Missouri Pacific, 1¼ in New York Central and a point in Manhattan and Illinois Central. Rock Island rallied 2, but was very feverish and Rubber Goods preferred rallied 5. Chicago & Eastern Illinois rose 3¾, Diamond Match 2¾, St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred 1¾, Rubber Goods and Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis preferred 1½ and Denver & Rio Grande preferred 1¼. New York Air Brake lost 5 and Delaware & Hudson and Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred a point. Some stocks were bid up again, but the closing was dull and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York: An international exchange broker, commenting on the gold exports now going on, said: "I am pleased to note that the movement is attended with so little excitement. It is really a small matter, and would be a small matter even though we were to ship $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The American supply of gold is being recruited by the inflow from domestic mines and the Klondike at the rate of $2,000,000 a week or better, a rate which will be kept up throughout the remainder of the calendar year. The United States and the Klondike will add not less than $100,000,000 to the supply of gold this year. The world's production is now at the rate of $350,000,000, or will be as soon as operations in the Transvaal gain a little more headway. This is at the rate of about $7,000,000 a week."

The steady and active buying of Reading securities by a prominent banking interest, which has been going on for nearly two months, continues without let up. It is said that of the 30,000 shares traded in Wednesday, 16,000 shares went down to this interest. The banking combination referred to is not identified particularly with the Pennsylvania Railroad company, nor is it associated intimately with the Vanderbilts, though not unfriendly in that quarter. Its alliances are closer to the Morgan party than to any other, and the street has reached the conclusion that Mr. Morgan and his associates are making sure of control whether the voting trust be dissolved in October or not.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Northern Securities company will be held here early next week. A definite day will not be sent until James J. Hill, the president, returns from the West. That the meeting has any special significance is denied and it is suggested that it is only for the purpose of declaring a dividend.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A nice healthy reaction set in yesterday afternoon. The advance will probably be resumed this afternoon. While leading stocks are creeping up only a point or two each day you need not fear that the bull market is over. My views on Atchison and Missouri Pacific remain unchanged. Both will go higher. St. Paul will cross 190. Keep long of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. Don't let go of Brooklyn Rapid Transit. I understand that People's Gas decision will be favorable. The whole market will probably be a purchase on weak spots this morning.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Notwithstanding the fact that prices have had a continuous and pronounced advance speculative feleing in the highest financial circles still favors the long side though of course as tonight's comment sugests buyers must be prepared for a reaction at any time. There has been a lot of profit taking in the market and a large short interest has covered. Nevertheless few competent observers look for more than a trader's set back of a point or two in values. It is regarded as significant that the principal arguments of operators for the decline are the high price level and the close proximity of the period when the West will withdraw large sums from Eastern depositories to move the crops. The first named argument has been in full use for two years. The second is met by the statement of well informed people that the interests behind the present bull movement have borrowed enough money from Europe and bankers to tide them over autumn stringencies should it develop. Houses which take this view of the situation and outlook say that if the fear of tight money causes a moderate decline the latter should be availed of to buy stocks as with good crops all indications point to a broad market in the autumn. The advance in Rock Island to 200 and the rise in St. Paul and Union Pacific and the character of buying of these stocks encourages the belief that the banking interests are accumulating them in furtherance of plans to be announced later in the season and which will further the good railroad systems of the country into closer harmony than ever before, thus insuring the maintenance of rails and continuance of large earnings. There is a good deal of disappointment over the set back in the active stocks sentiment. It is intimated by well informed brokers that the decline is due to manipulation which will be followed by renewed activity and strength in all the members of this group.

Warrington to W. H. Laidley & Co.—Expect further reaction today; would advise caution in buying. Yet it is not advisable to sell anything short. Would hold Baltimore & Ohio. This is but a healthy reaction and is at present somewhat overdone and therefore may be more extensive than otherwise would have been the case. There is no danger in holding long stocks on good margin. Buy T. C. & I. on any reaction around 65.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 25.—The cotton market opened weak and active with prices down 8 to 15 points under a scramble of the belated longs to sell out. The depression was due to a general combination of bearish influences, chief among which was the sale of from 40,000 to 50,000 July notices by the same interests, which Tuesday covered close to 35,000 notices. The Liverpool cables were surprisingly weak, being down 4½ to 7½ points when we opened, while spots there declined ⅛, after having already lost ⅛ in the last three days. The weather and crop reports were most encouraging. Europe sold the late months in a moderate way, but bought the July option to the extent of 10,000 to 12,000 bales. Wall street continued freely sell the distant months, notably October. After the first wave of selling, the market rallied several points, July rebounding 16 points, August 8 points and October 5 points, lated followed by another decline under flurries of general selling led by Wall street bears and tired near months longs. Speculation was active at the early session in a spasmodic way.

Cotton spot quiet, middling uplands 9c; middling gulf, 9¼c; sales, 34,481 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady, July, 8.40; August, 8.22; September, 7.91; October, 7.77; November, December, January and February, 7.68; March, 7.67.

WILL REFORM.

Little Girl Says Father Taught Her to Steal.

Toledo, Ohio, July 25.—Little Frances Cornet, the 10-year-old girl burglar, was placed in the county jail yesterday to await the action of Probate Judge Millard. While many believe the girl is a confirmed criminal and should be sent to the Girls' Industrial school at Delaware, Judge Millard hardly shares their opinion.

In speaking of the girl Judge Millard said: "She certainly is a keen little thief and an expert at her business. It is a shame to think of her as a criminal. Why, she is a natural born genius, and if placed under good influences would come out all right and make a brilliant woman some day. All she needs is a chance to be good and she will make a creditable mark and name for herself."

The police say that the girl belongs to a family of degenerates, although all are bright mentally. The girl's father, who was convicted in police court of receiving and concealing stolen property given him by little Frances, it is stated has taught the child how to steal. The little girl admitted it to the officers and others. She said she had to turn over all her stealings to her father.

The Cornet home, when searched, was found to contain large quantities of plunder, such as silverware, silks and various articles which the little girl claims to have stolen from various persons. The police say that one of Frances' sisters eloped with a negro, that another is bad; that the mother drinks hard and that the father has encouraged his children to crime in order to support him.

OF GREAT PRICE

Was Pearl Which Brings to Light Historical Story.

Winamac, Ind., July 25.—James Marlowe, of Ore Station, found a white pearl in the Tippecanoe river, valued at $200.

Among the old papers filed in the archives of the auditor's office of Pulaski county are those of the Pearl Divers' association. In 1842 a citizen of Pulaski county read of a man who found a clam shell containing a pearl of great beauty and dazzling whiteness. This filled him with visionary ideas, and he began wading in the waters of the Tippecanoe river. Cautiously he examined every shell until he came across one containing a pearl. A meeting was called and the Pearl Divers' association was incorporated.

The stockholders ceased farming and the work of exploring the river was commenced. Several dozen pearls were found, and the company sent a trusted agent to St. Louis to find out their actual market value. He was informed that his samples were worth from $25 to $50 apiece. He then returned home and laid before the stockholders the information of the golden fortune in store for them. They worked like beavers day and night, and were abundantly rewarded, having over 700 pearls in their possession.

Os their funds were getting low they sent a man to Cincinnati with the pearls. A lapidary informed him that if he had brought along the shells he could give him 50 cents a dozen. The agent was mad and went to New York city, and was informed the best pearls were worth 15 cents each and the balance 10 cents per bushel. Upon his return home the unwelcome news was laid before the stockholders.

To cap the climax the treasurer and the agent went to Europe and sold the pearls for a large sum of money and failed to account for money collected to the stockholders, who had mortgaged homes to raise money to carry on their pearl-diving business.

CRUTCH-BOUND

The crutch is a poor substitute for legs, and affords a very inconvenient and tiresome mode of locomotion—there is no more pathetic sight than a person slowly and painfully moving along the street supported by these artificial limbs.

When Rheumatism settles in the bones and muscles of the legs, it is safe to predict that the victim will eventually become helpless and crutch-bound. The corrosive, irritating matter that is deposited in the joints and muscles causes the most intense pain, the knees and ankles swell, and when the natural oils and fluids that lubricate these parts are completely destroyed the joints become locked and the muscles drawn and stiff, and crutches a necessity.

The acid poisons that produce rheumatic pains form in the blood, and are distributed through the system, and lodged in the arms, shoulders, hands, back and feet, or other parts of the body—resulting often in total disability. A permanent cure of Rheumatism can be effected only by a complete cleansing of the blood, and no other remedy so surely accomplishes this as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acid effects, purifies and invigorates the stagnant blood, and the gritty particles are washed out or dislodged by the new rich blood, and relief comes to the pain-racked sufferer. S. S. S. leaves no morbid, irritating matter in the blood to reunite and produce another attack, but expels every atom of it from the system. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, and does not impair the digestion or general health like alkali or potash remedies.

STUDIES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

WORSHIPPING THE GOLDEN CALF

International Sunday School Lesson For July 27, 1902.

Exodus 32:1-35. (Verses 1-6 are printed here.) "And when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down from the mount, the people gathered themsedves together unto Aaron, and said unto him, Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him. And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me. And all the people break off the golden rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron. And he received it at their hands, and fashioned it with a graving tool, and made it a molten calf; and they said, These be thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt. And when Aaron saw this, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and said, Tomorrow shall be a feast to the Lord. And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play."

Golden text: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Exodus 20:3.

AFTER THE DECALOGUE.

After the decalogue, the writer of the book of Exodus records a long list of judgments which God declared should be executed against those who transgressed the law. These judgments were the divinely appointed sanctions of that law. A covenant feast and sacrifice before God were next appointed, after which Moses ascended into the mount where God had promised to give him the tables of stone with the law engraved upon them. The glory of God covered the mountain, and Moses remained there for forty days and forty nights. During that time God gave him full directions for the construction of the tabernacle with its decorations, priesthood and all the paraphernalia and ceremonies attendant upon the tabernacle worship.

God detained Moses in the mount to teach him things intended for the benefit of the people. But while that was being done, they disobeyed the will of God as grievously as they well could have done. They confessed to Aaron that they considered Moses' leadership a failure, and that they even suspected that he had led them into a tight place and then had deserted them. With their loss of confidence in Moses, their faith in God had also departed. They were like many other people whose faith seems to reach no farther than their immediate religious intercessors. For such people the presence of a priest to represent God to them is always necessary. The Hebrews were veritable religious children, else they could have endured the absence of Moses for six weeks without forsaking the worship of Jehovah. They said to Aaron, "Make us gods, which shall go before us." Now Aaron and Hur had been placed in Moses' stead over the people. They held positions of authority and leadership. Aaron could easily have refused the idolatrous request of the people and could even have punished the leaders for making it. But instead, he weakly yielded to their desires. Perhaps he thought that they would retract their request for an idol as soon as they heard his demand for their jewelry. But if so, he was very ignorant of the depth of religious desires. The people quickly paid the price for their new god, and Aaron was forced to either fulfill their sinful request or else to falsify his own word.

The idol he made was in the shape of a calf. It has often been said that this was in remembrance of the religious worship in Egypt; but it is quite as likely to have been fashioned after the winged bulls that their forefathers had seen in Mesopotamia. Joshua himself reminded the Hebrews of the idolatry of their forefathers when he said, "Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood in old time, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and they served other gods." People cannot inherit religious merit in such a way that they can claim the favor of God in spite of their own personal character; but in a very real sense men can and do pass their own moral and religious characters on to their children. Sometimes for a generation or two some family trait will be absent, but it shows itself again in the third generation or the fourth. Such a return of an old characteristic is known as atavism. Idolatry had been deep-seated among the antecedents of Abraham, and even in the time of Moses there doubtless remained many distinct traditions of that old worship. Reversion to an old and lower type of anything is always a very easy matter. This is as true in morals and religion as in the physical development of the world. The list of judgments that follows the decalogue was a very essential appendage to that law, as is readily seen by a study of this idolatrous breach of the first and second commandments.

What a terrible revelation it was to Moses, on his descent from the presence of God, to be met with the shouts of the people who were rioting in the shameful orgy of the calf worship. They had not stopped with merely bowing down to the idol, but had stripped themselves after the lustful fashion of idolators, and were revelling in the taste of forbidden sin. From the glory of God to the same of man! What a fall was there! And then, to think of it! God made man in his own image and for fellowship with himself; God especially called the Hebrews to high privileges and duties; and yet they disgraced his name. But men today, as then, find it easy at times to violate the laws of nature and of God. Persistent watchfulness against sin is demanded of each one. Law cannot of its own volition make a person live lawfully. Each person must use his own will in enforcing the law upon his life. On seeing the deeds of the people, Moses became very angry and cast down the tables of the law and shattered them. Up in the mount God had told Moses of the terrible sin of the people, but its heinousness did not occur to him until he actually stood face to face with it.

Moses acted as God's representative to the people. He visited a just retribution upon them. He caused the idol to be torn down, burnt and ground to powder, then cast into the stream of water from which the people had to drink. He next turned to Aaron, who was officially responsible for the whole matter. Aaron endeavored to shift the guilt to the shoulders of the people and to the inert matter of which the idol was made. The most surprising thing in the whole narrative is that no punishment was visited upon Aaron, while the fearful judgment of slaughter with the sword at the hands of the Levites was inflicted on three thousand of those who had participated in the sin. Then Moses said to all the people, "Ye have sinned a great sin; and now I will go up unto the Lord; peradventure I shall make atonement for your sin."

MOSES THE INTERCESSOR.

Before the people, after their great sin, Moses was a stern judge. But as soon as he had administered the punishment, he was transformed into Moses the priest, with the burden of the people's sin heavy on his heart, and with their welfare the one controlling motive of his life. Even before he saw their sinful conduct, while God was telling him of it up in the mountain, he prayed for them, and again repeatedly did so after the slaughter of the Levites. There are four of these petitions recorded.

The first is recorded in Exodus 32:11-14. God had spoken to Moses of the Hebrews in terms that indicated that he disowned them. "Thy people" have corrupted themselves, said God. He would no longer call them his own, but would destroy them, every one, and begin with Moses to make a new nation. It was Moses' opportunity to become the father of God's chosen people, but he would have none of it. He loved the people who had sinned against God, and desired to save them. He unselfishly plead with God for them, reminding the Lord that they were his people for whom he had already done so much; their destruction would seem to be a triumph for Egypt as well as a revocation of the promises to the patriarchs. God heard the plea, and granted the petition. In one place the Scriptures said that, "God is not a man that he should repent," but here it says plainly, "The Lord repented of the evil which he said he would do unto his people."

The second intercession is recorded in Exodus 32:30-35, and was offered the next day after the execution of the terrible judgment on the three thousand. Moses was thoroughly conscious of the enormity of their sin, and sought to make the people share that consciousnes. His confession to the Lord was ample and sincere, and once more his plea was utterly unselfish, "Yet now, if thou will forgive their sin; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou hast written." But the Lord could not wholly grant this request. Perhaps the people were not sufficiently penitent. Perhaps they needed farther chastisement to cut out the hankering after idolatry, which desideratum was not entirely accomplished until long after this time, when their descendants had returned from the captivity in Babylon. One other part of this petition could not be granted. Moses asked to be blotted out if God could not spare the people. But retribution is not transferable in any such artificial way. God's unchangeable law of retribution is inevitable to the sinner, unless he knows the grace of Christ, and even then he does not wholly escape the penalty for his transgression. God regarded this prayer of Moses enough to modify the pronounced sentence so that Moses was directed to lead the people, with the promise that the angel of the Lord would go with him. But, like the hard voice of retribution, the interview closed with the Lord's avowal, "I will visit their sin upon them." And the historian records the grim words, "And the Lord smote the people, because they made the calf, which Aaron made."

In Exodus 33:12-16 we are told that Moses prayed God to reveal the method by which the divine guidance should be shown to him. He did not doubt the promise, but desired to know the Lord's way more perfectly. "Consider that this nation is thy people," he said, as if to put the people on the ground floor of the divine promises. And God gave him what he wanted, "My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest." But Moses was importunate and urged that the people should be permitted to share with him the blessing of the divine presence; and this, too, was granted. God loves to hear and answer prayer.

In Exodus 34:9 we read the last of these petitions, and it is a fitting climax to the series. Moses is in the majestic presence of Jehovah, and the interests of the people are so heavy on his heart that his first utterance to the Lord is, "If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, let the Lord, I pray thee, go in the midst of us; for it is a stiff-necked people, and pardon our iniquity and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance.' And God made a covenant with him to the benefit of the people.

All this idea of intercession can be summed up in the custom Moses established, at the time of which this lesson treats, of having a tent apart from the people to use as a special place in which to meet God. He went back and forth from the people to this tent to intercede with God for them, and, if any of them had a petition to make, he expressed it through Moses at the "Tent of Meeting." Joshua stayed there continuously as the minister of the tent. But Moses had to go among the people, as the "The Phophet greater than Moses" whom God hath raised up unto us. He knows our infirmities, and continually makes intercession for us at the eternal and invisible throne of God, and we can tell him our needs wherever we are prone to lift to him our hearts in prayer.

ANOTHER THEATER

Popular Price House Will Be Built at Once.

On West Superior Street Between Sixth and Seventh Avenues.

W. H. Reaney Will Be Manager---All Local Stockholders.

Another theater for Duluth is a certainty.

By Nov. 1 a substantial, cosy popular-priced house will be erected and ready for business.

The enterprise is backed solely by Duluthians and from the character of the men behind the project and their financial standing in the business world, there is no question but that the undertaking will result successfully.

The Metropolitan Building company is the name of the organization which is backing the project and articles of incorporation were filed with the register of deeds this morning. The first board of directors is made up of Lane McGregor insurance and real estate; Charles T. Fitzsimmons, of Fitzsimmons-Derrig company; Frank W. Densmore, department manager of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company; M. A. Fedje, the West End clothing merchant, and M. L. Parker, merchant tailor. The company is capitalized at $25,000 and the limit of liability is the same. The corporation runs for thirty years, beginning Aug. 1.

The site has already been selected and the plans of the building are now in the hands of Architect Wangenstein and are nearly completed. The building will be located between Sixth and Seventh avenues west on the north side of Superior street. The fourth 50-foot lot from Seventh avenue has been leased for a period of fifty years. The house will have a seating capacity of 1000, a little less than the Lyceum. The building will be three stories high on Superior street, and four stories on Michigan street. The theater will have one balcony with the gallery behind that. The parquet will accommodate 500 and a like number will find seats in the balcony and gallery.

W. H. Reaney, who has been the local manager of the Duluth-Superior Bill Posting company here, will manage the new play house. He has had considerable experience in amusement enterprises and has a large acquaintance with theatrical folk.

The work on the building will be begun about the first of next month and should be completed by November. Brick will be the material used and there will be two storerooms on Superior street and two on Michigan street.

The local house which will be known as the Metropolitan, has already found a place in a popular priced circuit and the booking will begin at once.

MADDENED BY HUNGER

Two Ferocious Great Dane Dogs Kill Mistress.

Shocking Death of Former Brooklyn Woman.

New York, July 26.—Mme. Edmond Sempis, who before her marriage a year ago was Miss Louise Rutherford, of Brooklyn, has been set upon, says a Paris dispatch to the World, by two hunger-maddened great dane dogs which had been secured to guard her husband's country house at Annecy lake, and so terribly injured that she died two hours after the attack.

M. Sempis is a prominent business man in Paris. His home is at Annecy lake, is isolated, and following a recent attempt by burglars to enter the place, he purchased two powerful great danes as guards. The dogs proved so ferocious that they were confined in an iron enclosure during the daytime for the safety of the family. M. Sempis was advised to starve them, so that when food was given to them they would remember kindly their benefactors. So they had nothing to eat for two days.

Mme. Sempis did not accompany her husband and their guests, who started for a drive to Aix-Les-Bains. She noticed the dogs while she was walking in the yard, and knowing that they had been without food, determined to feed them, as they were apparently quiet. She ordered the cook to prepare a bowl of meat and carried it to the kennel, the woman accompanying her.

The instant Mme. Sempis entered the iron enclosure the great danes leaped upon her like hungry tigers. They bore her to the ground, and as she vainly sought to defend herself, their teeth sank in her arms and body. Her struggles apparently maddened the animals the more.

The coachman heard the screams of Mme. Sempis and the cook. Mme. Sempis begged the man to save her. He ran to the stable to get a pitchfork. When he returned the great danes had fearfully torn their victim.

The coachman fought the brutes into a corner and kept them there until the cook summoned neighbors and carried Mme. Sempis from the enclosure in a dying condition.

A few minutes after M. Sempis and his guests returned she succumbed to her injuries after exchanging a few words with her husband, who is nearly crazed by the tragedy.

DULUTH GETS DETECTOR

Chief Moore of the Weather Bureau Authorizes Installation of Odenbach's Lightning Detector on the Bluffs Back of City.

Washington, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Moore of the weather bureau said today that he had decided to authorize the installation at Duluth station of one of F. L. Odenbach's lightning detectors. This new device is to be installed in the new station on the bluffs back of the city. This device detects lightning at a distance of 100 miles and accurately foretells its appearence in any given locality. Mr. Moore says he is in communication with Inventor Odenbach, of Clevcland, Ohio, as to when he can supply a machine. The inventor is a Jesuit priest, and Bishop McGolrick and Archbishop Ireland have interested themselves in it. "Archbishop Ireland," said Mr. Moore, "while passing through Washington on his way to Europe, called upon me regarding Odenbach's device. That the lightning detector will prove a valuable adjunct to the bureau in anticipating the approach of thunder storms has been unofficially demonstrated, and I have authorized the purchase of one to be installed at Duluth first."

FIERCE RESENTMENT

Shown By Irish Members of Parliament Over the Discovery of Alleged Secret Documents of the Land Trust.

London, July 26.—The closing days of the session of parliament are witnessing heated discussions of the ever-recurring Irish questions. This week was especially notable for the fierceness of the accusations and recriminations bandied across the narrow forum of the house of commons. The resentment of the Irish members was stirred to an unusual degree by the discovery of alleged secret documents of the land trust, organized by the landlords for the avowed purpose of resisting threatening combinations of tenants, and suppressing the boycotting and intimidation instigated by the United Irish league. The Irish leaders point out that Lord Clonbrook and Lord Barrymore, chairman of the national union of conservative associations, which are among the prime movers of the trust, have signed, as privy councillors, a proclamation from Dublin castle enforcing the coercion act over half of Ireland. The trust has ample means of fighting the tenants and the league behind them.

John Redmond, chairman of the United Irish league, said to a reporter of the Associated Press that he expected O'Brien, Dillon, Davitt, himself and other leaders would be arrested within a fortnight on charges of unlawful assemblage and intimidation.

WILMOTH ASSASSIN LOCATED

Philippi, W. Va., July 26.—The real assassin of Chief of Police Wilmoth has been located, and officers with bloodhounds are on the trail. With the daring and desperation of the Oregon desperado, Tracy, the negro murderer is terrorizing the people and steadily pushing his way up the mountains. His name is not known. He is well armed and will make a daring fight for liberty. The whole country is aroused and the negroes are all leaving.

COAL FAMINE IS IMMINENT

New York, July 26.—Predictions that anthracite coal will be $10 a ton within forty-eight hours are made by one of the largest wholesale dealers in this city. The statement was made after reports were received showing that the local market is absolutely barren of coal, of both domestic and steam sizes. An indication of the extent of the coal famine comes from Plainfield, N. J., in a dispatch which says there is less than 100,000 tons of anthracite in the yards there and that for the first time in the history of the yards soft coal has been stored in them and that one-half of the total amount in store is bituminous. There are now in Port Morris, N. J., 300 gondolas of coal, about 7500 tons, but there may be 7500 tons more in today.

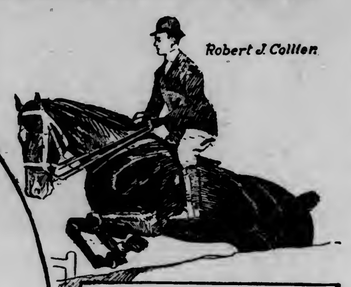

FATHER AND SON DROWNED

New York, July 26.—George Stoughton, aged 52, and his 10-year-old son Claude have been killed, says a Burlington, Vt., special to the World, by dropping from the railway bridge, which crosses the Winooski river near here. Stoughton had been out of work several weeks. He and the boy were sitting on the outer edge of the bridge as the train passed, and although the place is wide enough to admit of persons remaining there, both fell to the river below and were drowned. The father's arms were about his son.

NEWPORT'S SENSATION

Miss Sara Van Alen

Robert J. Collier

James J Van Alen

THE THREE FIGURES IN NEWPORT'S SOCIETY SENSATION.

The haughty reserve which usually characterizes the exclusive set at Newport was incontinently thrown off when Robert J. Collier, son of Peter Fenelon Collier, publisher of Collier's Weekly, announced that he was to be married almost immediately to Miss Sara Van Alen, daughter of James J. Van Alen, the gentleman who was once designated as embassador to Italy by President Cleveland, but declined the honor because of newspaper attacks. The interest in the announcement was heightened by the rumor that Mr. Van Alen had declared positively that the marriage would not occur. Miss Van Alen is a granddaughter of Mrs. Astor, the former New York society leader. Young Mr. Collier is one of the best cross country riders and polo players in the United States.

OBJECTIONS TO MARRIAGE WITHDRAWN.

Newport, R. I., July 26.—The marriage of Miss Sara Stewart Van Allen, youngest daughter of James J. Van Allen, and granddaughter of Mrs. William Astor, to Robert Joseph Collier, son of Peter Fenelon Collier, of New York, took place today at the Van Allen villa, "Wakehurst." Only the members of the two families and a few intimate friends were present. After the marriage at the church, a wedding breakfast was served on Mr. Collier's yacht Rada. During the day Mr. and Mrs. Collier left on a wedding trip at sea.

GATES AFTER COPPER

Well Known Financier Working on Minong Range In Wisconsin On Which He Has Option.

John W. Gates, the noted Chicago stock operator who is stirring things up down in New York, is engaged in opening up a new copper range in Douglas county, Wis., and those who are on the inside predict that there will be important developments.

He has been working since May 1, but the work has been kept very quiet, and but few people have known what was going on.

The fee of the property on which he is working is owned by Duluth parties, who have given him an option for the purchase of the land running two years, from May 1, 1902.

It is claimed that the new copper range is a continuation of the Keeweenaw Point copper ranges, upon which the marvelously rich mines of the Houghton-Hancock district are located, qand developments so far are claimed to promise that mines as rich as many of those in the older district will be developed.

The land is owned by the Mining Range Copper company, of Duluth, and nearly all of the stock of the company is owned here. James T. Hale is president of the company; W. A. McGonagle is treasurer, and Henry S. Ely is secretary.

It is located in the lower part of Douglas county, sixteen miles from the village of Gordon, and it is on what is known as the "extreme range." There are three ranges in Douglas county, the South range, the St. Croix range and the extreme range. The upper ranges have been explored for copper with as yet but indifferent success.

The range on which Mr. Gates is working was examined by his mineral expert, and his verdict, after a thorough exploration, was satisfactory enough to induce the Chicago financier to take an option on the property and proceed to develop it.

He has employed Capt. W. A. Dunn, of Houghton, a mining man of long experience on the Michigan copper and iron ranges, to open up the property, and he has been at work with a crew of men since May 1. Capt. Dunn has opened up many large mines in Michigan, including the Baltic mine, and he is well known in the upper peninsula mining regions.

The work so far has resulted in a shaft forty feet deep, from which three tons of mass copper have been taken. Preparations for increasing the working facilities are being made, and engines for hoisting and compressors have been ordered. When they are installed the work will proceed more rapidly than ever. Ore is now being taken out at the rate of 1300 pounds a day.

There is considerable evidence that the range is a continuation of the Michigan ranges. The Wisconsin state geologist has given that as his opinion, and so has Capt. Dunn, who says that the rocks are of the same character as those on Keeweenaw Point.

Those who are interested in the proposition have been keeping very quiet. Capt. Dunn was at the Spalding Tuesday purchasing supplies, but he would not discuss the work upon which he is engaged.

Duluth will be the base of supplies for the exploration and development work that is in progress.

The news that John W. Gates has become interested on the Wisconsin range will be received with enthusiasm by all who believe that copper exists there. The explorations up to this time have been conducted by people and companies who were not overburdened with funds, and, after going down some distance, were forced to abandon their work until they could replenish their treasuries. Mr. Gates has the money to give the range a thorough exploration, and having taken hold of it, will undoubtedly do so. He will prove to his own satisfaction that copper does not exist there before he quits, and he knows well, too, that he may have to go to a great depth. Explorations for copper in the Lake Superior region are expensive, and the amount that he will put in to it will be large, but to a man of his millions it will be a comparatively small venture, and with the chance of great financial reward, Mr. Gates is known to be a man who takes long chances, and will spend his money freely where there is a large stake to be won in case of success.

Philadelphia, July 26.—It was announced here today that the third annual encampment of the Spanish-American War Veterans will be held in Indianapolis on September 22, 23 and 24. President Roosevelt has written that he expects to attend the encampment on September 23.

SEVERAL LOST IN GALE

Two Known to Be Drowned and It Is Feared Eight or Ten Others Are Victims of the Storm Tossed Waves.

Vancouver, B. C., July 26.—The heavy gale which has been blowing for the past forty-eight hours, is responsible for two known deaths and there is every reason to believe that 8 or 10 other men have been drowned in the storm-tossed waves. Last night two Indians found an upturned boat off the middle arm of the Frazee river and upon investigation found a man clinging to it. The man did not live to reach shore. The body has been identified as being that of Fritz Fabian, well known. A coat was found among the nets about the boat containing a number of letters addressed to Florian Schmalz. It has been learned that Schmalz and Fabian had been fishing together and there is reason to believe that Schmalz was also drowned.

HORSES DIE OF SWAMP FEVER

St. Paul, July 26.—A new disease among horses in the northern part of the state is baffling the veterinary department of the state board of health. The disease is popularly known as "swamp fever." It has been known in Manitoba for several years, and veterinarians of that province have been studying it in vain for several years to ascertain what really causes it.

Thus far the greatest number of cases have been reported from Polk, Red Lake and Norman counties, although cases have been reported from Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties, and the disease is supposed to have caused the loss of many animals in other counties in the northern part of the state whose death was a mystery.

Many of the residents of the counties where the disease is most common believe it was brought in from Manitoba by horses imported by contractors building railroads.

FAKE FIGHT IS ALLEGED

Mayor Received a Letter Telling of Result.

Interested Parties Say Contest Was Square.

San Francisco, July 26.—Now that the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons contest for the world's championship is over, the cry of "fake" has been raised, though without justification in the opinion of Referee Graney, George Siler and the great majority of other sporting men who witnessed the contest. A communication sent to Mayor Schmitz before the fight, to be opened after it was ended, stated that the writer had been informed that Jeffries was to win in the eighth round, which he did. The mayor has stated that if the charge that the contest was a pre-arranged affair cannot be disproved, he will be compelled to prohibit such exhibitions herefter.

Referee Graney says: "I think the contest was legitimate. From a referee's standpoint the fight was as near perfect as a fight could be. There were no fouls—not even the semblance of a foul. I had to caution them once, but this was not for anything that either did to the other, but for their bumping into me. It was the greatest fight I ever saw, and I doubt if there will ever be another like it."

"It is absolutely ridiculous to talk of the fight being a fake," said William Delaney. "There never was a fight in which there was less reason to doubt that it was being fought on the square."

Jeffries said: "Of course the fight was on the square. It is ridiculous to talk of anything else. Fitz fought a hard fight, the gamest I ever saw. He worked hard all the time, and when I got in the deciding blow on him he was taken off his guard. After I had my eye cut Delaney told me to start in and finish him, for fear that I would be blinded and would be unable to keep on fighting."

Fitzsimmons is equally emphatic in his assertion that it was a hard-fought, legitimate battle.

George Siler wrote of the fight that Bob Fitzsimmons, although beaten, proved conclusively that he is, or rather was, the greatest fighter that ever stepped into an American prize ring.

"The Chronicle says: "There was no taint or suspicion coming from any quarter that the contest was not strictly fair and the best man won. Surely no other encounter of the kind ever waged combined all the good qualities of that fought last evening."

The Call says: "For seven rounds Robert Fitzsimmons made a pitiable spectacle of the young Hercules from the South and then fell under just such a blow as that with which he won the world's championship from Corbett at Carson on that memorable 17th of March, 1897."

The Examiner insists that the fight was a fake "pure and simple."

James Jeffries will receive 60 per cent and Robert Fitzsimmons 40 per cent of $23,910, which is 75 per cent of the gross receipts of the fight, $31,880 having been received through the sale of seats. Jeffries will receive $14,346, and Fitzsimmons will add $9,740 to his bank roll. The share of the San Francisco Athletic club is $7,970. Out of this it must pay the expenses of the fight, including $500 for the referee.

Jeffries' manager, Delaney, referring to the champion's future plans, said: "We will consider the challenge of Corbett and determine whether or not it is reasonable. I don't know what his proposition is. If he means business we will meet him and will take care of him. Jeffries is young and strong and has no intention of quitting the ring."

Upon examination being made by a surgeon after his fight with Fitzsimmons, it was found that Jeffries' nose was broken. The champion was not aware of the injury until the excitement of the battle had worn off. A doctor was then called and pronounced the small bones of the nose broken. Jeffries believes the injury was received in the second or third round from one of Fitzsimmon's left jabs on the bridge of the nose. The champion declared he felt no pain from the injury and would soon be in good shape again. He spent the night at the baths.

When Fitzsimmons had been counted out and had congratulated Jeffries, he walked to the side of the ring and flinging one of the gloves he had drawn from his hands to the right and the other to the left, among the spectators, he declared in a loud voice that he had fought his last fight.

THE DELUGE CONTINUES

Enormous Damage Is Being Done In Texas By Heavy Rains---Three Lives Were Lost at Stephensville.

Dallas, Texas, July 26.—The deluge of rain which has been pouring over Central Texas since Thursday and that which has been covering the western portion of the state since Sunday has not abated. In addition to the three lives lost at Stephenson and reported last night, there has been much property damaged. Within four hours at Cameron yesterday, fifteen inches of rain fell. A thousand feet of the Santa Fe track was carried away and a portion of the Arkansas Pass road destroyed. Little river rose twenty feet in eight hours and is now bank full, but slowly receding. The streets of Cameron are badly damaged and farms in the bottom lands are being flooded.

Big Springs is probably the greatest sufferer from the flood from a property standpoint as the water is over the town from four to twenty-two feet deep. The second overflow came at 2 o'clock Friday morning and within a few hours business houses and residences were badly flooded. The track for ten miles west of Big Springs has been washed out and the bridges are gone. Fifty passengers are waterbound here and no attempt will be made to run trains until the rain ceases and the water recedes. The foundations of brick and stone buildings are damaged and many are expected to collapse.

The damage will be enormous, but an estimate cannot be made accurately for the town has been under water three days and will be inundated for three days more.

At Waco, the Brazos was still rising at midnight and was within one foot of the danger line. It is still raining there. If the rain continues much longer the cotton crop will suffer.

COLONIAL MANSION BURNED

New York, July 26.—The large colonial mansion of John J. Drake, one of the pioneer showmen of the United States, at Rye, N. Y., has been destroyed by fire, together with its entire contents, which consisted of curios from all parts of the world and many gifts from European potentates. Mr. Drake, who is 80 years old, had occupied the mansion half a century. He was rescued by means of a ladder. Eva Healy, of Syracuse, niece of Mr. Drake's housekeeper, who was rescued from the burning building, died shortly afterward from suffocation. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

SENATOR HANNA PERSISTENT

Cleveland, July 26.—Senator Hanna has sent another telegram to Washington in regard to Dr. Russell Wilson, who is about to be tried by court-martial in Nicaragua for participating in a filibustering expedition. Dispatches from Nicaragua state that Dr. Wilson was suspected of having participated in an expedition in one of the provinces of Nicaragua in 1899.

"I have discovered," said Senator Hanna, "that Dr. Wilson was a student in the medical department of Ohio state university in 1899, and he did not graduate from that institution until 1900. There is no truth in the charge that he participated in the revolution of 1899. I have wired to J. J. Hill, assistant secretary of state, requesting him to notify our minister to Nicaragua and see that Dr. Wilson is accorded a full and fair trial for his life."

MAY EXPLAIN THE MYSTERY

Chicago, July 26.—A discovery which may throw some light upon the fate of Miss Florence Ely and her nephew, Frank Rogers, who disappeared mysteriously from the home of the boys' parents in Evanston last year, has been made at Racine, Wis., says a local paper.

A piece or cardboard was found near the river there bearing the following words: "Oct. 10, 1901.—Ma and Pa—Meet us in heaven. We are going to commit suicide—Miss Florence Ely and Frank Rogers."

Miss Ely and her nephew were traced to Racine, where they stopped at a hotel. They took a car north from there and no further trace of them could be found.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

LICENSES ARE VOID

Brewing Companies Must Not Farm Them Out.

Licenses Used That Way Are Held Illegal.

The farming out of saloon licenses is illegal and contrary to public policy, according to a decision filed in district court this morning by Judge Dibell.

He says that every man who is running a saloon on a license held by another party is conducting a saloon illegally, and liable to prosecution for every day he so runs it.

Out of 168 saloons in the city of Duluth, probably seventy-five are managed under these conditions, and their proprietors are liable to prosecution.

The brewing companies are wholesale owners of saloon licenses. They hold them in the names of agents, of bookkeepers of the brewing companies, and other employes, and they farm them out to men who wish to open saloons. The saloon men pay for them on the installment plan, and give mortgages to secure the breweries, which maintain control of the licenses, in order that they may withdraw the protection of the licenses from the saloon men if they do not keep up their payments.

Judge Dibell's finding is on one of these mortgages, and he holds it to be an illegal contract and, therefore, void, and he gives the saloon man possession of the property covered by the mortgage.

The decision will cause a revolution in the saloon business in Duluth, owing to the large extent to which precisely similar operations have been carried. As the point is most important to them, doubtless the matter will be appealed to the supreme court.

The Herald a year or so ago called attention to this condition, and while it gave no opinion as to the legality of the practice, it did condemn it on the grounds of public policy, because it opened the door to the running of saloons by irresponsible persons, because it made it difficult to place the responsibility for saloons improperly run, and because it nullified the reviewing power of the council in granting licenses.

The case just decided is that of the Duluth Brewing and Malting company against Edward Hogan and James McCauly, in which the company sued to recover possession of the fixtures of a saloon at 216 Lake avenue south which it claimed on two mortgages. The mortgages covered different portions of the fixtures. One mortgage, for $250, was given for money loaned, and the company gets the property covered by this mortgage, which was practically undisputed. The other mortgage, for $750, was given to secure the payments of beer money and installments on the license. This is knocked out, and the defendants are given judgment for the property or its value, $573.21.

Judge Dibell's memorandum goes into the matter fully and with characteristic vigor and pointedness. It follows:

"A license to sell intoxicating liquors at No. 218 Lake avenue south, in the City of Duluth, was granted by the common council, on due application made, to John C. Helder, who executed the bond required. Helder was the bookkeeper of the plaintiff, and was its agent for the purpose of holding the license. The plaintiff paid for the license and it was the understanding between it and Helder that he had no substantial interest in it, and that the plaintiff should control its disposition. It was the understanding that the defendant Hogan should sell intoxicating liquors under the Helder license, should pay $20 per week to apply on the amount paid by the brewery company for the license, and should buy his beer exclusively of the brewing company, paying going prices therefor weekly on the regular collection day. Hogan had the lease of the premises mentioned, and owned the furniture and fixtures. He sold other intoxicants than beer, which, of course, he did not purchase of the plaintiff. He was not the agent of the plaintiff, nor of Heider, in selling beer or other intoxicants. He was not hired by them, but was individually carrying on a saloon business.

"All the facts above referred to were parts of one agreement and understanding.

"The mortgage for $750 was given to secure the weekly beer bills and the $20 per week which was to be paid the brewing company for the privilege of running under the license.

"At the time of the commencement of this action there was due the sum of $52 on beer bills, and $183 worth of license, so to speak, had not been paid for.

"If the plaintiff is entitled to recover either the $52.00 or the $183.00, he is, of course, entitled to possession under the $750.00 mortgage.

"The law is so well settled that no authority need be cited in support of the proposition that except under legislative authority a license to sell intoxicating liquors can not be transferred. It is not necessary to determine whether whether the Duluth city ordinance, which attempts to provide for a transfer from the licensee to another person, and a change in the place where the business is to be conducted, is a valid piece of municipal legislation. The fact is that the license was not transferred from Heider to Hogan, the parties never intended that it should be transferred, and every day that Hogan sold intoxicating liquors he committed an indictable offense. Every sale which he made was an illegal sale. And it was evidently intended that the plaintiff might refuse to permit Hogan the apparent protection of the license. The wholesale brewer may sell beer to an unlicensed person, and recover therefor, even though he knows that the purchaser intends to sell it unlawfully, that is, without having a license to do so. He may sell to a person violating the law, and still recover, if he in no way assists, or aids, or forwards, or participates in the unlawful act of his vendee. This necessarily follows from the case of Anheuser-Busch Brewing association vs. Mason, 44 Minn., 318. And it is well settled that if the vendor assists or aids his vendee in the unlawful act, even slightly, or participates in the unlawful transaction by some positive act in furtherence thereof, he can not recover upon the illegal contract. Graves vs. Johnson, 156 Muss., 211, and notes thereto in 15 L., R. A., 834; Woodford vs. Hamilton, 139 Ind., 481, 39 N. E. R. 47. The doctrine is accepted by our court in the Anheuser-Busch case cited, where it is said that positive acts in aid or furtherance of the illegal act are sufficient, though slight. And in Bollinger vs. Wilson, 76 Minn., 262, the Massachusetts case above cited, which holds a similar principle, is apparently approved.

"It was the intent of all the parties to this transaction that Hogan should sell without a license. It was the intent of the plaintiff to assist and aid Hogan in so doing, in act to enable him to do so, by giving him the apparent protection of a license. By doing as it did, it did assist and aid Hogan in his unlawful traffic, and furthered the unlawful business being carried on by him. By the agreement by which Hogan was to sell the plaintiff's beer exclusively, which was but a part of an agreement which included the furnishing of a license, the plaintiff must be held to have participated in the illegal traffic. How more effectually one could aid another in selling without a license is hard to imagine.

"It seems to me that the whole arrangement by which a license is secured from the municipality, and farmed out, as this one was, is contrary to public policy and void. If such a thing may be done lawfully, a company may obtain a number of licenses in the names of its employes, or of others, and under such licenses confer authority to sell intoxicating liquors for a whole year, or for different portions of it, upon a number of individuals who have never been investigated by the common council, wmho may be persons to whom the council is forbidden to grant licenses, and against whom the public are not given an opportunity to suggest the statutory objections."

William R. Spencer was the attorney for the defendants.

Dr. O. Mitchell's Practice Becomes Immense.

Hundreds Here Willing to Testify As to the Doctor's Ability to Heal.

There are but few doctors that can acquire as immediate a following in four years as has Dr. O. T. Mitchell, of 17 East Superior street. Dr. Mitchell has a retinue of patients and former patients who form one immense advertising bureau for him, and who are eager to send their sick friends and acquaintances to him to be cured. Mr. Mitchell is known widely in this part of the state and in Superior as "the magnetic healer," and has performed cures that are in many cases little short of miraculous. People have come to him as a last resort and he has snatched them from the brink of the grave. They have tried all kinds of doctors and all brands of medicines, only to fail and be told that they had better prepare for death.

A doctor that can perform such cures as these is certainly worth seeing when one is ill, and particularly desperately ill. If one has any doubt about these cures, testimonials from people right here in the city, and their addresses, can be obtained from the doctor. One does not need to go to the other side of the world to find out if a testimonial is or is not authentic. Hundreds in Duluth are willing to tell of how the doctor cured them and will do so for the asking.

Dr. Mitchell's office hours are from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily, and from 10 a m. to 12 m. Sundays. 'Phone 579.

THEY OBJECT.

Attorneys Oppose Admission of Another Mueller Heir.

After a short absence the Mueller trial advanced to the center of the stage in the district court this morning. Not the action proper, but one wing of it, when Judge Cant heard the application of J. B. Richards, attorney for Jacob Mueller, of Indian Territory, who thinks he is a relative of the late Johann Mueller, and an heir to part of the estate, asking that his client me admitted as one of the defendants.

The application was opposed by the other defendants. Frank B. Kellogg, E. P. Towne and R. R. Briggs appeared to protest. Counsel Kellogg took the stand that Mueller was already a defendant, as he was included with "all unknown parties."

Mr. Richards asks that he be allowed to examine the witnesses and that his case should not be bound by any testimony taken before he entered the action.

The opposing attorneys stated that such a movement would simply mean to begin the case all over again and that was absurd. They didn't know but that a hundred Jacob Muellers might appear and the case would be in the courts for years.

Judge Cant took the matter under advisement.

GREAT TROUT FISHING.

H. F. Williamson Catching Fine Ones at Yellowstone.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson, Jr., are enjoying an outing in Yellowstone Park, and according to a letter received by a Duluth friend from H. F. Williamson, Jr., they are having a splendid time and experiencing some remarkable trout fishing. In the Yellowstone river, at the outlet of Yellowstone lake, two rods caught 173 trout that weighed 240 pounds. The smallest was one pound and the largest two pounds. All were caught with flies and there were twenty-one doubles. Mr. Williamson, Jr., caught three trout at one cast that weighed 4¾ pounds, with a 5½ ounce fly rod. The trout are mountain trout, salmon trout and silver trout, the latter very gamy.

The work on the new addition to the Silberstein & Bondy Co's store building is already well under way. The contractors expect to turn the building over complete by Sept. 1, which is not thought improbable, in view of the fact that they did such quick work on the St. Louis hotel addition.

WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Hoodlums Who Abuse Privileges of Piers.

Complaint having been made to the United States engineer's office from several different sources that during the past two or three weeks persons have congregated on the new north pier of the Duluth canal, and hurled profane, obscene and abusive language at certain passing vessels to the disgust of persons visiting the piers for recreation purposes, the officer in charge has taken prompt steps to have the practice discontinued, and to assist in effecting this result has requested the aid of the municipal authorities. The offense complained of is in violation of the United States laws for the preservation of order on United States property. Steps will be taken hereafter to ascertain the names of all parties guilty of the offense charged, and proceedings will be instituted against them before United States authorities.

It is naturally disappointing to the many citizens of Duluth, who fully appreciate the beautiful promenade afforded by these piers, to find that there are persons so indifferent to the feelings of others who frequent the piers for recreation purposes as to behave in the manner complained of.

Y. M. C. A. IS ACTIVE.

Continues Its Work In Spite of Summer Weather.

The Young Men's Christian association is one of the institutions of this city that continues its business every day of the week and part of the nights. Even during the warm summer days the gymnasium work is kept up faithfully by a large number of young men and the large cool reading room has its attractions, vieing with the refreshing shower baths or the strenuous game of pingpong.

Among those who constitute a goodly number of callers at the building are visitors and tourists who are familiar with the association's work elsewhere and who are in many cases active members of the great fraternal organization whose field is the world. There is no better advertisement for a city than a fine, well equipped association building.

The junior department has been in camp at Long lake for the past ten days and returned to the city last evening. All the members of the party report a delightful time, free from accidents and mosquitoes. There was forty-five in attendance at the encampment, of which forty were boys between the ages of 10 and 16 years.

Sunday afternoon Evangelist T. C. Long will address the regular Men's meeting at 4 o'clock. Mr. Long is a more than ordinarily interesting speaker and hails from the city of St. Louis.

STRANGLED.

Kills Two of Her Little Daughters With Twine.

New York, July 26.—Richard Meade, a night watchman, on returning to his home in Brooklyn today, found his two little daughters dead from strangulation caused by twine tightly tied around their necks. A third child was unconscious from the same cause and will likely die. His wife lay in a comatose state on the floor, apparently suffering from alcoholism combined with poison. According to the police, the woman was of intemperate habits, and the supposition is that she strangled the children while in a delirious condition.

MAGNETIC BALANCE

Will Detect Warships When Miles From Shore.

Washington, July 26.—The signal corps of the army, so naval officers hear, has invented a device by which the presence of a steel vessel may be detected when fifteen miles off shore.

If that be true, and army officials decline to say whether it is or not, it will be impossible for warships to approach within striking distance of coast fortifications without being discovered in time to prepare for combat.

The instrument, which, it is said, will be tried at the coming summer maneuvers, is understood to be a magnetic balance so delicate as to be affected at a distance by a great mass of steel, such as a warship.

It is said that the operator can distinguish between a warship and a merchant liner, as the former, carrying a greater weight of steel, agitates the magnetic device with greater force.

The naval officers also have been conducting some experiments and they may have something up their sleeve which will surprise the artillery men.

Both army and navy officers are preparing for the approaching operations with the greatest energy. Orders have been issued for the movement of the troops to man the coast fortifications, and from now until the later part of August great activity will be witnessed along Long Island Sound, within the zone of the war game.

DISTRIBUTION

Of Portion of Palmer Estate Allowed By Court.

Chicago, July 26.—Mrs. Bertha Honore Palmer and Adrian C. Honore, executors and trustees under the will of the late Potter Palmer, have filed a petition before Probate Judge Cutting, asking for a partial distribution of the personal property of the estate from the executors to the trustees. The property in question includes personal property in and about the Palmer house, valued at $224,000. The petition was granted.

Preceding the filing of the petition the executors filed an inventory of all the personal and real property left by Mr. Palmer, which places the former at $1,500,000 and the real estate $6,400,000. The personal property includes $1,163,000 worth of stocks and bonds. The contents of the home on the Lake Shore drive are valued at $160,608, included in which are 129 paintings. The furnishings of the Palmer house are placed at $49,354.

ALMOST MURDER

Vicious Brute Barely Prevented From Killing His Child Wife.

Even After That She Pleads For His Release.

Saloon Row Narrowly Escapes Resulting In a Murder.

Two murders were narrowly averted last night.

An Italian would probably have killed his beautiful child bride but for opportune interference.

The second affair that came near ending in a tragedy occurred in the Maine hotel bar, on Lake avenue.

Because the saloon proprietor ordered him out an intoxicated Finlander attacked him with a knife. The proprietor shot him through the chin. Had the bullet been an inch or so higher or lower there would have been little chance of the man's life.

The police were quick and decisive in both cases and had all parties concerned in custody within a short time.

Mary Jeanette, a 15-year-old bride, beautiful and possessed of an infinite charm of manner, neglected to clean her husband's dinner pail.

Gildo Jeanetta struck the little girl over the head with the pail, and then, becoming more vicious, picked up a chair and struck her repeatedly with it. Persons passing their home at 126 East Second street, heard and saw what was going on. They tried to enter the house and the enraged brute left off his wife-beating long enough to make a demonstration against them.

He then returned to his wife, broke the chair over her head, and while she was prostrate and he was renewing his attack, Lieut. John Drennan, Detective Mork and Officer Fritz burst in through the doorway and took him in custody.

The girl wife, though scarcely able to rise, begged the officers to allow her husband to go free, saying that they were just playing together—this, too, in spite of the fact that streams of blood were flowing from half a dozen ugly cuts on her head. She then gave way again and the officers thought she would die.

They were astonished early this morning when the little girl wife called at headquarters and, through alternate smiles and tears, begged to have her husband released.

When he was arraigned in court she took a seat opposite Jeanetta, and across the court room girlishly endeavored to make up with him by means of smiles and tender little glances. She used every art known to romantic love-making, but Jeanetta refused to look at her. His examination was set for next Wednesday, and he was held in the sum of $250 for assault in the second degree. As he left the court room the little girl smiled up into his face and tried to touch his coat sleeve, but Jeanetta jerked away with a frown and marched off without a word.

The Lake avenue shooting occurred about 11 o'clock. The proprietor of the saloon, William Hespeck, was closing up for the night. One of the men in front of the bar was Nick L. Nelson. He refused to go out, and when Hespeck endeavored to put him out, he drew a knife.

He slashed viciously at the saloon man, ripping open his shirt and cutting his finger. Hespeck pulled a gun and shot Nelson through the chin.

Officers Grandmaison and Nelson caught the injured man as he dashed down Paradise alley, and later arrested Hespeck.

The county attorney made an investigation of the shooting this morning and decided that it was clearly in self-defense. He, however, had Hespeck and his bartender arraigned for selling malt liquor to Nelson when he was in an intoxicated condition, and both were fined $30 and costs.

DOZEN MORE.

Young London's List of Burglaries Continues to Increase.

A dozen more petty but daring burglaries are now charged up to 13-year-old Louis London, arrested yesterday.

It is claimed that he broke into Bennett's news store about six times in the past three weeks, and other small jobs that bear his particular style of burglary are being reported.

Yesterday when young London was arrested he made a complete confession of most of his burglaries to Chief Troyer and requested the chief as a favor to take him into court, let him plead guilty and be hustled off to Red Wing before his parents should hear of his arrest.

He said it would be much easier for him to tell his parents by writing than to met them face to face, and sugested that with prompt action he could be out of Duluth and on his way to the state industrial school before his father could get the slightest inkling of what was up.

The chief declined to railroad his case through. Now the father of the boy says that he can prove an alibi for his son despite the latter's confession.

He says that in all of the twelve burglaries to which the boy has confessed, he can show that the boy was at home all the time when the case comes up in the municipal court next Wednesday.

Young London was released from custody yesterday afternoon on a bond of $100.

A COUNTER CLAIM.

J. L. Washburn and Others Answers L. D. York's Suit.

The defendant's answer in the case of Levi D. York against J. L. Washburn and associates, was filed in United States circuit court today. The suit was instituted by the plaintiff to recover $10,000 earnest money paid the defendants for a mining lease which the plaintiff refused to take, alleging that the original agreement called for royalties on Bessemer ore, such not being stated in the lease turned over to him. The defendant not only denies that any such agreement was made about Bessemer ore, but alleges that plaintiff has the lease in his possession for ten days without making any comment and then refused it only after he had failed to negotiate a sale of the same.

The defendant puts in a counter claim for $30,566.30 besides the costs and disbursements, claiming $25,000 for damages resulting by a refusal of the plaintiff to take the lease, $500 for the expense of running a drill on the property at the direction of the plaintiff, and $566.30 due the defendant for professional services, no part of the several sums having been paid.

MUST PAY.

Judge Dibell filed a decision in the district court this morning in the case of E. F. Alford, as receiver of the S. J. Thomas Lumber company, allowing the plaintiff $80 in the suit against the Consolidated Fire & Marine Insurance company.

The lumber company carried insurance with the company upon its machinery in a sawmill in Cook county. The policy was written Nov. 22, 1899, and on July 3, 1900, the lumber company became insolvent. E. F. Alford was appointed receiver. A portion of the plant insured was destroyed by fire Aug. 9, 1900, and the company refused to pay the risk. One of the grounds was that because a receiver had been appointed the circumstances affecting the risk were altered and the risk itself materially increased thereby. The court held that the receiver is the legal representative of a corporation and that phrase used in writing the policy, was most appropriate, where it spoke of insuring the company or its legal representative.

Another insurance company got worsted in a decision handed down this morning. It was the case of the Fidelity & Casualty company against George P. Donohue and Michael Gallagher, doing business as Donohue & Gallagher. The men are labor contractors and hire gangs of men on the docks of this city. It took out an employers' liability policy with the plaintiff, whereby it was insured against liability in case of accidents to its men. The premium paid was gauged by the payroll for the year. The plaintiff company claimed that the payroll was far in excess of that which the defendants had paid premiums for and the latter was to recover the difference, amounting to about $900.

The court held that only the men that were employed at the St. Paul & Duluth warehouse could be called warehousemen and the others working outside on other docks were not covered by the policies held by the defendants.

TUMULTUOUS

Conditions Continue In Hayti According to Latest Reports.

Washington, July 26.—Tumultous conditions continue in Hayti, according to advices received today at the state department from Minister Powell who is at Port Au Prince. He cables that civil war has been declared throughout the country and that Gen. Firmin, an aspirant for the presidency is marching on Port Au Prince. The present government has been dissolved. The acting president has sent a communication to the diplomatic corps declaring Admiral Killick is a pirate and asking that the naval vessels of foreign countries capture him wherever found. The precedents show that the naval powers have decided to pay no attention to any such proclamation, but to regard men in Killick's position as simply rebels.

EVERY CHANCE

Will Be Given Wilson to Prove His Innocence.

Washington, July 26.—Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister today informed Acting Secretary of State Hill that his government has accepted the minister's recommendation relative to the postponement of any final measures in the case of Dr. Russell Wilson, the American captured with a fillibustering party near Bluefields, until all the rights which he has under the law have been invoked. Furthermore, President Zelaya showed the confidence he felt in his minister here by indicating his purpose to be bound in the final disposition of Wilson's case by the minister's recommendation.

DELAYED TWO WEEKS

Highland Company Hearing In Condemnation Is Continued.

Arranged By Request of Interests That Will Be Affected.

Will Confer With Company and Agreement May Be Reached.

The application of the Highland Canal & Power company for the appointment of commissioners to condemn lands which it desires for the use of the water power and canal system which it is about to construct, came before the court for a hearing this morning. In accordance with an agreement reached at the request of several interests that are affected an adjournment of two weeks was taken, with the provision that all appearances on the part of property owners must be filed within a week.

The first request for a continuance of the case came from the railroad companies that are interested. These are the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Omaha roads. The pipe lines of the company will pass under their tracks in the yards in Duluth near Garfield avenue. The engineers of the railroads and of the company have had a conference and went over the plans, when the result that an understanding was practically reached. The railroads requested a short continuance that the agreements may be put in writing. This was acceded to.

Yesterday afternoon another request for a continuance for a short period came from the Cloquet interests. Attorneys H. Oldenburg and W. B. Phelps, R. M. Weyerhauser, Mr. Payne and S. S. Johnson and others held a conference with the officials of the Highland Canal & Power company and their attorneys and went over a complete and careful discussion of the company's plans, and the effect it will have on interests at Cloquet. A request was likewise made by them that the matter of condemnation be delayed for a short period that a more thorough consideration of the matter be had.

The Highland company officials readily acceded to this, for it will, of course, be much to their advantage to effect an amiacable adjustment and avoid the long delay of condemnation proceedings if it is possible. There is said to be much reason for believing that this can be done.

If the company could arrange for getting its lands without the trouble of going through condemnation proceedings, it would save two or three months' time and accomplish a great deal more this summer than it has been supposed could be.

The Brooks-Scanlon interests are also involved, and they, too, are conferring with the company with a view to an amiacable adjustment of the situation.

A number of attorneys were present at the hearing representing different property interests.

Washington, July 26.—A general order has been issued by Gen. Miles, commanding the army, announcing the award of medals of honor and certificates of merit to officers and enlisted men for specially meritorious service.

The awards cover a period beginning with the civil war and extending to last winter and are in addition to a list published two years ago, when the first awards were announced. In the present lost are the names of Gen. Horace Porter and Col. Albert L. Mills, superintendent of the military academy, both of whom are given medals for acts of bravery, the former at Atlanta and the latter at Santiago. The medal honor list in part is as follows: Frederick Funston, brigadier general, U. S. A.; John A. Logan, Thirty-third Infantry, U. S. V. (deceased).

FIRE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Provision Company's Building Was Destroyed.

Minneapolis, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minneapolis Provision company's building in Third street between Hennepin and Nicollet avenues was damaged by fire at 12:30 this morning. Loss $20,000. The fire started in the basement, while the watchman was at lunch. A Western Union messenger boy, noticing the smoke pouring out of the windows, turned in the alarm.

The basement is divided into partitions, and the only way to get at it was to cut holes in the floor above.

While Fire Marshal Hill was engaged in this work he fell unconscious, overcome by the smoke. He was cared for by his fellow-firemen and was later resuscitated.

James Burns, manager of the Minneapolis Produce company, estimates the loss to building and stock as between $15,000 and $20,000. Everything is insured. An unusually large stock of provisions was in the building at the time of the fire.

MULLAH'S FORCES

Badly Routed By Col. Cobbe and Many Killed.

Aden, Arabia, July 26.—The British expeditionary force operating against the Mad Mullah in East Africa, after scouting northeast of Damotover, an absolutely waterless region, learned the general direction of the Mullah's forces and his prisoners, and sent off a mounted column under Col. Cobbe, which, after an 80-mile chase across the desert, came in contact with the tribesmen, killed 150 of them and captured 4000 camels and 12,000 sheep. The British had eight men killed and four wounded.

ASPHALT WILL WIN

City Officials Will Recommend It For East Superior Street.

The Bituminous Macadam Bids Prove Very Disappointing.

Probably Kills Chances For Bituminous Macadam In Duluth.

If East Superior street is paved, the material will be Trinidad sheet asphalt.

The city officers now believe it is a poor paving at best and expect it to be the rankest kind of a failure, but acceptance of the asphalt bid will be recommended. There is no alternative.

It was the expectation that the bid of Warren Bros., of Boston, for paving with bituminous macadam would be low enough to outweigh the petition for asphalt.

The macadam bid was $8,000 above the estimate of the city engineer and only a little over $2,000 less than asphalt, where it was expected to be from $10,000 to $12,000 less.

The city officers are of the impression that the Boston concern considered it had a sure thing and put its prices up accordingly.

They will now demonstrate that banking on a sure thing is an unerring method in which to select a losing proposition.

Even Mayor Hugo who is strongly in favor of macadam pavements, said this morning that it looked as if there was something wrong with the paving bids and expressed the opinion that in view of the bids and the precedence of petitions the city would probably have to give the contract to an asphalt concern.

If the asphalt is put down, it is confidently expected that it will have the general appearance of a sieve within a year or two. The Barber company will have to sign a ten-year guarantee before the city will award the contract, but a guarantee does not make a good paving any more than fire insurance prevents a man's house from burning down.

The bid of the Warren Brothers' company probably kills all chances for introducing bituminous macadam in Duluth. It may even knock out the First avenue west improvement.

City Engineer Patton, who has a thorough kuowledge of macadam paving and the cost of materials to be used in its manufacture, estimated that First avenue west between First street and Cascade park could be paved for $11,809, while the bid of the Warren Brothers company was $14,252.

This probably means that the First avenue west proposition will either be abandoned or petitions for some cheaper paving will be circulated in the place of the bituminous macadam petition.

Although the board of public works will report favorably on paving East Superior street under the lowest asphalt bid, there is nothing definite as to whether or not the paving contract can be let.

The balance in the permanent revolving fund is shy just $22,896 of the amount required for the asphalt paving. It is said that prominent citizens that have petitioned for asphalt will agree to make up this deficiency in order that the work may go ahead, and unless they do, the city officials will be restrained from taking any further steps in the matter.

PARALYZED.

Masterman, formerly of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment, was struck by lightning last evening in the office of the Hersey mill. He was knocked down and remained unconscious for a time. His leg is paralyzed as a result. H. D. Campbell, who was in the office was also affected.

Miss Nora Lee, a daughter of A. M. Lee, was knocked senseless by a bolt of lightning while using a curling iron at her home. The cupola on the house was knocked off. The curling iron in the hand of the young lady had the handle split off. She fell unconscious and was hysterical all night. Her right arm is paralyzed.

DEATH LIST.

New York, July 26.—Col. John H. Lord, for thirty years a recluse at Rio, Pa., a mountain settlement, near Port Jarvis, N. Y., is dead at the age of 85. Nearly fifty years ago Col. He was an uncle by marriage of the late President Benjamin Harrison's first wife and a blood uncle of Harrison's widow.

DIFFERENCE

Of Opinion On the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons Fight.

San Francisco, July 26.—There is a wide difference of opinion in this city as to the character of last night's fight between Jeffries and Fitzsimmons. The charge that the fight was a fake and that it had been prearranged for Fitz to go out in the eighth round does not meet with general belief, although there is no doubt that Mayor Schmitz was warned that the fight was fixed.

Even those who charge fraud admit that it was a magnificent fight while it lasted. Fitzsimmons was hitting Jeffries almost at will, but while his blows cut and stung, they did not seriously injure the big champion.

Fitzsimmons when seen this morning was much distressed at the talk of fakes and declared he had fought his best, but could not stand Jeff's terrific body blows.

Jeff also denied that the fight was fixed. He said Fitz had given him the hardest fight he ever had and that they were good honest punches.

PINE IN SOLWAY

Peculiar Method of Assessment Found By the Board.

Lumber Companies Supposed to Pay Taxes on the Pine.

Assessor Evidently Desired to Relieve Settlers From Payment.

The board of equalization is always on the lookout for something unusual, but the "feature de resistance" came this morning when it was discovered that the assessor for the town of Solway had omitted the small item of $65,680 worth of standing pine in this territory.

The assessor is J. F. Gaus and his reason for not placing the valuation of the pine upon the assessment roll was because he did not know the owners, or if he did, he was certain that they would not pay for it.

The difficulty came when a protest was received from B. E. Wells, who objected to having his cut-over land in Solway assessed $5 an acre, the same figure put upon land which was valuable for its pine. It was then brought out that Gaus had not assessed any of the pine. He stated that it had been purchased by the lumber companies while the land itself was owned by the settlers. He was a little afraid lest the pine should be assessed to the settlers, a woman placed a pretty fair valuation, $5 an acre, upon all the land, whether it was rich in pine or contained not a thousand feet. Upon questioning Gaus, he stated that there were about 33,000,000 feet of pine there and furthermore that $5 a thousand was a fair figure of valuation.

County Auditor Halden was rather indignant to think that the pine had not been placed upon the books and introduced a resolution calling upon Assessor Gaus to complete his work, or in other words to return and assess the town over again. He replied he would but he should receive more pay. During his remarks he said that he had obtained the valuation of the pine in the different sections and had them written down in the back of the book. A search was made and on a single sheet of paper were found the valuations placed upon the pine—just what the board sought.

The result is that Gaus will not have to assess the town over again and the pine will be placed on the books. The valuation of the acres outside of the pine will probably be fixed at $5 on improved farming land and $3 for other lands.

The pine is owned by the Northern Lumber company, the Weyerhaeuser Lumber corporation, which purchased it from the Northern Pacific Railroad company, the settlers getting only the land.

Last year, the assessor explained, the farmers of Solway township paid all the taxes, expected that the Weyerhaeusers would reimburse them for what they had paid for the taxes on the pine.

The Weyerhaeusers could not see them, however, so this year they assessed the lands regardless of the timber, and the assessor made a list of the pine in the back of the book, which was overlooked when the board summoned the assessors to appear and explain the mystery.

ESTIMATES

Furnished By Captain Gaillard For Lake Superior District.

Washington, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of Capt. D. D. Gaillard, in charge of the Lake Superior district, has been received at the office of the chief of engineers. His recommendations and estimates of the appropriations required for the fiscal year of 1904 are as follows:

For the improvement of Duluth-Superior harbor, including dredging and the completion of the canal piers at the Superior entry, $670,000.

For the Ashland, Wis., harbor, $80,000.

For the Marquette, Mich., harbor, extension of concrete breakwater, etc., $80,000.

For the harbor of refuge at Grand Marais, Mich., $83,401.

CASTRO

Returned to Caracas Without Firing a Single Shot.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, July 26.—President Castro of Venezuela has returned to Caracas from Barcelona owing to the impossibility for him with his army of 3000 men to attack the revolutionists waiting for him, entrenched at Argua, a capital of the state of Guzeman Blanco. He left without firing a single shot notwithstanding his proclamation in which he would fight one against ten. The moral effect produced by his retreat is disastrous to the government and gives an idea of the strength of the revolution, which latterly has spread towards the center of Venezuela.

The revolutionists are at Chaguaranas on their way to Orituco, sixty miles from Caracas. President Castro's new plan is to attack the revolutionists near Valencia, where they are assembling from all directions. The government of President Castro cannot hold out much longer. Funds are needed and forced loans are being resorted to.

FED GYPSY

Thereby the Mystery of Woman's Birth Was Solved.

Cincinnati, July 26.—There was a joyful meeting at the Pennsylvania depot as the train from Columbus, Ohio, rolled in, and a brother clasped in his arms a sister whom he had not seen since the days of his infancy, over twenty years ago.

That truth is stranger than fiction is exemplified in the strange manner in which Miss Emma Benton, of Walnut Hills, found her brother, Charles A. Reames, of West Mansfield, for a fortune teller, wearied and hungry, figures in the romance, and the happy reunion to take place is indirectly the result of advice she gave the young woman.

Twenty years ago Charles Benton was divorced from his wife, formerly Ada Parker, in this city. Mrs. Benton was given the custody of two daughters, the father taking charge of the son. The mother, unable to care for her children, placed them in St. Joseph's home in this city, and the father dying soon after, the son was taken in at the Children's home.

The mother passed away shortly after the death of the youngest daughter, and Emma Benton was left practically alone, for she knew not what had become of her brother.

In the meanwhile the boy had been adopted by Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Reames, a wealthy couple of Marysville, Ohio, and became known as Charles Reames.

The girl Emma, when she grew up, was sent out in service in Indiana and was compelled to do common drudgery. Tiring of her life and concluding to secure a position in this city, she came here and engaged as a servant in the home of Robert A. Dykins, a broker, at McMillan street and Highland avenue, Mount Auburn.

For years she had eagerly awaited news of her brother, but finally gave up in despair. Some days since a fortune teller, a woman of the rags, appeared at a rear door and begged for food, with which she was provided. When she had appeased her hunger Miss Benton laughingly proposed that the woman tell her fortune.

The gypsy agreed, and Miss Benton asked the question ever uppermost in her mind, "Where is my brother?" The gypsy then informed her that her brother was in good circumstances, and that she (Miss Benton) had wealthy relatives living in this city.

"Search the records in the health office and you will find facts to startle you and you will soon meet your brother," was the gypsy's answer.

Miss Benton went to the health office, the attaches were at once interested and an investigation was started that has been going on for the past three weeks. Families by the name of Benton in this city interested themselves, data was looked up and proof established that Harry Benton of Ada street is an uncle of the young woman.

Four aunts were found—Mrs. Weigheil, wife of M. V. B. Weigheil, of the county auditor's office; Mrs. Harry Stokes, of Norwood; Mrs. Thomas Kent, of Symmes street, and one who resides in Chicago.

But the young woman's fondest hope was realized when the data was produced that showed that Charles A. Reames, of West Mansfield, Ohio, formerly Charles Benton, was her long-lost brother. She at once communicated with Mr. Reames.

LICENSE

Was Lost and the Wedding Ceremony Was Postponed.

St. Louis, July 26.—Richard J. Fitzpatrick and Miss Minnie Willman went to Clayton to be married, but because of the carelessness or nervousness of Fitzpatrick, or mayhap, through the delirium of his joy, they were not.

They were a little late, to begin with, and did not get on the ground until nearly midnight. They hunted up Marriage License Clerk Wetzel and shouted him out of bed. Being a gracious person and sympathetic, he issued the license and told the pair how to find the Presbyterian parsonage.

They found, Fitzpatrick rang the bell so long and so loudly that the Rev. Walter Langtry came down at last in dressing gown and slippers to see what it was all about.

Mr. Langtry, in his desire to uphold the reputation of Gretna Green, consented to marry them, and ushered them into his parlor. He was about to perform the ceremony when he bethought himself of the necessary marriage license. Fitzpatrick went confidently into his pocket for the document, but it was not there. He searched himself industriously, but no license. It was lost.

The clergyman was very sorry, but he could not marry without the license, and advised Fitzpatrick to go to Mr. Wetzel and get a duplicate.

Mr. Wetzel, aroused for the second time from his slumbers, told Fitzpatrick to go and look for the license he had lost, and if he could not find it to return in the daytime and he would issue a certificate.

Fitzpatrick and Miss Weliman went back to the parsonage, where they arrived after 2 o'clock, but the clergyman could do nothing for them until they produced a license.

The young woman insisted upon looking for the license, and they searched for it until 7:30 o'clock, when they again went to Mr. Wetzel's house. He told them to go to his office after it opened.

Fitzpatrick and Miss Weliman did not again apply for the license.

IN BOX CAR.

Twentieth Century Girl Rode Over Six Hundred Miles.

Kansas City, Mo., July 26.—Eva Beck, 18 years of age, of Van Buren, Ark., is a distinguished type, an up-to-date twentieth century girl. Eva rode from Van Buren to Kansas City, about 600 miles, in a box car. Eva was not the only plucky girl in Van Buren. She had a friend who, like herself, desired to come to Kansas City, but did not propose that any railroad corporation should profit thereby.

All went well during the fore part of the journey. Tuesday was a long, wearisome day and the wayfarers were glad enough to sleep when night came. The interior of the car naturally was pitch dark and the girls felt no hesitancy in removing their clothing in response to the demands of the high temperature. Eva slept as soundly as if she had been in a Pullman. When she awoke yesterday the sun was well up and one of the car doors was open. To her surprise she discovered that her companion of the night before had disappeared. Then to her utter dismay she found that her own wardrobe was missing.

Trainmen who were at work in the Sheffield yards about noon saw a strange sight, white handkerchief waving furiously, a human hand, and just the suggestion of an arm were visible as they were extended out the door of the box car. Then a head appeared just for an instant, and a woman's plaintive appeal for aid was heard. To one of the trainmen she told her story. He had a wife and sisters at home. Garments of many shapes and sizes were secured, and after much "trying on" the figure of a woman fully clad emerged from the car.

The girl is now in charge of the police matron.

A FAKE.

Mayor Schmitz Convinced That Big Fight Was Pre-Arranged.

San Francisco, July 26.—When seen at his office today, Mayor Schmitz was very emphatic in his assertion that should he be convinced after a thorough investigation that last night's contest between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries was a pre-arranged affair, he would do all in his power to prohibit further prize fights in this city. Mayor Schmitz has been very much disgusted with many of the recent fights that have taken place in this city. It is expected that the fighting game in this city will be forever killed should conclusive evidence be adduced to prove the assertion of certain persons who are supposed to be well informed on the matter that the fight between Fitzsimmons and Jeffries was a fake.

Mayor Schmitz has given out the following statement for publication:

"From the information I have received I am forced to believe that this exhibition is no better than the previous ones we have had, namely, the Jeffries-Ruhlin and Gans-McFadden and others, and it will do much toward discouraging the sport in this city. In fact, unless some indubitable evidence is produced to disprove the information furnished me by the Examiner, I shall hereafter have to prohibit all such professional 'fight' exhibitions. (Signed.)

"E. E. SCHMITZ,
"Mayor of San Francisco."

AT THE HOTELS

"I am very glad indeed that the county authorities handled the assessment of the iron mines so satisfactorily," said State Auditor R. C. Dunn at the St. Louis this morning. "It is much better all around to have it handled here than to compel the state board to make the proper assessment. For one thing, if a low assessment were made here, and the state board took a turn at it and raised it all around, it would make a large amount of work for the county auditor's office in changing the assessments on the books. Now the probabilities are that there will be no change whatever, and considerable work will be saved. That is not the only consideration, by any means. The assessment shows that such matters can be handled satisfactorily here, and that St. Louis county has officers that have the judgment, courage and backbone to make a proper assessment of the iron mines. It is a handsome reply to the charges that have been made in other parts of the state that this county is corporation-ridden.

"I am going to have some land sales this fall and I find in looking over the lists that almost all of it is in territory tributary to Duluth. State lands are going at a gratifying rate, and all of our sales of late have been very successful. The supply of state lands is running lower every year, and prices are running higher."

WELBY RESIGNS.

Denver, July 26.—A. E. Welby has resigned as general superintendent of the Rio Grande Western road, effective Aug. 1, and will be succeeded by Joseph H. Young, a grandson of Brigham Young, who served for ten years as superintendent of the Utah division of the Oregon Short Line.

NOT ON SIX.

Priest Induced Girl Not to Marry Poor Clerk.

New York, July 26.—Father McCarren, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, at Aberdeen street and Broadway, Brooklyn, does not believe that a young man who earns only $6 a week should get married, and as a result of the advice which he gave on the subject to Miss Louise Sweet, one of his parishioners, the young woman broke her engagement, disappointed many friends and gave the neighborhood gossips a chance to talk of the wedding that did not take place.

Miss Sweet is a handsome young woman and had many admirers. With her mother, who is a widow, she lived until a few days ago in a 3-story brick house at 151 Bushwick avenue. The house is now closed and mother and daughter are visiting in Greene county, New York.

Miss Sweet several months ago became acquainted with a dapper young man, a possessor of an easy flow of language, and a stylish dresser. He told Miss Sweet that his folks, who were wealthy, lived in Boston, where his father was in business.

The name of the young man could not be learned, the pastor refusing to divulge it. The acquaintance of the young couple ripened into love and plans were made for a wedding. No objection was made to the young man by the mother of the prospective bride. After the announcement of the approaching marriage was made to friends it was made public from the altar of the church by Father McCarren.

When the day arrived for the wedding the friends of the young people assembled at the church and after waiting some time were surprised at the non-appearance of the pair. No explanation was given from the home of the bride, and the next day the home of Mrs. Sweet was closed.

Father McCarren when seen was asked regarding the marriage that did not take place, admitted that he had investigated the antecedents of the young man and found that the latter had told many things to the young woman about himself that were not true. Also that at the present time the bridegroom was earning $6 a week as a clerk. In view of the latter fact, the priest did not think it advisable to perform the ceremony, and after he had explained all the facts to Miss Sweet the latter took the same view, with the result that the young woman is still single.

In speaking of the case the priest said: "Six dollars a week is entirely insufficient to support a wife. Many a young woman is deceived in that way. Everybody knows that in a Catholic church a marriage ceremony means a union for life. Miss Sweet would have regretted taking the step for all the days of her life, but too late to remedy it."

MACKAY

Will Make Arrangements For His Father's Funeral.

New York, July 26.—Clarence H. Mackay will arrive in London this morning, when arrangements for the funeral of the late John W. Mackay will be completed, says a London dispatch to the Herald. Nothing has been done pending his arrival. Quantities of the most beautiful wreaths continue to arrive at Carleton House Terrace, to be placed in the "Chapel Ardente," where the body lies in state.

Mrs. Mackay is a little better now. She has been able to see one or two of her very intimate friends, but she is in very great grief. Mrs. Mackay fully intends accompanying her husband's body across the Atlantic, but the doctors will not hear of her attempting this very trying voyage just at present, for she is not at all well. They dread such an undertaking for several weeks.

RAPIDLY CLEARING

Anthracite Coal Is Rapidly Disappearing From the Docks.

September 1 Will See None Left at Head of Lakes.

None Received Since Early In May and None Is Expected.

Sept. 1 will find the coal docks at the head of the lakes swept clean of anthracite coal if shipments keep up at their present rate and the coal strike is not ended.

Even if the strike is ended between now and that date, there is a large shortage in the East that must be supplied before the West gets any considerable supply.

There are now about 50,00 tons of hard coal on the docks of Duluth and Superior, and under normal conditions there should be over 200,000 tons, with vessels constantly arriving to fill up the vacancy left by the shipments into the interior.

This is the opinion of leading coal men of Duluth, and the outlook is not considered as at all encouraging. The strike is still in progress, with no signs of an end, and no hard coal has been received at head of the lake docks since early in May. There has been a constant drain upon them ever since, of course, to supply the demands of the Northwest, and that drain is still in progress.

"There will be no receipts," said D. B. Smith, of the Ohio Coal company, yesterday, "until the strike is over. There are no stocks anywhere to amount to anything. The handling of coal is a good deal like the handing of ore, which goes almost directly from the cars to the vessels, only the iron mines have stockpiles and the coal mines do not. There are small supplies at Buffalo and some other lake ports, but, like our own, they are small and dwindling daily."

Before the docks give out there will be trouble regarding sizes. One size will give out sooner than the others, and there will be several weeks before the supplies are exhausted, when there will be a great skirmishing around between dealers to fill out orders with the different sizes. There is already considerable irregularity on this point, some sizes being more scarce than others.

There are over four months of navigation left, but there is a gap of over two months during which there have been no receipts to be filled when the coal starts again. Should the strike last until the close of navigation coal would have to be brought in by rail, which means appalling prices.

MUST ACT.

To Get Paper Box Manufactory Quick Action Is Necessary.

The plan to establish a paper box manufactory at the West End is still receiving the attention of the Business Men's club, and it was discussed at some length last evening. Inquiry by members of the club among the various stores and industries about the head of the lakes develops the fact that an immense amount of paper boxes is used here every year, a quantity that would warrant the establishment of a factory here to supply the trade.

The scheme has attractions to people who are figuring on starting a factory in some other part of the city, and the club, if it secures the institution to the West End, must act quickly.

The matter has been placed in the hands of a committee that will investigate to find out the cost of establishing a plant and see if enough capital can be interested in it.

Relative to the street railway service in the West End, the street railway company has assured members of the club that the Lenawold street subway will not take so long a time in construction as has been expected, and that the regular traffic to West Duluth will be resumed on West Superior street just as quickly as possible. Secretary Haven said that the tunnel would be completed inside of two months, and the business men will have to stand it that long.

NEGROES MEET.

New Orleans, July 26.—A mass meeting of the leading negroes of New Orleans was held last night for the purpose of opposing the enforcement of the law providing separate street cars for whites and blacks. The meeting determined to organize a stock company to run vehicles throughout the city for the exclusive use of colored people.

SERVING NOTICES TO SCHOOLS.

Paris, July 25.—The serving of official notices closing the unauthorized religious schools, began this morning and was carried out so far as Paris was concerned without any disturbance. At Mauvaux, department Du Nordie, the expulsion of the sisters led to a riot in which two persons were arrested. A police commissary and ten rioters were injured.

AT WEST DULUTH

The Republicans of West Duluth are reluctant to give up the idea that the office of register of deeds for the next term should be filled with a West Duluth man and for that reason they are waiting anxiously for some West Duluth Republican to announce his candidacy for the nomination.

Now that Register of Deeds Lofgren has announced his intention of staying out of the race for the nomination, there is a clear field, but the strength that M. C. Palmer, former mayor of Virginia, is said to show, is believed to have had something to do in keeping West Duluth candidate on the outside thus far.

The sentiment is growing, however, that West Duluth should have a candidate for the nomination, and that he should easily secure the nomination, for the reason that this part of the city is entitled to the same, no other West Duluth candidate having yet been put forward for a county office. One prominent Republican said this morning that there are a number of good men in this part of the city that are willing to be candidates, but they do not believe the time yet ripe to announce their candidacy, prefering to wait a little longer and see what the situation develops.

GOING TO CLOQUET.

The Leading Stars ball team of West Duluth will leave on an early train tomorrow moning for Cloquet, where it will cross bats with the team of that city. The return trip will be made in the afternoon. Quite a large delegation of West Duluth sports are planning on accompanying the team on this trip. Several weeks ago the Leading Stars played in Cloquet and were defeated by a score of 14 to 11, but Manager Ultican says that the team is very much stronger now than on the former trip and that the Cloquet team has no license to beat it. The battery for the Leading Stars will be Larson and Busky. Larson is said to be developing rapidly into a speedy and puzzling twirler, and so far this season has given very few good hits.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

Daniel Jolley, who is employed at the Merrill & Ring fill, lost two fingers on the slab saw about 4 o'clock this morning. Mr. Jolley had reached over to pull in a slab when his foot pressed down the lever connecting the slab saw and it sprang up, catching the thrid and fourth fingers of his left hand and severing them until they hung only by the skin.

RED MEN'S PICNIC.

The Red Men of West Duluth have appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual picnic which will be held in the near future. The time and place have not been definitely decided on, but it is promised that the affair will be larger and more interesting than any previous picnics by the organizations.

A. O. U. W. PICNIC.

West Duluth members of the A. O. U. W. are planning for the annual picnic of the order, which will occur in Lincoln park Aug. 20 this year. The picnic will differ from previous affairs for the reason that it will be a joint celebration of all the United Workmen lodges at the head of the lakes, including Duluth and West Superior.

HAS A RELIC.

Harry Lanners is exhibiting an interesting relic which he brought back with him a few days ago from Devils Lake, N. D. It is an old-style Colt revolver that was picked up on the old Indian battleground near Fort Totten, where Chief Little Crow's son was killed. The weapon bears the marks of its age and the exposure.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The evangelistic services that have been held during the past week in a tent in this part of the city will come to an end tomorrow evening. The attendance every night of the week has been quite large.

It is understood that the new Wieland & Wade building will be completed so that the hall can be used for an opening dance about Aug. 22.

Mrs. C. C. Salter returned this morning from a visit on the range.

Cullen Brown will leave this evening for a fishing trip at Caribou lake.

Miss Nettie Juveland returned this morning from a few weeks' visit at Pacific coast points.

Mrs. F. C. Hollenbeck of Brainerd, Minn., is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Nelson, of Redruth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Lund will leave tomorrow for a short visit with Mr. Lund's sister at Hayward, Wis.

Messrs. Moseman and Fancett will leave this evening on a piscatorial excursion.

John Rockwell and family, who recently settled at Highland, will remove next week to Duluth.

Take steamer Mary Mann tomorrow from Sixty-first avenue west for policemen's picnic, Zenith park.

Matt Crothers expects to leave in a few days for Virginia, where he has a position as filer in a sawmill.

Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock Rev. Mr. Lowrie of the Presbyterian church will give an interpretation of the parable of the tares, Matthew 13:24-30. Sunday school at 12 o'clock; Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m. There will be no evening service. All are invited to attend the tent meeting.

Take steamer Mary Mann tomorrow from Sixty-first avenue west for policemen's picnic, Zenith park.

Murray Bros. & Co. 521 Fifty-fifth avenue west, can furnish you ice cream and dairy products by wholesale and retail. Open seven days in the week.

Filiatrault, undertaker, West Duluth.

Evangelist Anna Smith will close the tent meetings Sunday evening. These meetings for the past two weks have been very successful, the tent being crowded every night. The Duluth Bethel association will move the tent to Superior and Twenty-first streets, and Miss Smith will begin the first service in that locality, Wednesday evening next.

DIVISION ABOLISHED.

New York, July 26.—By vote of the executive committee of the League of American Wheelmen the once powerful New Jersey division of the organization has been abolished. It is believed to foreshadow a general shakeup of the league. In other states where apathetic officers retain titles like measures are anticipated, the national officers taking charge until aggressive men shall have been chosen.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT.

Whenever a person had in contemplation a trip on a railroad in the days gone by, many discomforts incident to the journey were anticipated. As time went on, however, the facilities for transportation were greatly improved until, at the present time, the contemplative passenger looks forward to this tour with much pleasure. This is particularly true when the route chosen is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, and the train to be used the Pioneer Limited running daily via that line between the Twin Cities, Milwaukee and Chicago—the famous train of the world.

LOUD IS ROASTED

President of Letter Carriers' Association Makes Pointed Statements.

Arraigns the Representative In the Most Caustic Language.

His Opposition to Reclassifying Bill Cause of Attack.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. C. Keller, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, has prepared for publication in the August number of the Postal Record a letter, in which he arraigns in the most caustic language the statements made by Representative Loud of California, chairman of the house committee on postoffices and post roads, in opposing the bill re-classifying the letter carriers. In the dying days of the last congress Mr. Loud, in a most vehement speech, scored the association for its efforts to secure increased pay for its members, and asserted that they were resorting to lobbying methods in order to reach the goal of their hopes. In reply to Mr. Loud on this point the lie is passed, Mr. Keller branding as absolutely false the representative's declaration that the carriers were using money to lobby their bill through congress. "Mr. Loud states," pursued Mr. Keller in his article, "that an offer to return money collected for this purpose was made, but that some of the branches refused to accept the return of that money, and it still lies subject to call.' This statement is false from beginning to end, and I doubt if such a statement would ever be made, or have been made were it possible for a carrier to personally answer such an attack on the floor. The carriers of the country have no fund, either direct or indirect, with which to purchase their increase in salary, or any other legislation. Every carrier knows that, and I believe Mr. Loud knows it—at least he seems to know everything pertaining to the carrier's private as well as public life."

Mr. Loud's deviation from the subject under consideration, when the general deficiency appropriation bill was before the house, and his meanderings into a discussion of the postal service as well as the salaries of letter carriers, according to Mr. Keller, was a parliamentary ruse on the Western congressman's part to create a political capital. Mr. Keller speaks of a conversation he had with Mr. Loud on the bill, and the latter's expressions of violent opposition to the measure. Therefore, the president of the association has abandoned all hope of fair play at the hands of Mr. Loud, and attacks him for recommending that the carriers be burdened with increased Sunday work. In a technical discussion of the onerous duties of letter carriers and their substitutes, Mr. Keller presents many facts and figures to prove the fallacy of Mr. Loud's argument that the men in gray are well and suddlently paid. In a general analysis of Mr. Loud's last speech in the house on the letter carriers' bill, Mr. Keller characterizes it as a most remarkable effort, and uses some very plain language in refuting the charges it contains. "It is a remarkable speech," says Mr. Keller sarcastically; "remarkable for its inaccuracies as well as its misrepresentations," and after dismissing considerable of it as unworthy of consideration, he dwells with emphasis on those parts of it in which in his opinion Mr. Loud blackens the character of the letter carriers in a distortion of facts and masquerade of language. "The portion of this speech," explains Mr. Keller, "to which I take particular exception is that in which Mr. Loud, by inference, seeks to brand the carriers of the country as a lot of criminals. How can pass over his so-called statistical enumerations; we could even respect the man for his consistent opposiiton to any measure which he considers wrong in principle, but we do reserve the right to protest against the attacks made upon the integrity of the letter carriers, especially when that attack is made on the floor of the house in a manner and under conditions which will not permit those attacked to answer the charges against them."

In conclusion, Mr. Keller says: "One thing, however, is certain. No attempts to create dissensions in the ranks of the carriers will ever meet with success. The carriers have met every condition imposed upon them by presidential or departmental orders. They ask for an increase of pay as a matter of right and justice. They want it so that they may live, feed and clothe themselves in the manner expected of them, but they want to get it honestly, and in striving for better conditions they will never be led to abuse either the postoffice clerks or the railway mail clerks. We believe that these deserving representatives of the postal service are entitled to better conditions, and, like the carriers, should get them as a matter of right and justice."

OSTEOPATHY

Becoming Very Popular, People Have Been Posting Themselves.

Drs. A. W. and W. A. McClaran, 512, 513 and 514 Torrey building, this city, have made the practice a great success. They have cured a great many prominent people here of disease after other physicians have failed. The practice of osteopathy consists principally of adjusting the machinery of the body so that the blood and nerve forces may supply the different organs of the body without being obstructed. It is an established fact that when there is a free and complete and unobstructed circulation of blood and nerve waive in the human system there can be no disease, and on the other hand, should there be obstruction to any nerve which would impede its action, then the organ which that nerve supplies must lie in a dormant condition for want of nerve force, hence disease will follow; also should there be a contracted muscle pressing on some important artery or vein, shutting off the supply of blood to the parts supplied by it, then those parts will become diseased. It is the osteopaths' business to remove these causes of disease and re-establish a normal condition, and health will follow. We advise all who are afflicted with disease to go to these doctors and be cured.

If you are afflicted with the drug habit, stop in and go to them and receive natural, scientific treatment. Drs. A. W. and W. G. McClaran, 512, 513 and 514 Torrey building, Duluth, New phone 1051.

FOUR SHIPS

Will Be Constructed For New British Steamship Company.

Montreal, July 26.—Discussing the Canadian Pacific railroad tender for the fast Atlantic steamship service to be subsidized by the British and Canadian governments to the extent of $1,000,000 per annum, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the president of the company, stated that the plans contemplated the construction of four twenty-knot passenger steamers, and ten or eleven 10,000-ton cargo boats with a speed of fifteen knots. Other railway companies, he said, would be placed on as equally favorable position as the Canadian Pacific as regard traffic, etc.

AMONG BRIGANDS

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the Missionary, Tells of Her Captivity.

Six Long Months With Fear of Death Ahead of Them.

A Great Work to Be Done In That Country.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary captured last fall by Macedonian brigands, and whose six months' captivity was a shock felt throughout the entire civilized world, lectured at the Presbyterian church last evening.

Sixty thousand dollars the people of this country paid for her release and that of her companion, Mrs. Tsilka.

Only a small audience greeted Miss Stone last evening. That there were not more present was due to the fact that the public had scarcely heard of her coming. Not a mention of the event had been made up to a couple of days previous to the date of the lecture, and the advertising was very meagre.

Miss Stone, whose name last fall was on every Christian man and woman's lips after her capture had been sent out broadcast over the world, is a woman of character, a person of strong determination. She has a womanly face with pleasing features. She was gowned in plain black with a tie of flimsy white material about her neck. She talks rapidly with the mannerisms in her speech of an elocutionist. Her address last evening was most interesting as she brought out the details of her capture, those long months of captivity and her subsequent release.

Rev. T. H. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church introduced the speaker and at the close of his brief remarks suggested that a salute be given Miss Stone. When she arose a little subdued handclapping and a fluttering of ladies' handkerchiefs greeted her.

"When I was captured on that eventful September morning," said Miss Stone, "I was not an untried worker. For over twenty years I had done missionary work in that country and had come to feel as though I knew of the dangers of the country and that I was able to evade them. Since 1898 my work had been entirely in Macedonia and the field duties called for a great deal of traveling. The territory through which I had to travel was terrorized by brigands, still I had a great desire to go there. I had never been molested, yet on one occasion highwaymen stole two horses that belonged to members of our party. I thought further that brigands would not be burdened by women and for that reason on many occasions I had taken work which entailed special risk.

"It was Sept. 3, of last year, a beautiful autumn morning, that our party started out to traverse through the dangerous territory of Macedonia. We had taken every precaution. We were armed with passports from the Turkish government, and in addition we had gotten together the largest party possible that we might frighten off any intruders. In addition we chose Tuesday as the day for making the journey. On that day the merchants were passing over the roads going from one town to another. The scenery which we passed on the way was gorgeous. If ever the country is pacified enough to admit travelers, I hope that many Americans will visit there. The trees are most beautiful, the verdure grand. We had left the last Turkish guardhouse behind us and having come upon a green sward someone suggested that we have lunch. During that period of rest we discovered that our oldest Bible woman was very ill. Her son was in the party, but when we resumed our journey she seemed well enough to travel and she was assisted to her horse.

"We had gone some distance and reached some cliffs, which I had passed many, many times before, when I heard a disturbance in front of me. The old Bible woman who was leading turned her horse around and I peered ahead through a clump of bushes, where I could see the muzzle of a musket. A man hurried up to the old woman and was in the act of dragging her from her horse when I called out for him to stop as she was a sick woman. I had not noticed the dark forms that were creeping up around me. I told these swarthy, treacherous-looking, highwaymen to give us time and we would dismount. Peter the son of the old religious worker who was ill, sprang to his mother's side and assisted her from her horse. The brigands came up close to us, but I didn't believe they would harm an American woman. But I had others to look after. There were a number of young girls in the party and I had made myself responsible to their mothers for their safety. I knew, too, the dangers to young girls who fell into the hands of the brigands of that country.

"While we were huddled together a lone traveler came along the same route. Seeing the outlaws about us he spurred his horse and started away on a gallop. Two of the band followed. The traveler shot at them with his revolver and that shooting resulted in his death. He was captured shortly, knocked off of his horse and dragged up to the place where we sat. Blood was streaming from his face, his hands were bound behind his back. Without a word of adieu the captors took him into a clump of bushes and from the blood curdling cries that reached our ears we knew that one dagger thrust after another was being stuck into his body. Soon the crying ceased and his life had gone out.

"Mr. Tsilka was in the party and being armed would have engaged in conflict with the bandits had not the girls of the party prayed and entreated that he desist. Soon a bandit beckoned for me to follow him and I did so. Mrs. Tsilka received similar orders. It was evident that we were to be torn away from our party. We were to be the captives. Friends, you cannot imagine the thoughts of anguish that filled my breast at that time. We were half dragged, half carried up a steep hill until we came to a place where two horses were in waiting. Then it was a case of travel in the night time and rest during the day. Night after night we repented what had taken place the night previous until we were almost utterly exhausted.

"After some few days I asked one of the brigands what they had captured us women for. I told them we had no money, but he explained briefly that that was what they wanted. After we had reached a stopping place which they thought was safe from detection three of the captors brought us paper and ink and told us to write to our friends. They dictated the letter and gave us just twenty days in which to have the money. We knew full well that if we were to be killed it would not be until sufficient time had been given to hear from our friends.

Those were long dreary days that we spent in captivity. Finally at my request the outlaws brought us a few articles that were indispensible, including two towels and a small piece of toilet soap. That one piece of soap lasted us three months. We were careful to use it sparingly as we knew not when a further requisition would come our way.

"In addition they brought us cloth from which we made clothes. Day followed day and still no word from the outside world. Had our friends at home forgotten us. During the lark, dark ... we traveled farther and farther away from civilization. In case of an attacks from soldiers or other bands of outlaws it was explained that we would if possible, be escorted to safety. If all were forced to flee the last man was to use his own judgment as to the disposal of us. Well we knew what that meant. He had received orders to kill us.

"One Sunday morning after our second time limit for the arrival of the money had expired, I felt that our day of leaving this earth had come. The chief had called his fellows about him and was reading from a paper. At a certain stage of the proceedings each man drew his revolver from his belt, handed it to the chief, who placed it on the ground. The demeanor of the men toward us that day was different from what it had been and I was confident that we were to be killed. I also managed to hear bits of the conversation. Finally I said: 'Why revolvers, won't daggers do?' and another 'just because they are women.' I knew that the bandits always killed their prisoners with the ugly knives they carried at all times. They made less noise and besides the operation was cheaper. However, after a few minutes each man was returned his fire arm and I could see that our execution if such it was, was postponed.

"Some few days afterward one of the men told me that the plan was to kill us. The majority of the men preferred that, but there were others, one in particular who was cool, and calculating and who wanted the ransom money. He had used his influence and won the day.

"You all know of the raising of the money and the glad tidings that came to us of our possible release. Then after the money had been paid it was some weeks before they allowed us to depart. When we did finally reach one of the little villages our joy knew no bounds."

Miss Stone then referred to the great work that was to be done in that country and said that the Almighty Providence had carried her and Mrs. Tsilka through all their trials and tribulations. She wished to express the thanks of that lady and herself for the heroic efforts of the American people in raising the money and securing their liberty.

THE DAKOTAS.

Indians Are Suspicious of Leasing of Grazing Lands.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—Reports received from Standing Rock agency state that the Indians of the reservation are holding a big popwow over the leasing of the grazing lands on part of the reservation. It is said that the Indians are pleased with the prospect of getting the lease money, which will amount to about $40 for each individual of the age of one year or over, but some of the old Indians fear there is some catch in the deal which will eventually take their lands away from them. These, it is alleged, have been the cause of the gathering at this time. Maj. McLaughlin, the well-known inspector of Indian agencies, whose home is at Standing Rock, is at the powwow as the representative of the interior department, to explain the leases and answer questions regarding the same.

Tyndall—A correspondent fom Tripp sent an account of the unearthing of a skeleton of a woman and the subsequent arrest of an alleged murderer. According to the account the so-called criminal has been placed in the Bon Homme county jail at Tyndall to await the term of circuit court in December. It is true that some bones were found in the northwest corner of the county, but neither the sheriff nor the state's attorney have any knowledge of any person under arrest for murder.

Huron—Half a dozen tramps were jailed here last night. They are believed to be of the same outfit that stole several grips from Northwestern passenger cars. The city authorities are doing their utmost to keep the 'wanderers" on the move and have notified citizens not to feed them.

Sioux Falls—Although the magnificent Cataract hotel in this city was completed less than a year ago it has been rumored for some weeks that still another modern hotel was about to be erected. These rumors seem to have been based upon a good foundation, for it has been learned that the plans have actually been drawn and preparations made for its erection. The new building will be erected by a syndicate of Eastern capitalists. It will be three stories high and will cover a ground space of 150 feet square. Sioux Falls has for some time lacked a first class hotel. This demand the new hotel will fill.

Hot Springs—The warm weather in the East has greatly stimulated the business at this resort, the hotels filling up during the week. The indications are that the remainder of the season will be unusually lively. Sunday there will be an excursion from Alliance and intermediate points, for which 800 tickets have already been sold. It is believed that at least 1000 people will come. There will be a ball game for a purse of $100 between Alliance and Crawford. Another excursion is being planned at Lead to come to the Springs Aug. 15. If this is carried out the Homestake has consented to shut down the mills for aday and give all employes an opportunity to go.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—The discovery of millions of black bass and other fish in a ditch and slough on the road between Jamestown and Spiritwood lake excited much comment and speculation as to how the fish came there. The only reasonable explanation seems to be that, in taking a load of live young fish furnished by the government from Jamestown to the lake last summer, the driver upset and lost a quantity. The fish have increased and multiplied until the little slough is alive with them. Several barrels of bass have been scooped up and taken to Spiritwood lake.

For the first time in many years Stutsman county has no place on the state Republican ticket. The delegation received a promise that H. G. Proctor would be made deputy state bank examiner and that the present management would not be changed.

Minot—One of the most important hearings that has ever taken place before a land office in this state is on at Minot. An effort is being made by certain interests to have the llenit- coal sections of the state declared mineral instead of agricultural land. When it is taken into consideration that practically every quarter section in Ward county has been homesteaded within the last three years, the importance of the action is appreciated.

Grand Forks—The cornerstone of the new Masonic temple was laid here Thursday night with elaborate ceremonies. Grand Master Stockwell, of Grafton, laid the stone, assisted by Masonic officers from all parts of the state. The edifice will be ahandsome one, costin $30,000. A banquet was held in Masonic hall, at which addresses were delivered by many prominent Masons.

BLASTS FROM RAM'S HORN.

Some men are born with a reverse gear and nothing else.

The true servant is discovered in his master's absence.

It is better to miss being rich than to make others poor.

The world is profited nothing by the pleasure-seeking life.

No man can both measure his work and do it at the same time.

Not the things we endure, but those we miss make life's tragedy.

When laws and legislators are respectable they will be respected.

It is not our fault if temptations call on us; but it is if we entertain them.

A man's desire for religious truth is not shown by his despising all other truth.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Chicago Tribune: Bishop Potter should meditate before entering the marriage state. But why give advice? Youth is forever headstrong.

Chicago Post: There is profound interest in the action of the vatican in selecting Archbishop Feehan's successor. Bishop Spalding of Peoria is a leading candidate and he probably has more admirers and friends in Chicago than any other of those "prominently mentioned."

Boston Globe: One of the dreams of Edward Bellamy has been realized in Washington. Last Sunday every church in the city had a telephone connection so that patrons could remain at their homes and listen to the services instead of going through the heat to the church.

Atlanta Constitution: The whistling woman has appeared in a New York church choir. She did her turn during the offertory. It is now in order for some rival pastor to introduce the female high-wire bicycle artiste doing a stunt between the front gallery and the pulpit desk. The gospel must be made attractive!

Philadelphia Press: A Boston clergyman has discovered that Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, Red Men and secret societies generally are the "wolves in sheeps' clothing" referred to in the scriptures. We always suspected that their goat-riding business would get secret societies into trouble sooner or later.

Chicago News: It would be difficult to fix limits defining the extent of the influence exerted upon this community by Archbishop Feehan during his long and useful life. The vital factors in the social or religious evolution of a people are frequently those which are not most conspicuous. Archbishop Feehan seemed to shun the public prominence which naturally would have been his had he chosen to play a positive part in the more obvious and superficial concerns of public life. Personally of a retiring disposition he lived the life of the churchman and of a kindly benefactor of his fellowmen, performing his countless good deeds in a way to escape notice.

Boston Transcript: The popular cant about the supremacy of the devil during the heated period when the clergy take their vacations is being more and more disproved each year. Not only do summer meetings of various denominations quicken the spiritual life and establish that kinship which makes for culture, but the growing custom of business men to leave their stern and unrelenting strife for wealth and power and go out with wife and children to the shadows of forest and the cool, clean touch of great waters is of itself an uplift to the world. The days spent in simple, loving life are more than sermons and theology to an overtired and tempted sould. The hills at twilight and the starlit sea are full of healing and real religion for all who come to them for rest.

REVOKED

Was Wilson's Sentence But He Will Be Tried.

Managua, Nicaragua, July 26.—Dr. Russell Wilson, of Milan, Ohio, who was captured near Bluefields with members of a fillbustering expedition led by Gen. Juan Pablo Reyes, will be tried by courtmartial, the sentence for his immediate execution having been revoked. He is still confined at Bluefields. President Zelaya says that Dr. Wilson is seriously compromised with the revolutionists.

It is not known whether the interference of the state department in Washington will save Dr. Wilson from the usually inevitable death sentence when a fillbuster is tried by courtmartial, especially as Dr. Wilson has been recognized as having assisted in 1899 in a revolution in a province of Nicaragua.

Cured To Stay Cured

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

What the afflicted man wants is not a temporary relief, but a permanent cure.

The beneficial effects of my treatment are as lasting as life—I cure to stay cured.

When once a patient is rescued by me from the ravages of disease or weakness peculiar to his sex, he is never again bothered with his former trouble.

I do not treat all diseases, but I treat men —MEN ONLY— and cure them to stay cured.

Varicocele.

Under my treatment, which includes no cutting or pain, this insidious disease rapidly disappears.

Pain disappears almost instantly.

The pools of stagnant blood are driven from the dilated veins and all soreness and swelling quickly subside.

Every indication of Varicocele soon vanishes and in its stead come the pride, the power and the pleasure of perfect health and restored manhood.

Stricture.

My cure for Stricture is safe, painless and bloodless, and, therefore, free from surgery in any form.

It is the only cure that should ever be used, and the only one recommended by the legions of men who have been restored by it.

It dissolves the Stricture completely and removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, allays all inflammation, stops every discharge, reduces the prostate gland when enlarged, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys when irritated or congested, invigorates the organs and restores health and soundness to every part of the body affected by the disease.

Contagious Blood Poison.

My special form of treatment for specific or contagious blood poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of this and foreign countries.

It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicine of any kind.

It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity.

Soon every sign and symptom disappear completely and forever.

The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

Nervo-Sexual Debility.

My cure for weak men does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently.

The soon drives away all those distressing symptoms which so constantly remind one of his former folly.

It stops every drain of vigor and builds up the muscular and nervous system, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses and heals the bladder and kidneys and invigorates the liver, revives the spirits, brightens the intellect, and, above and beyond all, restores the wasted power of manhood.

Reflex Diseases.

Many ailments are reflex, originating from other diseases.

For instance, manly weakness sometimes comes from Varicocele or Stricture. Innumerable blood and bone diseases often result from blood poison taint in the system or physical or mental decline frequently follow loss of manhood.

In treating diseases of any kind I always cure the effect as well as the cause.

We charge nothing for private counsel, and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at our offices, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence is always successful.

SECRET

Of Marriage Was Kept By Woman For Three Years.

St. Louis, July 26.—It has fallen to the lot of a St. Louis woman to prove that the ancient maxim, "A woman cannot keep a secret," is a frayed fallacy, for Mrs. Lawrence Davis held her tongue in check for more than two and one-half years, and until last Sunday even her own mother didn't know that she was other than just Miss Florence Gebhardt during that whole period.

For a "Miss" she is not, nor has she been since Dec. 12, 1899 upon which date she and Lawrence A. Davis slipped away to Indianapolis, Ind., and were married there. But even afterward, so far as the public was concerned, matrimonial burdens had no abiding place with either of them, and both were as still as mice about the wedding until last Sunday.

The secret had gnawed and tugged at escape for many a day, and finally its jailers despaired of ever being able to suppress its rebellious spirit, so they decided that it could do no harm now that they released it.

Mr. Davis went to his wife's home Sunday afternoon, and together they made a clean breast of the whole thing. When the astonishment had subsided the young couple received the parental blessings and planned to remove to a separate establishment at 3657 Page boulevard, where they now reside.

Davis is assistant steward at the Planters' hotel, but when he met and courted Miss Gebhardt he was in charge of the storeroom. She was only 19 years old, and he was about seven years her senior. He had mining interests in the Yukon gold fields which required his personal attention, but Miss Gebhardt's presence had become equally necessary to his serinity of mind, and the question arose how could they bear the pain of a separation?

Long and earnest consultations were held, and they decided that the sorrow would be somewhat alleviated were they married, and each thus assured of the other's constancy. They boarded a train in the early morning of Dec. 12, 1899, reached Indianapolis, where they quickly were married, and returned to St. Louis the same day.

Several weeks later Davis went to Dawson City and the adjacent territory and remained a long time.

Davis is well-known and popular among hotel patrons throughout the country, having been connected with a number of prominent hostelries in various sections of the United States His wife is a charming bruette, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Gebhardt, of 4814 Labadie avenue.

LIQUOR BUSINESS.

Chicago, July 26.—William E. Curtis in a Washington special to the Record-Herald says: For the first time the census office has made the manufacture of alcoholic liquors the subject of special inquiry, and the forthcoming report, now in the hands of the printer, will contain some interesting facts and statistics concerning that industry never before presented. It embraces wine, malt and spirituous liquors, and finds the total consumption in the United States for 1900, the census year, to have been 1,325,358,904 gallons, or 17.3 gallons per capita of the population. Of this 1,198,602,104 gallons were malt liquors, 103,330,423 distilled liquors, and 23,425,567 wines. The totals show also 2,385 establishments with an output of $500 value or more for the year; a capital of $457,674,087 employed, which represents the value of land, buildings, machinery, tools and implements and the live capital utilized, but does not include the capital stock of any of the manufacturing corporations. The value of the reductions is returned at $340,615,466, to produce which involved an outlay of $14,301,644 for salaries of officials, clerks, etc.; $28,005,484 for wages; $183,099,796 for miscellaneous expenses, including rent, taxes, internal revenue, etc., and $70,512,042 for materials used, mill supplies, freight and fuel.

The production of malt liquors in the United States has increased in the most extraordinary manner during the last half century, closing with 1900, the number of establishments having increased from 431 to 1,569; capital from $4,072,380 to $415,284,468; wage earners from 2,347 to 39,532; wages from $564,144 to $25,826,211, and value of products from $5,728,568 to $237,269,713.

JEFFRIES WINNER

Champion Knocked Out Fitz In Eighth Round.

An Unguarded Moment Lost Fight to Veteran.

San Francisco, July 26.—After fighting a battle of eight rounds that was fraught with brilliant and courageous work, Robert Fitzsimmons last night forfeited his last claim upon the heavyweight championship.

He was knocked to the floor by James Jeffries and counted out, after he had so badly punished the champion that it was a foregone conclusion among the spectators that the Cornishman must win.

Bleeding from a number of gashes in the face, apparently weakening, and clearly unable to cope with Fitzsimmons' superior skill, Jeffries delivered two lucky punches as Fitzimmons paused in his fighting to speak to him, and turned the tide.

The battle was brief, but noteworthy and will live in pugilistic history.

Fitzsimmons tried once to rise from the mat, but sank dwn again in helplessness and heard himself counted out, where but a moment before he had all the better of it.

"I will never fight again," said the battle-scarred veteran of the ring, when he had sufficiently recovered to talk.

"The fight was won fairly and to the best man belong the laurels."

"You are the most dangerous man alive," said Jeffries, in return, "and I consider myself lucky to have won when I did."

Fitzsimmons had been fighting at a furious rate, cool and deliberate, and chopping the champion to pieces with the terrific rights and lefts that have made him famous.

It was the draught horse and the racer from the tap of the gong. When the men came together Fitzsimmons appeared rather worried, but upon the opening of the first round he assumed an air of absolute confidence and fought with the deliberation of the geenral that he is.

As early as the second round, Fitzsimmons had Jeffries bleeding profusely from mouth and nose. Again and again he landed on his bulky opponent, getting away in such a clever manner that it brought down the house with cheers.

It seemed indeed that Jeffries could scarcely weather out the gale. In the eighth round it came, and under a series of hot exchanges Fitzsimmons paused with his guard down and spoke to the champion. The latter's reply consisted of the two terrible blows that brought back to him the fleeting championship and forever removed the veteran Fitzsimmons from the fistic arena.

Fitzsimmons took his defeat with amazing good cheer. He walked to the center of the ring and, raising his hand, addressed the multitude, saying:

"The best man has won. Had I beaten Jeffries tonight I would have conceded him the championship and then forever retired.

"I retire just the same now, but without having accomplished my ambition. I am satisfied."

Full of praise for his vanquisher, in the face of defeat, and writhing in agony on his couch surrounded by a score of friends offering their consolations, Fitz, between short sentences, interspersed with groans, announced that he had fought his last battle. He said:

"I fought the best I could and the best man won. He is a great fighter, and had I been awarded the decision tonight I would have turned around and given him the championship, for he is the only man in the world capable of defending it. The blows that put me out were a left short arm jolt under the ribs and a right to the jaw.

"After receiving the terrific body blow I knew I was gone and told Jeffries to keep away, but he was anxious to finish me, and sent a right swing to my jaw. I fought in the way I did because both my hands were gone when I entered the ring. I injured them Wednesday boxing with Hank Griffin. My right hand in particular was almost useless. I am confident now, even more so than ever, that in my first battle with Jeffries I was doped. His showing tonight proved to me conclusively that my defeat at his hands in our previous battle was unwarranted."

Asked why he did all the leading, Fitzsimmons indignantly denied the allegation, and said that Jeffries did a great deal of the work, especially in the clinches and at close range.

"He is as strong as an ox and his blows hurt me considerably, and especially his terrific lefts to the body," said Fitz.

Asked in regard to his plans for the future, Bob facetiously remarked:

"I am going back to Bensonhurst and attend to the development of the youth of America, and try to make them like me—a vigorous old man—past his 40th year, and as hale and hearty as a man well within his 30s."

At this juncture Dr. L. C. Cox, who had been summoned to attend the fighter, commenced an examination of the defeated pugilist. After a careful examination the doctor announced that Fitzsimmons' ribs were not broken, but that his left side was badly bruised, the muscles being so contracted as to cause the Cornishman great difficulty in breathing. Clark Ball, Fitzsimmons' manager, expressed his opinion that Fitz was too confident.

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS.

Round 1.—They came quickly to the center. Jeffries in a half crouch, and both feinting rapidly. Jeffries followed Bob around, feinting with left and looking for an opening. Fitz was the first to lead. He sent short right jab to the jaw and another a moment later. Jeff crouched and rushed, but Fitz neatly sidestepped.

Jeff rushed again and Fitz smothered his left for the body. Both of them did a lot of feinting, Jeff finally trying left for the face, but it fell short. He rushed his man into the corner, but missed a hard left swing. Then Fitz tried for face, landing lightly. Jeffries sent in hard left on the body and Bob countered on the head without damage. Jeffries continued to force his man, and when the gong sounded corners he was on the aggressive. When the champion took his corner his nose was bleeding slightly from one of Fitz's left jabs. He looked confident, however, and sat watching Fitz during the minute's respite.

Round 2.—Jeff went right after Fitz, trying left for the head and failing short. Fitz jabbed left to the neck, and Jeff smiled and forced him to the corner.

The lanky fellow quickly sidestepped out of the way. Fitz tried right for the head, but was quickly and neatly blocked. Fitz broke ground before Jeff's left, but finally tried a left for the head. It was light, however, and the champion caught it on the shoulder. They exchanged leads, Bob putting a stiff left on the face.

Jeff crouched low and sent Fitz back against the ropes with a left on the body. Fitz put two left hooks on the face, and got out of the way of the champion's left. Jeffries went at him with a stiff left on the head. He got a left jab on the nose that brought blood in a stream from the nose. At the close Jeff was somewnat worried, but took matters coolly during the minute's rest. His nose was bleeding freely. Fitz, on the other hand, was cool as a cucumber, and was not in the least winded.

Round 3.—Jeff came up forcing matters. His bloody nose annoyed him a little. He changed his tactics for a moment and stood up straight.

The champion rushed, swinging left and right. They were blocked, but a left caught Bob hard in the stomach. Bob jabbed left to face twice. Jeff looked worried. The lanky fellow was cool and got out of the way. Jeff's face was covered with blood at the end of the round from his nose and a gash over the right eye. Delaney busied himself over him between rounds.

Round 4.—Jeff looked enraged. He crouched, and clinched his lips. He was very careful, and stayed clear of Fitz' left jabs. Bob blocked two swings for the head, and got out of the reach of another. A moment later they came together and exchanged lefts on the face. Fitz put a short right hook on the head, and Jeffries landed left on the chest.

Fitz put Jeff's head back with a left. Jeff got another right on head, but came in with two left hooks, one for the head and another for the body. Fitz was going away, however, and the force was broken. Bob landed a stiff left on the body, but got a right on the head.

Fitz then took a turn at forcing, putting left on face twice, and compelling Jeffries to duel away. Jeffries looked worried as he listened to Delaney's instructions.

Round 5.—They feinted for a moment. Then Jeffries led left for the body, but missed, and got a chop on the body. Fitz got a left to Jeffries' face, but took right and left on the body. Jeffries forced Fitz to the ropes and put left on face twice. Fitz clinched, and when they broke sent in two body blows from left and right, delivered from the hips.

They clinched repeatedly. Fitz put a terrific right on the jaw, and a moment later a left on the face. They fought rapidly, Fitz cutting Jeffries' face with his left and putting right on head.

Jeff was bleeding freely, and was tired. Just before the close of the round Fitz put a right over Jeffries' left eye, cutting it and bringing blood. Jeffries was not winded, but was bleeding from the nose, left eye and right cheek. The only mark on Fitz was a slight abrasion on the right cheek.

Round 6.—Jeffries came up and crouched low. He missed his first attempt with a left for the head. He rushed, but the wily red head blocked every blow and got out of the way. Fitz landed a right on the head, one on body and another on nose. Jeff broke ground and ducked out of the way. They exchanged lefts on the head, Fitz' being the most damaging. Jeffries rushed again and again, but he was smothered and took three lefts and a right on the face. Jeffries rushed Fitz to the ropes, but got a right and left on the face which started the blood afresh. Fitz showed remarkable cleverness in getting away from rushes. His left jabs were cutting and just as the gong sounded he put another on Jeff's sore mouth and nose.

Round 7.—Jeffries showed up well and rushed Fitz determinedly. He put left on body but took left and right on the head. Neither were damaging, however, and when a moment later they came together, Jeffries put two terrific left swings on the head. Jeffries wore a determined look. As he stopped to spit Fitz jabed him three times in the mouth and forced him to the ropes. Jeff came back like an enraged bull and bleeding from his nose, mouth and cheek, he rushed the smaller man to the ropes, putting left on body and right over the heart. Fitzsimmons stood him off, however, with left jabs, occasionally sending left to the head. Jeff sent left to head and in a clinch they carried on a conversation, Fitz smiling good naturedly, while Jeff was bleeding and presented a terrible appearance. He was not tired, however, and took it easy in the watt.

Round 8.—Bob stood up straight, feinting with his left and drawing Jeffries on. Jeffries smiled through his bloody features, ducking a left swing, and landing a hard left on the ribs. They went at it. Fitz put a left on face and took one on the head. Fitz missed a right and took a stiff punch on the body. Jeffries forced the fighting at this stage, crouching low and carrying his right high and left far back. They came together and clinched.

As Fitzsimmons stepped back he smiled and spoke to Jeffries and before he could get out of reach Jeffries quickly hooked his left on the jaw and Fitz went down on his back. He cams up slowly, but before he could get upon both feet the referee counted ten and the fight was over.

JEFFRIES WILL REST.

San Francisco, Cal., July 26.—After the fight, Champion Jeffries was seen in his dressing room. He was jubilant over his success, dsepite the terrible scars of battle. He said:

"Well, I have won, just as I expected to. It was a fierce fight, the fiercest I have ever had, but I won. Yes, I got a good beating, as far as the marks of battle count, but, then, I rather expected that.

"I knew Fitzsimmons had a cutting punch, and would land it at some time of the fight. But the few marks and the loss of a little blood won't hurt a man. I took them, and only waited for the opportunity to land my punch.

"I found out Fitz could not jar me even with his famous right. It did cut me up, of course, but that didn't hurt. I never was tired at any stage, and was stronger than Fitzsimmons at all stages. You saw that he wore heavy bandages, and it was these that cut me up. I wore no bandages.

"Fitz certainly is a wonder. He is the greatest fighter of his weight that ever lived. As old as he is, he is the shiftiest and cleverest, the hardest hitting man I ever met, and I want to give him credit, as I know all who saw it will, for the great fight he put up.

"I have no plans for the immediate future, as I have not thought of anything but this fight for some time, and won't do anything for a long period. I will take a rest after the long siege of hard training.

"I think Fitzsimmns can yet defeat any other man than myself."

Quail, partridge and prairie chickens will be scarce and hard to find this fall. Hail and cold weather have killed off the greater part of every covey, and destruction of game birds by wolves has been enormous. Lsest week two wolves were shot by a farmer, who out of curiosity opened them to see what they had been living on. In one he found seven young prairie chickens; in the other five quail and three chickens. Here were the best of two coveys, and when one stops to recall that there are thousands of wolves in Minnesota and that an authority in the Dakotas estimates that there are not less than 25,000 wolves in that section, it is easy to understand one reason why the sportsmen will not get all the small game this fall.

The latest copy of the Field to hand throws considerable light on Arthur F. Duffy's 100-yard race at Wolverhampton, over which there were such contradictory reports cabled here. Duffy won the scratch "one hundred" in 10 seconds and was a starter in the handicap "one hundred" also. In the second heat he covered the full distance in 9 4-5 seconds, which equals his own English record made in Leicester last year. Duffy's time in the final was 10 seconds.

Albert Champion, the crack French pace follower, is kept in this country by the fact that if he goes to France he will be impressed into the army there. Champion left France several years ago to escape service in the army. He is now an American citizen, but this will save him if he returns to his native land. His manager is trying to fix the matter up with the French consul in this country, if the negotiations are successful the French cyclist will race in France this fall.

Jimmy Barry, the undefeated bantamweight, and only a few years back the holder of the championship, will make another attempt to win among the little fellows. He has not been in the ring since he fought with Harry Harris in 1899. Dave Sullivan, whom he helped condition for his matches with Young Corbett, is responsible for his re-entry into the ring.

SECTION BOSS KILLED.

Maurice, Iowa, July 26.—A shocking accident occurred on the Chicago & Northwestern railway about one mile west of here yesterday morning. The section crew was working the hand car west, and were all looking west, and did not notice or hear a freight train coming from the east until it was within a few rods of them, and in trying to get the hand car off the track the train struck Section Boss E. V. Vanmaanen, killing him instantly. His body was picked up on a sheet, being scattered along the track for almost a half mile. He leaves a wife and eight children. L. Fremgen, who was one of the hand car crew, was badly shaken up.

WORLD OF LABOR

Semi-annual address of Trades' assembly president.

George Smith is elected president of building trades.

Labor temple project is started by committee appointment.

President Dworschak of the Federated Trades' assembly delivered his semi-annual address before a big meeting of delegates in Kalamazoo hall last evening. He said in part:

"This address will be very brief, and I will confine myself to suggestions that may better our organization. In the first place, our organization committee should make a strenuous effort to induce the railroad labor organizations in Duluth to become affiliated with the assembly. Such affiliation would strengthen our central body and be a powerful resource to the railroad men in event of trouble. The mutual benefit is obvious.

"This committee should also endeavor to revive the once powerful sawmill workers' union, which I believe would add 500 men to Duluth's roster of unionism.

"I would also suggest to you at this time that the assembly select a committee to investigate the conditions and cost of living in cities of the same population as Duluth.

"The Labor temple problem should be discussed before the various unions until a successful and satisfactory solution can be obtained. It occurs to me an assessment of one-half per cent of the wages of each of the 4000 union men in the city would raise sufficient money to build a temple that would be the pride of every union man in Duluth.

"An assessment of that kind would amount to between five and ten cents a week for each man, and that would certainly not entail hardships on the men contributing."

William E. McEwen, publisher of the Labor World, has the sympathy of every union man in Duluth. While at Isle Royale, two weeks ago enjoying an outing, his little 2-year-old son was stricken with diphtheria. The little fellow died on Wednesday morning at the McEwen home on Duluth Heights.

Mrs. McEwen was also stricken with the disease, and for several days her condition was considered most serious, but this morning she is reported well on the way to recovery.

The following resolutions were adopted at last night's meeting of the assembly:

"Whereas, the All-Wise Creator has, by the hand of death, removed the little son of our beloved fellow unionist, William E. McEwen;

"Therefore, be it resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of this assembly, and a copy be forwarded to Mr. and Mrs. McEwen."

There are over a hundred distinct pieces in the ordinary shoe, including the forty-four parts, the lasting tacks, the heel nails, threads, and laces. The parts of the upper are cut from side leather, as may be seen in any shoe. The linings, cut in similar shape, are "closed on" or stitched in, and the parts are "vamped" or fastened together on a machine much like the household sewing machine. This clumsy looking upper is next fastened to the insole by a wonderful cachine. The heavy outside is next made soft and flexible and fitted in the stock-fitting room, and it is then stitched to the upper by a McKay or Goodyear machine, either of which drives a heavy needle through the thick sole with marvelous rapidity. The heel is next nailed on, and then the shoe is sent to the finishing room, where it is given its final smoothing over, inspection, and polish, and is packed for shipment to the jobber. In olden times the shoe manufacturer made his shoes and held them until sold. Now the energetic manufacturer gets his orders before he makes a single shoe. Some factories turn out from seven thousand to ten thousand pairs a day. It takes longer to pass a shoe from one machine to another through the factory than it does to make it.

"Only a stenographer. How often do we hear this expression and yet how little true meaning does it convey? The position of stenographer frequently affords more opportunity for advancement to the wide-awake, progressive and ambitious young man or woman than any similar post. Hundreds of prominent men in mercantile and professional circles throughout the country commenced life as the stenographers. Shorthand has been the stepping-stone to dozens of successful lawyers and newspaper men in the United States, who started at the lowest round of the ladder, kept their eyes and ears open always and worked conscientiously. Hon. William E. Mason, United States senator from Illinois, elected to the United States senate in 1897, was a stenographer from 1870 to 1873 in a law office at Des Moines, Iowa. M. M. Ham, widely known as a newspaper man and advertising writer, of New York and Philadelphia, commenced his career as a stenographer in the Quaker City. Mr. George B. Cortelyou, secretary to the late President McKinley and the present chief executive, began his career as a stenographer. So did Mr. William Loeb, Jr., assistant secretary to President Roosevelt.—John H. Sinberg, in Fame.

GEORGE SMITH.

Mr. Smith was elected president of the Building Trades' council Monday night. He was born in the city of Nottingham, England, March 28, 1872, so that he is a comparatively young man to achieve the leadership of such an important organization of the allied building trades.

His first job was on a farm near Niagara and he was discharged for refusing to work all day and half the night. After working for a while in a woolen mill in Ontario, he came to Duluth in 1890 and took up the plumbing trade. When the hard times struck Duluth and plumbing business suffered along with every other trade, Mr. Smith was forced to accept a job in the flouring mills at Superior. He was treasurer of the Flour Packers' union. From Superior he went to Minneapolis, where he became financial secretary of the big Flour Packers' union of that city.

He then drifted out to Colorado Springs, where he joined the Plumbers' union and in 1901 was again in Minneapolis, where he worked as a journeyman plumber until January of the present year when he came back to the great and only city—Duluth—and was elected delegate to the Building Trades' council from the Plumbers' union.

Mr. Smith is a conservative and energetic worker and in less than five months has worked himself up to the building trades' presidency. He is also a delegate to the Trades' assembly and a trustee in the Plumbers' union.

DUN'S REVIEW

Insufficient Fuel Causes Delay In the Iron Industry.

New York, July 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Each day brings the agricultural products of the nation nearer maturity and as the possibility of any serious injury becomes smaller, the feelings of confidence in fully sustained trade grows stronger. Railway stocks rose to new high record quotations and gold was exported, yet money ruled easy. July oats succeeded corn as the leading speculative cereal, but all distant grain options tended lower as the outlook improved. The heavy distribution of merchandise is shown by railway earnings thus far reported for July, 25 per cent larger than last year and 20.0 per cent in excess of the coresponding period of 1900.

Insufficient fuel is the one serious difficulty in the iron and steel industry, interruptions and delays from this cause becoming more noticeable each day.

Supplies of coal are curtailed by the strike, although coke ovens are making new records of production. Shipments are retarded by the car and motive power shortage. In a market where there is comparative dullness because deliveries cannot be made promptly the outlook for long continued activity seems favorable, especially as scarcity of fuel cannot continue a factor indefinitely. All forms of pig iron have sold ahead and there is no evidence of over production in the near future at least. Billets are still somewhat unsettled by heavy importations, yet domestic prices are steady and further foreign arrivals are expected. A new week has brought out more liberal orders for railway supplies and the structural mills have taken contracts dating still further into next year. Makers of agricultural machinery and tools grow more confident as the season advances and all kinds of finished steel are in an exceptionally firm condition. There has been little need to seek business, the big producers having a ready market in sight often before the raw material is received. Further advances are reported in spotter which has shown great strength during the past two weks, but other minor metals tend toward weakness.

Footwear factories have returned to almost full operation, contracts coming forward freely from wholesalers at the large cities. Aside from moderate buying for Red sea ports there has been little trade in the export division of the cotton goods market. Domestic purchases are confined to immediate requirements as a rule, the finer grades alone being ordered in advance. Conservatism is still shown by sellers also, no concessions being offered to stimulate trade. New lines of men's woolen and worsted fabrics are opened slowly, the most important goods not yet appearing. Quotations are unchanged with the tone quiet.

There was less activity in the speculative market for cerals, yet prices were well maintained. Meats were somewhat weaker on larger receipts and smaller export buying. Among the other staples coffee continues active and firm, despite the statistical situation, while cotton was irregular because the improved crop prospects acted in opposition to the brisk demand for consumption. Finally the former influence prevailed and quotations declined sharply.

Failures for the week numbered 208 in the United States against 198 last year and 18 in Canada against 28 last year.

DIAMONDS

Sent Mrs. Leishman In Place of Autograph.

London, July 26.—The Morning Leader prints a dispatch from Constantinople saying that Mr. Leishman, the United States minister, and Mrs. Leishman, recently dined with the sultan. His majesty admired Mrs. Leishman's beautiful fan, and she asked him to write his name on it, which he did with a pencil. His autograph had never been given to anybody previously. The sultan did not sleep that night. The next morning he sent a messenger to Mrs. Leishman to ask her to send the fan to him, and he would write his name in ink. Mrs. Leishman sent the fan, but when it was returned to her the autograph had been carefully effaced, and the initials, "A. H.," set in diamonds, substituted in its stead.

Everything was favorable for the charming reception the affair proved to be. The day was perfect, and Mrs. Stryker's home on Woodland avenue is an ideal place, with its broad porches and the surrounding scenery for such an event. About 125 guests were received from 4 until 6 o'clock. The reception hall and parlors were very artistic with decorations of palms and other greens, while in the dining room red and green predominated, geraniums and poppies, with their natural foliage, being used in profusion.

Assisting Mrs. Stryker were Mrs. James C. Hunter, Mrs. George W. Buck, Mrs. James A. Ferguson, Miss Mosher and Mrs. W. C. Sherwood, who served coffee, and Mrs. Henry Nolte, who served ice cream. The musicale given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. John Millen for their guests, Mrs. V. A. Lacy, of Yale, Mich.; Miss Edythe Belmont Lott, of Detroit, and Miss Johnson, of Detroit, was a most brilliant event. The house decorations were beautiful. Every number on the program was given in a most artistic manner. The music room was in pink and green, pink hydrangeas and palms being the decorations. In the back parlor deep red carnations and Japanese asterns were used and in the dining room yellow and green were the predominating colors. Mr. and Mrs. Millen, Mrs. Lacy, Miss Johnson and Miss Lott received in a nook in the hall which was decorated in palms and black-eyed Susans. Miss Trozer and Miss Crowley served punch and Mrs. Frederick Lee Gilbert assisted.

The program was one of exceptional merit, the violin numbers by Mr. Heinrich Hoevel, of Minneapolis, and the solos by Miss Johnson and Miss Lott being especially fine. FLEET AT CULEBRA.

Washington, July 26.—The navy department is now engaged in the experiment of establishing a naval base on Culebra island, near Porto Rico. The object is to ascertain just how quickly such work could be performed in the event of a hostile emergency.

The big fleet, under command of Admiral Dewey, which is to perform extensive maneuvers in Southern waters next winter, will assemble at Culebra and a base of operations will be necessary. The harbor of Culebra will be buoyed and wharves for lading marines and supplies will be constructed.

A large supply of coal will be shipped to that point, and buildings for the storage of materials, etc., will be erected. A careful account of the time consumed in doing this work is to be kept, and the navy department hopes to gain valuable suggestions from the information obtained.

OUR NATIONAL DISEASE

Caused By Coffee.

Physicians know that drugs will not correct the evils caused by coffee, and the only remedy is to stop drinking it.

Dr. W. J. Allison, of Heber, Ark., says: "I have been a coffee drinker for 50 years and have often thought that I could not live without it, but after many years of suffering with our national malady, dyspepsia, I attributed it to the drinking of coffee, and after some thought, determined to use Postum Food Coffee for my morning drink. I saw that Postum was made carefully with directions, and found it just suited my taste. I found myself getting so much better, that I used it at all meals, and I am pleased to say that it has entirely cured me of indigestion. I gained 19 pounds in 4 months and my general health is greatly improved.

I must tell you of a young lady in Illinois. She had been in ill health for many years, the vital forces low, with but little pain. I wrote her of the good that Postum did me and advised her to try it. At the end of the year, she wrote me that Postum had entirely cured her, and that she had gained 40 pounds in weight and felt like herself again."

THE STEEL INDUSTRY

Of the United States as Seen By British Eyes.

Report of Commission Which Investigated the Conditions.

Marvelous Story For British Manufacturer and Trader.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The phenomenal development of the iron and steel industry of the United States led the British Iron Trade association to appoint a commission last year to inquire into the industrial conditions and competition of the United States. The report of that commission which has been recently presented is briefly reviewed by the London Commercial Intelligencer, a copy of which has just reached the treasury bureau of statistics. It says:

"It is, indeed, a marvellous, and, to the British manufacturer and trader, in some respects a most discouraging story. The British Iron Trade commission gives details of the mineral resources of the United States as affecting that fundamental industry—the manufacture of iron and steel; show the extraordinary richness of the principal fields of coal, iron ore, and kindred minerals and demonstrate by concrete examples, how the natural inventiveness of the American has enabled him to apply to the operations of production and distribution a wealth of original ideas and methods that are as yet little known in Europe. It is also made manifest how on land, on lake, on river, and on canal, the American people have applied their minds to the solution of the conditions and problems of cheap transport until they have at last attained a level of rates and charges such as we have hardly had any experience of on this side of the Atlantic. It is not, however, to be supposed that the triumphs of the American people in these matters have been achieved without effort. Much testimony is borne to the fact that in the conditions of organization and administration, in their dealings with labor, in the conidence and enterprise with which they have embarked on industrial operations of great magnitude, in the efforts made to adapt themselves to new conditions, in the eagerness with which they have endeavored to create new demands both at home and abroad, and in the care and attention given to the successful cultivation of foreign markets, the American people have labored strenuously for many years, until labor, ingenuity and enterprise have become their most distinguishing characteristics When one has appreciated all that the Americans have done for themselves, it is neither natural nor reasonable to grudge them the success which has attended their labors."

Commercial Intelligence presents the following picture of the relative growth of the iron and steel industry in the United States and the principal countries of the world.

Yesterday was South Range day, and hundreds of people from Ontonagon, Painesdale, Trimountain and Atlantic spent the day at the carnival. Today is Houghton day, and the Elks and business men and people of Houghton purpose to make it a hummer, and a fitting finale to carnival week.

LABOR

Matters Are Acted Upon By American Federation Council.

San Francisco, July 26.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in session here, has adopted a resolution supporting any legislation having for its purpose the abolition of child labor in states where such laws do not now exist.

Another resolution declares the intention of the council to press the enactment of laws abolishing prison labor wherever it comes into competition with free labor.

In the matter of the request of the International association of Machinists, the Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and the Pattern Makers' league for the revocation of the charter of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the council decided to notify the latter body that unless by Oct. 1 it concedes full trade jurisdiction to the organization named in the matter of trade disputes, such as increase of wages, threatened reductions or changes of trade conditions or rules, its charter would be revoked.

The application for the revocation of the charter of the National Union of Brewery workmen was laid over for further consideration.

The council decided to instruct its representatives in Porto Rico as well as those in this country, to do all in their power to assist the labor movement in Porto Rico against the opposition with which it is meeting at every turn.

The application of the solicitors of insurance companies for a charter was denied.

The application of the order of Railway Clerks for a charter was unanimously granted.

A resolution was adopted favoring the majority rule as being the best means for the introduction of the initiative and referendum into national affairs.

A resolution was also adopted urging the workingmen of Colorado to do all in their power to have the legislature of that state pass several amendments to the state constitution, by which the cause of labor will be materially advanced.

AUTOMOBILE AND DIVORCE.

Another Chapter In the Lathrop Family Trouble.

Chicago, July 26.—Alluring rides at a dizzy pace over the boulevards in the "White Ghost," the auto formerly owned by W. K. Vanderbilt, and dinners in the cool shade of the pavilion in Washington park form the basis of a suit in which Mrs. Addie D. Lathrop asks $10,000 damages from Miss Mabel Hinson, charging her with the alienation of the affectnons of her husband, Frank A. Lathrop. Miss Hinson is the daughter of James A. Hinson, president of the National Car Coupler company, and is prominent in Englewood society circles.

The suit has been filed in the superior court, and is the second chapter in the family difficulties of the Lathrops. Several weeks ago Mrs. Lathrop filed a bill for divorce from her husband, who is chief electrician for John A. Drake. Their married life was replete with quarrels, and Mrs. Lathrop charges extreme cruelty in her bill.

C. W. George, attorney for Miss Hinson, denounces Mrs. Lathrop's action as a money-making scheme, and Miss Hinson treats the affair in a like manner. She says that her acquaintance with Mr. Lathrop has been very limited. Mr. Lathrop is said to have driven the "White Ghost" for a number of Englewood automobile parties, in which Miss Hinson took part. Miss Hinson denies that she and Mr. Lathrop ever rode together, except in parties.

Too Many Custom Houses In Country.

There are a large number of custom houses throughout the United States that have long since served their usefulness and should be discontinued in the interests of economy. At the present time there are 150 customs districts and independent customs ports, the latter including the cities as Pittsburg, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other interior places to which goods in bond are shipped and entered just as is done at New York. A great many of the small customs ports on the coast were established at a time when smuggling was a profitable industry, and when the government lost hundreds of thousands of dollars every year through the fraudulent shipment of goods into the country. Almost every little port on the coast was made a place for the collection of customs. We have since gotten control of this illicit traffic, but the customs ports are still maintained with all their expensive officials. For instance, there are fourteen separate customs districts on the coast of Maine, whereas four are all that are needed. The Massachusetts coast has eleven districts instead of three, and so on down the list. There are several unnecessary districts in New York, and the same is true of New Jersey. There are dozens of districts in which the cost of collection is way out of proportion to the amount of money gathered in duties, all of which proves that we ought to do away with the superfluous ports. For instance, it costs the government $124.87 to collect one dollar's worth of duties at Annapolis, Md., during the last fiscal year, and in the district of Buford, N. C., the government paid out in salaries and other expenses $362 for every dollar in customs that was paid in there. At Burlington, or in the Trenton, N. J., district the cost of each dollar of customs receipts was $10.59; at Charleston, S. C., it was $146, and at Crisfield, Md., it was $321. Each of these ports has a collector, and many of them have deputy collectors, and it is a great event when a vessel arrives with foreign imports. It is time a change was made and many of these unnecessary offices done away with.

Aspirations of the Gentleman From Maine.

In the current rumors concerning the speakership of the house of representatives for the next session, the name of Mr. Littlefield, of Maine, is frequently mentioned for the positon. Mr. Littlefield is the successor of the late Nelson Dingley and is altogether as much and as high a protectionist as Mr. Dingley was. He is a man of great ability, a lawyer of high order, a speaker of unusual force, and heretofore has exhibited the courage of his convictions. Unfortunately for his supposed candidacy for the speakership, his convictions on great public questions have impelled him oftener than not to antagonize his party. A man cannot antagonize his party and at the same time lead it, a fact demonstrated so many times that it is generally recognized. Mr. Littlefield is now serving his second term in congress, and, of course, will be elected to his third this fall. It would be exceptional for a member with so short a service to be elected to the speakership, though there have been rare instances where it has been done. No such instance, however, has happened of recent years, and when in the past it has ocurred there have been peculiar reasons for it. Nothing of sufficient importance is known to exist now or likely to exist when the Fifty-eighth congress convenes as to demand the election to the speakership of a man of such short service as Mr. Littlefield, the more especially as he has been out of line with his party so much during that short service. His selection by President Roosevelt to frame and urge the passage of a bill in regulation of trusts is quite another matter. Mr. Littlefield is antagonistic to trusts where they are designed, or operate to oppress the public. He took great pride in debate in the house upon one occasion during his first term in explaining how the American Ice company, commonly referred to as the Ice trust, tried to secure a charter in Maine and had failed. He has introduced anti-trust bills in both the Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh congresses, and has also advocated amending the constitution to give congress jurisdiction over corporations doing an interstate business. He is a member of the committee on the judiciary, which has jurisdiction over all bills of the character in question, and a hard worker especialy on any matter which he believes to be right. He has a bright future before him but the speakership is not yet within his reach.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

The East End residents who have conceived the idea of having the city acquire the strip of land along the lake shore, between Eighth and Thirteenth avenues east, and turn it into a park, have made a happy hit, and it is to be hoped that the park board will see it and act accordingly.

The city has some very charming parks, but it has not enough, and it is doubtful whether it can get too many. The site suggested is an admirable one, and it is questionable whether the land is adapted to fill any other purpose nearly so well. Parks are breathing places in a crowded city, places where the hand of the municipal government bars the way to the hurry and dust and grime and sordidness of the city. The suggestion is that the city use it for park purposes until the railroad needs it for railroad purposes. Probably this will not happen right away, if ever, and meanwhile the railroad will be free of taxation on the property.

The suggestion having been made, it should be followed up and pushed to an early completion.

THE IRON ASSESSMENT.

The St. Louis county board of equalization has settled the mooted question of the taxation of the iron mines, so far as its power is concerned, for two years more. State Auditor Dunn says it is a good and fair assessment and that the state board of equalization will not change it, so the assessment made yesterday will probably stand until the board meets again two years from now.

One pretty sure thing is that the iron companies will not oppose it, for several reasons. One is that it is not too high, to say the least, and another is that it is certainly to the interest of these companies to be fair with the public in the matter of taxation, as corporations have enough to bear up against in the way of abuse without deliberately earning any.

The assessment will, no doubt, give general satisfaction, and the members of the board of equalization are to be congratulated upon making it, the iron companies are to be congratulated on getting off so easily, and the public is to be congratulated on having $20,000,000 worth of property added to that which helps bear the burdens of taxation.

The Herald has from time to time spoken of the subject of the taxation of the iron mines, for it is a live question here, and always will be a live one, as well as one as fruitful of difficulty and perplexity as any the public officials in and under the state governments have to encounter.

The public has had its eyes opened regarding the valuation of the iron mines within the past two years, and so have the public officers. There can be no question that the assessment does not represent the actual value of the mines, based on any percentage of assessment in vogue in the state. The mines of St. Louis county are of immense value, of a value hard to calculate and hard to fix long enough for the purpose of settling a basis of taxation. The sum at which they are assessed, therefore, represents their real value only tenfatively, only nominally.

While the raise has been a large one, and the result will be a general easing of the burden of taxation in the communities of the iron ranges, the board has been easy on the mine owners, and with excellent reason. For one thing this community has much to hope for from the "steel trust," as well as from independent owners of mines who are also manufacturers. Nature intended this city for a manufacturing center, and only the fact that the manufacture of iron had been settled farther east before the fact became known has prevented Duluth from coming to its destiny. The steel trust has so far shown a disposition to do what it can for this community, but its business is a matter of business and not a matter of sentiment, and it will do its manufacturing where it can best be done

Duluth people believe that sooner or later it will be found that it can best be done here. The steel trust is practically a new institution. Its business is wide and growing constantly. As its trade grows, it must increase its facilities for manufacturing. Duluth has a hope that some of its new plants will be located here. If that hope is to be fulfilled the officers of the steel trust must be shown that there is a disposition to be fair to large industries. Large industries require perhaps a little more fairness than small ones, and this consideration must not be lost sight of in this connection.

The assessment, all things considered, is a fair one and honest. It could have been more if it was necessary, but the increase is great enough for one time, especially as by making it the goodwill of the mine owners is retained. Another consideration is that it shows to the residents of other portions of the state that St. Louis county is not ridden by the corporations, as some legislative demagogues are fond of saying. Last winter an element in the legislature sought to save the people of this county from the corporations through the Jacobson bill imposing a tax of 5 cents a ton on the output of the mines. That would have produced $600,000 on an output of 12,000,000, which is about what this year's shipments will be, and yesterday's assessment will produce the same amount, at least.

The problem is a vexatious one, and the members of the board of equalization, the officers of the mining companies and the public will breathe easier now that it is settled for another period of two years. That it was settled so well is a matter for everybody concerned to be proud of, and the relief from taxation that will follow it, while it will not affect the city of Duluth materially, will be marked in the cities, towns and villages of the ranges, while the state will benefit very materially. It is a result for which The Herald has been striving for more than a year.

PORTO RICO'S PROGRESS.

The thorough reorganization of the form of civil government of Porto Rico from that which existed under Spain has enabled that island to make a rapid advancement. The current Atlantic Monthly prints an interesting review of two years' legislation in Porto Rico. Civil government was organized there May 1, 1900. The governor and six chiefs of executive departments, all appointed by the president, constitute, together with five other citizens of Porto Rico, also appointed by the president, the executive council or upper house of the legislative body, while the house of delegates consists of thirty-five members, elected by the people. The first session of the assembly (it is limited to sixty days) was held in December and January, 1900-1901; the second in January and February, 1902. In local government the Porto Ricans have absolute control, and in the legislative assembly they seek to limit the laws of the general government as much as possible, while the upper body of the assembly, representing the president's appointees, feel the necessity of exercising a considerable degree of control. With these two policies in opposition or working together, the laws of Porto Rico have been enacted. The revenue is raised from excise and license taxes, a general property tax with certain liberal exemptions, a tax on inheritances and certain miscellaneous imposts of minor importance. The receipts of all customs go into the insular treasury. The commissioner of education, who is one of the chiefs of executive departments, has outlined a scheme of public instruction much like that which exists in many American states. Trial by jury has been introduced, and a police force, under the control of the insular authorities, has been created. The old board of charities was abolished and the new office of director of charities created, together with a director of prisons. The large municipalities of the island are allowed to create indebtedness not exceeding 7 per cent of the taxables to be devoted to public improvements. Carefully prepared civil and criminal codes have been adopted by the legislature, and affairs are conducted under a system of law closely in accord with our own. The people are trusted to conduct their local affairs, and they take great pride in so doing.

THE PROMOTION OF GOOD.

Oftentimes there are many things that seem necessary to be done in our cities, but there seems to be no one to do them. Many of them do not seem to come under the head of the work of the numerous societies, organized for one thing and another, and the result is many reforms of a miscellaneous nature are never attempted. The people of the old Swiss city of Basel long ago set an example in this line, but which has never been followed in this country. This unique association, which is called "The Society for the Promotion of the Good and Generally Useful," was founded in 1777. Its activity was at first confined to the encouragement of industrial education. Gradually the scope of the work has been widened to include one undertaking after another, until at the present time the society has about thirty standing committees, each intrusted with the direction of a particular enterprise. The objects in which the society is interested range all the way from Sunday schools to skating rinks. There are committees for the assistance of industrial apprentices, discharged prisoners, rural waifs, abandoned children and destitute women; committees for the support of libraries, savings banks, bath houses, restaurants, infant schools, sewing and darning schools, institutions for the blind, hospitals for consumptives and bureaus for the unemployed; committees to maintain public lectures, to improve domestic service, to beautify the suburbs and to protect historic buildings. In short, there is hardly a conceivable project relating to civic improvement which does not have a place on the omnibus program of this society. The membership of the society exceeds 1800. It owns property valued at 387,357 francs, and has an annual income of 61,995 francs. This brief description of the society gives only a very inadequate idea of the range of its activities and the extent of its usefulness. It would be impossible to exaggerate the value of the organization to the city of Basel, not only for the things which it has accomplished, but also for the lesson in public spirit which its very existence enforces. Such an association is needed in every city, and a gradual movement looking to the establishment of such a society in the future would no doubt in time bring results.

That there is a rapidly growing desire among people to secure employment with Uncle Sam is made plain by the large number who took civil service examinations last year, the figures being given in these columns a short time ago. There is frequently some hesitancy among those who desire to enter the service as to what examinations offer the best opportunities for appointment. From the reports of the bureau it is evident that for males, perhaps the best opportunities are offered through the stenography and typewriting examinations. During several years past all men who have become eligible in both stenography and typewriting have been offered appointments, except those who have placed the minimum salary which they were willing to accept at so large a figure as to preclude them from appoint. The usual entrance salaries for these positions range from $600 to $1200 per annum, though rarely less than $720 per annum. Because of the great demand for stenographers and typewriters in the government service this examination is given twice a year. There are hundreds of other examinations that may be taken for one department or another, but the appointments are not so numerous as in this class.

A thrifty Kansas farmer advocates the dressing of the honey bee with the lightning bug that the bee may be able to work nights and thus double the production of honey. You would expect a suggestion like that to come from Kansas.

Physicians deny that King Edward has walked a step since he was operated upon although reports to that effect were sent out from Cowes. The "string-fiends" over there do not seem to have any more regard for the truth than they do in Oregon.

An Indian has died at the age of 115 years, and the other day a negro passed away who claimed to have lived 126 years. There is no way of knowing whether they had lived that number of years or not. About 100 years from now the person who claims to be over one hundred will have to prove claims or retire. Records of vital statistics are now becoming so universal that age can be easily proven.

President Baer, of the Reading road, says that the road can stand the coal strike as long as the miners can. But how about the public? The railroad magnates will soon find that it has an interest in the matter.

The United States and Spain are the largest producers of quicksilver in the world; nearly all produced in the United States comes from California, and nearly all of California's product is from one mine in Santa Clara county. During the last fifty-two years California has produced a yearly average of 63,231 flasks of seventy-six and a half pounds each. Last year the whole United States produced 983 tons, while Spain produced 1005 tons.

There are 659 known mineral springs in the United States. Massachusetts has the largest number, seventy-five; New York comes next, and California is third with forty-five. The total product for 1901 was nearly 55,000,000 gallons.

CHEERY CHAFF.

Philadelphia Bulletin: "Does she sing as if she had her voice cultivated?"

"Oh, yes. I couldn't understand a word she said."

Brooklyn Life: Life Insurance Agent—My dear sir, have you made any provision for those who come after you?

Hardupp—Yes, I put the dog at the door and told the hired girl to say I'm out of town.

Yonkers Statesman? "What do you expect to be when you become of age, my little man?" asked the visitor.

"Twenty-one, sir," was the bright one's reply.

Philadelphia Press: "I can't imagine anything more unsatisfactory than a meal at our boarding house," said the chronic kicker.

"No?" replied the impressionable young man. "Evidently you never got a kiss from your best girl over the telephone."

Washington Star: "Why do men always laugh when they hear jokes about losing money at horse races?"

"That," answered the unlucky person, "is because a laugh is often used to conceal an aching heart."

Judge: Visitor (to Nebraska Farmer)—It has been pretty hot out here this summer, has it not?

Farmer—Hot? Well, rather. Why, we even had to put ice in the pond to keep the ducks from laying boiled eggs.

Baltimore American: "What a beautiful bathing suit!" we say to the fair young thing. "When are you going to the seaside?"

"Seaside?" she repeats, frivolously, we must admit. "Seaside? I had that suit made to wear at the photographer's."

Don't Despise the Boys.

Don't plague the bashful country boy
Who looks with awe upon you now;
His clothes are poor and he is coy,
And tangles up his legs somehow.
So that he stumbles awkwardly
In making way for you—but he
So guileless now, so poorly dressed,
May hide away down in his breast
A Lincoln's heart, or be possessed
Of wishes such as Garfield had
To stand where but the greatest may—
Don't laugh out at the country lad
Who passes awkwardly today.

Don't spurn the poor boy in the street
Who tries to pass and jostles you;
The shoes are ragged on his feet,
His trousers may be tattered, too.
With grimy hands and tangled hair,
He doges here and hurries there,
Too little for his years, but still
Deep in his breast may be a will
That spurred Carnegie up the hill.
Forgive the child who sometimes dares
To play a little on his way;
Down in the busy thoroughfares
Are boys the world shall know some day.

O country boy, I lift my hat
In humble deference to you;
O little worker in the street,
Clad in your soiled and tattered blue,
With awe I watch you as you pass—
I might cry "Bravo!" if I knew,
O ragged, tired, awkward boy,
What things God sent you here to do.

An Egotist And a Woman

By Jessie Llewellyn.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"It was a sad affair," he said.

"Yes?" She regarded him curiously. So this young man, known to his limited circle of friends as "The Egotist," possessed sympathy.

They sat on opposite sides of the long table in her father's library. At the farther end of the room the grate fire had gone out, but she did not ring; it might encourage him to stay after he had told the story. Perhaps he was not the egotist that people thought him to be. He seemed to feel the tragedy in what he told—else why should he be telling it?

"And you knew him very well?" she asked.

"Oh, very well—in a business way. The governor used to rely on him. Afterwards when I took on the business, I kept him—out of kindness, you know. I'm a soft-hearted chap—"

"Yes, I know," she interrupted. "He was incompetent? You felt sorry?"

"Not that exactly, oh, no. He was a good man—student and digger—great chemist. I appreciate a digger. I even took him over to the club for lunch once or twice. He was a natural gentleman. Then, anyway, I'm a humane chap at heart—regular democrat, you know."

"You say he was a very gifted scientist?" she asked quietly.

"He was that. We paid him a bigger salary than any extract house in the world ever paid a chemist. The governor and I always looked out for good men—and paid for them. I can tell a man of brains the minute I lay eyes on thim. It's just natural for me to know one on sight—funny isn't it?"

"Very," she replied.

"I'm a queer contradiction," he ruminated, absently crushing some rose petals on the floor with his wide foot. "I was never before so shocked to hear of a suicide. He had often spoken to me about himself when he had one of those melancholy attacks. I encouraged him, for I'm an easy sort. Fellow can move me to tears and not half try. You see he had married a girl—well—the "good fellow" type. Said he owned it to her after pronounced attentions had made people talk. She told him that. He felt sorry for her—acted the fool as those studious chaps always do, and married her. Now, I—"

"And she?"

"Went to the other extreme. From being too—er—jolly she overdid respectability. Joined women's clubs and things—that sort was the best she could do. Developed into a shrew.

"Do you know what I'd do if I found myself married to a shrew? Oh, I'm—"

"What did he do?"

"Oh, he!" A grave expression came over the young man's round face. He turned his profile toward her—he had a good profile—and passed his fingers through his front hair, careful not to disarrange it. "As I said before, he was one of those fine, super-sensitive souls; the kind that quivers at a rough word. I always know how to deal with that kind of a man. Now most people do not—but—well—you wouldn't think it—I'm naturally of the artistic temperament myself—funny with my business ability, isn't it? I could see, you know, that the woman was driving him to the edge of his nerves—that she was killing him. Never saw such a picture of misery as he grew to be. Always looking off somewhere and not hearing anything that went on around him. We grew inumate—I may say very intimate. He was a gentleman, you know, always without a cent, but a gentleman, and although he was only a salaried man in the house I actually grew fond of him. We would tell college yarns and I—"

"You were in college together?"

"Not exactly. He had gone in for the German and Russian universities after ages of cramming on this side. Of course I—with the governor's money—"

"Yes, I know." She swiftly replied and a dark red overspread her face and neck. "You became intimate friends and—how very sad—he—it was only last week, wasn't it?"

"Committed suicide last week. Took five grains of morphine and was as dead as—er quite dead in no time. It was with him that afternoon. He was down-heartened and I just thought of some such thing at the time. I'm a pretty good reader of human nature, you know—pretty good."

"You and he were associated daily, and were very close friends for several years, were you not?" Her voice was beginning to sound as if it came from a remote corner of the long room and she shivered as he spoke again.

"For fifteen years—ever since I became manager in my own right. He was as fond of me as a—awfully fond of me, but I didn't discourage it—it pleased him. When I'd come down in the morning after a—well, after having been detained late the night before, I'd feel his eyes on my face. Then he would slip up behind my chair and lay his hand on my shoulder, for all the world like the governor used to do. And he'd say: 'Take care of yourself, old man; you're working too hard. I couldn't bear to see another name at the head of our stationery. It would break me all up, old man.' That's the way he would talk. The way that man loved me was wonderful. Funny, isn't it?"

"Very," she replied, still more quietly.

"But I started out to tell you about the suicide. Saddest thing I ever knew. That afternoon I had told him in plain words that I'd promised another man his place—fellow I met on the other side last summer. Her brother you know. You'll not feel—er—jealous when you get the cards? I gave you two opportunities—I want you to—well you know people and I—"

"And the man," she reminded.

"Oh, he. He took it all right. Business is business, you know. He never said a word. Just got a little whitor—it was a little sudden—and walked straight out of the building. What I didn't just like was the way he went—not even waiting until four o'clock, but I'm naturally a soft-hearted chap, and I didn't say much.

"He must have gone straight home then. They say he stepped into the house and asked for his wife. She had left word that she had gone out and would not be home for dinner. As he went out again, they told me, he met his little girl playing in the yard with some children. He asked her to go with him for a walk, but naturally enough, she said she would rather stay and play with the children. She never was much for her father, anyway. He was quiet, you know. Nobody ever knew him—except myself—I knew him like a book, I—"

"And he died alone without anybody?"

"Well, that was the last anyone ever saw of him, alive. The next morning they found him in his bed. And his face—"

She got up suddenly. "Please!" was all she said.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Your eyes look so peculiar."

"The details. It is the details that I cannot—"

"Oh, certainly." Curiously his face relaxed in a broad smile. He raised his hand in a grand gesture and stroked his small black mustache.

"I just told you the story," he began. "We were speaking earlier in the evening of literary ability. Well, I wrote a friend of his a complete account of the suicide, and—do you know, it was the most graphic thing I ever did? The way it impressed me and all makes me believe that I have real literary ability. Funny, isn't it?"

"Very." Her voice sounded strange to both of the. Her arms were held close to her sides and her hands were clenched.

"What's the matter?" he asked again. Her face was very pale. He wondered stupidly.

"And now," she said in a repressed, monotonous tone, "I will tell you something funnier, even than yourself. I've got to tell!"

Her voice had risen, but she carefully modulated it again.

"For fifteen years you knew him intimately. For fifteen years, I knew him too. I loved him—always—before his marriage—long before—and afterwards. I love him—now. You see he didn't need you—or anybody. I—he—we—goodnight! Oh, good-night!"

"It was a sad affair," he said.

"I will tell you something funnier even than yourself!"

J. J. HILL'S SEA SERPENTS.

Pioneer Press: J. J. Hill is reported to have disclaimed the discovery of any sea serpents or other marine prodigies during his yacht voyage to Labrador. The rumor possibly had its origin in the fact that he has shown a remarkable faculty of finding things in sea water or even in river water which had escaped the notice of his contemporaries. When one of the Eastern termini of the Great Northern system struck the head of Lake Superior he found the natural advantages of that great waterway largely lost by lack of cheap and adequate facilities for transportation—such lake shipping as there was being under the control of Chicago and Buffalo companies. He proceeded to put on an independent line of higher grade freight carriers and establish first class elevator facilities at West Superior and Buffalo, which largely reduced the cost of transportation, thus taking the initial steps which have resulted in making this great Northern waterway the chief, because the cheapest, outlet for the grain of the Northwest and in immensely expanding its commerce. He followed these with palatial passenger steamers that made lake travel a delight. These were his sea serpents in our Northren Mediterrancan.

When the Western terminus of the Great Northern reached Puget Sound he saw American enterprise looking supinely on from its vantage ground on the Pacific seaboard, while the vast trade of Oriental Asia was in the almost exclusive grasp of the merchants and shipmasters of Great Britain and other European countries. The few American steamships plying between our Pacific seaboard cities and China and Japan were not adequate in carrying capacity or in the volum of their cargoes to successfully compete with the merchant fleets of England, Japan and other powers. Mr. Hill sent his agents to explore this field for the extension of American commerce, and discovered the opportunity for an immense development of American trade with Asiatic seaports by a proper organization of transportation facilities by land and sea so as to increase the volume of tonnage and reduce the cost of transportation. He proceeded to build for this trade ships of the largest cargo capacity ever set afloat, and to make arrangements to fill them with freight by an extensive combination of railroad lines reaching to all the needed sources of supply. These are his seamonsters of the Pacific ocean, to fill the belly of one of which will require a thousand full carloads of freight. It is believed that Mr. Hill has thus successfully marked out the path through which American enterprise will soon achieve the mastery of the commerence of the Pacific ocean.

The recent acquisition of the Burlington system by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific was an essential part of this scheme for making this Northern route across the continent and the Western ocean the great highway of the commerce of the world. One arm of the Burlington reaches down to St. Louis, at which point Mr. Hill expects to gather the cotton sent up by rail or river from the South, to be carried by the Northern fleets of great barges, carrying the grain and produce of the central states of the Mississippi valley to New Orleans and bringing back the cotton and other products of the South—here again applying the principle of concentrating the greatest amount of tonnage to the unit of effective motive power. His calculation is that by this means the cost of river transportation from New Orleans to St. Louis will be so reduced that the grain of the Central West and the cotton of the South will take this cheaper channel and thus pay tribute to the Northern transcontinental railroads. This scheme of deepening the channel of the Mississippi is not, of course, original with Mr. Hill, but he has given a St. Louis project of long standing an amplitude of scope and a definitiveness of purpose and detail which have stamped it with his characteristics and given it a claim to confidence in its feasibility and commercial value which it did not possess before.

The inland seas of the North are already teeming with the progeny of the sea serpents he planted there. The waters of the Pacific will soon be stirred by the mighty fins of the marine monsters he is preparing to put there, and it may not be many years before the deepened waters of the lower Mississippi will be thronged with fleets of great ships, the prodigies of the dreams of a man, all whose dreams of commercial development are cold business calculations.

Balance of Trade Signs.

New York Mail and Express: There is nothing unfavorable in a reduction of the balance of trade. On the contrary, it shows that our indebtedness abroad is diminishing, for we send merchandise away only to pay for something. What does not pay for foreign merchandise imported must pay freight, insurance and banking charges, traveling expenses, dividends and interest on foreign capital invested here, or American securities bought back from other countries. There is no advantage in having a great burden of such payments to make, and the object of foreign trade is not to bring money into the country. We have money enough, and have to supply gold to Europe from time to time. The narrowing of the balance between exports and imports is in itself a good sign.

Corn Is King.

Buffalo Times: It looks as though there were a big business ahead for the "granger" railroads and for the granger himself and the "corner" of one man or set of men cannot prevent it. Corn is king.

"Cornering" a Continent.

Indianapolis News: Some way the anthracite situation should be relieved. It does not seem reasonable nor right that the anthracite coal necessities of 76,000,000 people should be at the mercy of six railroads, which are combined and under the control of about the same number of men, who may at any time cease production at the expense of the poor miner, and on the other hand, may increase prices to all of the people. Given a limited coal field like the anthracite field and given the necessities of a great continent of people, whose manufacturing industries demand the use of this coal, and we have a situation that may call for more than ordinary measures of laws. It may be a menace not to be endured that half a dozen men shall "corner" a continent.

The Farmer Strictly In It.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Oats and corn are at high figures on the eve of the gathering of one of the biggest crops of both which have been known for years. The farmer is very far from being a forgotten man in these days of all-round Republican prosperity.

General Brooke's Record.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Of Gen. Brooke it may be said that while he was too young to reach the fame of Meade, Reynolds, Hancock and other great Pennsylvania captains, he was a good solider, who was frequently brevetted for meritorious services and shed his blood on several battlefields. He goes into retirement with a fine record as a soldier, one who has even been a credit to the uniform he wears and to the state which gave him birth. We trust that he will have many years of peaceful life to enjoy in the neighborhood where he roamed as a barefoot boy.

Labor and Capital Should Confer.

New York Mail and Express: The more conferences between labor and capital, if they are free and candid, the better for both and the better for the commonwealth.

A Demonstrated Fact.

New York World: "America has the best guns," says a German naval annual. And the best gunners, too, as Manila bay and Santiago proved.

Prohibition In Practice.

Washington Post: Prohibition in Vermont is a glaring and disgraceful failure, a source of many scandals and a promotor of vice rather than of morality.

Jab at the Jim-Jams.

Chicago Post: Gen. Corbin has prohibited the exportation of snakes from the Philippines. Why did he not strike the root of the matter at once by forbidding the importation of whisky?

The Early Sidestep Avoids the Worm

Philadelphia Inquirer: Senator Beveridge may have been a trifle hasty in declining the vice presidency before it was offered to him; but, then, there are some things that are well to dodge before they approach.

No Fears on That Score.

Washington Post: We have unlimited confidence in Admiral Crun'shell's ability to find a substitute to place all the blame on.

Takes Work to Frame a Joke.

Chicago Chronicle: As the lengthy Mr. Littlefield toils and toils these steamy summer days in the preparation of the anti-trust bill ordered by Mr. Roosevelt his perspiring efforts are distressing to witness.

"What's goin' on this wek in th' papers?" asked Mr. Hennessy.

"Ivrything," said Mr. Dooley. "It's been a turbylint week. I can hardly sleep iv nights thinkin' iv th' doin's iv people. Th' campinily at Venice has fallen down. 'Twas built in 1901 be th' Beezantiums an' raystored in 1902 be th' Dogs. It fell down because th' foundations was weak, because th' wind blew, because th' beautiful figure of the golden angel on top iv it was fifteen feet high. It will be rebuilt or maybe not. Th' king iv Italy has given thirty-three billion liars to put it up again an' siv-ral ladin' American archytects have offered to do the ob, makin' an office buildin' iv it. Th' campinily was wan iv th' proudest monymints iv Italy an' was used as a bell-tower at times an' at other times as a gazabo where anny American cud take a peek at th' gran' canal an' compare it with th' Eric, th' Pannyma an' th' dhrainage iv th' same name.

"Th' king iv England is bethter. He's off in his yacht. So ar-re Laking, Treves, Smith, Barlow, Jones, Casey, Lister, thank hiven! A hard life is sefence. "An' that's all th' news," said Mr. Dooley. "There ye ar're jus' as if ye cud read. That's all that's happened. Ain't I a good newspaper? Not a dull line in me. Slnd in ye'er small ads."

"Sure, all that's no news," said Mr. Hennessy discontentedly. "Hasn't there annything happened? Hasn't anny wan been—been kilt?"

"There ye ar-re," said Mr. Dooley. "Be news ye mane misfortune. I suppose near ivry wan does. What's wan man's news is another man's throubles. In these hot days, I'd likt to see a pa-aper with nawthin' in it but affectionate wives an' loyal husbands an' prosp'rous, smilin' people an' money in th' bank an' three a day. That's what I'm lookin' f'r in th' hot weather."

"Th' newspapers have got to print what happens," said Mr. Hennessy.

"No," said Mr Dooley, "they've got to print what's different. Whinver they begin to put headlines on paragraphs, contint, varchue, an' charity, I'll know things is going as wrong with this counthry as I think they ar-re ivry naytional campaign."

FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of Sorrowful Bill and the Sour Grapes and Sympathetic Sep.

(Copyright, 1902, by R. H. Russell).

Once there was a long-headed Schemer who picked up his Assets and moved East. By breaking into every Good Thing that came along and nailing each Opportunity to get a stand-in with the Gentlemen who own the Universe, he was enabled to stack up something like a Million.

It looked big to his Relations who lived out West but in New York he was a cheap Piker. His Steam Yacht had only one Funnel and there were only seven Bath-Rooms in his House. In fact, he was a good deal of a Skate any way you looked at him.

The Second-Rater had a Cousin named Sep who lived in one of our Middle States. In his own Bailiwick this Sep was a very galus Proposition. He owned a General Store and a Stock Farm and had Rubber Tires on his Buggy and wore Gloves when driving.

After the Corn had been laid by and the aOts threshed, Sept had a little time for Romancing around over the Country. He bought a paper-muslin Duster, had a Lunch put up and bought an Excursion Ticket to Morgansville.

The struggling Millionaire said he was glad to see Sep. He did not shout it through a Megaphone or hang out any Bulletins. He simply said that he was glad to see Sep and he should have been, for Seppy had slept two nights in the Day Coach and had just bought a sack of Bananas.

"Bill, it seems to me that you look kind of peaked," said Sep, as he sank into a Leather Chair and tackled Banana No. 8.

"Ah, yes, I have been under a great Strain," replied the unhappy Soul. "You see, just when we got that South African Business all straightened out and were ready for the Coronation, then came the Operation and it upset us dreadfully."

"What are you talking about," asked Sep.

"The Anglo-Saxon Alliance," replied Cousin Bill. "We are now One People. They don't know it, but we are."

"The Alliance cuts very few Lemons out around Peavey's Junction," replied Sep. "Our Idea of the Alliance is to stay Friendly with them as long as they buy our Beef Cattle and Grain."

"Not at all," said Bill. "Our present Policy is to skin them until they are overcome with Admiration and invite us to Dinner. You may not know it, Sep, but New York is the Home of the expensive Meal-Ticket. For instance. Why have I whip-sawed the Market all these years and boned like a Turk and worn my nerves to a blithering Frazzle in this unending Wrassle for the Almighty? Is it because I wish to endow a Presbyterian College or establish Ping-Pong Parlors for plain Working Girls? Not on your Breakfast Food! Right across the Street from us there resides a large Lady who has original Knickerbocker Corpuscles moving up and down in her System. She has Blue Blood and Out of It. We are slathering our Currency and giving her the Office every day or two in the Hope that some Day she will ask us to come over and eat on her. When that gladsome Moment arrives, it's a 50 to 1 Shot that we'll all die of Joy."

"What seems to be your Handicap?" asked Sep. "You were invited to all the Parties when you lived at Peavey's Junction."

"Any one who comes in from the Cockle-Burr District with a Bundle is known as a Newvo Ranah," replied Bill. "I don't know what it means, never having studied the Dead Languages, but it's about the same as a Slob. In other words if you make your own Money you're an Awful Thing, but if some one slips it to you and you've never done anything with it except count it and sprinkle a little Florida Water on it, then you're a Nice Young Fellow. Now you see what I'm up against. I'm guilty of Work and every one is on to me. The best I can hope for is that some of my Grand children will oDctor up my Record and finally draw the Meal Ticket."

"What do you care?" asked Sep. "I wouldn't wear out a whole kit of Tools trying to break into a Refrigerator."

"Ah, Septimus, you do not understand," said the disconsolate Cousin. "I was the Boy who starts in Life on a Hay-Rack and opens has first Cold Bottle at the age of 35 who wants to take his whole Tribe into the Camp of the Elite and swap Visiting Cards with the Vans. Social Recognition has a high Rating because there are only a few Shares on the Market and not because it pays Dividends."

"It seem to me that a Slick Man who can beat almost any kind of a Money Game ought to learn in time how to handle a Combine that's in the hands of a few Elderly Ladies," said Sep.

"I'm afraid that a Man with a tall-grass Training will make Breaks all his Life," replied Bill. "He's always doing what he wants to do, instead of playing Follow your Leader. I started to play Golf this year, not knowing that it was a Dead Card with the 400. As for riding a Wheel, they take a Shot at any one who does that. The Panama Hat is scratched because it is worn by the Common Sort who have to engage in Thought during the Heated Season. Rule No. 1 of the Smart Set is to chop any Diversion that has caught on with the Working Classes. As soon as $3 will pay for a Motor Car and One Year's Subscription, all the real Blue Fish will give their Machines to the Servants and fall to the Air-Ship. Any one with an old-fashioned Hankering for Base Ball and Family Rigs and Drug Store Sody Water and all such Prairie Luxuries has about one Chance in a Million. Even if my Pa's Tastes didn't upset me I suppose I would be disqualified under the Pedigree Clause. I have been trying to classify our Ancestral Tree and I find that it is a Shell-Burk Hickory that has been struck by Lightning several times. It appears that one morning about 200 years ago a Ship was ready to set Sail for the New World and a large number of Foreigners who figured that they couldn't be any worse off, even among the Indians, had booked Passage. One of our Ancestors had made arrangements to sail on that Boat. The night before the Departure he dropped into the Tavern to say Good-Bye. He became all diked up and oversiept himself. When he arrived at the Dock he saw the Ship loaded down with First Families pulling out of the Harbor. That one Jag is what put our whole Family to the Bad. I figure that if he had not missed that Boat, I would be sitting under an Awning at Newport at this very Minute, with some one fanning me. The grand Mistake our Folks made was to come in with the Bunch. Any one living anywhere on the Other Side at present is strictly in it and those who come over in time to qualify for the Colonial Societies are now regarded as it by their distant Relations, but those who have come in during the last Century are simply unplaced."

"I can't see it in that Light at all," said Sep. "I have been reading Ridpath's History of the United States and it says we are all Free and Equal."

"I don't believe it circulates in Our Set," said Bill. "It might, if some one in London would get out a De Luxe Edition."

"Bill," said Sep. "I think you've got the whole Works down pat. It's too bad that you can't guess the Combination."

MORAL: The Betwixt and Between Families know what genuine Grief is.

Fads Cost a Fortune.

On Dress Alone, Mrs. Clarence Mackay Spends $30,000 a Year—Most Original Woman In New York Society.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay, the dashing leader of New York society, with a fortune of almost $40,000,000 at her command, is credited with being the most extravagant young matron in America. She spends annually more than $30,000 on her wardrobe, and this does not include her lavish expenditures for jewelry, which is her pet fad. With an assured Christmas present every year of $25,000 for pin money, and regular allowances on an equally liberal basis, she is easily in position to lead the younger set of women in New York in the matter of extravagance. Mrs. Mackay leans perceptibly toward fads, and one of her latest creations in this direction is to be found in her magnificent country home on Long Island, comprising a mansion and 700 acres of land, which was presented to her by her father-in-law, John W. Mackay. In this house Mrs. Mackay has had constructed the most wonderful bath that has ever been seen in America. It was brought over from Italy and is cut from a solid block of marble, which cost something like $20,000. The pool is sunk in the floor and five broad marble steps lead down to it. The water spouts from the mouths of exquisitely carved marble dolphins. Another feature of the bathroom is a great fireplace built into the side wall of the room. Each of the other twenty-five bathrooms in the house has a luxurious Pompeiian bath let down in the marble floor in the same way.

Mrs. Mackay's suite of rooms is in the western section of the house. The color scheme is lavender and the woodwork French mahogany. The rooms are decorated by high-priced artists, and an odd feature of the doors is that they are sectioned in plate glass panels and have cut glass handles. There are many and big windows in each room.

An elaborate portion of this sumptuous house is reserved exclusively for little Miss Katherine Duer Mackay, who is a most important member of the household. Her apartments are connected with Mrs. Mackay's suite. There are three rooms for Baby Mackay, which are furnished in the daintiest manner, the trimmings and fittings of the French windows all of silver.

At the western end of the house is also the salon and library, and these magnificent rooms look out upon a grand conservatory and a series of Pompeiian columns, which support a great piazza.

From the windows at this side of the house New York can be seen on a clear day, while the northern outlook shows the rippling waters of Hempstead bay, and from the south one can see the ocean beyond a picturesque landscape.

The ballroom is another feature of this palace of splendor. When one first enters the doors this room appears like an immense hallway. It runs the entire length of the house and measures eighty feet in length by forty in width, and is twenty-three feet in height. Wide balconies of carved old English oak decorate the upper story.

To the left of this great room is a great staircase of English oak, which leads to the southwest wing. Other passages to the right terminate in Mr. Mackay's rooms, the billiard and dining rooms.

There is also an Oriental roof garden.

It was Mrs. Mackay's own idea that each of her thirty servants should have a separate room. The rooms are small, but are sunshiny and comfortable.

The culinary section of the house would certainly make housekeepers gasp with surprise. The kitchen alone is a modern marvel. The tradesmen come and go unseen, for they are to enter behind great screens of shrubbery and pass into a courtyard cleverly hidden behind a stone wall.

The broad driveway, which is just one mile from the picturesque lodge gate to the mansion itself, is a tribute to the skill of the landscape gardner. No one can pass through the gates without a card from Mrs. Mackay.

Although spending fabulous sums every year upon gowns and the gratification of little whims regarding fads, Mrs. Mackay is by no means neglectful of the more serious problems of life. She gives fully as much to charity as she spends for her own pleasure, and makes it a rule never to buy herself a bit of finery without giving the equivalent to some deserving person or institution.

People start at her so much when she drives out in New York that she wears a veil covered with heavy lace flounces that completely hides her features like a mask. She is a beauty, with dark hair, dark eyes, and an exquisite figure. Her gowns are the best that can be bought. Jewelry is her pet fad, and she has one of the finest collections of jewels in America. One ring is a Hindu curio which cost $27,000. It covers three fingers and is of old yellow Chinese gold set with rare rubies, diamonds and emeralds. Among her furs is a single coat of sealskins and sables which cost $7000.

Mrs. Mackay is justly reputed to be the most original woman in New York society. She furnishes the surprises, fashions and fads for the young members of Gotham's smart set, and the distinction of having inaugurated baby parties in this country belongs to her. She is the wife of a man whose fortune may be estimated at $35,000,000, and has a millionaire father-in-law who honors her extravagance as he does that of his wife. She is the mistress of one of the most beautiful country homes in America, and yet her friends say she has not been spoiled by all this lavishness. She always has time to be pleasant to everyone, and, although she entertains constantly, she never neglects her little daughter for society.

Stationery is one of Mrs. Mackay's many fads. It is all in violet, and, because she thinks a red 2-cent stamp is inharmonious on a violet envelope, she uses the 3-cent stamp instead.

"What you doin' neighbor? Helping Bill. What's Bill doin'? Helping Mandy. What's Mandy doin'? Helping mother. What's mother doin'? Taking Rocky Mountain Tea. Sensible family. Ask your druggist.

The Whirl Of Politics

The past week has been something of a breathing spell in the local political field. Only two or three candidates have filed for nominations, and these have not been for any of the offices to which public attention is likely to be particularly directed during the fight that is now opening up. There have been no new candidates for sheriff this week, and the list still includes only William C. Sargent, John T. Armstead, William W. Butchart and Archie Philip. All of these gentlemen are out in the thick of the fight, regardless of the hot weather, and the most that can be said at this time is that there is not one of them that is without some following. What the extent of the respective followings will be events will have to determine. John R. Meining has not yet filed, neither has he taken his eye off the game, and he may be expected to cut in any time he sees a favorable opening.

A little interest has been added to the situation in the Fiftieth legislative district, so far as the fight for positions in the house of representatives is concerned, S. H. Eckman, of the law firm of Eckman & Stevenson, having filed for the Republican nomination for the house. This makes three candidates, Capt. J. R. Randall and Capt. Ray T. Lewis having filed some time ago, and, therefore, as there are but two places at the disposal of the voters of the district, there are not enough jobs to go around.

There appears to be a prospect of a lively fight for the Republican nomination for county commissioner in Fred Kugler's district, the Second. Louis R. Helbing, Fred Sahlberg and George Schulenberg have all filed, and all three are reputed to have political strength that will stand them in good stead in the contest. Mr. Kugler will be a candidate for re-election, but his filing will be for nomination on the Democratic ticket.

Politicians are taking a good deal of interest in the rulings that are coming out of the attorney general's office just now on the primary election law. One of the most startling is that which deprives those who are changing their party from a voice in the primaries. The law says that in order to be eligible to attend the primaries a voter must have supported the ticket he desires to vote generally at the last election, and must intend to support it at the coming election. C. W. Somerby, assistant attorney general, has given an opinion that this means just what it says, and that a man who changes his party this year will have to let an election elapse before he can get into the primaries. Of course if he voter is unchallenged he may get through all right, but if he is challenged he must swear that he supported the ticket he calls for at the last election.

There are different opinions about whether or not this is just the proper thing. Some say that it is not right to deprive a man of a voice in the selection of candidates simply because he happens to be changing his party, while others say that when a man changes it is just as well that he should serve an apprenticeship before being admitted to the same footing in that party as that enjoyed by members of long standing.

Another matter, not so important, is the question of whether a candidate, having filed for a nomination, can get out of the game again. The Hennepin county attorney said he could not pull out, and the attorney general's office says he can. Both agree that he cannot get his filing fee back, which is probably the only vital point in the controversy.

The trial of the primary election law on county and district elections is going to be more interesting than any political fight of the year. One of the important questions is whether the farmers are going to attend the primaries. If they do not it may lead to much dissatisfaction, as it would throw that element of the parties out of control, if they have it, or keep them from getting it if they aim to have it. If the farmers do not attend, the cities will manage things, and that will probably result in the farmers turning out en masse the next time.

Numerous criticisms of the law are being made, and a determined effort is being made in some quarters to create discontent with the law and secure its repeal. During the state conventions there were some delegates "knocking" it, and as a general thing the character of the law's opponents formed a pretty good argument why it should be continued. Those who hope for decency in politics are almost unanimously in favor of its continuance unless it should unexpectedly turn out to be a complete failure.

The congressional campaign in the Eighth district, on the Republican side of the fence, is warming up every day. During the week the J. Adam Bede organization was completed, with strong officers and workers, headquarters were established at 201 Torrey building, the old Morris headquarters, and arrangements begun to carry the organization out into the other ten counties of the district. The announcement was made during the week that Guy A. Eaton, the well-known dealer in iron and pine lands, would be the chairman of the campaign committee, and Alderman Roland D. Haven, president of the city council, was made secretary. These selections have given the utmost satisfaction, and the committee has taken hold of the work in a very promising manner.

Edison headquarters have not yet been opened up in Duluth, but Judge Edson is out continually in other counties and upon the ranges, mixing with the voters and seeking after a more intimate acquaintance with them than he had when he started into the campaign.

Where could Brother Dare have possibly got the impression that gave rise to the following comment in his Elk River Star-News:

"The principal business of a governor seems to be to act as a star attraction at all kinds of entertainments, from a street fair to college commencements. It needs a man of perfectly healthy physique to stand the strain, but the mental attributes are not particularly essential."

The Buffalo Lake News says "It was voting for the party instead of for the man that gave Minneapolis the rotten administration she has now." There is a long political sermon in those few words.

A. DeLacey Wood, the veteran newspaper man and champion starter of country weeklies, is in the harness again. He has issued No. 1 of Vol. 1 of the Benton County Democrat, with S. A. Clark as business manager, and the paper will preach pure Democracy. Benton county, though it is Democratic, has no Democratic organ, so the paper aims to fill "a long-felt want."

The Anoka Herald says: "A crooked game of politics may win for a time, but a memorial tablet eventually marks the spot where reposes the aspirations of the gamester."

To which the Milaca Times adds: "It is now up to the Herald to enlighten an anxious public as to what constitutes a straight game of politics. Most of us have failed to run across any but the crooked kind."

The Republicans are preparing to have ratification meetings in every county immediately after the primary election, when the nominations at the primaries will be approved, the campaign committees appointed, and platforms issued. This is designed to overcome the alleged attack of the primary election system upon party organization.

The Aitkin Age says that it is reported there that the Duluth crowd is considering the withdrawal of Judge Edson from the congressional contest and making Bede's nomination unanimous. The Age adds:

"They realize that while the judge may be a very nice old gentleman, he is practically unknown outside the village limits of Duluth and that the work in which he has been engaged since he took up his residence in that town is not exactly fit training to develop congressional timber. It would not be surprising if Edson's name was withdrawn at any time.

"On the other hand, Mr. Bede is acquainted in every county in the district. For six years he has campaigned throughout the state, until today, as a campaign orator, as a public lecturer and as a humorist, he enjoys a reputation that extends throughout the land. A laboring man himself, J. Adam Bede is in close touch and ready sympathy with those who earn their daily bread by the sweat of their brow."

Early in August J. Adam Bede will start his speaking campaign. He may make a few speeches out in the district, but his most large meeting will be at West Duluth, for which purpose Great Eastern hall will be engaged for a date to be arranged later. Once launched, Mr. Bede proposes to keep right on speaking up to the close of the campaign.

Bede's Budget thus refers to the Democratic candidate for governor, the conclusion, of course, being from a Republican standpoint:

"Leonard S. Rosing, the Democratic nominee for governor of Minnesota, is a gentleman of good executive ability and many excellent parts, which he will have no chance to display in this Rooseveltian commonwealth."

A. De Lacey Wood's new paper, the Benton County Democrat, sounds the slogan thus:

"The people are in the fight for Rosing and Smith for our head executive officers, and no hypocritical war cry will swerve the voters from their path of duty."

Apparently the campaign is not being conducted in all parts of the state with the composure and brotherly love that ought to prevail. Some of the county editors are beginning to talk turkey to each other. There is an example of what ought not to be in the way the Red Lake Falls Gazette addresses the Courier, as follows:

"The Courier should have sent a 10-year-old boy with a grain of honesty in his make-up to report the Republican mass meeting last week, instead of inflicting upon that gathering the editor whose account of the meeting, instead of being a fair statement of facts, is nothing less than the malignant vomitings from the stomach of a disturbed political grafter."

The Republican voters of the range who belong to the Italian race are organizing. A preliminary organization was made at Eveleth recently, with William D. Beslow as president and David C. Christopher as secretary, and the club will be known as the Mesaba Italian McKinley club. Branch organizations will be made at all range points.

Here is another utterance from a Republican paper showing the respect with which L. A. Rosing, the Democratic candidate for governor, is regarded by the enemy:

"The selection of L. A. Rosing as Democratic candidate for governor is probably as good as any the party has made for a good many campaigns. Like Senator Hanna, Mr. Rosing has been held up to ridicule by the cartoonists as a very bad character, but those who know him best bear him no ill will, and he is undoubtedly as clean and capable a man as the convention could pick under the circumstances. While there is no probability of his election, there can be no ground for ridicule or mud-slinging on the part of the Republicans."

The Mesaba Ore notes that Hibbing is the only town on the iron range that has failed to come to the scratch with a candidate for county office.

It also finds that Archie Philip, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff, is meeting with flattering encouragement in his canvass.

The Ore brings up the report that C. W. Kimberly, of Eveleth, will oppose P. E. Dowling for the nomination for the house in the Forty-ninth district, and predicts that he will have a walkaway.

The Tribunal says that E. F. Alford, ex-member of the legislature from the Forty-ninth district, has moved to Hunter's Park, in the Fifty-first district, and the Tribunal supposes he will not be averse to being a candidate for the legislature from his new district.

J. T. Armstead is making a vigorous canvass for the Republican nomination for sheriff, and his acquaintance with the laundry business will doubtless enable him to make a clean job of it.

The Post Check.

A bill has been before congress to retire the present five, two and one dollar bills and substitute notes, payable at any postoffice, which shall pass as currency. If it becomes a law it will prove as invaluable to many forms of business as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is to those who are weak and sickly. To such persons this medicine will prove a blessing, because it contains only such ingredients as will build up the stomach and restore the appetite and cure heartburn, belching, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and insomnia. Don't fail to try it, but do not accept a substitute, if you value your health. There is no medicine so good as the Bitters. For sale by druggists.

A GIRL'S TRIAL

THE STORY OF MISS KRESS FINDS MUCH SYMPATHY.

Her Escape Recalls to Many Women Experiences Through Which They Have Passed.

Many girls can sympathize with Miss Anna Kress of No. 313 West Milwaukee street, Watertown, Wis., and many from their own experience can join with her in prasing the remedy which brought her relief. In speaking of it, she said recently:

"I had cramping pains in my stomach which affected my whole system. I was nervous and very weak, and had no color at all. For six months I suffered and could hardly move, I felt so tired and worn out. Then, it was about a year ago, I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I took them, and in a few days felt better, and continued their use until I became well and strong, with a healthy color in my face. I recommend them to everybody afflicted as I was."

In order that no doubt might exist as to the accuracy of her statement, Miss Kress took affidavit to it before Charles A. Skinner, a notary public in Watertown, June 24, 1901.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will not only effect a cure in cases similar to that above, acting directly upon the blood and nerves, are an unfailing specific for such diseases as partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and all forms of weakness, either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. BROAD AND MUSCULAR

Must Be the Waist of Woman According to Present Ideas.

Summer Shirt Waists Buttoned In the Back, With Shoulder Plaits and Rows of Trimming Straight Across Front.

New York, July 26.—The Sandow girl is in style. The new shirt waists are built so that a woman looks twice as wide as she is.

In her skirts she looks narrower, for skirts are very clinging and they are fitted as far down as the knees. But with the waist it is different. Here the figure must be broad and apparently muscular, so that the measurement woman comes very near being topheavy.

The new waists are made with the shoulder plait. This is a fold of cloth which is put on in such a manner that it projects over the shoulders, in certain shape. It is called the "Gibsonian," and its immediate effect is to make the shoulders look very wide. It is really more becoming to a slender woman than to a plump one, but both styles are wearing it and you are gradually getting used to the woman who looks twice as broad as she did in the spring.

Sleeves display the same peculiarity. They are tucked in rows of tucking running around the arm and they are trimmed with bands of lace going round and round, all of which tend to make the sleeve large and the arm big.

Waists as a rule show the trimming put on, not from the neck to the belt, but around the figure and lace is used in a great variety of other ways always running around.

There is one kind of lace trimming which is very nice and dressy upon the summer shirt waist, and which, fortunately, is of a sort that can be put on at home. It consists of a wide band of lace insertion sometimes six inches wide, and this is put around the waist directly under the arms, fastening in the back.

There is another way of using lace upon the waist, and for this, if it be a nice waist, filet lace is used. It is first seen in the form of a yoke, rather deep; then there is a band of it around the bottom of the shirt waist, so as to come in under the belt. A hip yoke on the skirts sets below the belt. Ther "ere are cuffs of the same lace.

It is the apparent desire of e summer shirt waist to close itself invisibly. You must not see how the little trick is done. There are a few waists that hook under the arms, but these are hard to get into and still harder to get out of. Moreover, the hooks show, or are apt to do so, and they do not wash well.

The waist that buttons down the back is quite the fad. It is buttoned in various ways, the most popular of which, just for the moment, is under an invisible flap, making it impossible to see where the waist closes. A fold runs down the back of the waist on either side of the flap, looking exactly like it.

The front of such a waist as this bears no resemblance whatever to the back. It is plain, as far as buttons are concerned, though it may be profusely trimmed with lace, or embroidery, or with ribbon, or whatever may be the chosen style of the garment.

The waist that buttons a little at one side of the front is very artistic, and in the new ones it is seen with small bows of ribbon fastening it, each little bow being tied around a button. But these buttons are only a bluff, the real work being done by small pearl ones set underneath and buttoned invisibly.

The waist that buttons at one side is not of the double-breasted variety. One side is cut wider than the other and the waist is buttoned where the edges met, making it quite cool and different from the very heavy double-breasted style.

Skirts are now fastened to defy observation, and waists are fast following their lead. Some of the new London styles are really very cleverly contrived, and the buttoning down the back is managed by means of curious little hooks greatly resembling glove snaps.

Everything these days must be done in a washable manner; garments that cannot be tubbed are not popular during the summer months, and it is the aim of every woman who dresses smartly to wear clothes that can be put in the tub and rubbed.

The tailor made summer girl is specially built on this order, and it is her boast that all her garments can be washed. Really, there are a great many summer dresses, wash dresses, so called, that cannot be washed. They must be sent to the cleaners for the magical process and their renovation costs by the season's end a little fortune; but that is quite another story, and one that is apparently not taken into account by the dressmakers and designers when they get up the summer wash dresses.

The summer shirt waist, when not trimmed with lace—and sometimes when it is lace trimmed—is hand embroidered. A little hand-embroidery, no matter how little of it there may be, gives a certain air of distinction to a waist not to be gained in any other way.

Then there are waists that are entirely embroidered, and these possess a very great value on account of the hand work that is upon them.

There are a few shirt waists made out of handkerchief linen with the fronts embroidered in white, a large design coming from the belt upward so that the upper leaves and sprays just touch the neck. These are done in white cotton, with a glossy finish and the whole has a very fine, sheer and elegant look.

The blouse front still prevails and is even more popular than it was. The entire waist does not blouse, but is quite on the tight-fitting order except right in the middle of the front where it touches over the belt.

In Paris they are pointing this pouch to give the waist a long look, but the London shirt waists have a square blouse front which shortens the waist a little, but is more becoming to the figure.

Shirt waists are bought every month in the year, and from month to month the materials change almost imperceptibly, and you will notice that you yourself buy different materials as the season goes on, and from one goods you progress to another. Just now there are two extremes in shirt waists, one being the very thin, fine afternoon waist, and the other the heavier one for utility. Madras in white and in colors is deservedly popular and can be seen in white, pale blue and pink.

White Irish dimity is always good and linen zephyr has a certain cool quality which makes it in demand at all times. Both of these wear very well, and now that the golf season is here this is no small consideration. In th cheavier waists there is butcher's linen, which lends itself nicely to the embroidery needle, and white pique, while heavy can also be embroidered if th stitches are not too long or the patterns too coarse.

Duck really adapts itself better to the polka dot, or, as the French say, the rain drop, and to the French knot, and really beautiful effects are produced in this everyday material by judicious arrangement of the polka dot.

Dotted Swiss is something that is very well known, and this year they are taking dots and scattering French knots through them. The Swiss is bought with as large dots as possible; then, upon these, French knots are made. If industry holds out the French knots are scattered over the goods between the polka dots, and the whole has a very neat look and is quite distinctive, because it is something that can not be bought ready made.

And, by the way, the perjudice against read-made garments is wearing off. People who once felt that they did not want to wear what everybody else is wearing have now forgotten that idea because of the wide range of goods offered. It has come to a pass that you can buy ready-made dresses and yet travel a whole day without seeing another dress exactly like your own.

The August waist promises to be a 10-cent shirt waist. Now, this does not mean that the whole waists costs 10 cents, but it is an economical way of saying that your waist was only 10 cents a yard. Materials are very much reduced and certain linens, albatross, cotton grenadine, mousseline, cotton foulard, crash, twills, dimities and sporting linens, can all be had at 10 cents a yard or a little over. So, also, can percales and cotton prints, and there are new transparent canvasses with open-work stripes that are very good for tubable suits.

Unfortunately, it is not the goods that cost these days, but the trimming that goes upon the goods, and it is no unusual thing to see a waist whose materials certainly cost less than $1 trimmed with insertion that certainly cost more than a dollar.

The elbow sleeve is the sleeve of the summer, but it can not always be worn. There are times when, however comfortable you may be in such a sleeve, you do not care to wear it, and for this purpose, than of lengthening the sleeve, there comes the mandolin cuff, which is a deep adjustable puff or lawn or cotton slashed at one side in such a way that lace can be pulled out of the slash. This makes something that looks like a fringe or a flounce sen onti the sleeve.

There come very nice little gold pins for pinning the cuff to the elbow sleeve. The cuff is of course, another name for the great puff which reaches all the way from the elbow to the wrist and which is finished with a narrow, cuff-like point.

The athletic girl must look to her laurels this season, for the languishing girl is coming back, they say. The frivolous, dainty, truly feminine creature that once turned men's heads and diverted because of their contrast to everything vigorously masculine, threatens a new invasion, and the athletic girls dies hard, therefore a rather composite type. The vanity of the athletic girl has stood a strenuous campaign, and she has shown no end of pluck in a brave display of yellow-brown arms and freckled nose, and hair tanned in streaks.

It was hard for the girl of last season's victories to make innovations until ping pong furnished a practical reason, and that has become the excuse for a dozen new and fascinating little extravagances. Being a drawing-room game, the drawing room girl is having some glorious innings, with the graceful long skirts, smart shoes and stockings and other accessories of an unusually elaborate fashion year.

She was never seen to better advantage, this indoor athletic girl, with her skirts held tight in her one hand, while she plays with the other. If she is wise she will pay particular attention to the frills on the bottom of her frock and on her petticoats, for they will show and be very dainty and chic on the reverse. Her shoes are the newest things in patent leather, her stockings are as fine as real lace, with her initials or monogram worked in silk, beads, and even hand-painted. If she plays in one of the public room she wears a hat, and then she suggests, in the poise and swing of her body, a well-rigged ship under full sail. York are wearing charming frocks at ping The most fashionable women in New pong, and William C. Whitney, who was the first to have private ping-pong outfits for both town and his country house, manages to have some marvelously gowned woman among the guests at his parties. Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish are devotees, and each has a room in her house fitted up for the game.

A fetching costume seen lately in the big ping-pong and billiard room at the Waldorf was worn by a Miss Roosevelt —an elusive creation of ecru lace over white silk, interlined with a pale shade of yellow chiffon that gives to the lace an indescribably soft tint of cream. Black velvet ribbon finished the bottom of the skirt, and flounce upon flounce of pink chiffon was used as a balayeuse. The young lady showed off the gown to perfection, handling her skirts with much skill and with a delicacy that kept on the safe side of the line that divides that manner of doing from the exaggerated vulgarity seen so much on the street this year.

The gold girl is still on the tapis and thereatens to go on forever. Her playing is more scientific than ever. She is much more in earnest than ever as to both game and costume, and there is not a particle of nonsense about her. Her costume is always a short skirt, shirt waist and belt, low-heeled calf or canvas shoes, and when she has a hat on her head, which is seldom, it is a sailor or one of the many severe Alpine shapes. But there is a chance for the most ultra little touches about the costume.

Shoes must be as mannish as possible. Every other sort looks absurd. Stockings bitions are "old-fashioned," in reality it is the girl who is dictating as to what she shall or shall not do in the way of enjoying herself, having a "jolly good time," with no interference from you.

Yet there is no more imperative duty among all your varied and manifold duties than this of directing and guiding these headstrong willful, precocious young women, that they may not come to grief and loss their dower of modesty, which in itself is the very greatest charm and protection of a woman.

It is only necessary for you, if you care, to realize the seriousness of your position in the matter of careful, unremitting watchfulness, to quietly consider the first crowd of girls, between 14 and 18 years of age, let us say, that you meet, either on the street, the cars, trains, or when simply visiting; not when your own girl is along, but when your presence is unobserved and you ca ntake mental noes. Make every allowances for youthful spirits, for the superabundant vitality of the healthy girl; be lenient and broad in your judgment, and then ask yourself if in speech and demeanor they are what you would with them to be.

And, lest it be supposed that your young sons are not given to rudeness, watch the boys you encounter in your various outings also; note how badly the majority of them stend in need of parental correction, and see to it that the rudiments of good behavior are taught yours at home, beside your keen, at your own table, in your own presence, that they may learn how to behave properly abroad.

Your first impulse when you meet an impolite boy is to say, or think, "how much his mother is to blame," now isn't it? Do you not always recognize the fact that he has not been properly trained at home? And who is to do the training if not his mother?

Boys soon learn that their crowns are apt to be broken by those to whom they are rude, but girls do not learn this lesson, at least not in the same fashion, and, as they are usually allowed their own way at home, have no consideration for others. For every girl that is so reared without the proper control there may be generations to bear the consequences. If her lack of modesty, of correctness, of demeanor, of gentleness and discretion began and ended with herself it would not so much matter. But far into futurity, far beyond, in the years to come, there will live her children and their children; her posterity, dear, indulgent mother, who are thinking only of your young daughters' pleasure now.

It is chiefly in the matter of association with boys and young men that your utmost care and espionage must be used. If your innocent little maid saw things with your eyes, recognizing unworthiness even when cloaked with suave and gallant bearing, there would be no danger; no chance of her freedom of manner being misunderstood, because she would, being forewarned, be forearmed. This can not be. Therefore her best, indeed, only safeguard, is that of an absolutely modest demeanor; an abhorrence of loudness in tone or action under any circumstances; a gentleness of deportment that makes it impossible for the veriest ruffian to be aught but subdued in her presence. And all this is to be your work, dear mother; you must keep your precious charge pure and sweet and with the bloom of her purity upon her by constant, unceasing care within her own home. It is there she must imbibe those principles of chastity, of noble and tender impulses which make her but a little lower than the angels and secure for her the love, admiration and respect of all who know her.

Judging from observations, many a mother thinks the teaching of her little maid can all be hired and paid for by the hour; that along with the study of her music, her mathematics and languages, she is to be taught moral and personal lessons as well. Teachers will tell you, dear mother, how soon they can judge of a girl's general deportment; and how rejoiced they are in spirit when they realize that their best efforts are supplemented by proper home training. So you see you can not be replaced in this duty; neither can any substitute be found whose interests are as great as yours in the upbringing into the perfect woman the dear little maid whose future lies in your hands to make or mar.

THE HOME AND ITS MISTRESS

By Emma Irene McLagan.

The mistress of a home, who is also the mother of four young daughters, has a difficult and ungrateful path to tread. It is so the fashion nowadays for youth to take precedence that parental authority seems to be no longer effectual, nor is it considered in this age of enlightenment.

If you would but acknowledge it, dear mother of bright, charming and altogether lovely schoolgirl daughters, you would have to confess that your admonitions and suggestions as to deportment fall upon deaf ears. You are unceremoniously thrust into the background. Your views, ideas, prohi-

MOTHERS MUST GUIDE

Should Watch the Physical Development of Their Daughters. Earnest Words From Mrs. Pinkham to Mothers.

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

The following letters from Mrs. Southard are practical proof of Mrs. Pinkham's efficient advice to young women.

Mothers Who Allow Their Daughters to Suffer are Cruel When Relief is Easily Obtained. Read This Mother's Experience.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish advice in regard to my daughter. She is thirteen years old and never menstruated. We have had the doctor to her and he said she did not have enough blood. She has been taking iron for three months but is no better. In the morning she vomits, some days she cannot keep anything on her stomach until twelve o'clock. If she tries to do anything she gets faint. Has headache all the time, is as white as marble with great dark rings under her eyes. Please write and tell me what to do as I am discouraged with the doctor."—MRS. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phœnix Mills, N.Y. (Jan. 19, 1900.)

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last January I wrote you about my daughter, and told you what our family doctor said about her. I saw another doctor and he said she had quick consumption. After receiving your letter, I began giving her your remedies, and after taking four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and four of Blood Purifier, she is now well and strong as ever. Menses have appeared and are regular. I can never praise your remedies enough for they saved my daughter's life."—MRS. CHAS. SOUTHARD, Phœnix Mills, N.Y. (Dec. 16, 1900.)

Any young girl or any mother is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice in regard to her sickness. No one has had greater experience or success in guiding mothers and their daughters to health. Thousands have trusted her and are glad. She charges nothing for advice. Write to-day.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Blackberries are at their best this month, and I found an old recipe that seemed to be a trifle unusual—tried it and give it as reliable. Jam is really the best way to preserve small fruits; they retain their flavor better than when cooked into an almost too sweet conserve. Allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit; put the latter on to boil in water to cover and add the thin, very thin, yellow rind of one lemon and its juice to every two pounds; put in also a few—two or three is enough for five pounds of fruit—small bits of ginger root. Stew slowly until the berries will mash; add the sugar and cook very slowly until quite thick; you will find when to take it from the fire by dipping a spoonful into a saucer; it thickens a great deal while cooling. Remove the ginger; it does not soften enough to be pleasant in the jam.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

"A Night In Bohemia," the Elks' Production, to Be Great Performance.

Best Comedians and Best Singers of the City Will Be Seen--Barbour Company Continues at Moon Bros.' Theater.

It is safe to say that those who fail to attend the coming production of "A Night in Bohemia," by the Elks, will miss the best local show that has ever been given in Duluth. It will be given at the Lyceum Aug. 4and 5.

The plot of the story is woven around Edmund Keene, a retired actor. The sentiment embodied in the lines of the old Bohemian furnish that "little touch of nature that makes the whole world kin."

Robert Cox as the old Bohemian has a part for which he is particularly adapted. Leslie Hubbel as Dusty Rhodes, John Doran as Callahan, the clever little Lamb children as Tommy and Dolly, Dr. McNulty as Frohman, and Charles Applehagen as Fletcher, furnish the comedy, and tell the story of the piece, while about fifty of Duluth's best singers furnish the songs and dances and specialties.

Among the specialties are some of the latest New York successes. "The Ping Pong Girls" will be given by the Misses Ethel Thetz, Laura Lessard, Gertrude Hoopes, Isabel Fawcett, Florence Howard and Miss James.

Rogers Bros.' latest success, "The Wedding of Reuben and the Maid," will be sung by the Misses Carroll, Pennington and West, and Messrs. McNulty, Mason and Carroll.

"Tell Me, Gentle Maiden," a travesty on the sextet from "Florodora," will be sung by Mrs. McAuliffe, Misses Smith and Farrell, Messrs. Lansing, Robinson, Applehagan and Love.

"The Willie Boys," will be sung by Mrs. James McAuliffe, Misses Smith, Everington, Carroll, West and Farrell, and "The Gay Girls from Paree" by Mrs. King, Misses Piper, Alexander and Everington.

A little burlesque, "That's How It's Done on the Stage," will be presented by Miss Minnie Schultz, Miss Georgia Alexander, Messrs. Schultz, McCormack and Mathews.

Besides the above list there will be about fifteen other songs, medleys and duets, enough to please anybody.

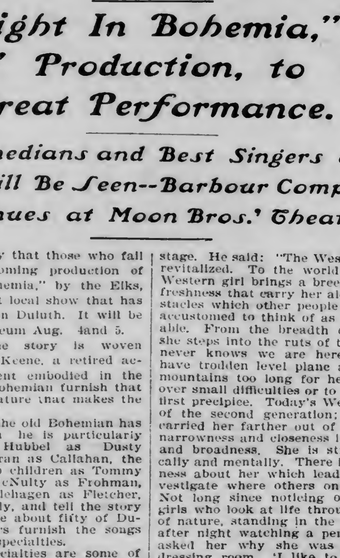

MOON BROS.' THEATER.

The second week of the Barbour Theater company at Moon Bros.' theater has added still more to the popularity of both company and theater. Each evening a clean, refined performance liberally interspersed with entertaining specialties has been presented, and every attention paid to comfort and pleasure of the patrons. Opposition in other lines of amusement has been very strong this week, but the Barbour Theater company has held its own, and certainly drew its share of the public patronage. "A Western Heroine," a four-act comedy drama, was the bill last night, and judging from the laughter and applause was universally satisfactory. Nellie Stark again demonstrated her versatility by cleverly playing a strong leading soubrette part.

"The Little Girl with the Big Voice," the muchly advertised and heralded vaudeville feature, made her first appearance and immediately proved that the claims made for her were not extravagant. She certainly is by far the cleverest child artist ever seen here. For tonight the same program is announced.

JAMES AND WARDE.

"The Tempest," which Managers Wagenhals and Kemper have selected for the joint starring tour of Louis James and Frederick Warde next season, is perhaps less familiar to latter day play-goers than any other of Shakespeare's comedies. It will likely be hailed, however, as the greater novelty for that. The success of this well known theatrical firm in making Shakespeare popular with the masses has been almost unique. Their production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" during a tour of thirty-five weeks is conservatively estimated to have earned an aggregate sum of nearly a quarter of a million dollars. This is but another way of saying that more people saw this play than had ever seen it before during the same space of time. With the methods they are to adopt in presenting "The Tempest" they will doubtless achieve similar results. Enough of the details of the production have been already announced to ensure it being one of the most elaborate and alluring Shakespearean spectacles ever taken on tour.

"THE LITTLE GIRL WITH THE BIG VOICE."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

The Western Girl Brings Freshness to the Stage.

New York, July 26.—Henry W. Savage devoted one afternoon this week to expounding at considerable length as to the value of the Western girl upon the stage. He said: "The West is the East revitalized. To the world of art the Western girl brings a breeziness and a freshness that carry her along over obstacles which other people have grown accustomed to think of as insurmountable. From the breadth of the West she steps into the ruts of the East and never knows we are here. Her feet have trodden level plane and crinkled mountains too long for her to tumble over small difficulties or to fall over the first precipice. Today's Western girl is of the second generation; enthusiasm carried her farther out of the Eastern narrowness and closeness into strength and broadness. She is strong, physically and mentally. There is a fearlessness about her which leads her to investigate where others only observed. Not long since noticing one of these girls who look at life through the eyes of nature, standing in the wings night after night watching a performance, I asked her why she was not in the dressing room. 'I like to watch the others,' she said, 'and to think how I would act the parts.' The girl did not say, 'I could do it like the others.' That would have been imitation. She had no idea of anything but her own conception of how things should be done. Given a chance, she would do them in her own way, too, and probably to the satisfaction of her audience. And the evidence of Western breadth and depth is observable in the voices, deep mezzo sopranos and round, full contraltos, as the rule. Western girls sing because nature intended they should. They have good lungs and well poised, evenly developed bodies, because of their naturalness, they are devoid of self-consciousness, and they adapt themselves readily to conditions. In 'The Prince of Pilsen' there is a song in which each stanza concerns a city represented by a different girl. When the parts were being cast a girl who was raised on a Wyoming ranch asked to play Chicago. We gave it to her, and from the first performance she has never stopped building up her conception of the part. The other girls, who were all Easterners, were content to sing their stanzas well and to wear with grace the gloves and dresses furnished by the management. The little Wyoming girl added first a pair of gloves, then more characteristic shoes. Each night she improved upon the singing, and also introduced original business, until her own stanza became a really artistic conception which stood out distinctly from the rest. This girl is typical of all Western girls.

"Japan By Night" had only been running one evening on the Madison Square Roof Garden when the audience noticed that, in the production of "The Mikado" there was some love-making far too genuine to be entirely stage-work. It was between Nanki Poo, played by Grafton Baker, and Yum Yum, who was Miss Grace Orr Myers. Even the manager was interested, and in reply to his question the pair admitted that they had been quietly married the day before the show opened.

"King" Duss, as that bandmaster delights to call himself, hit upon a novel scheme for advertising his concerts. He set adrift 300 tightly corked bottles, in which were prizes ranging from a season ticket to a single admission, then he hired a tub cruising up and down off Coney Island. He threw them overboard, not, however, until the papers had been carefully notified in advance. A small proportion of the bottles have come ashore and 500 more will be thrown overboard next week.

Frank Daniels ran down from his summer home one day this week and explained to a crowd of friends outside the Casino that there was really no truth in the report that he is to abandon the comic opera stage for vaudeville. Daniels admitted that he had received a flattering offer from one enterprising manager to do so; in fact, he confided under the strictest pledge of secrecy that the salary offered was $5,000. Then he added: "It is so seldom that I did have a chance to make this much money that I did not dare accept the offer. It might have got me into bad habits. Vaudeville will have to struggle along the best it can without me. I would be ashamed to take the money, in the first place, and besides I have not been introduced to that manager."

Miss MacLane will pay no visits while she is in New York. A. Texin Worm, the person of publicity proclivities who was responsible for the tan-bark story regarding Mrs. Patrick Campbell and other things, says so. Mr. Worm now schemes to blazon the prowess of Elizabeth Kennedy, who will star next season in "Captain Jinks." The actress really is a friend of the Misses Monroe, who acted as the toothbrush heroine's hostess in Chicago.

Miss Kennedy invited the Butte girl to visit her during her stay in Manhattan, but this morning she received a sad note saying that sights would occupy all the poor girl's time while she was here, and that she would have to satisfy herself with hostelry fare.

That young woman of the galvanized finished lungs, Emma Carus, has come to the fore again, and all on account of a little covey of pigeons used in the second act of "The Defender." Here is a letter she sent last night to A. H. Chamberlyn, producer of the piece:

"Would you please be good enough to see that the pigeons used by Miss Eldridge are not on the stage during the rainbow song? They distract attention from the song. I shall refuse to go on unless they are cut out. Carrier pigeons, which fly, and do not walk on the stage, like a lot of chickens, are used. EMMA CARUS."

Miss Carus' rivals will be caged in the future.

Bolossy Kiralfy came to town this week to complete arrangements for costumes for his open-air spectacle, "The Orient," which he is to produce at the Canadian exhibition at Toronto. He has brought over from London the production used at the Olympia in that city, but many of the costumes have to be replaced.

Smith, the writer of libbrettos; his brother Robert, who has had considerable success in the same direction, and their two sisters will within a few days divide a fortune of $120,000 which was left to them by an uncle, who died some time ago in Buffalo. Robert Smith has been seriously ill with malarial fever at Far Rockaway, and this has caused a lengthy delay in settling the estate.

Walter N. Lawrence has received a letter from James K. Hackett, now in Paris, in which he says he has bought a new romantic comedy by two well known French writers, which he intends for Miss Isabel Irving after her season in "The Crisis." It will be an elaborate costume production, and Mr. Hackett will bring the designs and plates from abroad.

The Green Room club has been successfully launched, and is now moored at No. 139 West Forty-seventh street, the home of the Actors' Order of Friendship. A bond issue of $5,000 has been authorized for interior work and furniture and this amount was quickly subscribed. The new organization will be in complete working order about October 1, and it has already about 200 members. It was distinctly understood that the club was not to compete with the Lambs or the Players, instead the principal object will be to promote sociability in the profession in modest quarters and at very reasonable figures. The following committees were appointed: Finane, DeWolf Hopper, W. K. Crane, Stuart Robson, Joseph R. Geismer and Clay M. Greene; House, Frank W. Sanger, William Harris, Charles Dickson, Eugene Jepson, Thomas McGrath, Bernard Reinold and Milton Nobles.

Miss Georgiana Pitcher, a young Newark society woman, has, because of family reverses, decided to go upon the stage. Her father was for many years a prominent insurance man in this city. He once made a contract with a company that was the talk of the insurance world. This company offered him its presidency with a big salary. The latter he refused, saying he would rather make it a dollar for every time he signed his name as president. The salary would in the end have saved thousands of dollars for the company. Misfortune overtook the family and Miss Pitcher has obtained an engagement with James K. Hackett. She will have the role of Anne Brinsmade when "The Crisis" is produced here in the fall.

Ben Jerome, who wrote "Bloomin' Life," has completed a one-act comic opera tire, entitled "The Queen of Balleyhoo Bey," which is soon to be seen on a local roof garden. The travesty involves ten principal roles, as many subordinate parts and forty auxiliaries. All the characters are impersonated by just four men, the construction of the piece being such that doubling up is practicable as well as one of the designed sources of the play's fun.

Victor Mapes, a nephew of Mary Mapes Dodge, is busying himself with great energy to stage direction. Although a very young man he was Augustin Daly's general stage director at the time of the latter's death. Last season he wrote and staged "Don Caesar's Return" for James K. Hackett. Next season he will direct the rehearsals of Haddon Chamber's "The Tyranny of Tears," in which Paul Gilmore will star under the direction of Jules Murry.

Truly the hot weather is powerless when it comes to straddling the artistic soul of the press sagent. This effort deserves publication simply as an example of what such a person is capable of inflicting: "Considerable attention was given a little incident at the Grand Central station recently when a young lady, carrying a large satchel, and accompanied by a maid and two dogs, passed through the gates preparatory to a trip to New Haven. As the lady was about to step on the car an elderly good-natured looking man, accidentally jostled against her, causing her to drop the heavily laden satchel. 'Oh, my pet corn,' exclaimed the man, who limped away. Then the lady, turning to her maid, said: 'Marie, wasn't it funny that I should have dropped that satchel on his corn of all places?' The maid agreed it was. As a matter of fact the satchel contained some valuable silverware and a considerable sum of money made in the recent rise of corn by Mrs. Genevieve Z. Haines, author of 'Hearts Aflame,' who was induced to buy on private information. Mrs. Haines is said to have made large profits, a portion of which she has already invested in a country seat on the Connecticut shores, where she is waiting to surprise her actor husband, who is about to return from Europe.

Much joy and great expectancy held sway along the Rialto when the word was passed around that Peter F. Dailey had come into a considerable portion of his grandfather's estate. Shanley put four dozen cases of wine on ice, and every unemployed actor got his right hand into proper shape. There is no doubt that for an hour, at least, everything will have to stand pat when Dailey hits the alley.

Word comes from Paris that Amelia Bingham has left that capital for a few weeks at Marienbad and the Austrian Tyrol. There, it is hoped, Clyde Fitch will soon be able to join her. In August she will return to take up her rehearsals for her tour in "A Modern Magdalen." The stock company will includes Henry E. Dixey, Wilton Lackaye, Joseph Holland, Hobart Bosworth, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Mrs. Madge Carr Cooke, Miss Adele Farrington, Miss Lucille Spinney, Miss Rose Braham, Miss Maude Moffett and Miss Grace Cornish. Miss Bingham's first appearance in New York will be in an adaptation of "Mme Flirt," which has had a long run at the Theater de l'Atheno, in Paris.

Marie Dressler has not, up to the present time, been suspected of any considerable amount of vanity regarding her personal appearance. But the name she has selected for her new play has caused serious doubts in the minds of her friends that Marie is leading a double life. "The Beauty Doctor" is what she calls it, but whether any special brand of face changer is to be exploited is as yet a porofound secret. This musical farce is by George V. Hobart and Herbert Kerr.

There is certainly going to be "something doin'" when Eduard Waldmann comes over here. He is heralded as "The noted German-English tragedian," and his advance notice adds: "He is to make a tour of the United States, playing Shakespearean and other standard drams in English. His repetoire will include "The Merchant of Venice,' 'Louis XI.,' 'Hamlet,' 'Othello,' 'Richard III.,' 'Richelieu,' 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'David Garrick,' and 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.' Mr. Waldmann is the only German tragedian playing these roles in English without any foreign dialect except Shylock, to which he gives a slight Hebrew intonation, as several other great German actors have done before him. He will play over the Southern circuit, going west as far as the coast and returning by way of Canada."

FOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Warsaw (Russia) is going to have a statue of Chopin.

Peter Benoit, the Flemish composer, will have a statue in Antwerp.

Chauncey Olcott is to open his season in Old Limerick Town, at St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 4.

Humperdinck's new opera comique, Dornroschen, will be produced the coming season.

Richard Strauss has been decorated by the emperor of Germany with the order of the Red Eagle.

Jerome Skyes will appear next season in "The Billionaire," a new musical comedy by Harry B. Smith and Gustav Kerker.

Frederick Warde and Louis James, will open their season in a spectacular production of "The Tempest," in Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.

Madame Rejane, the great French tragedienne, will make a fifteen weeks' tour of the United States, beginning October, 1903.

The new theater in Paris under the management of Guitry, is the smallest in that city, seating only six hundred people. Vagabonde will be the first production there.

Kathryn Osterman will resume her vaudeville tour at the Temple theater, Detroit, Sept. 8, and Edwin Boring will assist her with her sketches. Miss Osterman is spending the summer with her sister in Toledo.

Sarah Bernhardt will essay another male character next season—that of Launcelot in Comyns Carr's King Arthur, which is now being translated for her. Bernhardt will also appear as Lady Macbeth. Marcel Schwolb, who translated Hamlet for her, is also translating Macbeth into French.

The Canadian tableau in the New London Alhambra ballet, "Britannia's Realm," has created considerable interest, by reason of one feature in the concluding picture. The stage is brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, of which over 3000 are used. The iron curtain to which the majority of these are fixed weighs several tons, and special apparatus is employed to lift and lower it.

The new musical comedy that George W. Lederer will produce at the New York Broadway theater Aug. 18 is to be called "Sally In Our Alley." Marie Cahill and San Bernard will have the leading parts. Others prominent in the cast will be May Robson, Georgia Caine, Marie Doro, Joseph W. Herbert, and Harry Fairleigh. The book will be by George V. Hobart and the score by Ludwig Englander.

Blanche Walsh in a recent interview recalls a coincidence which in her opinion augurs well for the success of her new play, which Stanislaus Strange is now writing for her, and which is founded upon Flaubert's novel, "Salammbo." Miss Walsh says that her first public appearance was made thirteen years ago when she was a mere girl of 15, at an amateur performance of "Othello" at the old Windsor theater, in the Bowery, New York. She was the Desdemona, and the gentleman who played Iago was this same Stanislaus Strange, the author of the new play she is to appear in next season. The coincidence lies in the fact that Mr. Strange accepted the commission to write a play on the subject of "Salammbo" for Messrs. Wagenhals & Kemper long before these managers had any idea of making a contract to star Miss Walsh.

Klaw & Erlanger have begun work on their New Amsterdam theater, on Forty-second street, New York, and have secured the site for their new home for the Rogers Brothers, which will be erected on a lot but ten doors away. The latter house will be opened Jan. 1, 1904, and one-half of each season will be devoted to the Rogers Brothers' productions. When both the theaters will have entrances on Forty-second street, the main structures will be on Forty-first street. The New Amsterdam, which will open with "Mr. Blue Beard" next December, will be one of the finest theter structures in the world. The building and lot will call for an outlay of $1,250,000. The auditorium will seat about 2000 people. The stage will be constructed expressly for the presentation of performances with large numbers of people. There will be dress room accommodations for nearly 700 persons and elevators will be provided to carry them from the stage to the dressing room floors, an innovation which will eliminate stair climbing, now a great hardship where quick changes of dress have to be made. The stage will be 100 feet wide and very deep, and will be equipped with all the latest appliances and many novel ideas.

Down to the time of Charles II women did not appear on the English stage at all, the feminine parts being taken by youths and very young men. It is told that some early manager once had to apologize to an audience, for delay in opening the performance, for the reason that it was necessary to wait until the beloved young man who played the part of the heroine could accomplish a necessary interview with his barber. It is a curious fact, which has not been commented on to the extent that one might expect, that the invasion of the stage by women players was very closely coincident with the most corrupt period of English playwriting. Which was cause and which was effect, or whether either was cause on effect of the other, or both were effects of some other cause or causes, might furnish matter for very curious study. That, however, is not the aim here, which is only to note the fact that women were not players till that time, and add that in nearly all the old plays the female characters were very few as compared with the number of those of the other sex. During the past century this condition has been steadily changing. The relative number of women characters in plays has increased in plays of all types until in those light and breezy musical constructions which constitute so large a part of the stage fashion of our day the masculine element has shrunk until in many it has very nearly disappeared. Even in the comic operas of a brief generation ago a majority of the principals were men and in the make-up of the chorus the sexes were quite evenly divided in numbers. As has been heretofore observed, the distinctively comedy roles in these merry productions remained in the hands of men rather more persistently than any others, even those of the romantic lovers of heroines having some time ago fallen largely into the hands—or tights—of women with shapely forms quite irrespective of vocal quality. Nowadays the chorus is made up in the newer productions very preponderantly of women, even in its supposed-to-be male characters, only sufficient "sure-enough" men being included to furnish a foil, vocally and physically, for the feminine element, and in that regard a very few men are supposed to furnish foil for very many women. And quite recently women have begun to take possession of even the distinctively grotesque comedy parts.

THE TRUTH OF THE MATTER

By Elizabeth Phipps Train.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"The whole truth of the matter," said I to DeFries Langhorne and one or two other men who had brought up over our chasse-cafes at the club an old matter in which I had figured prominently and anent which many garbled accounts had come to my ears, "is this: You all know Milly Charnley pretty well. I think one or two of you have done time with her, as I did. Simply pour passer le temps. None of you ever thought, probably, that Milly would take you seriously. No more did I. But apparently she let her imagination run riot in my case, and when I tried to slip out on her clutches I found I couldn't. She wouldn't let up on me one iota. I got dead sick of her and her caprices before I met Mrs. Galton, who was at that time Jessie Parmly; after I met her, God bless her! Here's to her!" (There was a momentary interlude while the men raised their cognac glasses and pledged my wife). "Any further attentions to the other woman became simply impossible. So I told her frankly and for a few days there were high jinks between us.

"Letters, telegrams and telephone messages piled up on me from her until I finally had to flee from the city for a while until she became more reasonable.

I came back after a two weeks' absence and just in time for a dinner the Jerry Clarkes were giving for Jessie. When I got to the home a few minutes before dinner I found everybody arrived out some high cockalorum, for whom dinner was kept waiting. I did the polite thing by Mrs. Clarke and Jerry and was making my way to Jessie when by an unlucky chance I ran afoul of Milly Charnley, who, in spite of all I could do, lugged me off into a corner and gave me one of the worst quarter-of-an-hour's condensed into five minutes I ever spent.

"I'm not a very good-tempered man, as you chaps know, and I swear she made me savage. I shouldn't wonder if I was pretty brutal and said a good many things I had no business to. I don't remember what I did say, for I had come to the end of my patience with her. But I do know that I told her in so many words that I was dead gone on Miss Parmly and had but one hope in the world, which was to marry her if I could induce her to have me. At that she let out on me, and what she had to say wasn't a bit comforting. She even went so far as to bet that the match would never come off, and at that I simply turned on my heel and walked off.

"I suppose Mrs. Jerry thought she was doing the handsome thing by me when she gave me a woman to which I was known to have been devoted to take in to dinner, but when I found to what I'd been elected—well, all I could hope for was a decent left, and I got it. Life seemed worth living again when I found Miss Parmly placed there.

"The moment my eyes met hers I felt a conviction that she had heard the interview between Milly and myself. There was a look on her face and in her eyes—duce take it all! I can't talk about, but you fellows know what it is like—the look that a woman's face wears towards you when she first finds out how you feel about her.

"She had a duffer on her other side and I had Milly on mine. So you see we were just driven into each other's arms, as it were. I should have devoted myself to the Witch of Endor under the circumstances. As it was, well, Jessie and I got things pretty well settled between the courses of that dinner.

"At last came dessert, a good deal quicker than I care to have it, to tell the truth. The party was not so large but what the conversation could easily become general, and suddenly in a pause in my duet with Jessie I found that either by accident or by design the talk had fallen upon the subject of precious stones, and that everybody but ourselves was occupied in the discussion, the main feature of which appeared to be a very valuable and interesting ring belonging to Milly Charnley, which she had taken from her finger for the inspection of the party. It had pretty well gone the rounds by the time I woke up to what was on, passing from hand to hand until at last it came in turn to Jessie. You ought to have seen her lift the thing and hand it over to me! You'd have thought it bred contagion. I couldn't help smiling to myself, but no one else, unless it were Milly, noticed my manner. The trinket was already forgotten. It doesn't take long to exhaust a dinner-table topic, and already somebody else had engrossed the general attention.

"The finger bowls had been put on and coffee was being served when, during a momentary silence, Milly spoke up, addressing no one in particular:

"'Well,' she said, in a light, matter-of-fact tone, 'won't somebody give me back my ring, please?'

"I turned and looked at her quickly, and for one instant her eyes met mine and I understood what her damnable plot was. There was a general hubbub and confusion. Everybody exclaimed: everybody explained: everybody denied possession of the ring: everybody asserted that he or she had passed it on. Only Jessie and I out of the crowd had nothing to say. We both got on in an instant. It seemed to us best to hold our tongues.

"Presently the duffer on Jessie's left turned to her:

"'It's up to you, Miss Parmly,' he said. 'You remember my handing it to you?'

"The girl was as white as death, but she showed herself a perfect little brick.

"'Isn't it like 'Button, button, who's got the button,'' she asked lightly. She turned to me and smiled. 'Is it next-door neighbor, Mr. Galton?'

"'No,' said I in an indifferent way, 'I gave it back to its owner. It must be somewhere about her plate. I think, or—'

"'Perhaps,' some one suggested, interrupting me, 'it has fallen to the floor.' And then we moved back and a search was made, quite fruitlessly, as I could have told them.

"Everybody seemed visibly uncomfortable, and all talked together. Everybody remembered passing the ring to his neighbor and every neighbor remembered having received it. And yet Milly Charnley declared that it had never come back to her, while I was firmly asseverated, not to her, but to Clarke, that it had gone from my possession to hers.

"Then people began to question each other and themselves as to whether they were absolutely sure of their actions in the matter. One woman thought—yes, she was absolutely certain that she had passed it to the man on her left, and yet—when she came to think of it, didn't some one else down the table ask to look at it again for a moment? Some man declared that, after all, he didn't think he had seen the ring at all. And Jessie's duffer appealed to her to know if he hadn't actually given it to her in his turn. He wouldn't swear to it, you know, because he'd seen the ring before and wasn't especially kneen to examine it, but the girl on the right told him that she had given it to him to pass on, and as he hadn't it about him, why he must have passed it on, don't you see? And so forth, and so on.

"Then a woman down the table began to chaff me about being the last person to receive it and two or three fellows took up the joke, but I wasn't in a mood to jolly them back and was so cursed savage about the whole business that they began to look at me rather oddly, and I saw that I had become an object of perplexity if not of suspicion to them all.

"I don't mean to imply that anyone there thought for an instant that I had stolen the ring. They were most of them good friends of mine. But they knew that I had been aux petits soins with Milly for a long time and that the affair was off. They had become curious concerning the incident as it related to our mutual attitude.

"It was a beastly situation. Trying for everybody, but especially for the Clarkes, who naturally felt themselves responsible for the property of a guest, especially as that guest made no attempt to cause up the situation any, but simply sat back in her chair awaiting the outcome of events, with the intention to recover her jewel or know the reason why, plainly written on her face.

"At last Clarke called the Butler to him and gave an order in an undertone. Immediately all the servants vacated the room. Then Jerry rose to his feet.

"'Ladies and gentlemen,' he said very gravely, 'I am placed in a most awkward and uncomfortable situation. A lady, to whom my invitation to dinner was a guarantee of safe conduct, has, it would seem, been robbed—no,' he interrupted himself quickly, 'that is impossible; has been made the object of a practical joke, let us say, here at my table. Ladies and gentlemen, I do not approve of practical jokes and I desire the perpetrator of this to regard my sentiments and at once restore Miss Charnley's ring to her. I quite understand that the matter has gone further than the jester probably intended it to, and has taken on a more serious character. Therefore, as an open act of restitution might be somewhat embarrassing, I have dismissed the servants and am about to turn out the lights, begging that in the darkness the jewel may be replaced upon the table and no one be the wiser as to who has taken it.'

"He waited a moment so that all might grasp his meaning. Then continued:

"'I shall wait a reasonable length of time, and then order the lights turned on again. If the ring is not then forthcoming I feel that but one resource is left me. I and Mrs. Clarke will offer ourselves to be personally searched. I shall esteem it an act of courtesy to me, whose position you must all feel to be exceedingly painful, if my guests volunteer to submit to a similar inspection.

"There was a general movement of consternation, not unmixed with anger, at the table.

"Presently Billy Goodhue, whose actions always carry a certain authority with them, you know, rose and commended Clarke's plan, offering to take third rank in the searching process. After which everyone else fell into line. Then Clarke went over to the switch and turned off the electricity. The candles were blown out, and the darkness of Egypt reigned in the room for about three minutes.

The situation was rather a dramatic one, and the gravity of the affair pressed heavily on us all. Then the lights were suddenly turned on again. A sharp, excited exclamation from Milly drew the attention of all to that portion of the table between her and myself, some distance in from our plates, well towards the centerpiece of orchids and ferns.

"'Why, why,' she cried out, 'there it really is! My ring! What a clever scheme, Jerry! How did you ever come to think of it? Oh, I am indeed glad to get it back again. Thanks so much. She turned to the man on her left.

"'Reach out and get it for me, Dicky, there's a good soul,' she said. 'It's quite too far for my poor arms.' Then she turned with a sort of triumphant, malicious look in her eyes and shook her head at me reproachfully, with a half-laugh on her lips.

"'Oh,' she said, 'I've a mind to scold you well, Ollie, but I won't, seeing I've got it back again. But it was a poor joke—a poor joke. Think of the trouble you've put our good host to.'

"I didn't bother myself to answer her in a way, but turned directly to Clarke.

"'Jerry,' said I, 'I trust you and Mrs. Clarke will believe that I had nothing whatever to do with this business.'

"Clarke's face was as expressionless as a mask. His manner was calculated to freeze one.

"'I draw no inferences whatever, Galton,' he said coldly. 'My business was to see that Miss Charley's ring was returned to her. That accomplished, I prefer to keep my conclusions to myself.'

"Before I could reply there was a quick movement beside me and Jessie had sprung to her feet.

"'But I,' she cried out, with a blazing face and shaking voice, 'prefer to feel, Mr. Clarke, that there is no possibility of any conclusion or inference on the part of somebody doing Mr. Galton an injustice.' She broke off a minute to get better control of herself. Then in a steadier voice went on, 'It is obvious that an attempt has been made to cast a vile suspicion on him, and it remains for me to refute it. It is a task that any woman would gladly undertake for a man she loves.' Again she broke off, blushing hotly. She turned from Clarke then, and addressed the whole astonished party.

"'It may be as good a time as any, perhaps,' said she, 'to announce my engagement to Mr. Galton. It is anticipating my original intention somewhat to make my great happiness known to my friends, but if I were not to do so it might be rather difficult—here she smiled a little—'for me to prove an alibi for Mr. Galton's hands. The fact is, ladies and gentlemen, it would have been physically impossible for him to have replaced Miss Charnley's ring where it was found because his hands at that moment were both—' Her confidence failed her at this point and she looked at the table helplessly. Everybody by this time was smiling sympathetically. Billy Goodhue came to her aid.

"'—were both likewise engaged,' he suggested; whereat there was a general outburst of laughter, led by Jessie herself. A moment later her face changed utterly, and she leaned forward across me and laid hold of a sort of dangling knot of lace that Mill wore on her breast.

"'Miss Charley,' said she, looking her straight in the eyes, 'have you noticed our beautiful lace? What can have happened to it? It looks as if you had been leaning forward across your coffee cup until the end dropped in. Lucky it is for you that the ring was yours, otherwise—'

"I wish you could have seen the fair Milly's face at that. Crimson was no word for it. For an instant I did not know but what she'd come some fishwife's act and strike the girl. But she recovered herself almost at once, and turned with a loud forced laugh to Clarke.

"'Ah,' she said, 'the cat is out of the bag at last! What a detective this girl would have made! It was I who put the ring there, it seemed to me—excuse me, Jerry, and you, too, Alice—just the least wee bit slow here. I thought I'd stir up things a bit. Don't look so glum, Jerry. There was no harm in it. I should have confessed the trick before we broke up, it has really livened us up a little, now, hasn't it? You must all admit that. Peccavi, peccavi!'

"Then se had the effrontery to turn and pour out warm congratulations on us both. She left early. Didn't seem to find her society particularly welcome to anybody. We don't speak any more as we pass by, she and Jessie and I. And I shall never speak again to anyone if I don't get something to lubricate my throat with. Who's with me? Confound it all, I'm thirsty as a fish."

'An attempt had been made to cast a vile suspicion on him.

GOOD LIVING

Quite often results in bad health, because what is termed "good living" is usually the gratification of the palate without reference to the nutrition of the body. When the good liver is a business man and rises from a full meal to plunge at once into work requiring mental effort the result is almost sure to be disastrous, because digestion draws upon the same nervous forces which are employed in thought. In time the stomach becomes diseased, the processes of digestion and nutrition are imperfectly performed and there is a physical breakdown.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates the effete poisonous matter which originates in the system as a consequence of imperfect digestion. It gives sound health to the whole body.

"I wish to say to the world that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Ellen E. Bacon, of Shutesbury, Franklin Co., Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any real benefit. In September, 1896, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced in September, 1897, to take Dr. Pierce's medicine, and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

Virginia, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The election for a treasurer of district No. 22, held in this city Saturday last, was the most hotly contested election ever held in this city. No local "spring election" has ever been quite so warm. The candidates for this position, which is regarded as one of the best in the finace line in the district, were W. J. Moore, present incumbent, and Robert E. Ballie, of the Virginia Jewelry company. At the Eveleth end of the district put up no candidate and the ... was left to two of our well-known and respected citizens. The polls were opened at 9 o'clock and remained open until 6 o'clock. There were but four hours in which to do the "trick" but it was plenty long enough as the candidates and their friends worked constantly and hard to land the plum. Double and single rigs were run from Eveleth in bunches and also came down on our cars. The women here took a very active part in the election and no less than 300 voted. When the votes were counted it was found that there were 1134 cast, of which Ballie received 699 and Moore 432, giving the former a majority of 267. Mr. Moore, the retiring treasurer, has made a good official and has done a great deal to bring the schools of this district to their present high educational standard, and all that our people expect of the new treasurer is that he does as well, of which action there will be no question, as Mr. Ballie is a good citizen and everyone has confidence in his ability to do the right thing on the board.

Timely Warning Comes to Duluth People.

Backache is such a deceptive thing.
It comes and goes—Keeps you guessing all the time.
Learn the cause—then cure it.
Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.
It's the kidneys' cry for help—The warning of more serious trouble to follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Cure backache—and every form of kidney trouble, down to the very verge of Bright's disease—Nothing will cure that.

How do we know? Duluth proof—Lots of it. Proof that can't be gainsaid.

Here is one Duluth case:

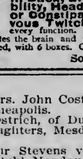

Mr. C. Hackmann, of 2222 Michigan street, brakeman on the Northern Pacific railroad, says: "I was troubled for years with a heavy, dull aching pain through the small of my back and an unnatural and irregular condition of the kidney secretions. My work is particularly trying on the back and being frequently exposed to rough weather and doing a good deal of climbing about the cars, kept my condition aggravated. I felt all run down, and I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procuring a box at the Duluth Drug company's store and used them. In a remarkably short time I was thoroughly relieved of the trouble. My wife was suffering from the effects of la grippe and had a great deal of suffering from her back. She used Doan's Kidney Pills and the results obtained were most satisfactory."

COLORADO MINES.

Final Payment Made on Granite Mine at Victor.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 26.—Charles L. Tutt, Spencer Penrose and Charles M. MacNeill made a final payment of $200,000 this week on the purchase price of $450,000 for the Granite mine at Victor. This property was worked at a profit by Eben Smith and David Moffatt, the Denver millionaires, for several years, and was a handsome dividend earner. Later it was practically abandoned as a worked out proposition. The present owners took it on a six-months' option last January, and since that time have placed over a million dollars ore reserves in sight.

The Monument Gold Mining company, owning the smallest dividend-earning mine in the district, declared a special dividend last week of 1 cent a share on the issued capital stock of 92,000 shares. The disbursement, therefore, amounts to $920, and was made on the 19th inst. The company owns three acres immediately south of the Portland mine and gets about 150 feet of one of the main veins of that great bonanza.

The Portland Gold Mining company received a gold brick weighing 809 ounces this week, this being the result of one week's work at the new combination mill west of this city. This is brick No. 4 and is worth $15,000 cash.

The Spearfish Gold Mining company, operating 320 acres of ground near Lead, South Dakota, received a gold brick weighing 834 ounces this week. This was sold to the Denver mint for $15,025.50 and represents a twenty days' cleanup of the company's mill at Ragged Top, S. D.

H. H. Barbee returned from Reno, Nevada, today, having effected a merger of the interests of the Belle Mare Copper Mining company and the Nevada Copper Mining company, under the name of the Nevada Belle Copper Mining and Smelting company. The new company is capitalized at $5,000,000, divided into 5,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. In addition an issue of 500,000 shares of preferred stock has been made; this, together with two million shares of the common stock, has been set aside for the purpose of acquiring additional mining property in Nevada. The new corporation owns 500 acres of copper land near Reno, Nevada.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

June Production of Copper Largest In History of Mines.

Lake District Advancing as Rapidly as Any Field.

The Future of Continential Mine a Question of Interest.

Houghton, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The June production of refined copper was the largest in the history of the American mines, and the lake producers assisted in the increase. The local mines are now turning out the largest production in the history of the district, and with the opening of four more new mills before the close of the year, the output will be further stimulated. While the lake district is advancing as rapidly as any other copper producing field, it must be borne in mind that the increase in production is not so remarkable as might be inferred from the long list of new mines. It takes years to get a new copper mine in any district fairly on its feet, and the production of a few million pounds is very good work for the first year of any new mine. That some of the new mines will be big factors in the production of future years is certain, but under normal conditions demand should increase sufficiently to absorb the increased output without serious detriment to the market. If the people that have been manipulating the price of the metal will but keep hands off, the industry will find a proper level of prices much quicker and more safely than such a level can be determined arbitrarily by even the most skillful of statistical manipulators, and the various industries connected with the mining, milling, smelting and manufacture of copper will be benefited by the prevalence of normal conditions, in which the ordinary hazards of business are not increased by the uncertainties of speculation.

John J. Case, superintendent of the Lake Superior Smelting company, has just returned from Montana and states that the new Washee smelter of the Anaconda company is a success, and that the stories to the effect that the new smelter was a flat failure are fabrications. These stories have been in constant circulation, and have been elaborated with great wealth of detail. There are few better authorities on practical smelting than Mr. Case, and his personal reputation for truthfulness and ability is such that his statement will be taken here as settling the matter.

The assassination of Mr. W. J. Evans, consulting engineer at the Anaconda smelters, came as a shock to many friends here. Mr. Evans spent some thirty years in the lake district, and was the inventor of the Evans concentrating tables, and other well known devices used in mineral dressing.

The resignation of Frank Klepetke, formerly of this district, from the superintendency of the Boston & Montana, is understood to have been brought about by constant friction with other officials, connected with the Eastern management of the Amalgamated company. Mr. Klepetke has associated himself with J. B. Haggin, a multi-millionaire formerly operating Western mines extensively, and will aid in the development of promising copper prospects recently secured in the Cerro de Pasco district of Peru.

The Rock Lake mine, in the Western Ontario copper district, lying southeast of the outlet of Lake Superior, is now employing an average of 125 men, and is producing copper, though handicapped by the lack of a smelter within convenient distance. The Bruce mines, not far distant, are not producing, because of lack of smelting facilities, and the cost of transportation to the nearest available smelters is so great that it is difficult to make copper at a profit. Considerable activity is noted in the Western Ontario copper fields, about twenty different properties being in process of exploration or development, several of these having exceptionally good showings in sulphide ores. The Rock Lake is much the best developed of the new mines, and the showing secured at depth is encouraging, not only for this property, but for the other mines of the district, as it indicates the Western Ontario copper fields to possess wide and rich veins that hold to good depths.

The unwatering of the old Allouez mine has been completed, and the management is now considering the advisability of attempting to work the mine again. In the light of past history the management would do well to let the old mine fill again with water. Upwards of $1,500,000 have been expended there, without earning a penny for shareholders, though the mine has paid profits to tributors at various times, but tributors are merely robbers who gut a mine as expeditiously and thoroughly as possible. If the Allouez management could arrange to sink a vertical shaft on the east and intercept the Kearsarge lode at depth, a good new mine might be opened. It would be easy to sink such a vertical shaft until the lode was reached, and then deflect the shaft to the angle of the lode. Why this has not been done in the case of some of the other vertical shafts of the lake district is a mystery. The plan is perfectly feasible, and would have saved hundreds of thousands to the pockets of shareholders in the case of some of the deep vertical shafts now in operation.

The future of the Centennial is a matter that local people are now wondering about. The two diverging shafts sunk on the Kearsarge lode by the Centennial have reached great depths, the oldest and deepest shaft now being down more than 2100 feet. Nearly two miles of shafts and drifts have been opened on this lode by the Centennial, and a large amount of good stoping ground developed. The mine is palpably rich enough to give good promise of profitable operation, and is opened to such an extent that production could be started with one or two stamps on short notice. The company owns one of the best unoccupied mill sites in the entire district, and why no attempt has been made toward beginning production is bothering the lake people. It would not prove surprising if it should come out that the Centennial management were negotiating for the use of the stamps at the Arcadian mill that are soon to be released by the Trimountain mine on the completion of the new Trimountain mill. The prospects of the Centennial are better than at any preceding time in the quarter century of the mine's history, and past failures must not be considered as precluding future successes, because the Centennial is under a new management and is opening an entirely new mine.

Rumors at the lake that Mass and Adventure are likely to levy further assessments are met with spirited denials from the East. The truth seems to be that both mines are so situated that they can dispense with further assessments, if necessary, but could use additional sums to excellent advantage in extending underground openings.

The "branch" vein at the Michigan has been cut again, this time in a crosscut from the tenth level of "A" shaft. This branch vein, while narrow, is wonderfully rich in heavy copper, and promises to become an important factor in the future of the mine.

The Victoria has begun the work of utilizing the immense water power now going to waste at Glenn Falls, and a dam is now being built. The cost of harnessing the falls will be comparatively small, and an immense power, available at all seasons, can be secured and turned into electricity for use by the Victoria, and, if desired, by some of the neighboring mines.

The Isle Royale has begun diamond drilling on section 10, at the southern end of its tract, in search of the northern extension of the Baltic lode. Recent developments at the Globe, south of the champion, where a diamond drill is running, are of an encouraging nature.

The Minong Range Copper company has been organized and Capt. W. A. Dunn, of Houghton, has been chosen superintendent. This is the property in Southern Douglas county, Wis., previously known as the Weyerhaeuser tract, from which some very promising copper specimens have been secured within the past three weeks.

CONVENIENCE FOR TRAVELERS.

It Is Found In the Interchangeable Mileage Ticket.

The interchangeable mileage ticket issued by the New York Central is good over more than 6000 miles of railway east of Buffalo, including the New York Central & Hudson River and branches; Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg and branches; Carthage & Adirondack; New York & Putnam; New York & Harlem; Pennsylvania Division of the New York Central; West Shore Railroad, including its Chenango and Wallkill Valley branches; and the Boston & Albany Railroad.

Over all of the above roads the tickets are good in the hands of the bearer for one person or a dozen, and good until used, there being no limit to the ticket. They are also accepted for passage, subject to the local rules and regulations, on the following lines: Buffalo, Rochester & Puttsburg Railway; Central Railroad of Pennsylvania; Pittsburg, Johnstown, Ebensburg & Eastern Railroad; Philadelphia & Reading Railway, and Atlantic City Railroad.

These tickets are sold at the flat rate of two cents per mile, and that they are a great convenience to the public is proven by the fact that thousands of them are in the hands of not only regular travelers but of many families that travel only occasionally, as they are always ready for use and enable their holders to travel on all the New York Central lines east of Buffalo at two cents per mile without waiting for rebates or proof of ownership.—From the Albany Argus.

SEARCHED FOR YEARS

Two Brothers Find Long Lost Mother at Last.

Had Not Seen Her For Forty-Eight Years.

Their Filial Affection Finally Rewarded at Asheville, N. C.

Asheville, N. C., July 26.—Forty-eight years of unremitting search for a mother, from whom they were separated in childhood, is the record of filial devotion of Elisha Allen and W. Russell Allen.

Both are sons of Mrs. John Cordell, a widow, living a few miles from Asheville.

After nearly half a century of search the two men, one living in Kentucky and the other in Arkansas, succeeded in locating their mother in Asheville. A family reunion took place here a few days ago.

It is a strange story of the Tennessee and Carolina mountains fifty years ago, before the slaves were freed, and long years before the shrill whistle of a locomotive was heard by the mountaineers.

It is a story in which the devotion of children appeared to exceed that of the mother herself, and to cling to a childhood memory of her from babyhood to old age.

Mrs. Cordell, the mother, is now 75 years old, and her two boys are 49 and 56 years of age.

Nearly 60 years ago the Allens were a family of Tennessee mountaineers. George Allen, the father, knew how to handle a long-barreled rifle, train coon dogs and hunt bear and deer. He took his full share of the feuds that broke out on election days among rival clansmen of the mountains.

He also knew the path to most of the stills on the Smoky mountains, and could drink any of the "cave" dwellers down on their own "red licker."

His thirst for the product of the stills was the foundation of the strange romance that ended here a few days ago.

His wife was a good-looking buxom woman, married at 16, and with all the Tennessee mountain woman's respect for the authority of "men folks."

When her llege lord had his periodical attacks of drunkenness she took the children and escaped to a neighbor's until the effect wore off.

This state of affairs continued, and finally the family moved over into the edge of North Carolina.

One day in 1854 Allen shouldered his rifle and set off for a political meeting at Jonesboro, five miles away. He started just as the sun was creeping up over the Blue Ridge mountains, determined to put in a long day as a sampler of North Carolina corn juice.

Mrs. Allen hurried through with her simple household tasks, churning, sweeping up the floor and setting the milk to cool in the springhouse near by.

About the middle of the day she called her boy, 8 years old, in and began "primping" him up.

"Where are we uns goin', ma?" asked the boy as she dressed him in a fresh waist and a new pair of butternut trousers.

"I want you, Russell, to take the baby," and the boys remember to old age how her voice trembled, "to take the baby and go over to grandpa's."

The grandfather lived a little distance away.

So the bigger boy set off, carrying his baby brother with him. Mrs. Allen's sister meantime had come over for a visit.

After the children started the two women worked with feverish haste, getting together a few belongings and wrapping them up in aprons of homemade cotton.

About the middle of the afternoon the two stepped outside the door, fastened the wooden string-latch, and began a mysterious journey through the mountains.

Mrs. Allen and her sister were running away.

The girl wife from the Tennessee mountains could map out no other way of release from a husband who was too fond of the juice of the still.

When the man of the house came home late in the night he found the house empty. There was no trace of his wife or the little ones.

Next day he rode over to his father-in-law's. There were his children. His wife had not been seen and a search revealed that both women were gone. Allen rode to the house of Col. Orville Nelson, a neighbor.

"Cunnie," he said, "here's the fastest horse in the country, an' you uns is a man that knows these mountains like a wolf. I want you to find my wife an' George Allen's, the man that'll pay you for your trouble."

Day and night he pressed on through the wilderness of pine and stunted oaks, inquiring at all the cabins and never stopping except for food and a short rest.

The women, afoot, meantime dodged here and there through unfrequented trails, rarely entering a house and subsisting upon corn and wild wood cherries.

They finally ventured to stop on the Swanannoa in Buncombe county, near Asheville.

The two sisters supported themselves, and the younger always referred to her sister as Miss Allen, instead of Mrs. Allen.

"And I do not contradict her," said the old woman telling her story.

She was still young and good looking and shortly John Cordell, a young and prosperous farmer of the settlement, proposed to marry "Miss Allen."

It was a new chance for happiness again and a new life.

But the woman told her story.

So Mrs. Allen became Mrs. Cordell, the marriage being performed by a minister in quite as much state as if there had been no husband and no boys on the border of Tennessee.

This all happened 45 years ago in the Carolina mountains when new-fangled notions were as scarce as books and steam cars.

She and her husband lived as happily as possible until Cordell's death some years after. Mrs. Cordell heard a rumor that Allen had moved to Kentucky, taking her two little boys with him.

This was true, although in a few years they too left home and set out to make their fortunes—and to search for their mother.

Russell, the oldest, a boy of 8 at the time his mother left, treasured up remembrances of her and inspired the youngest, who had been a baby 8 months old at the time, with the thought that some day they would find her again.

They kept up a desultory search, sometimes writing letters, sometimes making long trips in following clews, which always proved misleading.

Both brothers grew up and married. One settled at Aurora, Ark., and the other in Kentucky.

Elisha Allen, the youngest boy, wrote a letter some months ago to the postmaster at Biltmore, N. C., inquiring for his mother and giving her strange story as well as he knew it.

The letter was turned over to J. C. Reed, a farmer near the town, who thought that he knew a woman whose history it fitted.

The woman was Mrs. Cordell and an answer was sent to the son in Kentucky.

The two bothers are well-to-do, the oldest, who lives in Arkansas, having a wife, ten children and twenty grandchildren.

A HEROINE.

Girl Loses Her Life Trying to Save Her Playmate.

St. Paul, July 26.—Josephine Kastner, the 12-year-old daughter of William Kastner, a stone mason living at 695 Western avenue north, and Mary Siler, the 15-year-old daughter of Joseph Siler, saloonkeeper at 472 Grace street, were drowned in Long lake at New Brighton yesterday.

Josephine Kastner died a heroine, giving up her life in an effort to save the life of her playmate.

The two girls, with a younger brother of the Kastner girl, went into the lake bathing. The trio got aboard a raft near the shore and gradually floated into deep water. Here the Siler girl became frightened and fell into the water. As she sank a second time, Josephine Kastner, forgetting that she could not swim, jumped overboard and grabbed her little playmate. The girls struggled in each other's arms for a few seconds and sank.

Willie Castner, the brother, was rescued by the villagers. The bodies were recovered.

BARBERS

Lose In Their Fight Against State Prison Shop.

Stillwater, Minn., July 26.—The Barbers' union yesterday afternoon received the decision of the state board of control regarding the maintenance of the barber shop at the state prison. The board holds that the law does not cover personal service in state institutions, and that the prison barber shop may be maintained for the shaving of the warden, deputy warden, assistant deputy warden and other officers and employes subject to call at any time, but no one else. The gist of the decision is that the law governing the licensing of barbers is for barbers who work for hire and that barbers employed in state institutions cannot be classed as such. The members of the union are greatly wrought up over the findings and the matter will be carried into the courts for adjudication.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A terrific storm of wind, rain and hail passed over Dunn county, Wis., Tuesday afternoon. Hundreds of acres of heavy grain was lodged, and corn and tobacco riddled. An incalculable amount of damage was done to crops over a wide area.

While Orrin and Charles Johnson, brothers, were crossing a bridge near Sioux City, Iowa, with a traction engine the bridge broke and they were scalded to death.

Clarence Forbes was given the decision over Billy Rotchford at the end of a 10-round fight at Indianapolis Friday. It was a clever contest with Forbes doing the leading, Rotchford remaining on the defensive throughout. Both men are from Chicago.

Jack O'Keefe, of Chicago, gained the decision over Tommy Sullivan, of St. Louis, at the end of a 20-round bout at St. Louis Friday night. O'Keefe outpointed Sullivan throughout.

Besides the two negroes lynched in West Virginia for murdering Policeman Wilmoth Woodman, a third negro was followed by a mob of thirty-five and shot to death in the jungles, 23 miles south of Elkins.

Several large farms in the eastern part of Lyons county, Minn., in Stanley and Clifton townships, with grand crop prospects, were completely devastated by hail Friday afternoon.

Forest fires have again broken out in the pine forests of the Western and Southern Josephine Mountains, in Oregon. Reports received here are to the effect that a vast amount of pine timber has already been destroyed, and that the flames are spreading.

MARKET IS WEAK

Wheat Market Has a Sharp Break, Showing No Strength.

Conspicuous Feature, Except at Duluth, Is Weakness of July.

Bullish Factors Are Ignored---Flax Is Fairly Active.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 26.—The wheat market had a sharp break today and conspicuous in the decline in all markets but Duluth was the weakness of July wheat. Cables were firmer in the face of a decline in American markets yesterday, but this had but little effect. More rains have given rise to the fear of a delay in harvest in some sections and still more rains are predicted, but these factors were ignored. There was little or no support. The Liverpool market closed quiet and ¼d higher. Paris was unchanged to ½c higher. A few loads of wheat, probably a half dozen were worked for export on the Duluth market.

Primary receipts of wheat were 894,672 bus, last year 529,479 bus. Shipments 266,401 bus, last year 626,327 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 178,193 bus. Bradstreet estimates the world's shipments that will be reported Monday at 7,500,000 bus.

July cats in the Chicago market had a sharp slump today closing at a decline of 3½c. September oats fell 1-4c. July corn also was weak, falling 2½c while September corn sold off 1c. Primary receipts of corn were 312,000 bus, last year 386,612 bus. Shipments 648,665 bus, last year 492,920 bus. Clearances were 500 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was active. The market opened 1½c off at 71¼c, sold at 71¾c at 10:10, at 71c at 11:10 and closed at 71c, a decline of 5c. Chicago declined 1½-8c and Minneapolis ¾c. July in Chicago fell 2c, in Minneapolis 1c and in Duluth 8c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and September price for No. 3.

Flax was very active. September sold ⅝c up to $1.38¾ and closed at $1.38. October sold off ½c to $1.34, and closed there. September oats fell 1c, and rye on track and September rye fell 1½c.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis were 200 cars, and at Chicago 231 cars, a total for the three cities of 461 cars, against 457 last week and 456 a year ago.

The following are the closing prices:

Wheat: Cash, No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 northern, 73c; No. 2 northern, 72c. No. 3 spring, 71c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 73½c; No. 1 northern, 73c; July, 73c; September, 71c; December, 69¾c. Minneapolis—No. 1 northern cash, 75c; No. 2 northern, 73c. Oats—September, 22c. Rye—On track, 62½c; September, 52¼c. Flax—Cash, $1.38; to arrive, $1.40 on track, $1.38; cash No. 1 Northwestern, $1.53; September, $1.38; October, $1.34.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 19, last year, 23. Receipts—Wheat, 34,432; flax, 2465. Shipments—Wheat, 12,261; flax, 963.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Firmer Cables Gave Wheat But Temporary Strength.

Chicago, July 26.—Firmer cables in the face of a decline here yesterday had only a temporary strengthening effect on wheat during early business today. September started 9@9¼c up at 71⅞c to 72c and touched 72@¾c on this influence and on some fear of delay to harvesting now in progress in Nebraska, because of rains. More rains were predicted over the wheat and corn belt for tomorrow. July, however, was offered freely on the increased receipts and broke 1½@⅞c. There was no support early to the market save the negative influence on the selling because of fears of manipulation and the light grading. September gradually weakened and sold at 71⅜c. Local receipts were 231 cars, 3 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 200 cars, making a total for the three points of 461 cars, against 457 last week and 456 a year ago.

Great excitement in oats led to depression and free selling in all wheat deliveries. July closed 2c down at 54½c, September closed ½@⅝c down at 71⅝@¾c.

Steady cables and the fear that rain West would interfere with shipments caused September corn to open ⅛@¼c up at 60⅝@60¾c. Receipts were larger than estimated at 278 cars, crop reports were favorable and trade was dull. The bearish influences together with the wheat weakness and an easier feeling in July manipulation brought a dip for September to 60c. July, while still a nervous month, broke 2½c on a few sales and sold at 63c. The trade is entirely at sea over the possibilities of a squeeze in July before the end of the month.

Free selling in sympathy with the oats break hurt corn, September closing 1c lower at 59½c and July 2½c lower at 63c.

Oats followed the other grains in the early dip, influenced largely by liberal receipts of 224 cars. Some July stuff was offered after shorts had asked for it at 71c and the price at ⅛c to 34c and dipped to 33⅞c.

Rumor that James Patten had settled with shorts and an absence of support for some time led to a break of 1c in July oats until that option sold at 56c. Contradiction of the report and bids to cover pushed the price back amid great excitement to 57c where it closed at a net loss of 3¾c.

Provisions were dull early. Hogs were very few in number and prices were strong. Products opened a little higher, but met some liquidation which took off the gain. September pork opened 2½@5c up at $17.40@17.45, dipped to $17.35 and steadied at $17.40; September lard unchanged at $10.92½ and lost 2½, and September ribs unchanged at $10.50, sold 2½c up and eased to $10.47½.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, July 26.—Wheat—Estimated receipts for Monday, 240 cars. This has been in a moderate way a regular gala day for the bears, and it is quite likely that they have over done the thing. Corn and oats especially have been severely pounded and the general depression has been encouraged somewhat by the belief that the July corn deal was ended, that option having sold down to 62c. This condition of affairs, however, does not improve the situation so far as the September-December option is concerned. The weather is also threatening throughout the entire Middle West, with heavy rain this morning down through Central Illinois. It also rained in both South and North Platte territory in Nebraska. We advise being a little bit chary about putting out any large short lines of wheat.

Corn—There was a general influx of selling orders this morning from local bears. Prominent local bears distributed selling orders pretty generally, and as the market weakened sold off. This, of course, brought out some long lines which helped the break. We, however, feel doubtful about taking the short side of corn. The conditions will probably change very materially within the next few days. Of course some people were encouraged to pound the September on the theory that the July deal was ended and prices must work to a much lower range. The general conditions, however, have not changed and the selling can be easily overdone. Estimated receipts for Monday, 190 cars.

Oats—This grain has offered considerable anxiety today. The Cash market is governed a great deal by the action of new July, which has had a wild and varied experience, prices selling down from 10c to 14c below values ruling yesterday. The new July started out this morning at 71c, at which there was a pretty fair trade, but later was offered down to 65c without any sales. September also got considerable pounding. Prominent local operators who have been clubbing the new September for some time took advantage of general conditions in the pits today to raid the oats and as a result broke them badly. This of course caught some long lines which were overthrown and helped the general declines. We cannot advise short sales of these oats. Estimated receipts for Monday, 285 cars.

Provisions opened rather tame at about yesterday's prices, but soon gave way under free selling by packers and closed about at low prices for the day and week. Trade was light today, but there was evidence of plenty of selling orders for any small advance. While outsiders were playing on the defensive, it seems a fact that the large holders have sold out and the small packers are left with cash stuff not wanted, and in a bad position to hedge anything. Outsiders are long, the nearby pork with no one in position to help the market. Estimated receipts for Monday, 26,000, and next week, 115,000.

to control contracts for about 1,500,000 bushels of long stuff, which shorts fear they cannot deliver, had allowed his unfortunate opponents to settle at about 70 cents. No support was given the market for some time. Receipts of oats which have not been liberal for some time were much improved today at 224 cars. A liberal movement was estimated for next week. Fair weather has been dry, but the over-wet fields to some extent and other conditions favored a natural decline in prices.

With the Patten contracts out of the way the crowd started to let the market take its course and thresh out the inflation in values. July new oats which opened firm at 71c floundered to 55c before any support came. Then the small shorts heard that no settlement had been made, the few speculators who sold unguardedly rushed back to cover and with a whoop prices jumped to 67c. Trade was not particularly heavy but fluctuations were very ragged. Quotations were 2c apart many times. Other grains felt the depressing influence of the stampede, especially July options. The net loss in July oats was 3½c, July wheat closed 2c down at 74¼c and July corn 2½c lower at 63c.

TWISTED.

The School Elections Throughout State Raise Knotty Problems.

St. Paul, July 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The school elections held throughout the state last week have raised several knotty legal problems. The attorney general already has nearly fifty opinions to write in answer to inquiries aroused by the election.

It rained so hard in one district that it was impossible to hold the election. The officers of the district want to know whether it will be possible to hold a special election, and if not, wh ther the old officers will hold over until another regular election.

The voters in another district are in a quandary because fifty-four votes were cast, while a careful count showed that there were but fifty persons in the room. Tie votes were cast in several districts.

C. W. Somerby, assistant attorney general, who has charge of questions arising under the election laws, has not commenced writing opinions in response to the inquiries, but he will do so within a few days. Every mail for two or three days has brought requests for opinions on disputes arising at the election.

TO IMPEACH.

United Miners' Association to Proceed Against Judge Jackson.

Indianapolis, July 26.—The United Mine Workers may try to obtain the impeachment of Federal Judge Jackson, of West Virginia, who restrained them from holding meetings to induce men to quit work and imprisoned a number of the organizers for violating an injunction. The plan of action is not definitely outlined, but it is probable that the impeachment proceedings will be begun soon, if Judge Jackson, after a final hearing, refuses to dissolve the injuction.

Secretary Wilson admitted today that the miners contemplate this course and that a complete transcript of the case, including the complaints and Judge Jackson's decision, will be prepared for submission to President Roosevelt and the senate. The miners also intend to give to the public the evidence in the case, for the purpose, as Wilson says, of showing on what flimsy grounds the injunction was issued.

The miners believe they have sufficient ground to impeach Judge Jackson. It is said that he intimated that he would drop the charges as to "Mother" Jones and others if they would leave the state and promise not to return.

Wilson says that if the impeachment proceedings are begun there will be no politics in them. The miners will not ask President Roosevelt to interfere with the the injunction, as he says they realize that the president is without power as to injunctions, but if the habeas corpus proceedings fail to release the organizers the president will be asked to pardon them. The habeas corpus proceedings will be begun as soon as the papers can be made out.

OATS

Fluctuate Widely and Wildly and Almost Cause Panic.

Chicago, July 26.—Great excitement ruled the oats pit today. Prices fluctuated so widely and wildly that speculators were almost panic stricken. In twenty minutes July new oats dropped from 69c to 55c, a loss of 16c from the opening of trade. In half hour more the price rocketed to 67c, the closing quotation. The cause of the pandemonium was the rumor that James Patten, who is supposed to control contracts for about 1,500,000 bushels of long stuff, which shorts fear they cannot deliver, had allowed his unfortunate opponents to settle at about 70 cents. No support was given the market for some time. Receipts of oats which have not been liberal for some time were much improved today at 224 cars. A liberal movement was estimated for next week. STOCKS HIGHER

At the Opening Although a Few Showed Losses.

Speculation of Varied Character In Some of Stocks.

Selling Brisk at Closing Which Was Easy and Low.

New York, July 26.—The majority of stocks opened higher, but a few showed losses, among them the United States Steel pfd, which fell ¼ on the sale of a 3000 share block. St. Louis and San Francisco rose 2 points and the second pfd, 1 point. New York Central rose ⅛ on running sales of 5000 shares. St. Paul, Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis pfd. were up a point, and Norfolk & Western and Atchison a large fraction.

The speculation was of the same varying character as yesterday, but centered in a few stocks. St. Louis & San Francisco was pushed up 4 to 79¾, placing it fractionally above the second pfd, stock. It then reacted 2 points. Rock Island advanced 2¾ to 169¾, and Illinois Central Sugar, Brooklyn, Union Gas, Continental Tobacco pfd., Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Pennsylvania, Northwestern and Delaware & Hudson also made gains of from 1 to 3. New York Central reacted a point and North American, Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis pfd. and Rock Island also were a point off. Union Pacific, Atchison, Missouri, Pacific and Pennsylvania moved with Steel and the United States Steel stocks rallied to above yesterday's close. Sugar reached 134 at 11 o'clock and the market became steadier, Rock Island rising to 170.

There were some further advances in St. Paul, the Pacifics and leading specialties, but prices generally dropped with languid demand. Except for Steel, the closing stocks losses were established and the reactions ran to a point in the principal active stocks. Rubber Goods gained 3 point, Sloss-Sheffield, 2, and Westinghouse Electric first pfd, 5. Great Northern pfd lost 2½, and Chicago & Alton, 1½. The publication of the bank statement increased the selling pressure and the closing was easy and at about the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The outcome of today's market is believed to foreshadow continued activity and a further advance in prices. A feature of trading that is commented on as having continued considerable significance is a noteworthy increase in the volume of buying orders for New York account. The East seems to be following the bull trade of the West and the grainger stocks are growing in favor owing to the fine crop prospects. Another encouraging development and one that is somewhat of a surprise to pessimists is furnished by the fact that notwithstanding exports of gold the weekly movements of cash reflect a considerable gain by the banks. As money remains easy and trade advices, barring those from the anthracite industry continue highly satisfactory little attention is paid to the forthcoming bank statement and a strong closing in the market at the end of the week is confidently looked for. Commission houses report fair volume of general business and there are unmistakable indications that public interest in the market is gradually increasing being attracted particularly to the stocks like Southern Pacific, Atchison common, Union Pacific and other shares of middle class. Well informed brokers declare that the confident buying of these stocks means a substantial further advance on them and judging from the views expressed by people close to prominent banking and railroad interests the rise in the last named class of stocks will continue to be led by Atchison common.

Bache to Paine, Weiser & Co.—Today's market followed the examples of the previous one by great activity in the high priced issues while the general list was rather neglected and with the exception of a few specialties such as the St. Louis & San Francisco and Kansas City for preferred few of the low priced issues were active. In this respect high record prices were made for Rock Island, Illinois Central, Atchison, St. Paul and Southern Pacific. In the industrial list Sugar was the prominent stock both as to activity and advance. Amalgamated was fractionally higher. The close was quiet with slight recessions from the top prices but with a decidedly strong sentiment.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—There is nothing to indicate that tops have been reached as yet. Of course it is conservative to take profits on bulges like yesterday in St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central. It is hard to see, yet, how high they are going. My views are still unchanged. There are no signs of a general reaction even, much less a bear market. Of special stocks it will pay to hold Missouri, Kansas & Texas. A dividend is very probable on the preferred. People's Gas is dull pending Judge Grosscup's decision. Insiders say the decision will be favorable. If the big men want to shake the public out of Brooklyn Rapid Transit below 70 they are going about it in the right way. The best thing on the board is Southern Pacific. It may open around 71.

Chicago: Standard Oil people who for months were opposed to any advance in the stock market, are now said to be great bulls. This, however, does not apply to Amalgamated Copper. The general situation is regarded by them as being exceptionally good. A friend of theirs, speaking of the attitude of the Standard Oil people, said, among other things:

"The St. Paul is the Standard Oil road, and the policy of the management is dictated by William Rockefeller and Henry H. Rogers. It is thoroughly independent, having no affiliations with neighboring or connecting roads. The St. Paul is showing enormous earnings, and I understand that the management is considering the rock ballasting of 500 miles of its road this year and rounding up the system by building about 100 miles of branch roads, all out of earnings.

"I believe the stock will sell at $200 per share this fall, and that stockholders will receive a plum which will make this price possible. The Rock Island has set the pace for liberality with stockholders, and the St. Paul and some of the other roads may have to meet the demands of their largest stockholders. The St. Paul will, believe, issue new stock this year at par, as did Rock Island, or else it will be placed on a 7 per cent basis. I have high authority for this statement."

Chicago: Col. R. C. Clowry, who was taken to New York and made president of the Western Union, is regarded by certain critics of the position of the company as its salvation. But one Eastern authority considers the outlook for Western Union unpromising, and presents some reasons as follows:

"A few years hence the American Telephone and Telegraph company will be in a position to do what telegraph business is required in this country at a minimum cost as an incident of the telephone business. Nearly one-half the population of the United States is in cities, and this means that in the future more than one-half the people of this country will be in easy reach of the telephone, and this one-half will be the active half of the population, and the people who use the telegraph will be a decreasing number.

"The Western Union company is laden with such leases and water-soaked capital as to make it impossible to consider an enlargement of itsself into the telephone field, while the Bell telephone system of the country is doubling and quadrupling all the telegraph lines. The telephone company has not only a telephone system paying expenses and fair interest upon the construction cost, but it has a telegraph system at absolutely no cost and which is now unused, for you can use telephone and telegraph on the same lines at the same time without interference. It has, furthermore, the great and necessary adjunct of the telegraph service, a messenger system for the collection of dispatches, and this messenger system is the 7,500,000 telephone stations.

"As soon as the Western Union has been lifted from two or three railroad systems in the country its stockholders will get a shock that will teach them there are new electric forces in the field."

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers were very dull today. There is no pressure to sell any of them. The recent advance has been well held and we believe the next move will carry them all higher. Our advices on Amalgamated continue very strong. We do not believe this last move is another flash in the pan, but is the beginning of a good bull market in them all.

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is an imperfectly defined local copper market, absolutely nothing to comment upon. It is reported that lake productions this year is by far the largest in the history of that district.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 26.—The cotton market opened steady with the price 1 to 4 points lower, this being a fair response to unfavorable Liverpool cables. Before the first wave of selling gave place to a hurried movement of shorts for cover a list worked off 5 to 9 points from last night's final bids. Then came rumors of probable floods in the Brazos valley in Texas. The bear contingent was soon in full retreat and prices rapidly advanced. July sold at 8.50 as against 8.15 on yesterday's break, while August worked up to 8.32 or 29 points above the lowest of the day. Receipts were large at the ports and some of the interior towns, but this fact cut but little figure as an influence. A prominent local commission house bought August freely, while the rank and file of the commission contingent covered shorts for constituents who did not care to risk over Sunday developments in Texas. Wall street appeared to be selling distant months on the rise and Europe sold January. The South operated in a cautious manner on both sides of the account. Trading was very active during the first hour.

Cotton futures closed steady: July, 8.50; August, 8.30; September, 7.83; October, 7.76; November, December, January and February, 7.67; March, 7.66. Spot, steady; middling uplands, 9 1-16c; middling gulf, 9 5-16c; sales, 108 bales.

MANY GOOD REALTY DEALS ARE MADE

Several Industrial Sites Purchased For Immediate Use---Owners of Vacant Property Show Signs of Building.

"The wise man will keep his mouth shut when he has nothing to say," remarked one of the local real estate dealers yesterday afternoon, when inquiry was being made as to the business of the week. The sentiment of the remark seems to be generally observed in real estate circles this week. The week's business, however, shows up better than it did a week ago, and the aggregate sales, taking industrial sites and all in consideration, have reached a good figure. In residence property, however, there has been no marked change in conditions. It might be said, though, that many good offers have been made for desirable building sites during the week that have been in nearly every case turned down by the holder, in anticipation of better values later on in the season.

More and more inquiry is developing from owners of vacant property as to whether the present time is a favorable one to build flats and dwellings for rent or for sale on the easy payment plan. Property owners are beginning to see the advantage of getting away from their holdings rather than keeping the vacant lots and paying taxes on them.

The undertone to the market is firm, and confidence is everywhere expressed that the outlook for the fall business was never better than at the present time.

C. P. Craig & Co. report the sale during the past week of the Jennings block at Twenty-third avenue west and Superior street, for $11,000. The purchase was made by the Norris realty company. The firm has also disposed of a $1600 residence property on West Third street, and sold a house and lot on Duluth Heights. Mr. Craig says that the demand for homes on the Heights has been an excellent one this summer, and that many people have taken advantage of the offers made of cheap residence property on easy terms.

S. D. Allen is building two 3-story brick dwelling houses on the lower side of First street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues east. Mr. Allen contemplates erecting another house later on.

H. C. Fulton has sold to T. C. Himebaugh a lot between Missabe and Sixth avenues west for $1425. It is understood that the property is to be improved by the erection of one or two houses.

Improvement work continues fairly good on the properties near the new normal school. The excavation work for the foundations is well under way for the new houses of President Bohannon and H. C. Strong, of the normal school faculty, and for the new home of Mrs. Strong, H. C. Strong's mother. The houses are being erected on East Fifth street.

William K. Fowler has the foundation completed and part of the frame up of his new residence building on East Fifth street near the normal school.

Cooley & Underhill: The real estate movement still continues rather quiet, but we have this week been receiving considerable inquiry from our outside clients relative to the advisability of building flats and houses for rent on their vacant property here. We believe the present time is propitious for this kind of a movement, and are getting out plans for flats that will be submitted to the property owners.

Whitney Wall: So far as I can see there are no particularly new features in the real estate market of the week. We have a few deals on hand not yet closed up. It should be noted that there is more inquiry than usual from people who are getting tired of paying taxes on vacant property, and who have decided notions of building and renting or selling their property on the easy payment plan.

Among the sales of the past week have been several running between $1000 and $1600, mostly of residence property in good location, but not close to the business portion of the city.

George Crosby has bought two lots in block 5, Highland Park, of E. L. Thalcher, for $1500.

Edward Dormedy, of West Duluth, has purchased from H. E. Mitchell the business property on lot 9, block 19, West Duluth, First division. It is a store building, on the lower side of Central avenue, between Bristol and Gosnold streets, and was not purchased for occupancy by the owner, but for an investment. The price paid was $2360.

J. J. Frey, of West Duluth, reports a continued inquiry from working men for homes and for sites on which to build homes. He has about closed several small deals this week. Houses for rental purposes are getting scarcer than ever.

Stryker, Manley & Buck report a good business in realty during the week. The firm has sold for Charles Denson, lot 70, on the lower side of West Second street, to Connecticut parties, who have bought for an investment. This is the lot over which there was so much trouble during the past year on account of the old Lerch livery barn. The purchase price was $4500.

Another sale was that of a lot from J. W. Hunt to A. E. Gilbert, on Second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues east. It is understood that Mr. Gilbert will build. The lot was sold for $1575.

The firm has had several good offers for property listed through its office during the week, but the holders are not anxious to sell, and prefer to hold in anticipation of still better values later on. Earnest money has been paid down on several other deals which are expected to be closed up within the next few days. Among the other sales of the week was that of a lot on Second street, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth avenues east, for $500.

A. F. Lundholm has purchased from T. W. Mackie vacant property on West Third street, near Twenty-fifth avenue, described as lot 404, block 86, Duluth proper, Second division. The purchase price was $1460, and it is understood that the property will be improved. The lot is located close to Lincoln Park.

Among the Park Point transfers of the week have been those of four lots on St. Louis avenue, from F. H. Barnett to J. A. Keyes. The aggregate price was $1450.

N. J. Upham & Co. have published a neat little folder with information of Duluth for its real estate owners, which are being mailed to the firm's outside clients. The reading matter is very pertinent, and while condensed, carries in it a large amount of useful information to non-resident property owners who are not acquainted with the Minnesota tax law, assessments for street improvements, the Torrens law and the charges of real estate dealers.

The introduction relates that while there was little or no sale of Duluth real estate for a number of years, due to a general business depression throughout the country, the last year or two has been marked with a growing demand for property here, with good prospects for the future. Property is being sold, in nearly all cases, at lower prices than were obtained in boom days, but at the same time it is being sold. The city is growing, and improved property is bringing in a fair income on present valuations.

Architect J. J. Wagenstein has completed and in the hands of the contractors the plans for the improvements to be made to the Weigel Richards wholesale grocery and produce building on Michigan street. The bids are to be in next Monday. The total cost of the improvement, while not yet estimated, is expected to run over $20,000. The work will be erected a 50-foot addition to the present building, giving it a Michigan street frontage of 150 feet. The building will be four stories high above the basement, on Michigan street. Extensive remodeling work will be done to the interior. The building will be equipped with two large electric freight elevators, and one large cold storage plant. The office will occupy the Fourth avenue corner and will run back the whole length of the building. The building will be steam-heated throughout, with all necessary plumbing and electric lights.

Mr. Wangenstein has also completed and placed in the hands of the contractors the plans for the new horseshoe factory to be erected at the corner of Twenty-first avenue west and Michigan street. The location of the new plant was definitely settled Thursday of this week, and previous to that date there was a strong probability that the factory would have another location. The first plans of the company contemplated a lease of the site, but owing to the amount of improvement necessary before building, it was regarded a better proposition to buy outright. The horseshoe factory is said to be the nucleus of a much larger concern than most people of this city yet realize, and that it will be a question of but a few years before the present site will be inadequate in size for factory purposes.

Mr. Wagenstein is preparing plans for a residence for E. H. Stevenson. It will be a frame building and erected at Lester Park.

Plans are also under way for a 2-story modern bank building for the Lumbermen's bank at Grand Rapids, Minn.

The past week has been marked by some very important sales of industrial sites. Duncan. Brewer & Co., the lumber firm, has sold its 30-acre mill site and lumber yards on the bay front in Oneota to the Red Cliff Lumber company, together with all its other Northern Minnesota holdings. The purchase of the mill by the Red Cliff company insures another five years' steady operation of the mill.

Another transfer of note was that of the old Clark-Jackson sawmill site in New Duluth to the Coolidge Fuel and Supply company, of Minneapolis, for $10,000. The site was bought for improvement and a mill will eventually be established there. The site embraces about twenty-seven acres, with a 1600-foot water frontage on the St. Louis river. The property has been idle for a number of years, and the fact that it is again to be utilized will be looked forward to with satisfaction by the people of New Duluth and the interests controlling property in that vicinity.

The street railway company has purchased lots 425 to 428, block 47, Duluth proper, Second division, from Carlton Clooge, for $6500. The lots have been purchased for improvement by the company. They adjoin the street railway company's property at Twenty-sixth avenue west and will eventually be built up with shops. Realizing the necessity of securing the available property for an enlargement of its plant, which is sure to come, the company is considered to have made a wise move in getting the property before it advances in value.

The lease of the fourth 50-foot lot, on the upper side of Superior street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, for a theater site, was a topic of considerable interest in realty circles this week. The Metropolitan Building company, an organization made up of local stockholders, will build a $50,000 structure on the site selected. The lease runs for thirty years. The new theater will have a seating capacity of 1000 people, and the plans are being prepared by Architect Wagenstein. The building will be of brick, and work on it will begin next month. There will be two store rooms on Michigan street and two on Superior street. This lease disposes of the last fifty feet of vacant property on Superior street in that portion of the city.

Edwin Rothe has sold to Katherine Boin lot 10, on the upper side of Fifth street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues east, for $1100. It is residence property.

HOBBY

Of Kaiser to Send Commercial Detectives to America.

New York, July 26.—One of the kaiser's pet hobbies is to send privy councilors and special envoys to various parts of the world, especially to the United States, to act as so-called "commercial detectives," cables the Berlin correspondent of the Herald.

Privy Councilor Goldberger, who recently returned from an eight months' tour of the United States, having concluded an exhaustive volume of observations and statistics regarding the industries and prospects of commercial rivalry between Germany and the United States, other distinguished Germans, including Count Winckler, Count Sierstorpff and Count Pourtales, are now preparing to visit the United States and then report to the kaiser.

They will inspect the factories, mills and mines and visit New York, Pittsburg, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco.

The kaiser displays an unquenchable thirst to learn everything possible about the state of business and affairs in the United States.

PANTHER AT LARGE

A Young Animal Escapes From New York Zoo.

Picnic Parties Are Panic Stricken By the Beast.

New York, July 28.—After gnawing its way out of a wooden box in the zoological garden in Bronz park, a young panther, just arrived from Mexico, walked up to a picnic party of women and children and, astonished by their panic, jumped over their heads into a tree and has since led keepers and other hunters a weary chase through the Bronz park jungle. The panther is a fine specimen, 18 inches high at the shoulders, 5 feet long, and he weighs 45 pounds. He was shipped from Mexico in a pine box with slats. To render the possibility of its escape more difficult, the panther was chained to the inside of the crate, a hevy collar being fastened about his neck, to which the end of the chain was tied. When the crate arrived at the zoological park it was deposited near the reptile house pending the establishment of its occupant in regular quarters.

The keeper having removed one of the slats and unfastened the animal's collar, left the crate unguarded for a time. The panther lost no time in attacking with teeth and claws the soft slats which stood between him and liberty. The park was well filled with sightseers when the animal escaped. Cunningly avoiding the open walks by keeping close to the bushwood, which in places is very dense, he succeeded in escaping from the zoological reservation and passed into a densely wooded portion of the park. Then the escape was discovered. Six keepers with shotguns and nets started out to capture the fugitive ,with directions to shoot only if it appeared necessary. Through the heavy brush the little posse made its way northward, but four hours passed before any trace was found.

About a mile north of the museum a party of thirty children out picnicing saw the panther emerge from a thicket. It ran toward them and they fled. On one occasion he wandered up to a tablecloth upon which a luncheon had been spread and quickly devoured the meat.

Sightseers made their way from the park, but only fleeting glimpses of the animal were obtained, although the hunt was kept up until night.

The park authorities say the panther is not vicious, and that it probably will be shot by some one liivng near the scene.

WOMAN WAS STRANGLED

Mysterious Murder Discovered In Wine Room of Chicago Saloon---Well Dressed Woman Found Dead With No Clue to Identity.

Chicago, July 28.—Her face black from strangulation and blood flowing from a wound in the side of her head, the body of an unidentified woman about 32 years old and fashionably garbed, was found in a wine room of Henry O'Hara's saloon in Wells street near the river, early this morning. The police soon after arrested James Grant and Edward Goff, said to have been seen in the company of the woman.

Two policemen on duty in Wells street were notified by an unknown man that a woman was dead in the saloon. The officers at once entered the place, allowing the unknown man to pass on. In a rear room they found the dead woman. Other women and men who were found drinking at tables in the place seemed to be ignorant of the tragedy that had taken place so near.

The dead woman is unknown to the frequenters of the saloon and from her appearance the police say they do not believe she was accustomed to enter such saloons. The theory of the police is that she was drugged, taken into the saloon and there killed. Bloodstains were found on the collar, necktie and shirt of one of the men under arrest.

TWO PRISONERS GET AWAY

Chicago, July 28.—Two prisoners, Fred Ennis and John McQuig and Sentry William Treat of Company M, Twenty-first infantry, who was guarding them, have disappeared from Fort Sheridan and no trace of the missing men have been found. Searching parties sent out in every direction have scoured the woods and ravines, but have failed to secure a clew. Whether the guard has deserted with his prisoners, or whether the sentry was overpowered by his charges and lies in some deserted spot, gagged and bound, or perhaps murdered, is a matter of conjecture, although the trustworthiness of the soldier is ground for the belief that an encounter occurred.

MISS LETITIA STEVENSON, REPORTED FIANCEE OF MERRIMAC HERO HOBSON.

Dame Rumor says that Miss Letitia Stevenson, youngest daughter of ex-Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, is engaged to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson of Merrimac fame. Miss Stevenson's parents deny the existence of an engagement, and naturally the two persons most interested are silent. Miss Stevenson is twenty-four and Captain Hobson thirty-two years of age.

ACQUITTAL IS FEARED

Danforth Case Puzzles the Authorities.

Self Confessed Murderer Would Be Cleared.

New York, July 28.—The state authorities are puzzled as to a satisfactory disposition of the case of Nina Danforth, the deformed girl who killed A. J. Emery and is now in the Cambridge house of correction awaiting trial, says a Boston special to the Press. Attorney General Parker feels that because of the pitiable circumstances of the case, a jury would acquit her. Yet, by her own admission and by the testimony of eye witnesses, she killed Emery as he stood in the doorway of his home in South Framingham. It is the fear of having a verdict of not guilty which causes the attorney general so much trouble. He is afraid the traditions of the Massachusetts courts will be violated by the return of a verdict in direct opposition to the evidence. The authorities are said to have at least reached the conclusion that the best ending of the case would be an arrangement which the state could accept without establishing a bad precedent and which would let the girl out of the house of correction under restraint, or with a verdict which would not be so harsh as to threaten her already weakened condition of mind. This could be accomplished with a verdict of manslaughter with a light sentence from which would be taken the time already spent by the prisoner in the house of correction.

MEN DIED OF GLANDERS

Two Brothers In Becker Country Contracted the Disease From Horses They Were Treating and Both Succumbed.

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. S. B. Brimhall, in charge of the veterinary department of the state board of health, has received a report of the death of two men in Becker county who died of glanders. The disease is one which attacks horses and cattle, but occasionally men contract the disease and die.

The men were brothers and lived on the same farm. One of their horses contracted glanders and died in April. Some time afterwards one of the brothers died. It was not supposed at that time that his death was caused by glanders, and there was a suspicion of smallpox, as he had some of the symptoms of the acute form of the disease in which the patient breaks out. The other symptoms of smallpox were lacking, however, and the disease was regarded as a mystery.

A second horse had contracted glanders in the meantime, but did not die until after the mysterious death of its owner. Still no extra interest was aroused in the case.

When, however, the second brother became ill and broke out in precisely the same manner as had his brother the physicians determined to get at the hoot of the matter. After a careful investigation they decided that the disease was glanders. The second brother died in the same manner as the first one. The autopsy confirmed the decision of the physicians. Both suffered from the acute form of the disease, in which the lesions appear on the body and do not on the mucuous membrane, as in the chronic form.

The men had cared for the horses which had glanders and thought nothing about it. The disease is contagious, and there is always the chance that the attendants of animals having glanders may contract the disease unless the utmost care is taken.

FRED AMES RETURNS

Minneapolis, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Superintendent of Police Fred W. Ames returned this morning to Minneapolis. He stated that he had been camping within 150 miles of town since he left. He denied absolutely that he ever intended to run away or to escape any indictments that might be found against him.

He was tired and worn out, he says, and only wanted to escape being bothered with letters and telegrams.

He refuses to state whether or not he intends to resign his position.

It is probable that he will be arraigned on the indictments charging him with bribery this afternoon.

A FOOL NEARLY KILLED

Seattle, July 28.—William Nixon tried to win a woman's affections in the guise of Outlaw Tracy and is nearly dead as the result of his foolhardy act. He told an actress in a music hall that he was none other than the famous desperado and threatened her life if she told. Saturday night when he entered the theater, he was attacked by a policeman, and the proprietor, Joe Williams, a brother of Deputy Sheriff Jack Williams who was wounded in a battle with Tracy at Bothell July 3. He was pounded into insensibility and has not fully regained his faculties yet. The mistake was discovered when the man's features were compared to those of a photograph at police headquarters. It is almost a miracle that the policeman did not shoot first and investigate afterwards as he was told positively that the man was Tracy and a reward of nearly $5000 is offered for the desperado dead or alive.

BULLET STOPPED BURGLAR

Butte, Mont., July 28.—A burglar who gave his name as James Marvin and residence Chicago, was fatally shot last night as he was attempting to make his escape from the rear of the residence of Samuel Treloar, on West Granite street. Mr. Treloar heard the burglar and gave the alarm. Hugh Anderson, a neighbor, responded, and upon the robber refusing to stop, fired, the bullet penetrating his abdomen. Marvin died this morning.

MINERS SAIL FOR SIBERIA

Tacoma, July 28.—The steamer Discovery has sailed from Nome with nearly 100 American miners engaged by the Northeastern Siberian company to begin the exploration of the Siberian coast for gold and other metals. They are in charge of John Rosen, managing director of the company which holds the concessions granted last winter by the Russian government to Col. Wenlarlarsky of the Russian army. They will go direct to St. Lawrence bay, opposite Cape Henrice of Wales.

CHAMBERLAIN'S BAD HEART

New York, July 28.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's condition is again giving serious concern to his friends, and grave rumors are current, says a World dispatch from London. It is said, according to the correspondent, that since Mr. Chamberlain was hurt in a cab accident on July 7 he has had recurring attacks of irregular heart action. The cardiac troubles are so serious that he has been examinned by three eminent specialists in heart affections, and after a consultation they forbade him to resume work in the house of commons last Thursday, as he had proposed to do. It is probable that the specialists feared the effect of the exciting scene which would be certain to take place upon his reappearance in parliament. Mr. Chamberlain's secretary has published the statement that the colonial secretary is "recovering more slowly than was expected."

THE NAVAL STATION

The exact date of their arrival in Duluth cannot be given now.

RESCUED.

Brave Mother Saves Her Young Son From Drowning.

St. Paul, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. McKenzie, 629 Ottawa avenue, yesterday afternoon commanded two women to lower her head-first into a cistern of water in order that she might save her 3-year-old son, Percy, from drowning. The cistern is located under the kitchen. The trap door above the cistern had been opened by the mother for the purpose of taking out the water. While she was in the yard the little boy ran into the house to get a drink. He did not notice the open door and fell into the cistern, in which there was 4½ feet of water. Mrs. McKenzie entered the kitchen just after the boy and heard him scream. With rare presence of mind Mrs. McKenzie called two of her neighborg and asked them to lower her by the feet into the cistern. The women demurred, saying that she might drown, and that it would be better to get a ladder. The grief-stricken mother urged them to do as she requested. She was lowered into the water and rescued her child.

The little fellow was unconscious when taken from the cistern. The mother, although in an exhausted condition, had presence of mind enough to know what to do and that there was little time to lose. The boy was rolled over a barrel and a physician was called. The child recovered consciousness and was pronounced out of danger last evening.

TOOK HIS LIFE.

Dr. Grisson, Well Known Alienist, Commits Suicide.

Washington, July 28.—Dr. Eugene Grisson, once well known as an alienist and neurologist, committed suicide here yesterday by sending a ball through his brain. Dr. Grisson had been dejected and morose for several weeks and had become physically and mentally weakened from the use of strong narcotics. He was a native of North Carolina, served on the Confederate side until wounded during the civil war, and afterward was a member of the state legislature. For twenty-one years he was superintendent of the North Carolina Insane asylum at Raleigh and gained a wide reputation as an alienist and lecturer.

Dr. Grissom was at one time first vice president of the American Medical society. He was 71 years of age.

KILLED IN FIGHT.

Fatal Ending to a Contest Over a Girl.

Portland, Ore., July 28.—Frank Carlson and George Baldwin, each aged 19 years, quarreled over two girls to whom both were paying attention. Carlson challenged Baldwin to fight. The fight took place with bare knuckles, in the presence of Carlson's brothers and other friends and of Baldwin's father, brother and others of his followers, in an unfrequented part of the city.

The fight lasted about twenty minutes. At the end of that time Carlson received a blow in the stomach and fell to the ground. When picked up he was dead. Baldwin is in jail.

INCREASE OF PENSION.

Washington, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—An increase of pension to $12 per month has been granted to William F. Knowlton, of St. Cloud.

MRS. MEAD DEAD.

New York, July 28.—Mrs. Mary Mead, who murdered her children, Alice and Mary, at their home in Brooklyn last Suturday, died in the hospital today.

OLCOTT MOVES UP

General Manager of the Corporation Mines.

L. W. Powell Assistant to President Cole.

Two important changes in the positions of local officers of the United States Steel corporation became effective Saturday and were announced then.

W. J. Olcott became general manager of the mines of the Oliver Iron Mining company and the Minnesota Iron company, which companies have control of all of the mines of the Steel corporation in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

L. W. Powell became assistant to President Thomas F. Cole, of the Minnesota and Oliver companies.

The changes are really part of that by which W. A. McGonagle, of the Duluth & Iron Range, became assistant to the president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, with full charge of the operations of that road.

Mr. Olcott has been relieved of all the railroad work, and his mining duties have been very much broadened. His position is much more prominent and important than it was before, when he was superintendent of the Mesaba mines of the steel corporation and president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad. He will retain the title of president of the railroad for the present, but the duties will be practically all assumed by Mr. McGonagle.

Mr. Cole has been president and general manager of the two companies, and while he continues as president, his title of general manager passes to Mr. Olcott, who will relieve him of much of the general oversight of the mining operations of the steel corporation.

Mr. Powell has had the title of agent and in that position he has had substantially the duties that he will now have, which comprise the title.

W. J. Olcott came to Duluth in February, 1894, to take charge of the Rockefeller mining interests with the title of superintendent. When Vice President McBride, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road stepped out, Mr. Olcott was made vice president of the railroad. Under the new deal by which the corporation took the Rockefeller interests, he became president of the railroad and general superintendent of the corporation's mining operations on the Mesaba range, which was his position until the recent change took place, whereby he was relieved of his railroad work and his mining operations were much enlarged.

He is a prominent figure among the iron mining men of the county and his advance has been steady ever since he took up the profession. He is receiving the deserved congratulations of his many friends on his elevation to the responsible position announced Saturday.

NEARING CAPE HAYTIEN

Gen. Salnave Has Entered Limba and Is Expected to Attack Cape Haytien Very Soon--- Foreigners Without Protection.

Cape Haytien, July 28.—Gen. Albert Salnave entered Limba yesterday afternoon and this morning he was within nine miles of this city, after having defeated the troops under Gen. Nord, the minister of war of the provisional government. The capitulation of Grande Riviere is expected, and Cape Haytien probably will be attacked this evening or tomorrow morning. Foreigners are without protection and are in danger. The United States gunboat Machias, which was ordered to proceed from Colon to this port, has not arrived. Much regret is expressed that no foreign power is represented here by a warship at such a critical moment.

A dispatch from Cape Haytien, on July 24, announced that an army from the department of Artibonite, in sympathy with M. Firmin, was marching on Cape Haytien from three sides. The three divisons were under command of Gens. Albert Salnave, Emile Gaspard and Thesse Monfiston. It was feared at that time that the gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot would land troops in support of M. Firmin, near Cape Haytien. The United States gunboat Machias sailed from Colon for Cape Haytien on July 23.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, July 28.—The army under Gen. Jean Juneau, who supports the candidacy of M. Firmin for the presidency of Hayti, has been repulsed by troops under the command of Gen. Saint-Foix Colin. The gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot prevented a pursuit of the Juneau forces, and Gen. Colin's troops returned to Port au Prince.

EDWARD M. SHEPARD, SUGGESTED AS DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE IN 1904.

Hon. William J. Bryan's reference at the recent dinner of the New England Democratic league at Nantasket Beach, Mass., to Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn as the most pronounced sample of "harmony Democrat" in the country has brought out numbers of suggestions as to Mr. Shepard's availability as the presidential candidate of his party in 1904. Mr. Shepard is an eminent lawyer and last year was the Democratic candidate for mayor of Greater New York, being defeated by Seth Low.

GAS FOR A DOLLAR

Price to Be Reduced to That Figure on Jan. 1.

Report of Commission Will Go to the Council Tonight.

Reduction In Water Rates ---Amount Not Yet Decided On.

There will be important reductions in gas and water rates in Duluth to take effect Jan. 1.

Gas for illuminating and fuel purposes will be reduced 25 and 15 cents per 1000 feet.

The exact reduction in water rates has not yet been determined, but the board of water and light commissioners has the matter under consideration.

In the past six months the municipal water and gas plant had earned $6245.76 over all expenses, and the indications are that the earning surplus at the end of the current year will be not less than $20,000.

These facts are contained in the semi-annual report of the board of water and light commissioners which will be presented to the council this evening.

The showing of the department for the period mentioned is very remarkable. In fact, municipal ownership of the water and gas service shows up better than ever before.

The reduction in gas rates is news that will be received with joy throughout the territory reached by the gas service. At present the rate is $1.15 per 1000 feet for fuel and $1.25 for light.

This will be reduced to a flat rate of $1 for either fuel or lighting, and it will be a great saving to many householders.

The board of water and light commissioners is of the opinion that the purchase of the West Duluth water plant, on the basis proposed, will not only mean a reduction in water rates to the people of West Duluth, but to the city in general.

The aggregate earnings of the department in the past six months is $93,881.19.

The operation and maintenance, including interest on the bonds, amounted to $87,637.37 for the same period.

In previous years the first six months usually shows a loss, while the last six month shows a surplus sufficient to counteract the loss of the first six. This year conditions are changed, and the commissioners are in hope of breaking the record for earnings by the end of the current year.

The growth of the business of the department can best be appreciated by a comparison of the figures for operation and maintenance only during the first six months of 1901 and 1902:

1901	$27,322
1902	30,695
An increase of	3,372

The receipts from water and gas rates, the latter of which was reduced 10 cents per 1000 last January, amounted to:

1901	$74,085
1902	84,390
An increase of	10,305

In his report Manager Case says that the reduction of gas rates to $1 next January will undoubtedly have the effect of largely increasing the consumption of gas both as light and fuel. Manager Case also calls attention to the fact that water rates in Duluth are somewhat higher than in other cities, but says that every effort will be made to reduce them. He looks forward to a growth in water consumption in the next six months which will make the warnings fully $14,000 more per annum than those of 1901, and thinks that this would justify a reduction about the first of the new year.

DEATH CALLS.

Mrs. Leonidas Merritt Has Turn For the Worse and Dies.

Mrs. Leonidas Merritt, of Oneota, died shortly after 7:30 o'clock this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alva Merritt, of Forty-sixth avenue west and Oneota street. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure. Her death came as a severe shock to the relatives and many friends, for up to Sunday Mrs. Merritt was slowly mending in health. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, awaiting the reply of telegrams sent to a son in Nebraska and other relatives outside the city.

Mrs. Merritt has not been in good health for the past four or five years, and a year ago Mr. Merritt broke up housekeeping and took her out to his ranch in Nebraska, intending later to spend a year or more traveling through the West for the benefit of her health. They returned to Duluth last spring. Mrs. Merritt showing marked improvement, until within the last few days, when a change for the worse was apparent.

Mrs. Merritt lacked a few months of being 51 years of age, and has been a lifelong resident of Duluth. Her maiden name was Miss Elizabeth Wheeler. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wheeler, of Oneota, both of whom survive her. Mrs. Merritt leaves a husband and three children, Mrs. Alva Merritt, Lucien Merritt, who resides here and who has been attending the state university at Minneapolis, and Harry Merritt, who has been manager of his father's ranch in Nebraska. The latter has been sent for and is expected to arrive to attend the funeral services.

Mrs. Merritt was a lifelong member of the Oneota M. E. church and was prominently identified with work in church circles until bad health compelled her to cease active work. She was united in marriage to Leonidas Merritt, of this city, twenty-nine years ago.

Mrs. Merritt's long residence here has given her as wide an acquaintance as any other woman at the head of the lakes, and she leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn her loss and join in sympathy with the bereaved family.

FIVE AFTER IT

That Number of Candidates After Nomination For Sheriff.

There are now five men who are asking votes at the primaries for the Republican nomination for sheriff.

John R. Meining got into the game late Saturday afternoon by filing for the Republican nomination for sheriff.

As all the candidates announce their intention to win and express unbounded confidence in the result, the prospects for a lively fight are increasing every day.

It has been rumored that C. M. Burnett, roadmaster for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, would be a candidate, but he has not yet declared himself, and his friends say he still has it under advisement. If he should come out it would make six candidates, as William C. Sargent, J. T. Armstead, Archie Phillip and W. W. Butchart are already in the field, with Mr. Meining added to the list Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Meining was chief deputy for Sheriff Sargent during the first year he was in office, and he therefore claims sufficient experience. He has lived in Duluth many years, and has a large circle of acquaintances. At present he is traveling on the ranges for the Duluth Candy company.

As each candidate has some elements of strength from which he expects to draw support, the contest is becoming most interesting, and it will be more so before it is ended.

While there have been a number of filings, several county officers are yet without opposition. These are J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court; L. H. Whipple, county treasurer; Dr. S. H. Boyer, coroner; Charles P. Frank, county surveyor. No contestants for their nominations are reported yet except that of Treasurer Whipple. It is said that W. A. Holgate will probably file for that office shortly.

So far N. F. Hugo, who has filed for the Republican nomination for the house of representatives in the Fifty-first district, has no opposition, but it is reported that another candidate is likely to file in the Duluth end of that district soon. Pressure has been brought to bear upon P. C. Schmidt, who was formerly a member of the house, to induce him to run, but so far without effect.

AMONG RAILROADS

Harvest Rates In Effect and Rush Westward Begins.

Non-Passengers Must Not Go Through Union Depot Gates.

Accident Delays Northern Pacific---Preparing For Grain Traffic.

The cheap harvest rates to the wheat fields of Minnesota and the Dakotas went into effect Saturday, and about 200 men poured out of the city the first day.

The exodus has continued ever since, and it probably will continue until the men are cleaned out of this part of the Northwest and the wheat fields are filled up.

The railroads that tap the wheat country, according to their annual custom, put into effect Saturday rates of $5 per head for all wheat country points, the only restriction being that the men must go in bunches of five at least. Single tickets are not sold, the idea being to ensure that the rates will be used for the purpose for which they are made—to supply the harvest fields with men enough to gather in the grain.

While this rush is going on it will be very difficult for employers who want men for other branches of labor to have their needs supplied, as the men want to go to the wheat fields. For a week or more many of the laborers have been refusing to take other work, as they were waiting for the harvest rates to go into effect.

MUST KEEP OUT.

New Union Depot Regulation to Be Enforced.

The traveling public of Duluth, particularly the feminine portion has just been dealt a hard jab by the officials of the Union Depot and Transfer company.

No more can a bevy of eight or ten maidens accompany a friend to the station and expect to get through the large gates that separates the trainshed proper from the rest of the depot. By an enforcement of an old regulation all this is done away with and there have been many complaints to the officials of the company in regard to such a rigid enforcement of the law.

Formerly persons, other than those who had purchased transportation on any of the trains could accompany their friends inside the gate. Large parties would frequently come down and give a departing loved one a grand send off. A young man could find a secluded spot to give a last fond farewell to his sweetheart, who expected to be absent from the city a day or two, and that is changed. Only those who are actually going away on the train can get through the late and if any of the art made famous by one Hobson is to be practiced it must be done near the entrance of the depot in the glare of the public eye.

But while there are complaints others are happy over the change. Newly married couples will not be worried about being handed a barrel or two of rice after they have entered the coach. Neither will they find a number of old shoes tied to the seat.

But the persons who kick righteously are those who are taking a feeble relative or friend to the train. Frequently an old lady will travel alone. With some one to carry her baggage to the train and who sees that she gets aboard safely. Now, however, at the gate she must grab a heavy grip and the rest of her luggage and make her way to the train alone. A few days ago a man came down to the depot to see his wife off. She carried the baggage while he held the baby. At the gate he was refused admission and it was with the greatest difficulty she made her way to the cars.

The reason for the enforcement of the rule is that too many people were getting aboard trains without tickets. The result was that too many cash fares were collected. The Northern Pacific complained first and it was not unusual for the conductors to collect fifteen or twenty fares on a trip.

One of the officials of the depot company in speaking of the change in the system said this morning:

"The rule we are enforcing is in vogue in all the large cities. Too many people get aboard trains without a ticket. We receive complaints regularly, but the people should accustom themselves to it. None of the young men or women have protested as yet. In some of the cities or in one at least, the regulations prohibit the kissing bood-bye which seems to have found so much favor these times. Many business men disapprove of the change because they cannot get their mail aboard the trains. In many offices to save time and delay the mail is put aboard the mail car instead of sending it to the postoffice and from there to the train."

ONE CAR DITCHED.

Occurred In a Cut and Delayed Traffic Considerably.

What would ordinarily be a trifling accident under usual circumstances caused considerable stir on the Northern Pacific last night and this morning. A flange broke on a car in a freight train near Sturgeon Lake, and the result was that the passenger train from St. Paul due here at 6:30 this morning did not get in until 11:30 o'clock. I happened that the accident happened so it ditched a car in a cut. Had it happened in the open it would not have taken fifteen minutes to clear the way, but as it was it was necessary to get a wrecking outfit and lift the car out of the cut. As it was Sunday night it took some time to get the wrecking outfit together, as St. Paul had to be searched by detectives last night to get the crew together.

PREPARING FOR THE RUSH.

Railroads Getting Ready For the Grain Traffic.

The railroads that tap the wheat country are beginning to prepare for the annual rush of work following the harvesting of the wheat crop. This traffic is immense in good years, and according to all reports this is going to be a good year. The rush does not begin before the middle of August, and it is not pronounced for some days after that, but during the latter part of August and the fall months following the grain traffic is of a volume that tests the capacity of all departments of the railroads.

Shortly before Aug. 1 the railroads have to begin making their preparations, and they are under way now. Additional help has to be employed, extra dispatchers put on to keep track of the large additional number of trains, and the equipment has to be rounded up and placed where it can be reached when it is needed. The wheat traffic uses up a tremendous number of cars, and some preliminary work is needed to get them together.

BALL GAMES.

Many Good Contests on Saturday and Sunday.

The Superior baseball team composed chiefly of Duluth players defeated Tower yesterday by a score of 8 to 0.

The Vermilion range champions were outclassed though the Tower men demonstrated that they were capable of the fastest kind of work.

Of the nine Superior players six were Duluthians. Louis Kline caught, Shepard played short, Girard played a phenomenal game at third, and Lambert, Randall and Hall, all of Duluth gave Superior a great outfield.

"Red" Hanley pitched an unusually good game and old Andy Porter at second played as fast a game as he used to before the discovery of America. The score by innings:

Superior	3	0	3	0	0	1	0	1	0—8

The game at Oneota Park Saturday afternoon between the Board of Trade and Business University resulted in a big victory for the grain manipulators.

The University infield went to pieces in the fourth inning. With two men out and three on bases an unnecessary throw to first went wild and let in four runs for the Board of Trade.

The winning team played fast ball from start to finish. McRae who pitched for the Board of Trade is a college man and pitched an easy game, showing that he had much better material to let out in case he was pushed to it.

The score by innings was:

Business 'Varsity.	1	0	0	0	1	1	0	3	0—6
Board of Trade.	2	2	0	7	0	1	0	0	1—13

Pitchers—University, Skelton, Stockman and Lowe. Board of Trade, McRae.

The Ron-Fernandez Cigar company team took exceptions yesterday to certain things the Brewery Workers did to an aggregation of cigarmakers the Sunday previous. The Ron-Fernandez battery consisting of Piering and Gonzales did great work. The score:

Fan-Fernandez	2	1	2	1	2—8
Brewery Workers	0	0	0	0	2—2

The Eagle team had a rather strenuous Sabbath. In the morning this team played the Marshall-Wells Hardware company team. An account of the game sent in on a Marshall-Wells letter head says: "Like a meteor from Mars, the Eagles fell from their high estate, and it was the fast M.-W. team with Stockton in the box that did it." The score was 10 to 9. Summers pitched for the Eagles.

In the afternoon the Eagles went against the Hubs with disastrous effects. The Hubs accumulated 14 runs while the Eagles were soaring off with 3. Lauermann and Nacey of the Hubs drove out terrific home runs. Young pitched for the Eagles and Lowe for the Hubs.

Manager Julius Abrahamson of the Hub team has issued a challenge comprehensive enough to call for a reply from any amateur team at the head of the lakes.

TWO YACHTS

Provided For the President's Use at Oyster Bay.

Washington, July 28.—President Roosevelt will have two yachts at his disposal at Oyster Bay. The beautiful yacht Mayflower, which was fitted up expressly for the president's use, has been at Oyster Bay ever since the president went to Sagamore Hill. On Saturday after Secretary Moody's arrival at Oyster Bay he wired the department to dispatch the Sylph to the summer home of the president and she sailed for that place yesterday. There is no information as to the use to which she will be put, but it is presumed that she will be employed for short cruises in the shallow waters of the sound, where the Mayflower would not be available on account of her heavy draught.

ATTORNEY MUST SHOW

Judge Dunne or He Will Release Spalding.

Chicago, July 28.—Judge Dunne today notified States Attorney Dineen that he would release Charles W. Spalding, former treasurer of the University of Illinois and president of the Globe Savings bank, on a writ of habeas corpus tomorrow unless the state's attorney could show conclusively that the law under which Spalding was convicted of embezzlement is not special legislation.

EX-CONVICT

Shoots Five Men at Fresno, Cal., and Escapes.

Fresno, Cal., July 28.—At Porterville, James McKinney, an ex-convict, shot five men and escaped into the country in a stolen rig. McKinney first shot out the lights of a saloon and tried to shoot the cards out of the hands of a player, wounding the latter slightly. He then went to a livery stable and, at the point of a revolver, secured a rig. As he was drivng off a constable, a deputy and several citizens tried to arrest McKinney. He opened fire, wounding four of the party, and escaped.

Officers from surrounding counties have been notified and a sharp lookout is being kept. Two years ago McKinney killed a man at Bakersfield, but was exonerated. He has served a term inn the staate prison.

ATTACKED BY MOROS.

An Onslaught on American Engineers Was Repulsed.

Manila, July 28.—A party of engineers commanded by Lieut. Brown, encamped at Matalang river was attacked by Moros at midnight on Friday. The attack was repulsed without loss to the Americans. Three Moros were killed. Friendly natives report that the sultan of Natail personally led the attack, thinking the American camp was without sentries.

MERCHANTS ASSIGN.

New York, July 28.—The firm of Cumming & Stockbridge, export and import commission merchants at 11 Broadway, assigned today. Liabilities of the firm are given as in excess of $500,000, but the assets of the firm will not be known until an examination of the books is made. The firm was mentioned in recent Havana dispatches as having been involved in the failure of B. Duran, of that city.

WATER IS ALL RIGHT.

Manila, July 28.—An analysis of the city water shows that it is uncontaminated. There were sixty-one cases of cholera here today. A cyclone at Camp Vicars on Saturday last caused much loss of property. Many villages were destroyed and a number of Moros were killed.

DR. WILSON IS SAVED

Hanna's Efforts to Save His Life Prove Successful.

The Death Sentence Commuted By Nicaragua's President.

Was Found Guilty After Trial By Court-martial.

Washington, July 28.—The life of Dr. Russell Wilson, of Ohio, who was captured with a revolutionist party in Nicaragua, has been saved through the representations of Minister Sorea of that country. A cablegram was received at the state department today from Chester Donaldson, United States consul at Managua, Nick., dated the 26th inst., as follows:

"As a courtesy to the United States and sympathy for the mother, the president will commute Russell Wilson's death sentence."

Wilson was one of several Americans who joined a filibustering expedition which landed at Monkey point, near Bluefields, early in July. Most of the party were captured or killed. Wilson would have been summarily executed but for the interposition of Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister here. Having secured a stay of proceedings and a guarantee of legal trial, the minister has now induced President Zelaya to commute the death sentence imposed upon Wilson by court-martial. Before the receipt of this message it was not known here that the court-martial had been held. It is presumed that commutation is to imprisonment for a time and then expulsion from Nicaragua.

Cleveland, July 28.—Senator Hanna, who has been most active in Dr. Wilson's case, was much gratified today when shown the Associated Press dispatch from Washington announcing the president of Nicaragua would commute the sentence of the prisoner.

"Now that the doctor's life has been spared," said Senator Hanna, "I think it will be found that the Nicaraguan authorities have charged him with a crime with which he was in no manner connected, because he was at college here in Ohio at the time it is said to have occurred."

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

Tailor-Made Gown of Light Grey Cheviot.

What is more fetching than a woman of perfect figure and distinguished bearing clad in a severely plain tailor-made gown? The very fact that these gowns are more rarely seen than formerly gives them a greater distinction of appearance. As they depend entirely upon cut, material, and finish for their effect, everything for such a gown must be carefully chosen and of the best quality. The suit illustrated was of cheviot of a very light grey, the gored skirt being of the most approved cut, close fitting in the upper portion, flaring below the knees, and finished merely by several rows of stitching of Corticelli silk in self color. The single breasted close fitting body coat had a tiny added basque, mounted at the sides with a curving hip seam. The coat collar and sleeve finish hardly to be called cuffs, showed a novel touch in a facing of smooth finished cloth exactly matching the cheviot, and pierced in a Persian pattern, this being overlaid upon figured panne in very brilliant colorings, the touch of color giving the gown an individuality all its own.

Travel is the great educator. People who move about and come in contact with different classes and view different scenes are always "up-to-date" and broad minded. The "well traveled man" is the best equipped man. The best traveled people will always be found on the trains of the Milwaukee road. The "Pioneer Limited," running between the Twin Cities and Chicago every day in the year, is the famous train of the world and is used by the best people. Heathen of England.

In Cornwall It Is Said the Worship of the Goddess Flora Is Still Celebrated By Romans.

It will probably be news to most people that there are still living in remote and, for the most part, outlying portions of the British isle, people whose dwelling places and mode of life in general, are but very little removed from those of savages.

In many of the lesser known Hebrides, for instance, the people are as much cut off from civilization as are the Inuits or the Congo dwarfs. Their houses are, so far as outward appearances goes, exactly like Kaffir huts—just rough heaps of stones a few feet high surmounted by circular straw roofs. Chimneys, as a rule, are conspicuous by their absence, and the reek of the peat smoke fills each interior. Men, women and children go barefoot, even in the depths of winter.

Whisk up the average stay-at-home Englishman, set him down suddenly among these strange folks, and then ask him to guess what part of the world he is in. He would probably name half a hundred outlandish places in Asia, Africa and America; but it is practically certain that he would never guess that he was on a British island. Even the language of the natives—Gaelic—would be quite unintelligible to him.

Not, of course, be it understood that these hardy fishermen are savages in the sense of being degraded, gluttenous or cruel. On the contrary, they are a fine, healthy race, and exceedingly religious and temperate. But it is doubtful if their standard of living is even up to that of many original tribes, and it is certain that they know far the most part quite as little of what is going on in the great world around them.

A similar remark applies to not a few remote islands off the west coast of Ireland, where may be studied primitive habits of life which have remained unaltered since the days of the semi-legendary Firbolgs. The dwellings on many of these remote outposts of Britain do not even pretend to be weatherproof. They are merely rough, beach-stone hovels, with thatched roofs tied on by stone-weighted wisps, and, of course, no chimneys. Men, women and children are all obliged to work at the fishing and in the fields.

In parts of Connemara, too, is preserved a curious custom, which is exactly akin to the summer migration of the savage Samoyeds and their reindeer. With the coming of spring the entire population of several villages will close their winter dwellings, tie their infant children on their backs, carry with them their shovels, some corn and potatoes, with a few pots and cooking utensils, drive their cattle before them, and migrate into the hills in search of fresh pastures for their flocks.

Arrived there, they build mud huts, or summer houses of sods and wattles, and proceed to cultivate and sow with corn a few fertile spots in the neighboring valleys. They remain thus for about two months of the spring and early summer till the corn is sown. Then, their stock of provisions being exhausted and the pasture consumed by their cattle, they return to the shore and eke out a precarious condition by fishing. No further attention is devoted to the crops until they return to reap them in the autumn in a manner similar to the spring migration.

The goddess Flora is worshipped annually on May 8 at Helston, in Cornwall, with much pomp, ceremony and rejoicing. On the evening of the previous day practically the entire adult population sallies forth into the surrounding countryside for garlands and green branches, just as did the ancient Romans eighteen centuries ago. The main feature of the festival is a curious dance performed to a sprightly tune, said to be used also in Wales and in Brittany, and on "Flora day," as it is locally termed, both doors of all houses are kept open, in order that the strings of dancers may pass through them at pleasure. For any householder to close his doors would be to invite misfortune and ill luck throughout the ensuing year.

Nearly all travelers in Central Africa have referred to the curious custom, prevalent among almost all the pagan tribes of driving quantities of nails into sacred trees and other objects that have been adjudged worthy of veneration and this not in malice, but in a religious rite, the nails in question being intended as votive offerings.

Exactly the same thing may be witnessed today at the sacred well of St. Maebrubha, in Loch Maree, Rossshire, where is an ancient oak tree, studded with countless nails of all sizes, the offerings of invalid pilgrims, who came to worship and be cured. Pennies and half pennies, also, are to be seen in enormous quantities driven edgeways into the tough bark; and a friend of the writer's who visited the spot some little time back, discovered in a cleft high up in the trunk what he took to be a shilling. On being extracted, however, it proved to be a counterfeit. Probably the donor, finding that he could get no value for his coin in the natural world, concluded he might as well try, as a last resource, what effect it would have in the spiritual.

Of course, the poor cotters and others who flock to St. Maebrubha with their nails and their pence do not for a moment admit that they are assisting at a pagan ceremony. But they most undoubtedly are. Well worship has always occupied an important place in paganism, and the sacred oak before which each pilgrim must thrice kneel ere humbly presenting his offering—what is it but an obvious survival of the sacred groves of Druidical times?

Similarly, the final rite, in which the patient is towed thrice around the island at the stern of a boat with the derived from those distant days, when course of the sun, is clearly a custom the adoration of that orb, the visible source of light and life, was the ordinary and obvious duty of those whom he benefited.

But these are harshless observances. There is a darker side to the picture. For instance, the cock has always a prominent part in paganism the world over. In India, in Ceylon, in Hayti, he is to this day openly sacrificed by being buried alive. So, too, is he in parts of Scotland; but secretly, at the dead of night, with much mystery, the object being to effect a cure in cases of epilepsy and insanity, by propitiating the demon that is supposed to dwell in those afflicted by these terrible maladies. Also, it is said, by no means unknown among the Highland crofters for one of a herd of cattle to be interred alive after a similar fashion, as an offering to the spirit of the murrain, when that disease or anything resembling it, is more than usually prevalent.

Paganism is something which one does not usually associate with Catholic Ireland. It is a fact, however, that along parts of the wild Kerry coast mystic rites, which savants have had no difficulty in identifying with those incidental to the worship of the Greek god Priapus, are performed to this day, with more or less regularity.

The natives—wild, ignorant fisherfolk for the most part—are shy of letting strangers know anything about the rites in question and inquirers are usually told to mind their own business and not to pry into matters with which they have no concern. It is known, however, that the principal ceremony is emblematic of those human sacrifices that were undoubtedly exacted by the god of old.

A youth of 15 or 18 is the central figure. On the morning of the day appointed he is stripped naked and carried to the sea beach, accompanied by numbers of fishermen, their wives, and daughters. In front of him marches an aged man flourishing a hatchet. The rear of the procession is closed by another venerable man with a saw, which he also brandishes in the air at certain intervals.

SELLS ITS HOLDINGS

Mesaba Central Land and Exploration Company Sells Out.

Republic Mine and Thirty-Seven Forties In the Deal.

Quarter of a Million Dollars Is the Consideration.

An important mining deal, involving iron lands on the Mesaba range, believed to be very valuable, was closed up Friday afternoon.

The Mesaba Central Land Exploration company, of this city, has disposed of all its holdings on the Mesaba range to a Pittsburg syndicate, headed by E. H. Jennings, for $250,000. The sale includes the fee of the Republic mine, situated in the east half of the northwest quarter in 14-58-19, also the fee to thirty-seven other well selected forties in townships 58-18 and 58-19.

The lease, which is owned by the Republic Iron and Steel company, carried with it a royalty of 18 cents per ton, with a minimum annual output of 75,000 tons.

The deal is the result of negotiations that have been carried on for the past six months by N. B. Merritt, Albert C. Hubbell and Thomas A. Merritt, and the money is said to have been paid into the First National bank of Duluth Friday afternoon.

The lands are to be thoroughly explored by the Pittsburg syndicate. It is understood that there are at least 6,000,000 tons of high grade ore in sight on the eighty acres leased to the Republic Iron and Steel company, and that the unexplored properties are considered very valuable by those interested in mining circles.

The Mesaba Central Land and Exploration company, which made the sale, is comprised of Alfred Merritt, president; L. W. Palmer, vice president; R. H. Palmer, treasurer, and Lewis H. Merritt, secretary.

The deeds covering the transfer went on record with the register of deeds of St. Louis country several days ago. Another important stripping contract on the Missabe range is reported. The Republic Iron and Steel company has closed a contract with Capt. George W. Wallace and James B. Vivian for the stripping of 1,000,000 yards on the company's property.

The stripping is to begin immediately, and the steam shovels and all other necessary equipment is already on the ground. New tracks have been built in to the property to be stripped.

MADAME TULLY,

Of New Orleans, La., Here With Her Wonderful New Treatment.

She Is Luxuriously Quartered at the Spalding Hotel Where She Will Receive Callers.

"Charming Madame Tully!" That expression is no idle tale, nor the day dream of a youthful fancy. No other word is broad enough in its varied meaning to describe the woman who is now the possessor of the powers that defy the encroachments of age, and will make beauty spots out of nature's own blemishes. Her cheeks, at the age of 59 years, still retain the ruddy rose tint of young womanhood. Age with her is seemingly a misnomer.

Madame Tully arrived in the city yesterday, and is luxuriously quartered in parlors 440-422 Spalding hotel.

Madame Tully's home is in New Orleans, and she is known all over the South and East.

Whatever skeptical ideas the modern world may have for the fabled fountain of perpetual youth thought to exist at the time of the discovery of America in the wilds of Florida, science has, nevertheless, furnished many more startling things than methods of treatment calculated to restore lost youth and to preserve it intact for years. Madame Tully claims to have the greatest discovery of the age along this line, and her subjects and testimonials prove that her claims are genuine. The proper care and treatment as scientifically illustrated by Madame Tully's methods can preserve any woman's beauty long after the ideas of the age belive she should be old and wrinkled. Madame Tully is a living example of the success of her own treatment, and she had always followed the old adage, "Physicians, cure theyself." Madame Tully will be "at home" to callers tomorrow. The ladies of Duluth are invited to call. The madame is just from Minneapolis and St. Paul, where she had spent the last six months and carries with her letters to some of our best people. Ladies are invited to call. Take elevator to parlors, Spalding hotel.

INGENIOUS.

Ten-Year-Old Girl Has New Method of Stealing.

The 12-year-old boy burglar arrested last week has a rival in a little girl apparently 40 years of age, who has invented a unique scheme for stealing.

This morning Ida Hopkins, an 8-year-old girl residing at 408 West Second street, was sent down town to do some shopping. With a number of packages containing about $1 worth of merchandise she was on her way home when she met a strange girl on Superior street.

This stranger induced little Miss Hopkins to go into the Big Duluth store and leave her packages. She then took the Hopkins girl out on the street, lost her, and hurrying back to the Big Duluth, secured Miss Hopkins' packages and disappeared.

The police are of the opinion that the girl is simply the tool for older persons that have devised this ingenious method of stealing.

The stranger wears a red jacket and straw hat, and according to persons that saw her with Ida Hopkins, she is not over 10 years of age.

COLLIDED.

Elevated Trains In New York Come Together With Crash.

New York, July 28.—A head-on collision occurred today between two trains of the Brooklyn elevated railroad on Adams street, which resulted in the derailing of six cars, the wrecking of two and the injury of a number of passengers, at least two of them fatally.

The collision is thought to have been caused by a misplaced switch. A train from New York to Bath Beach was turning the curve at the junction when it was met by a train from the bridge station and the crash occurred. Godfrey Moore and Henry Moore, of New York, were pinioned beneath the wreckage and probably fatally hurt. It was nearly an hour before they were released. Thirteen others were bruised more or less seriously.

Charles Shattuck, motorman of the Bath Beach train, was arrested. John Sullivan, the motorman of the other train, has disappeared.

VANDALS.

Eight Plate Glass Windows In Freimuth's Destroyed Since Jan. 1.

Eight of the large plate glass windows in Freimuth's store have been destroyed by miscreants since the first of the year, and the management is going to take steps to stop the practice.

A special officer will be placed on watch, and anyone caught tampering with the windows will be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

What the object of the depredations may be the management of the store is at a loss to know. On July 4 one of the large windows was cracked, and afterwards a piece was cut out with a diamond. Now there are three of them badly scratched with diamonds, and they will have to be replaced.

COUNTERFEITER.

Shrewd Criminal Arrested By the Chicago Police.

Chicago, July 28.—Alfred S. Cunningham, said to be the "King of Chicago counterfeiters," has been arrested here by federal secret service officers, and is charged with being the shrewdest maker of spurious half dollars in the country. The officers found a complete counterfeiting plant where they arrested Cunningham, and several sacks of bogus money. Most of the tools and dies used were secreted in a hollow work bench. Cunningham waived examination by Commissioner Foote and was held to the federal grand jury.

MAY YOHE'S CLAIMS

Against Lord Hope Are Not Sustained.

London, July 28.—Lord Francis Hope's creditors met today with a view to liquidation of the claims against him on the basis of 10 shillings on the pound. Nothing definite was done except that a statement was given out to the effect that a claim for £9100, presented by May Yohoe, the divorced wife of Lord Francis Hope, could not be sustained.

TENNIS TOURNEY.

English Champions Add Much to Interest.

Longwood, Mass., July 28.—The presence of the great English tennis players, H. F. and R. L. Doherty, lent much interest to the Longwood tennis tournament which opened here today under most favorable weather conditions. Half a dozen matches were played off in the first round during the forenoon, but all were ignored by the spectators with the exception of that between H. L. Doherty, the present champion of all England, and H. H. Hackett, of New York. The Englishman won three sets to one, as follows: 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Hanged For Assaulting a Young White Woman.

Pembroke, Ga., July 28.—John Wise, a negro who last Wednesday committed an assault upon Mrs. John Smith, a young white woman, living near this place, was lynched here last night. He was captured near Polier, Ga., after a desperate fight with a posse. He was returned to this place and positively identified as the assailant of Mrs. Smith. He was then hanged to a telegraph pole and his body riddled with bullets by the mob, which afterward quietly dispersed.

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO | SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO

And the Sale Jogs Merrily Along!

When we first started out with the sale—somewhat over three weeks ago—we hadn't any idea of cleaning up so decisively throughout the store—We started out to clean up the stocks as good as we knew how, and with the same principle of doing things as upon regular occasions, excepting that we were willing to sell things without our regular and legitimate profits—to clean up our stocks, get things out of the way of workmen, who were to commence on our building, and be able to start the new season with comparatively fresh stocks throughout our store—We've succeeded admirably—we've sold more merchandise in three weeks than we had any idea we could sell—We've made new records, and made more customers than at any other period than we can remember—All because we have lived up strictly to our rule of doing what we promise—living up faithfully to our advertising and sticking faithfully to the character of the merchandise that has built up our business.

The merchandise comes from our regular makers—we won't sell anything that we can't guarantee—and we can't guarantee anything that we don't know all about—We know what our regular makers can do; we don't know about others.

We don't try to tell you that we have the "only great bargains in the country," for we appreciate your intelligence too much for that.

There are others stores, and plenty of them that offer as great inducements as we do—lots of them everywhere—some may not be as particular as to the qualities, and prices may appear smaller at first—but we do not think that any store in Duluth, or in this vicinity are offering better values, or as good, as we are at the present time—quality considered.

Sometimes careless dealers stretch values like rubber—what one calls $15 value at $10—another would call $18 for $10—and a third would make it $20 value for $10, just to go the other one better. Who cares for such business methods? Instead of being a help, such comparisons only confuse people—when they don't deceive them to their own hurt—No, we don't make any such comparisons—we don't make any such elastic prices. We expect our customers to believe our advertising—and, they do. We're very particular that every item advertised will be found in the store—and the reduction, if any, just as it is advertised. No explanation of the sale is needed—everybody knows that it rests on sound business principles—and that it is a trade movement brought about by improvements and changes in our business and the enlargement of our building in which to do business. We can afford to do, and are doing things now that you wouldn't expect us to do at any other time.

The store news for tomorrow is practically the same as told of yesterday—with possibly a few additions; the values are as strong as at any time during the sale—and don't forget that there are plenty of very good bargains that are not advertised at all—because the lots may be too small—If you are interested in anything advertised here make it a point to come soon enough—for we repeat lots are getting small.

TROUBLES

Of Baltimore Baseball Club to Be Aired In Courts.

Baltimors, July 28.—The troubles of the Baltimore American league baseball club are to be aired in the courts. Today the Baltimore Baseball and Athletic company, by its attorney, filed a bill in circuit court No. 1 asking that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the American league grounds, and also asking that President Johnson of the American league be required to account for all money received by him since McGraw and his associates left Baltimore and joined the New York National league club.

The bill was filed against Ban Johnson as defendant, and upon it Judge Henry Harlan issued an order requiring cause to be shown by Aug. 1 next why the receiver should not be appointed as prayed. The bill states that in January the club became a member of the American league and leased the present grounds on the York road. This lease, the bill declares was assigned to President Ban Johnson in March last.

Besides the appointment of a receiver, the bill asks that assignment of the lease of the Baltimore club to Ban Johnson be declared void and that Johnson be required to render an accounting of the profits on the games received by him.

An injunction is also prayed to prevent the president of the American league from disposing of the club's assets and property at the baseball ground. Later in the day Johnson's attorney filed an answer, in which he denies the allegations, and claims that Mr. Johnson, as president of the American league, is continuing acting, not only as owner of the Baltimore club, but of all other clubs of the American league.

GREAT SENSATION

Caused By Writ Issued By Irish Leaders.

New York, July 28.—A writ of conspiracy issued by Messrs. Redmond, O'Brien, Dillon and Davitt against the trustees of the new Irish landlord trust has created a great sensation in Ireland, says a Tribune dispatch from London. The Freeman's Journal promises that it will be the biggest constitutional hearing in Ireland since the Parnell trial in 1882.

DROWNED WHILE BATHING.

St. Paul, July 28.—A Fergus Falls special to the Dispatch says: Oliver Dahl, a young man whose home is at Eleva, Wis., was drowned while bathing in Wall lake near this city last evening. The body sank in twenty feet of water and has not yet been recovered.

ACTUARY'S FIGURES.

Because of the calculations of an actuary on the possibilities of the life of Morton F. Plant and his young son, and the still further possibility of the birth of a son to the boy, not yet of age and unmarried, Horace G. Hoadley and his brother Charles, of Waterbury, are convinced that they are entitled by their kinship to the late Henry B. Plant to two-thirds of his estate, variously estimated to be worth from $17,000,000 to $26,000,000, writes the New Haven correspondent of the New York World. This was brought out for the first time at a hearing on an application brought by the executors to dissolve attachments aggregating $17,000,000 on the estate.

The Hoadleys are sons of the late Mr. Plant's half brother, and in the will are provided for by liberal annuities. By taking the estate to New York state for distribution the will, which left the estate ultimately to the unborn offspring of the grandson of Mr. Plant, was declared invalid and preparations were made, it is claimed, to divide the millions between Mrs. Plant, the widow, and her son Morton.

By keeping the millions in Connecticut the Hoadleys hope to have the estate disposed of according to the will. This provides that in case there is no great grandson born the estate is to go to the legal heirs.

Col. L. D. Burpee, counsel for the Hoadleys, said the elements in favor of his clients, based on the calculations of the actuary, were the possibilities that Morton F. Plant should not have other children, and that his 8-year-old son should die without issue. The court reversed the decision.

HUGE IRON DEPOSITS

Messrs. P. L. Kimberly and Frank Buhl Buy Utah Lands.

John G. Williams of Duluth Tells of the Big Deal.

As Much Ore as the Whole Mesaba Range Contains.

John G. Williams has just returned from Utah, where, in the capacity of attorney, he closed the purchase by P. L. Kimberly and Frank Buhl, of Sharon, Pa., of enormous deposits of iron ore in that state. The deal was one of the largest iron deals ever made in the country, the consideration being $2,250,000.

Two men, residents of Lake Superior iron region, profit by the deal. They are R. B. Dear, of Winston Bros. & Dear, and Fred Lerch, of Biwabik. They opened part of the lands that are sold and get about $300,000 apiece.

The iron ore deposits which are acquired by the purchasers are on Iron Mountain in Iron county in Utah. John T. Jones, who examined them for Mr. Kimberly, is said to have made the statement that he saw more ore there in one day than he had ever seen in one week in any other mining region, and it is well known that he is familiar with all of the iron mining regions of the country.

The ore bodies are said to contain as much ore as the whole Mesaba range, and much of it is of a soft hematite quality and can be mined with a steam shovel and without stripping. It is claimed to average better than 60 per cent in metallic iron and to be free from phosphorus and other deliterious substances.

The properties involved consist of 100 patented claims and lode and placer locations enough to bring the total up to 120 claims. Owning these were some of the most prominent men of Salt Lake City, and they are delighted that the properties have gone into such strong hands, for they were interested not merely in getting a handsome thing for themselves, but in making a deal that meant that some benefit will come to Salt Lake City and Utah from the mining of the ore. They believe that Messrs. Kimberly and Buhl will further the establishment of iron manufacturing industries there. The West is using an enormous amount of pig iron, and they believe that in its manufacture entirely in the West is possible.

Messrs. Kimberly and Buhl have not said anything as to their plans as yet. Mr. Buhl has been a heavy iron manufavturer, however, and it is not at all improbable that he will engage in it in the West. He is a multi-millionaire, aggressive and active. Both men are well known in this region, having operated here extensively.

Other interests, and heavy ones, too, were after these deposits, but Messrs. Kimberly and Buhl landed them, in spite of opposition.

Mr. Williams said today:

"I returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip to Salt Lake City, where I went to consummate a purchase by Frank H. Buhl and P. L. Kimberly, of the great iron deposits in Iron county, Utah, 275 miles south of Salt Lake. The property purchased consists of six groups, comprising about 120 locations. It has hundreds of millions of tons of good iron ore. John T. Jones, well known on the Mesaba range; Capt. Sellwood, of Duluth, and other experts all unite in saying that these are the greatest iron deposits known, and that they can be mined cheaper than any other ore known. A large quantity of it is entirely without covering, and much of it is of the soft hematite quality, and can be mined with a steam shovel without any expense of stripping. The sellers were Salt Lake City men and two men well known in Duluth, viz., R. B. Dear, of Superior, of Winston Bros. & Dear, and Fred Lerch, of Lerch Bros., the Mesaba range chemists. The consideration paid is about $2,250,000, of which R. B. Dear and Fred Lerch receive about $300,000 each.

"I do not know just what Mr. Buhl and Mr. Kimberly intend going with the property. Their plans are not yet matured; but they have already been approached by men of great wealth for an interest with them in the development of the property. Mr. Buhl and Mr. Kimberly are well known for their aggressive policy, and it is my judgment that the properties will be shortly developed. For the present a number of diamond drills, to further there will at once be put on the ground test the depth and continuity of the veins.

"The mountain region and the Pacific country is developing so rapidly that the demand for iron and steel is increasing at a great rate; and these deposits, in the very near future, will have one or two roads connecting them with the Pacific coast.

"Salt Lake people are very jubilant over the fact hat these properties have gotten into such good hands, and Mr. Kimberly was congratulated on all sides upon the purchase. He was there in person. Mr. Kimberly is justly popular in Utah and his work there in developing mineral resources of the state is greatly appreciated. The largest of his holdings there is the famous Annie Laurie gold mine, which a syndicate of English capitalists is now trying to buy from him for $5,000,000.

"Salt Lake City is growing fast. It is the commercial center of a vast region, and as soon as these iron deposits are made available, I think it will prove also the manufacturing center of the same region. They tell me that the trouble, up to date, with Salt Lake as a manufacturing point, has been that the price of pig iron, by the time it reaches here, is almost prohibitive.

"It is surprising the stimulus the country receives from the projected public irrigation plans; and in addition to this there are a number of private irrigation enterprises being carried on. For instance, Col. Milner, of Salt Lake City, one of those most largely interested in the sale of Mr. Buhl and Mr. Kimberly, is now putting a tract of 271,000 acres under water in the Snake valley in Southern Idaho. He is building a canal seventy-three miles long, which will put every acre of this tract under water. He tells me that the land is well adapted for general agricultural purposes, and is especially valuable for fruit culture. These irrigation plans will largely increase the population and wealth of this mountain country.

"I am informed that on this irrigated land it is quite common to raise as high as 1,000 bushels of potatoes per acre, and that during the year it is quite common to raise twelve and fifteen tons of alfalfa per acre.

"The corn crop in the country through which I passed looks magnificent. Once in a while you will notice a piece of low land that is poor or destroyed. But that is insignificant compared with the extra quality of the corn on the high grounds."

ELECTRICITY.

Talk of a Line Between Twin Cities and Duluth.

An electric railway between the Twin Cities and the head of the lakes is a possibility.

The people of Taylors Falls, Minn, regard it as a certainty, according to the Minneapolis Journal. Surveys for the line, which between the Twin Cities and Taylors Falls, are now being made. Word from the St. Croix river town says that a party of surveyors reached there this week from the direction of the Twin Cities, and will be in camp there for about two weeks, after which they will come back to the two cities on the Mississippi.

The statement is made very definitely and with assurance that the survey is for the purpose of locating an electric railroad to Taylors Falls and probably to the head of the lakes.

It is well known that the route by the way of Taylors Falls and up the St. Croix river is the best between the Twin Cities and Lake Superior. That is the course of the stream that once connected the Mississippi and the lakes. The watershed is low, so that the obstacles to be overcome in building a line by that route would be less than by any other. Furthermore the power of the falls along the St. Croix river would furnish an abundance of cheap power "right on the ground."

The capitalists interested in the waterpower at Taylors Falls are back of the scheme, say the reports. They are Boston and Milwaukee men, and their interests having been harmonized there will be no further interruption to the work of developing the water power, work on which will be begun next winter. The work on the electric line will also be pushed.

The Twin City Rapid Transit company's officials have repeatedly denied that their company is back of any movement to build to the head of the lakes. Whether it is interested in the work the surveyors now camped at Taylors Falls cannot be learned, but that work is being pushed in completing the survey is certain and men with money are believed to be planning to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the St. Croix route to the head of the lakes.

"My mother suffered from indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects as she has her bottle of Kodol handy." It is nature's own tonic. Max Wirth.

MAY MEAN NOTHING

Endorsements of Roosevelt By Foraker, Platt and Others.

Are But Honorable Mention In the Political Exposition.

Some Other Fellow May Get the Gold Medal.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—"There will be no one but Roosevelt in 1904." is the latest political prophecy, and this forecast is attributed to that prince of politicians, Senator John B. Foraker of Ohio.

Only three or four weeks ago Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, allowed himself to be published in a similar prediction. Shortly before that utterance the Pennsylvania Republican state convention endorsed, with most cordial words of approval, the administration of Theodore Roosevelt. Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and half a dozen other states have taken similar action. In fact every Republican gathering during the past two months has adopted a like course and has endorsed President Roosevelt.

To the politicians in Mars, or the man up a tree who knows little or nothing of American political methods, this would seem to indicate very clearly and very forcibly that Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated as the head of the Republican ticket in the national convention to be held in the summer of 1904. But to the man who knows something of American political methods in "off years," the endorsements simply represent honorable mention in the political exposition—some other fellow may get the gold medal.

The big men in the Republican party councils today are Platt, Quay, Hanna, Foraker, Fairbanks and Knox and Allison. No one is foolish enough to believe that Messrs. Platt and Quay, for instance, are any more enthusiastic in their endorsement of Theodore Roosevelt for the first place on the ticket in 1904 than they were in their insistence that Blaine should be nominated in 1900. Platt and Quay undoubtedly made the present incumbent of the presidential office a possibility. They forced him upon the ticket at the Philadelphia convention against his protest and in spite of the efforts of his closest friends to keep him off. They did this for their own purposes. Senator Platt expected to shelve Roosevelt—to bury him in the graveyard of presidential hopes. The senior senator wanted the gubernatorial track in New York state clear, and to remove the obstruction he forced the incumbent of the gubernatorial chair into the vice presidency. He fooled no one by that action. Everyone in the Philadelphia convention, including Mr. Roosevelt himself, realized that the purpose of the "Easy Boss" was to bury a formidable rival.

No one could foresee the Buffalo tragedy, which has elevated Roosevelt individual the president of the United States in fact. As governor of New York state, Theodore Roosevelt made himself independent of his creator. Because of this independence, it became necessary for Mr. Platt to put the governor out of the way. Quay, shrewd Quay, who easily saw the possibility of an independent and uncurable presidential possibility in Roosevelt in 1904, readily lent his aid to his friend and ally and the ticket was made McKinley and Rosevelt.

Is there any man in America today who really believes that Roosevelt as president is any more subservient to the wishes of the party leaders than was Roosevelt the governor? If there is such a man, he is the veriest tyro in the art of partisan political science. On the contrary, President Roosevelt has ignored the politicians day after day. He has made appointments and has announced policies to suit himself and without consultation with the party leaders. Of course he has not attempted to fill every office within his gift without consulting the congressmen who are usually consulted. But at least a score of instances might be cited wherein he has selected men for office from the state of New York without asking Senator Platt's advice—the appointment of Mr. Sanger as assistant secretary of war is a case in point. The surveyors now camped at Taylors Falls cannot be learned, but that work is being pushed in completing the survey is certain and men with money are believed to be planning to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the St. Croix route to the head of the lakes.

That Mr. Roosevelt is a candidate for the presidency in 1904 needs no affidavit from the gentleman himself; that he has been engaged for months in building up his own organization is equally easy to demonstrate. If he can so construct political affairs during the next twenty-three months as to assure himself a majority of the delegates to the next national Republican convention he will be nominated by acclamation on the first ballot. On the other hand, should he fail to secure a safe majority of the delegates in advance of the assembling of the convention he will have a fight on his hands and it will be a bitter one. He knows this as well as any man knows it and he is not permitting political moss to grow very luxuriantly in his vicinity.

The endorsement of 1902 means that the party leaders, Hanna, Platt, Foraker, Quay and Fairbanks are not foolish enough to jeopardize the chances of party success in the elections this fall by failing to enforce an endorsement of the president of the United States. An endorsement costs nothing. The convention which drafted and adopted those cordial expressions of approval of the president's course don't select a single delegate to the national convention. Such an endorsement in 1902 means simply a desire on the part of the leaders to hold the party firmly together. In 1901 similar action on the part of the various state conventions will mean delegates—but there are nearly two years ahead of us before the state conventions of 1904 will be called to order.

The internal revenue bureau of the treasury has been kept busy of late answering questions from all sections of the country concerning the meaning of the oleomargarine tax law. One maker desired to know if he is at liberty to manufacture imitation butter with palm oil as its prime basis without being compelled to pay the ten cents tax. Palm oil will make up into imitation butter very much better in color than a like article made from cotton seed oil. He is at liberty to do so. Others ask if they may sell a twenty-pound tub of uncolored "oleo," for instance, and send with it coloring matter and directions for use which will enable the buyer to turn the stuff into fine creamery butter. They may.

When the so-called Grout-Tawney bill was under discussion Chairman Wadsworth pointed out that if put through as drawn by Mr. Grout it would simply be evaded in some ingenous manner. So long as a dealer is permitted to sell oleomargarine out of a tub nine out of ten buyers will be fooled. Mr. Wadsworth proposed that no one be allowed to sell an ounce of imitation butter except in an original stamped package. "Put up oleomagrarine exactly as tobacco is put up, with a revenue stamp upon each package—whether half a pound or half a hundred weight," said Mr. Wadsworth, "then prescribe a heavy penalty for breaking an original package and the trick is done." No one ever heard of the sale of an ounce of smoking tobacco without a revenue stamp. And yet smoking tobacco is believed to be as harmful as oleo by some people.

But Grout and and those who followed after him—including that prince of lobbyists who posed as a farmer and lived on terrapin at the expense of the dairymen insisted that the substitute proposed by Mr. Wadsworth was in the interest of the oleomargine manufacturers, and one may still buy a pound of imitation butter out of a tub and carry it home to one's boarders in the package supplied by the dealer without giving a hint that she has anything but the best creamery butter.

Oleomargarine is nutritious and healthful, it will continue to be made and, until something like the Wadsworth bill is enacted, will continue to be sold by unscrupulous dealers for real butter and the latest law helps to fool the people.

ROCK MINERS

Petition to Be Allowed to Return to Work.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 28.—It is understood the rock miners will present a petition to the executive board of the Mine Workers' union, requesting permission to return to work. It is understood the employment or this class of anthracite miners would not affect the situation. The announcement of the officials of Oxford colliery of their intention to resume operations on Aug. 4 has been received here, but at present there is no evidence on the part of Wyoming operators to take similar action. The opinion prevails throughout the region that there will be no attempt to break the strike before Sept. 1.

Freeman's Prison Occupation That of Sewing Button-Holes.

Menominee—A Menominee man recently visited Archie V. Freeman, formerly of this city, who is now serving a sentence of four years in the state prison at Marquette for forgery and embezzlement. Freeman is engaged in sewing button-holes in overalls. He is looking robust and healthy, although the pallor of indoor life has replaced the ruddy tint which formerly suffused his cheeks. He said he had become accustomed to the surroundings, although it took some time to realize that he had lost his liberty and was under lock and key. He finds the nights rather long and wearisome, as lights must be put out at 9 p. m., and he wakes the next morning long before it is time to go to work. He said if he was not released from prison within six months "the ghost would walk," meaning he would tell on others who were implicated with him.

The Northern Chautauqua assembly, to be held at Lakeside will surpass all former years in the diversity and quality of its program. It is to be held from July 31 to Aug. 11. Capt. R. P. Hobson, Miss Helen M. Stone, Dr. Frank Bristol, Rev. Francis Kelley, Professor Pearson, Mrs. Shipley and Dr. McArthur will be among the lecturers. There will be a political day, when Congressman Champ Clark and Congressman Landis will debate. Miss Sybil Sammis will be one of the leading soloists, and Harold Jarvis, Miss Emma Beyer and Samuel T. Slade, three of Detroit's famous singers, will also take part, as will Mrs. Frank Spies of this city, who was formerly well known in Detroit musical circles as Miss Virginia Nina Eastman.

Ontonagon—John Hawley's shingle and lie mill, located in the Porcupine mountains, Ontonagon county, was, together with this season's output, destroyed by fire recently. The loss is estimated at from $10,000 to $12,000, with no insurance. The fire started in the mill yard, and was caused by a spark from the smokestack. Nearly 2,000,000 cedar shingles, 10,000 poles and 400 ties were burned. Mr. Hawley had closed a contract for the sale of the season's output and had been waiting for nearly two weeks for the arrival at Ontonagon of a boat in which to make the shipment.

Calumet—The Copper Country Butchers' association will give a picnic in this city Aug. 20.

Joseph Ziehr and Tim Harrington were injured in a wrestling tournament. Both sustained broken collar bones.

The Central Water company has completed the Centennial reservoir, a water system at Centennial Heights. The company is capitalized at $20,000.00, the stock being owned by the residents of the heights, which is a suburb of Calumet.

Little interest is manifested in the county elections which will be held this fall. It is likely a fight will develop over the position of county attorney. O. J. Larson, the present attorney for the county, is in the field for a re-election after two terms of office.

Bessemer—George S. Curry, A. W. Peterson, John Mullens, John Kluck, L. S. Rice and Jerry Holland were elected at the Democratic county convention to attend the state convention at Detroit, July 30. They go uninstructed, but determined to help put a Democrat in the governor's chair.

Crystal Falls—The directors of the Crystal Falls Woodenware company have decided to build a much larger plant than was at first anticipated and the capital stock has been increased from $10,000 to $30,000. As soon as a satisfactory site can be secured the work of putting up the necessary buildings will be commenced and completed as rapidly as possible. It is now the intention of the company to make the main building 200 by 40 feet and the rest of the building in proportion. This new building will be a big help to Crystal Falls and especially to the small land owners in the vicinity, as they will be able to dispose of the timber on their land.

Manistique—Some days ago the little son of Julius Philian, of Manistique, was discovered in the back yard drinking from a can that contained a batch of potato bugs on which kerosene oil had been poured. The physician called administered an antidote and the child is doing well. Mr. Philian had knocked the bugs from the vines into a can and had poured kerosene upon them to extinguish life. The can had been sitting in the yard for several days and the child in its rambles discovered and proceeded to drink from it. In a very short time he was unconscious and it was necessary to pump out the stomach. But for the fact it was so soon after the dinner hour the boy would have succumbed before medical assistance could have been procured.

SAVES A WOMAN'S LIFE.

To have given up would have meant death for Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass. For years she had endured untold misery from a severe lung trouble and obstinate cough. "Often," she writes, "I could scarcely breathe and sometimes could not speak. All doctors and medicines failed till I used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was completely cured." Sufferers from Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung Trouble need this grand remedy, for it never disappoints. Cure is guaranteed by W. A. Abbett. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

AT WEST DULUTH

Although defeated by a narrow margin, the Leading Stars ball team of West Duluth are feeling jubilant over the showing that they made against the papermakers at Cloquet yesterday. Several members of the team claim that had the umpiring of the team been of strictly high grade order the result might have been different. It took the Cloquet team ten hard fought innings to get in the deciding run, the score being 4 to 3. For the Leading Stars, Larson pitched a creditable game, receiving good support. Mike Hool, a half breed Indian, twirled for the papermakers, and the West Duluth boys say he has a great deal of speed. Not many safe hits were made off his delivery.

The West Duluth team excelled in base stealing, several pretty double steals being made. The Cloquet boys were not able to get more than one stolen base from Catcher Tommie Robinson, and the one instance came through a wild throw to second.

The West Duluth team is already planning on another game at Cloquet in about two weeks and will take another crowd of rooters from West Duluth as large as attended the game yesterday.

AN ODD ACCIDENT.

James Wicks, a well-known West Duluth young man, was the victim of a very peculiar accident Saturday evening, about 8 o'clock. He was riding his bicycle on a walk on Forty-sixth avenue west, and in some manner ran off the walk, falling into a ditch. One of his feet was caught in the framework and the chain in such a way that he was unable to extricate himself or get up, although badly bruised and shaken up. His groans attracted a man who was passing, and who made an unsuccessful efforts were of no avail. Finally two young men came by on a tandem, and these were called to render assistance. After several minutes' work the four were able to release young Wicks, who was assisted to his home. No bones were broken, nor was the wheel injured. It was necessary to loosen one of the wheels and take off the chain before Wicks could be extricated.

ARE JOLLYING HIM.

The friends of James Smith, of the West Duluth bank, are rallying him today on a combined outing and fishing trip that he took up the St. Louis river in a sailboat yesterday morning. According to the reports it took Mr. Smith and a companion until 1 o'clock in the afternoon to sail up to a point on the river two miles above West Duluth. The fishing was not very good there, and they did not get a bite. Late in the afternoon the wind died down, they were towed back to West Duluth by a gasoline launch that happened to be running down from Fond du Lac.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The friends of Joseph Belmuer, who left several days ago for a visit at Delhousie Mills, Canada, are preparing to give him a reception on his return, a report having reached West Duluth this morning that he has joined the ranks of the benedicts since he left West Duluth. Mr. Bellmuer is expected home in about two weeks.

The evangelistic services that have been held for the past week in the big tent in this part of the city, were brought to a close last evening, the attendance being very large. The meetings are said to have been very successful.

West Duluthians who attended the policemen's annual picnic at Zenith park yesterday, claim that it was about the warmest event of the kind ever held at the park. The excursion to the park was run from West Superior, and many of the participants did not reach their homes until the early hours on Monday morning.

Several fishing parties went up the St. Louis river from West Duluth yesterday, but none report any luck so far as pike fishing is concerned. Old fishermen claim that the pike will be found this season of the year in the rapids, above Fond du Lac.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Hendrickson, of West Duluth, are rejoicing over the arrival of a 14¼ pound boy.

PARIS QUIET.

Police Succeed In Dispersing the Mobs at Midnight.

Paris, July 28.—Many persons injured, ten of them seriously and hundreds arrested, are the net results of the street disturbances yesterday, in which both clerical and anti-clerical demonstrations brought about by the closing of unauthorized religious schools were made. There were great crowds on the boulevards throughout the evening in expectation of further rioting. A large procession of students shouting and singing was dispersed by the police and attempted red flag demonstrations at the Strasburg statue also were broken up. Quiet was restored at midnight.

Venice, July 28.—Rioting in various parts of this city has followed the success of the Clerico-Moderates in the communal elections. A mob smashed the windows of the Moderate club, on the Piazza Garibaldi, and the members of the club retaliated by throwing chairs on the heads of the attacking crowd. Troops and the police intervened and order was restored. A similar outbreak occurred at Padua.

SETTLEMENT

Of South Africa Is Progressing Very Rapidly.

New York, July 28.—The settlement of the country, according to the Johannesburg advices, is being taken in hand with all possible dispatch, cables the London correspondent of the Times. It cannot be expected that progress will be recorded by specific landmarks every day or week. Each department of state is working at full pressure. The amount of work to be done is enormous, and the obstacles are removable only gradually.

In the public works department, says the correspondent, things are almost at a standstill owing to the difficulty of procuring goods from the coast.

LOSS IS HEAVY.

Saturday's Cloudburst Affected Eighty Square Miles.

Hornellsville, N. Y., July 28.—Reports from the surrounding country show that the cloudburst of Saturday night affected nearly eighty square miles of territory. A broad estimate of the damage is $250,000. The crop loss is enormous. Much stock has been drowned and many buildings have been washed off their foundations.

The Erie got one track open late yesterday. It will be some days before all the damages to the railroad are repaired.

TUG MAN IS SHOT

Bitterness Over the Prevailing Strike Results In Bloodshed.

Capt. Taylor of Trust Tug Shoots Dredge Tug Engineer.

Did Not Intend to Kill--- Tug Was Being Stoned.

The intense bitterness of the tug strike culminated in the shooting of a union engineer by a non-union tug captain last night.

George Wilson, of the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredging company's tug Raber was shot through the abdomen by Capt. James Taylor, of the trust tug Abbott. His condition is very serious, though the physicians have not given up hope of saving his life.

The shooting occurred in Tower slip at West Superior shortly after 10 o'clock. The tug Abbott had taken the steamer George Presley to the coal dock on the west side of the slip and in turning swung around to the east side near the Raber.

Capt. Taylor says that in the darkness he could see men on the Raber and also on the tug Welcome, throwing stones at his boat. He had frequently made the threat that if any person stoned his boat he would shoot, and kept his threat.

He fired three shots. The first struck George Wilson as he stepped from the cabin of the Raber to the deck to ascertain the cause of the trouble.

Wilson dodged and ran around the deck to the opposite side of the tug, where he fell exhausted and in great pain.

Capt. Taylor fired two more shots, but they went wild. His tug was headed for Duluth and he did not stop to ascertain the result of his shooting.

When he arrived here he was taken in custody by Sergeant John Kenna and Officer Robert Smollett, who had been notified of the shooting by the West Superior authorities.

Capt. Taylor spent a sleepless night in a double-barred cell at police headquarters. This morning he gave out the following account of the shooting:

"I did not aim to hit any person. As the Abbott swung around after leaving the Presley we ran close to the Raber. As we did so a volley of stones struck our boat. I was in the pilot house and called to the men on the shore to stop throwing or I would bore a hole into them.

"They answered this warning with another volley of stones. By that time the Raber was just astern of the Abbott. I gave the engineer the signal to stop and fired two or three shots in the direction of the Raber, though I did not aim to hit any of the men whose forms were dimly visible from my position.

"I then gave the engineer the signal to go ahead again, and as we passed the tug Welcome another volley of stones struck us, but we kept on our course.

"I did not know that any person had been struck until the officers came to arrest me. In fact I reported to the dispatcher when we reached the tug office on this side of the bay, that the Abbott had been stoned and I took a couple of shots at the men that did it, but didn't hit any of them.

"I have made the remark several times that the first of the strikers that showed any violence toward me or my boat would be shot down like a dog and they knew better than to fool with me. However, I regret the shooting of Wilson. I did not know him personally."

George Wilson, the injured man, was employed as an engineer on the Raber. He is a member of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association, but has never taken any great prominence in the strike.

Immediately after he was shot, Mr. Wilson said: "There was not another person on the Raber except myself and a fireman. I was inside reading and partially undressed. I went to get a drink and just as I did so I heard a disturbance of some kind. I went to the door and was shot. The pain was terrible. I thought they were going to try to shoot me again, so I dodged around the deck till I got to the opposite side of the pilot house and there everything got dark and I don't know just what has happened since."

Wilson was removed to the Leslie hospital in West Superior, where he was examined by Dr. Adams, Dr. Gould and Dr. Rosser. It was found that the bullet had passed through the left hand, entering the abdomen on the left side and about four inches below the navel, it passed intirely through the larger intestines, lodging in the muscles of the back.

The physicians, in hurried consultation, decided that an operation was the only chance of saving the man's life.

He was immediately taken to the operating room and his intestines removed. Two large holes in them were sewed up.

This morning Dr. Adams said: "Mr. Wilson's condition is as favorable as could be expected under the circumstances. The next twenty-four hours will tell whether or not he can live, and we have hopes of pulling him through."

Mr. Wilson is 40 years of age and has a wife and family in Port Huron. For the past ten or twelve years he has been an engineer in the Duluth-Superior harbor. He is an unusually quiet, mild-mannered man, and probably about the least likely of any of the striking tugmen to create trouble.

Capt. Taylor was brought up from Buffalo by the tug trust to take charge of the Abbott on May 25 last. Once while up town at night he was induced by the strikers to drink a little more than he had capacity for, and while in a friendly and harmless condition the strikers loaded him into a hack and kidnaped him.

When he came to he was at Pike lake and his captors were asleep, so he walked back to Duluth and reached the city in time to take his tug out late in the afternoon.

The non-union tugmen seem to be getting rather reckless with the use of firearms. Last Friday night a bullet struck the tug Dowling manned by strikers out on Lake Superior.

The strikers say that the Dowling picked up a tow and was heading for the canal, when the tug Record, manned by non-union men, bore down on her and the shot was fired.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning some person on board the trust tug Excelsior fired four times as the tug passed through the ship canal.

Martin Cole, shore manager for the Independent Towing company, organized by the strikers to compete with the trust tug line, said this morning that he was positive that if rocks were thrown at the Abbott last night they were thrown from the dock and not from the Raber.

Capt. Burnett and Chief Engineer Haines of the Raber are also very positive in this respect. They were some distance from the tug at the time, but when they left it a short time before only a fireman and Wilson were on the boat. They noticed three men sitting on a bench outside a little candy store, however, and say that the stone-throwing was certainly done by sympathizers and not by strikers.

Mr. Cole, speaking for the strikers, says: "All through this strike we have followed a policy of conservatism. I defy the tug trust or any person else to find a revolver on any of the striking tugmen or on any of the tugs of the independent company we have organized.

"Occasionally some one of our men may call a non-union man a scab, but that is the extent of our demonstration. Once one of the firemen assaulted a non-union man, as you know. That case was aired in court.

"The men on the trust tugs seemed bent on creating trouble. On the Fourth of July, instead of flying the United States flag, the tug Superior went around the harbor with a skull and cross bones flying from her flag staff. We had hard work restraining some of our men from resenting this."

There is no doubt that the men on the trust tugs have been severely provoked, having been frequently stoned, and showered with abusive language. They claim that they have been stoned, kinds of vile abuse at non-union tug men who were passing on their boats.

The shooting last night has cooled the heads on both sides, and the affair is generally regretted on both sides.

THE DAKOTAS.

Thorough Round Up of Wild Horses Will Be Profitable.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—After strenuous efforts lasting two months or more, all stray horses in the vast region embracing the coded Sioux lands, between the Missouri river and the Black Hills, in Western South Dakota, have been rounded up. This was the first thorough horse round up for several years and required the services of many men.

The round-up at this time was due to the good prices brought by range horses. A few years ago they were practically valueless and owners turned them adrift by thousands to roam at will over an area as large as many of the Eastern states. Horses whose present market value is between $9,000 and $10,000 were rounded-up and again placed upon the ranges of the owners, preparatory to being shipped to Eastern markets. All the animals were found to be in good condition, showing they had not been injured by their several years' abandonment on the great plains of the state.

It is believed to be the intention of the city council to extend the municipal ownership policy of that body by following up the recent establishment of a city electric lighting plant by the purchase of the plant of the gas company which furnishes the city with gas. Prices for gas are high, and many citizens believe it would be wise for the city to purchase the plant when the franchise of the gas company terminates. The franchise will expire May 8, 1903. Before that date the city council may see its way clear to arrange for the purchase of the plant.

In accordance with the pardon granted by Governor Herrid upon recommendation of the state board of pardons, Mrs. Vanie Dickman, the only woman inmate of the Sioux Falls penitentiary, was released and permitted to return to her home in Brule county. She was sentenced to serve one year for adultery. She had been in the prison for only a few weeks.

Yankton—The bootblacks of this city have followed the example of the barbers and have formed a union to hold up prices. Nothing cheaper than a 10-cent shine can be obtained in Yankton after this. Application has been made to the national union for membership and a local president and secretary have been elected. The barbers have raised the price for shaving to 15 cents.

Fort Pierre—A dance had been arranged on the last evening of the term of court, and all the court business had been closed except the report of the jury in the Adams case. It was thought there would be no verdict before morning, and the dance was started. About midnight the jury reported and the dance was hurriedly declared to be in recess until the prisoner had been brought in and the verdict announced, when the floor was again cleared and the dance went on.

Lead—After an absence of three months Vicar General N. M. Redmond has returned to his Lead charge. He visited his old home and points of historic and scenic interest in Ireland.

The citizens of Lead are preparing an elaborate reception for the Right Rev. J. N. Stariha, bishop of the new Catholic diocese, formed by the division of the Sioux Falls diocese. Lead is to be the residence of the new bishop, and the citizens are pleased. It is the largest parish in the new diocese by far. Deadwood is next.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—R. C. Smith, bookkeeper for Collins & Stinson, machinery dealers, is missing. A hasty examination of his books shows an apparent shortage of over $1600, which it is believed will be reduced when the books are more perfectly audited. Smith came here last January, and his father is understood to live in New York. Smith is about 23 years old. Little is known about him.

The report of the Minnesota university chemical department on the analysis of the contents of the stomach of Mrs. Charles McCormick was received Saturday. Aconite was found in her stomach and also in her husband's. The inquest will be resumed on Monday, but probably behind closed doors, as it is understood that many witnesses will be examined as to the domestic relations of Mr. and Mrs. McCormick.

Yacht Races Saturday Prove to Be Fine Contests.

Siren Winner In One Class and Thelma In Other.

Lester Park Men Do Up Lakesiders at Baseball.

Two pretty yacht races were pulled off on the bay Saturday afternoon. In a spanking wind, in which every craft entered could do its best, the Siren won in the A class race, while the Thelma was the first to cross the line among the Class B boats.

Six boats were entered in the Class B race, which was the first to get started. The course was six miles in length, starting at the city dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west. Every boat was ready when J. D. Mahoney, the starter, gave the signal, and each got away in good order. The course went from the city dock to Connor's Point, from there to a point quarter of a mile south of Gotka beach, and returning to the starting point. The Thelma, the only scratch boat, finished first, the time being 49 minutes and 30 seconds. The other entries, giving the time handicap and the actual time, follows:

Stranger, 1 hour, 1 minute, 48 seconds; 9 minutes, 55 seconds; 51 minutes, 7 seconds. Shamrock, 1 h, 1 m, 7 s; 9 m, 20 s; 51 m, 47 s. Sweetheart, 1 h, 4 m, 30 s; 10 m, 16 s; 54 m, 14s. Marguerite, 1 h, 9 m, 38 s; 5 m. 50 s; 63 m, 48 s.

The Class A course was nine miles long, four and a half straightaway and return. The Arnetta, the scratch boat, from which good things were expected, was beaten out in this race. The Siren, which won, made the nine miles in 49 minutes, 3 seconds, while it took the Arnetta one hour, one minute and 43 seconds. Following are the boats that raced, their time handicap and the actual time in which they made the run:

Siren, 1 h, 1 m, 27 s; 2 m, 24s; 59 m, 3 s; Mildred J., 1 h, 5 m, 55s; 6 m, 27 s; 59 m, 28 s; Aruetta, 1 h, 1 m, 43 s; scratch boat, no time allowance, 1 h, 1 m, 43 s; Fritz, 1 h, 11 m, 29 s; 7 m, 48 s; 63 m, 32 s; Sharpee, 1 h, 14 m, 25 s; 8 m, 42 s; 65 m, 43 s; Margie, 1 h, 17 m, 37 s; 9 m, 9 s; 68 m, 18 s.

Another program of yacht racing is being arranged for next Saturday.

LESTER PARK WINS.

Baseball Players of That Suburb Defeat Lakesiders.

Joy in great abundance is found in the hearts of the residents of Lester Park this morning while a like amount of woe languishes in the breasts of the Lakesiders.

The widely advertised baseball game was played according to schedule Saturday and that alone is responsible for the gloom that is general in the region of Forty-seventh avenue east. Victory came to the Lester Park team. The score was 14 to 12.

Many people witnessed the exciting contest. The players of each team were limited to the married men. Lakeside made a rally in the last three innings but could not get enough scores to win.

The men from the eastern end of the city were the first to bat, and before three of them were put out one player had crossed the plate. In the second they were blanked and Lakeside got its first run in the third. With the score 12 to 5 in the sixth, Lakeside pounded out three runs in the seventh and followed it up with four more in the eighth. Lester got a tally in both the eighth and ninth, and try as they would the Lakeside folks could not score again.

Lester played a good game and was especially strong at the bat. B. E. Baker, the grain commission man, played short, his first appearance on the diamond in ten years. Dr. Storer played the sun field without an error, while Dr. Park and Wharton alternated between the pitcher's box and third base. Crosby hit the ball hard and often.

On the Lakeside team the playing of County Treasurer Whipple was a feature. He played the centerfield and handled everything that came his way cleanly. West and Falscraft did the pitching, striking out many men. Crasweller played a snappy game at third, while Rothermel was handed a huge bouquet of red and white clover when he came to bat in the fifth inning.

The rooting was terrific, prominent among the men on the line being Bert Fesler, Theodore Hollister, T. T. Hudson and Alfred Jacques.

Steve Pierce umpired the game and finished without a scratch. The court house ball team challenged Lakeside a week ago and the game will probably be played Saturday.

The line-up follow:

Lester Park.		Lakeside.
Wharton	pitcher	Falscraft
Park		West.
Wilson	catcher	Hall
Crosby	first base	West
Payne		Falscraft
Richards	second base	Osborne
Baker	short stop	Rothermel
Park	third base	Crassweller
Wharton
Abell	center field	Whipple
Storer	right field	Gordon

CHESS TOURNEY.

Pairing and Playing of the Day at Hanover.

Hanover, July 28.—The pairing in today's play in the Chessmiatsters' International tournament was as follows: Janowsky vs. Tschigorin, Bardeleben vs. Gottschall, Napier vs. Cohen, Atkins vs. Levin, Gunsberg vs. Mason, Wolf vs. Swiderski, Marshall vs. Popiel, Olland vs. Mieses, and Pillsbury vs. Suechting.

At the adjournment for luncheon three games had been disposed of for good. Swiderski defeated Wolf and Gunsberg and Mason and Olland and Mieses drew. Thus the Dutch representative, Olland, lost his first half point in the tournament. The rest of the games were adjourned in even positions.

JUST THINK.

You Can Think When the Food Makes Your Brain Work.

The mind does not work properly unless the right kind of food is furnished. A young man studying telegraphy said that his progress was very slow. It seemed impossible for him to pick up the art and understand it.

He suffered continually with stomach trouble and could not digest his food properly, and he finally got so he could do but little work and was tempted to give up his studies altogether.

About that time some one told him about the brain food Grape-Nuts and he went in for it. In a short time a very remarkable change took place. His stomach recovered and he became free from headaches. His hand was no longer nervous and trembling when he used the key, and the whole mystery of telegraphy untangled itself, for, as he says, "I had the mental power to master it, and the understanding came easy when the mind was in poise and strong."

He is now holding a responsible position as an operator.

This is but one of the many illustrations of the advantage of using food purposely manufactured for rebuilding the broken down gray matter in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body. The facts are there and can be proven to anyone making the trial.

Don't overlook the recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts.

ADVANCE IN PRICE

Best Building Grades of Lumber Two Dollars Higher.

Wholesalers Talk of Putting Fall Prices In Effect Now.

Large Log Hauling Contract Made By Brooks-Scanlon Company.

There are said to be strong indications of an advance in white pine prices, an advance that will probably affect cargo lumber and the product of the more eastern part of the white pine territory. Certain elements in the trade are urging an advance at the earliest date, their argument being that the developments of the season have shown beyond all question that the output of the mills will be inadequate to the demands for lumber this year. They claim the mills are all, or nearly all, running to their full capacity, yet there is scarcely an instance where the manufacturer has been able to accumulate the usual amount of stock necessary to carry him through the winter. Stocks are broken everywhere that lumber is manufactured. Trade conditions all over the Northwest have shown a decided increase in demand in the last three weeks and the retail trade has advanced the price of the best building grades about $2 per thousand.

Wholesalers are maintaining that the fall prices should go into immediate effect; that by stiffening the prices now the demand for white pine and its movement can be kept down where there can be an evening up of assortments and a steady business the rest of the year.

There is no set amount mentioned for an advance, but those who believe in higher prices are talking an average advance of $1 per thousand feet, although there will be certain low grades that will not be raised in price at all.

In the local retail trade there have been some contracts made for the delivery of building lumber on or before Aug. 1 at the prices that prevailed all summer, but if it is not removed by the date mentioned it will cost the purchaser $2 more a thousand.

The lake freight rate of $2.50 to the Lake Erie ports still prevails, and will, so the vesselmen claim, until Aug. 1, when the Lumber Carriers association has already scheduled an advance to $3. It is expected that notice of the advanced rate will have something to do in hastening the movement of lumber down the lakes the coming month. The action of the vesselmen in withdrawing so many vessels from the trade will preclude any great rush of lumber, however.

Local sales for the past week, if any, have been in small quantities and mostly for shipment by rail. Lumber shippers have been expressing vigorously their disapprobation of the frequent changes in the lumber rate to the Southwest, claiming that under the existing conditions they are practically unable to make any new contracts, not knowing what the rail rate is likely to be when the lumber is to be delivered, and the buyers are holding aloof and demoralizing the trade in that direction. The railway companies are inclined to shift the responsibility. The roads southwest from the Twin Cities claim that they have to change their rates to keep the differential uniform because of the frequent changes in rates by the Northern lines, and the latter roads claim that the Southwestern lines are responsible for the demoralization of freight rates, and that no settled rate can be expected until the Southwestern lines stick to their tariffs.

The local railway officials have not yet received any notice of a raise in rates to the Southwest Aug. 1, although this has frequently been talked of by the Twin City papers. The argument has been that by Aug. 1 the Southwestern roads will be too busy in the grain trade to make any more concessions.

Two large contracts for timber hauling have been closed within the past few days between the Brooks-Scanlon company and Muscatine, Iowa, parties. The logs will be hauled over the Brooks-Scanlon logging road at Scanlon, Minn., and will aggregate in amount about 33,000,000 feet. The logs will be hauled to Scanlon from the Cloquet river, and the hauling is to begin at once. From Scanlon the logs will be hauled over the Northern Pacific road to Stillwater, where they will be dumped in the St. Croix river and rafted down the Mississippi to Muscatine. The South Muscatine Lumber company owns 23,000,000 feet of the logs, and the Minnesota Logging company recently sold the other 10,000,000 feet to Zimmerman & Ives, of Guttenberg, Iowa.

Besides the log hauling insured by these contracts, it is now assured that rail operations will continue until snow flies. In the matter of transporting logs by rail, 1902 will go on record as the banner year, all previous records having been broken up to date, and there is assurance that the record thus far this year will be easily maintained for the rest of the season.

The John O'Brien Lumber company has made a heavy sale of lumber at Carlton within the past few days to the Hobe-Jaynes Lumber company, of Minneapolis.

FROM CAMP.

Y. M. C. A. Juniors at Home After a Fine Outing.

The forty boys belonging to the junior department of the Y. M. C. A. who returned the latter part of last week from the fifth annual encampment at Long lake, near Ely, are enthusiastic in their assertions of a good time. The party left Duluth July 15, in charge of J. G. Hamaker, physical director of the association. They had six sleeping tents and one large mess tent, the tents being in charge of adult members of the association that accompanied the expedition.

The boys had a daily routine of study and pleasure, the Bible study in the early morning being followed by bathing, boating and games. Sports of various kinds filled up the afternoon and a huge bonfire was built at night, around which the boys gathered, sang songs and told stories. The camp was called Camp Miller, in honor of ex-Gov. John Miller, president of the association, who with Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Moore and Secretary Bevis, paid the boys a visit during the past week.

The last Sunday the boys were in camp they were taken to Ely in R. S. Miller's launch, to attend services at the Presbyterian church.

The officers of the association claim that it was the most successful outing that the association has ever held. The boys had but two iron-clad rules to live up to. These related to going into the water without permission and the carrying of fire arms.

The boys in camp this year were as follows:

Robert Grimm, Willis Hamblin, Alyn Scott, Roy Segog, Arthur Sullivan, Robert Jacques, Harris Trux, Allan Trux, Russell McLean, Blaine Heimbach, Jeffrey Gruber, Palmer Harbison, Earl Watterworth, W. H. Sanford, Laird Goodman, Rene Riddle, Carl Hanson, John Hanson, Stanley Strand, Wallace Webster, Charley Campbell, Harry Kline, Franklin Allen, Fred Bayha, Frank Smith, Cecil Smith, Ed Mapp, James Whiteside, Donald Harris, Siebel Harris, Bert Green, Robert McGonagle, Sargent McGonagle, Roy Bridgeman, Donald Morrison, Charles McLennan, Howard Hill and Wendall Moore.

Improving New York Tenements.

The agitation several months ago in relation to the tenement houses in New York was productive of excellent results and the conditions of the people who live in the crowded sections of the city was much improved. The matter has not been neglected by any means for the inspectors are now making a census of all the tenements to determine whether the construction complies with the revised building regulations. The inspection is conducted in a most thorough manner by the staff of 225 inspectors, each of whom inspects six tenements daily. Every room in each tenement is examined and all details of the sanitary conditions are carefully noted. When the reports of the inspectors have been passed upon by the department the work of remodelling the defective tenements will begin. Many landlords, however, are anticipating the orders of the department and are already making the alterations called for by the law. It is estimated that nine-tenths of the tenements will have to be changed in some way in order to satisfy the new requirements. The staff of inspectors has been carefully selected from a list of over 2500 applicants who took the civil service examinations. They were blue uniforms and brass badges, as it would be impossible for them to secure access to the tenements without these emblems of authority. Even with these aids they encounter occasional opposition owing to the tenants' ignorance of the nature of their errand. One of the inspectors was mistaken for the gas man and was ejected by the indignant tenants at the request of the janitress. He was obliged to call a policeman to assist him in making the inspection. Another inspector—a theological student—started a riot by advising a small boy to throw away a cigarette which he was smoking. A larger boy resented this interference and challenged the inspector to make him throw away his cigarette. The inspector foolishly accepted the challenge, and within a few minutes found himself surrounded by a "gang." Only the timely arrival of a policeman saved him from being mobbed. This incident illustrates the danger of digressing from business to indulge in gratuitous missionary work, especially in New York.

Boycotts Carried Into Church.

It is going too far when boycotts are carried into the church, and still this is the case in the mining district of Pennsylvania, where the workmen refused to join a "scab" in prayer. William F. Bibbons, writing for the Outlook, says that in at least two different churches, groups of strikers deliberately left their places of worship rather than pray in the same building with "unfair" workmen. In the Primitive Methodist church in Wilkesbarre some fifty persons left the sanctuary, while in the Catholic church at Olyphant more than 100 men abandoned the service. The largest congregation of St. Patrick's assembles for the 10:30 o'clock mass. At that time on the Sunday in question the striking miners undertook to discipline one of their number, the fire boss of the Vandyke colliery, who has steadfastly refused to quit work. A member of the executive board of the miners' union of this district, at the head of a number of striking miners, entered the church and went up to the fire boss, requesting him to leave the building. He refused to do so. The leader then asked the officiating priest to eject the unfair workman from the building. When the priest indignantly refused, the leader announced, in a voice that all could hear, the name of the fire boss, declaring that he was an unfair workman, and that no one ought to be willing to worship with him. About 100 men followed the leader from the building, and soon the shady street was lined with those who refused to joint a "scab" in his prayers. The strikers proceeded in a body to a nearby Hungarian church and attended mass there, while the service went on in their own church as quietly as possible. The priest strongly deprecates the action of the men. Differences of this kind should never enter the church. It is there that reconciliation should be effected, not strife encouraged.

WOULD BENEFIT DULUTH.

No person can study the situation in the Canadian Northwest without being impressed by the desirability of establishing reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada. The value of such an arrangement to Duluth, coupled with more direct railway connection between this city and Winnipeg, can hardly be overestimated. North of the boundary line of Minnesota and North Dakota stretches a vast territory of agricultural land of unsurpassed fertility and productiveness—a veritable empire in extent. Its population is growing by leaps and bounds, and the land is rapidly being put in a state of cultivation. In the province of Manitoba alone, which is but a small faction of the Canadian Northwest, and which is only settled to a very limited extent, when the total amount of arable land is taken into consideration, there being millions of acres in the province still untouched by the plow, the wheat yield in 1901 was about 50,000,000 bushels. The territories farther west produced about 12,000,000 bushels of wheat. It is estimated that this year the total yield of Manitoba and the territories will be close to 100,000,000 bushels of wheat. Three years ago it was less than 35,000,000 bushels. These figures will give some idea of the rapid settlement of the country. The rush of emigration this year continues large, and with favorable crop conditions the yield of wheat next year will show a heavy increase.

With this large wheat production and the consequent prosperity of the farmers, it is not surprising to learn that business in Winnipeg is booming; that the wholesale trade is growing at a rapid rate and that manufactures of all kinds are increasing in size and numbers. Winnipeg merchants and manufacturers are enjoying unprecedented prosperity, and their future is very bright. At the same time there is a serious problem in sight—the handling of the immense crop of wheat. The present railroad and elevator facilities are inadequate, and the Canadian markets are also too limited to handle it. As a result, last year a large amount of this splendid milling wheat was thrown upon the Liverpool market, forcing down prices and providing the English millers with such cheap wheat that they were able to undersell the American millers in the British markets. Thus the American farmer was hit hard by this new competitor—the Liverpool prices being depressed by the flood of Manitoba wheat, causing lower prices in the Duluth and Chicago markets, and a similar effect being produced by the shutting off of the export of American flour. A similar unfortunate state of affairs will prevail this year.

Thus the American farmer and the American miller are face to face with a serious problem. But, fortunately, there is a remedy, if our statesmen and politicians can be made to see it and apply it. It is a simple remedy—the removal of the duty from Canadian wheat. If the Manitoba crop could be sold for future delivery in Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago, and then shipped to the great elevators at these points, to be used by the mills, only what the mills could not use being exported, the present menace to the American milling industry would be removed. At the same time the American farmer would be benefited by this wheat being handled in such a way as not to depress the Liverpool market and react upon the American markets.

Duluth has a vital interest in the arrangement of more liberal trade relations with the Canadian Northwest. No city would be more greatly benefited. If the tariff barriers were entirly removed, Duluth would become the chief commercial emporium for the great empire north of the international boundary as well as for the rich territory south of it. The business men of Duluth should take the lead in advocating the establishment of closer commercial relations with Canada and, more particularly at this time, the removal of the tariff duty on wheat.

ROOT TO SET THE PACE.

It is announced that Secretary Root is to open the Republican campaign in Illinois, and it is expected that his speech will set the pace for the discussion of national issues throughout the West. As head of the war department, which has had most to do with the nation's work in the Philippines and in Cuba, Secretary Root will be looked to for a direct and official pronouncement from the national administration on those questions, which will have almost the same authority as if uttered by President Roosevelt in person.

Mr. Root will appear at Peoria in connection with the biennial state convention of the League of Republican clubs, the state committee having decided to combine that event with the formal opening of the campaign. The date, Sept. 24, has been confirmed as best suiting Mr. Root's engagements. The war secretary has written Congressman Hopkins that he can be in Illinois then, but might not be able to make an earlier date, Sept. 18 having been suggested, as he is now on his way to Europe for a rest. The plans of the league and of the state committee, therefore, have been changed.

Mr. Root will be the star of the occasion and will probably speak in the evening. The league's convention business will be transacted in the morning, the afternoon will be given up to a "love feast," in which Congressman Hopkins, Governor Yates and various candidates will appear, and the evening will be reserved for "sounding the keynote." These are the plans as tentatively arranged, and they show that the Republicans feel the need of their strongest batteries and will place them in action at the start.

Fifth, it is suggested that, as the United States is regarded throughout the world as leading the other nations in depending on trusts for staple products and protecting them with a high customs tariff, it would not be in a position to respond to an invitation.

Second, it is a fact well known to Russia and the rest of Europe that under our system we could not send to the conference delegates with any authority to bind our government to any treaty arrangements, as these are of the joint jurisdiction of the executive and the senate.

Third, there is a strong feeling here that Russia would like to head a movement in Europe to repel, or at any rate stay, the American commercial invasion; and that her desire is partly animated by her grievance against us for making the first charge against her sugar industry as bounty-fed, and thereby making it possible for most of the sugar-producing countries of Europe not only to snub her, but to damage her seriously at Brussels. She tried a single-handed retaliation by raising her duties on our agricultural implements, machinery, etc., but our manufacturers are not badly crippled by it, and the Russian farmers opened a back fire against the government besides.

Fourth, the calling of the anti-trust convention has no reference whatever to the United States, but is a slap back at the European nations which summoned Russia to the Brussels conference on the assumption that her sugar industry was bounty-fed, and refused to accept her word to the contrary.

These reasons make it plain why the United States was not invited, and the explanation is very satisfactory.

There was a time not far back when many Americans viewed with considerable apprehension the great investments of British capital in this country. There was a very nightmare in the phrase, "British gold," when it signified that possibly British capitalists might ultimately own the whole American outfit. But what a change is signified by the fact that Sir Charles Dilke, a British statesman, has just been writing a letter to the effect that Englishmen ought not to be alarmed by the increasing investment of American capital in Great Britain. Mr. Morgan's shipping combine undoubtedly gave English complacency in matters commercial and industrial the severest shock it has received in two centuries.

Judge Griggs, of Georgia, who is conducting the Democratic congressional campaign, is described by the Atlanta Constitution as having been noted in state politics for sense, shrewdness and success. In his first national campaign he has begun well, and without any unnecessary chatter or flutter, says the Springfield Republican. The cleverest thing he has yet done is to get hold of certain export price lists showing how much cheaper Europeans can buy goods made in America than we Americans can. The more of such price lists he can publish the more Democratic congressmen he will elect.

The story that the defeat for renomination of four Michigan Republican congressmen was due to their opposition to the Cuban reciprocity policy is pronounced "absurd" by the Detroit Free Press, which extracts from the situation in the four districts plenty of local causes to account for the four turndowns. Still, the defeat of those beet sugar congressmen may be regarded as a peculiar coincidence, that does not weaken the president's position. Some of the Minnesota congressmen are also finding that their position on the Cuban question is giving them considerable trouble with the people.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt declared at a woman's suffrage rally at Asbury Park recently that "two-thirds of the church members are women and nine-tenths of the men are criminals, and the women are better qualified to vote." Do the suffragists think that such nonsensical statements will advance their cause?

THE PAVING QUESTION.

If the property owners on East Superior street, after a careful consideration of the subject from all points of view, decide that they want an asphalt pavement laid on that street, The Herald will enter no objections. They must foot the bills, and if they are satisfied every other person should be satisfied. But The Herald has steadily insisted and does still contend that the experience of other cities has clearly demonstrated that asphalt is not the best pavement that could be laid on East Superior street, while it would be the most costly—in other words, by selecting asphalt, the property owners would get the least value for their money.

There are a few people in Duluth who seem to have a special interest in forcing the East Superior street property owners to choose asphalt in preference to all other pavements. The morning paper publishes a number of testimonials from city engineers of other cities in favor of asphalt paving. Yet, it is a fact that in some of the cities from which these testimonials come the asphalt pavements are in bad condition, and th epeople are so dissatisfied with them that other pavements are now given the preference when new improvements are ordered. For proof of this statement, no one need go farther than St. Paul or Minneapolis. Last Wednesday the Minneapolis Journal published a picture of one of the asphalted streets of that city, showing how the pavement has disintegrated and rotted and become filled with holes and cracks within a short time. Detroit is one of the cities for which the morning paper publishes testimonials favoring asphalt, yet it will be remembered that on a recent visit to Detroit, M. H. Alworth, of this city, found the asphalt pavements in bad condition and was informed that they were in an almost chronic need of repairs.

Climatic conditions in this section of the country are unfavorable to asphalt pavements keeping in good condition. This is the experience of the Twin Cities, and there is no reason to expect that Duluth would fare differently. The consensus of opinion on the part of those who have given the paving question most careful study, is that the best pavement, taking all points into consideration, is the cedar block pavement. It is noiseless, durable, readily repaired, can be easily kept clean and has the additional merit of being cheaply laid. No trust controls this style of paving, and nearly every cent of its cost is kept at home. For East Superior street, no better pavement could be selected.

THE TRUST CONFERENCE.

There has been considerable speculation as to the reasons why Russia did not invite the United States to the trust conference to be held at St. Petersburg. Russia's silence on the subject, as far as our participation is concerned, has been dense. But it will be observed that the note was addressed only to members of the Brussels sugar conference, and the United States government was not one of these. The reasons for Russia's restricting her invitations to the Brussels group nobody here can tell; but for her general attitude and action in the premises four explanations are guessed at in as many high quarters.

Story of The Brook

By Charles D. Batwell.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"For men may come—and men may go,
But I go on forever."

I am a Brook.

I am here today; I was here yesterday; I was here many, many years ago.

Once in the years that have passed a man measured my waters from bank to bank. I heard him say it would be a 20-foot span. Then he and others built a bridge. Only a few rotting timbers are left now. That was long ago—to you—to me it is as yesterday. Thousands of people passed over the bridge in the years that followed. I remember at one time long lines of men in blue uniform with flags flying and bands playing passed over. And when they came back there were breaks in the ranks, the bands were silent and the flags were draped in black for those who had died for their country. And I heard them say that this was War.

And then came Peace.

In the days that followed, lovers, who had been parted during the conflict, would come and stand on the bridge, and sit beneath the trees that fringed my bank. Sometimes they would throw leaves into the water, and when the current would carry them away together, those on the bank would speak of it as a good omen. Sometimes one leaf would catch in the sedge or willows, while the other would float away alone, and they would be saddened as they wondered if this betokened some separation.

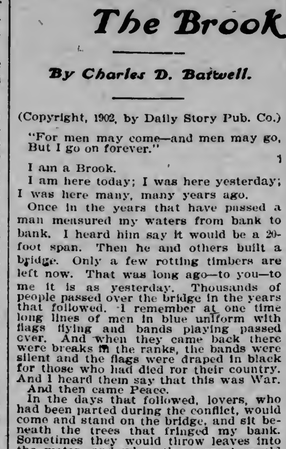

Over yonder on the hill stood a great white house, and there lived a bright-eyed rosy-cheeked boy who would come with his playfellows and bathe in my waters during the warm summer days. And when the chill of winter had covered my surface with ice, they would come here to skate. And I learned to love him, for even a brook can learn to love.

One day in the winter he came with his companions to skate. There had been a few warm days which had weakened the ice and as the handsome, laughing boy skated over the thin covering, my heart so longed for him that I burst through the fetters that bound me, and drew him down into my icy bosom. He struggled for the poor little life that he knew, but my embrace was too strong, and he soon lay still in my arms, while my waters kissed his cheeks and caressed him as a mother would her infant.

Men came and broke the ice and dragged for the body, and among the watchers on the bank stood a pale woman dressed in black and with her a little golden-haired girl who clung to her skirts. When at last they drew the boy's lifeless body from my unwilling arms the woman threw herself upon him, weeping bitterly. A tall man dressed like a minister led her gently away, saying: "Weep not, sister. In the life to come you will meet again and there will be no parting."

And my wavelets, pitying her in her grief, rippled to the shore and held up their hands to her for very sorrow, as they went away and left me along in the night.

Then came the summer days again, when the woman would bring the little girl down to where a great willow tree stood on the banks, and as they sat there would tell the child of her father, who had gone to the wars long ago, and whose body now lay in an unmarked Southern grave, and her brother who had gone down to his death in my waters a year before.

The woman would bring the little girl down to the willow tree on the banks.

One day the child asked:

"And did everything love Edward, mother?"

And her mother answered, "Yes, everything. The birds all sung sweetly and the flowers all looked brighter when he passed by. Only the brook, who must have envied him and caused his death."

The child was silent for awhile and then said:

"Do you know, mother, I think the brook loved him best of all, and so took him into its cold heart, and when I die I do not want to be laid away into the ground like Edward was, but want to go into the brook and sleep there, and I love the brook because it loved my brother."

And then my waters leaped from very joy. And my ripples sung for happiness that she, who was so young and fair, loved me, even as I had loved her brother.

When the years rolled by and the child grew up into girlhood, she used to cross the bridge on her way to school. And when she came home in the afternoon, she would stop and throw the crumbs from her lunch basket into the waters to feed the fish, my children. And sometimes she would come and sit under the great willow tree to study her lessons.

"Agnes!" he screamed.

and would bathe her heated face in my waters. And as the drops fell back I would hide them away in my bosom, for they had touched the fair, pure face of her I loved.

One day a young man came home with her across the bridge, and then he used to come often after that. They would sit under the big willow tree and talk sometimes till the stars shone through the leaves. One day he read her a poem about a brook and the rhythm was like the ripples of my own waters.

"For men may come, and men may go,
But I go on forever."

And then another night, when the moon shone through the trees, he told her another story—a story ever new—and yet a story that was told long before my waters came down from the springs in the hills above—a story that had been told by the Indian lovers on my banks, long before the white people had come. And she believed—and loved—and trusted him, just as women always do.

Then came many more meetings, and I heard them talking of her people who scorned him because he was only a poor teacher. At first he laughed, but as the days went on he became angry. Then sometimes she would come and wait for him, and he would not come till late, or sometimes not come at all, and he would bathe her face in my waters and sit and look down into my clear depths, with such a look of sorrow on her face that my wavelets would moan with her in sympathy.

Then, there was a night, at last, when he came late and chided her for weeping, while she on her knees begged him to take her away ald marry her to save her from the coming disgrace. And he pushed her from him with scorn as he bid her remember how he had been spurned by her people. Then he went away and left her in her anguish, while my wavelets reached up their little hands to her till their pleading grew so strong, that she listened to their music and came down, down into my waithing arms that cradled her on my breast, and she was soothed to the sleep that knows no wakening.

In the morning came again the people from the great white house, and they dragged down into my waters searching for the body. But as they had scorned her in life, in death I would not give her up to them. Under the roots of the old willow I drew her form and all their searching was in vain. On the bank again stood her mother, calm and proud, and when at last they told her they could not find the body, she only said coldly, "It is just as well."

Then came the winter again, that piled up the snow drifts in the hills above, deeper and higher than ever I had ever known them before. And with the breath of spring the drifts melted, and their waters joined mine till I rose from my banks, and swept everything before me. Oh, it is grand to have a giant's strength, and in very wantonness I dashed myself against the bridge till its timbers weakened and it gave way, and only a few planks remained.

Then came the night. Great banks of clouds drifted across the face of the sky and when through the open spaces the moon shone out it was only for a few moments, ere she was hidden again.

Then in one of these moments did I see a man come down to the broken bridge, and as I saw who it was my waves leaped higher and higher towards him, like bloodhounds in the leash. And yet again they drew back as they saw he paused—so fearful was I lest he would not attempt to cross the bridge.

Only for a minute did he hesitate, then sprang onto the swaying timbers. As he did so all my pent-up strength dashed against the weakened beams. Nothing could withstand that awful force—as strong as revenge—as pitiless as death. Down they went into the surging tide, carrying with them the shrieking wretch. Down to where the great willow stood like a sentry amid the waste of boiling waters.

Ah! Then came my moment of triumph. Never shall I forget the savage joy with which I drew the dead body of the girl from beneath the roots of the old willow—the long golden hair, now faded and draggled, still clinging to the bare and ghastly head. The once white dress now soiled and water-stained, still covering the wasted limbs. Never before had Fate worked such a revenge as this—that where he had blackened and blasted her pure innocent life he was now to meet the vengeance of Fate itself. And I thrust the grewsome object full before his eyes. "Agnes!" he screamed, as he let loose his hands from the timbers to hide the awful sight. And I drew him down into my waves, and choked and strangled the last remnant of life from his hated form with the joy that only a wild untamed savage force can know, and my waves carried on the body to the ocean of Oblivion.

Then, as tenderly as a mother lays her infant on its cradle to sleep, as reverently as a father lays away his first-born in the grave, did I again lay the body of her whom I had loved, and whose death I had avenged, under the roots of the old willow again, there to sleep till Time shall be no more.

"For men may some—and men may go,
But I go on forever."

BINDING TWINE STATESMANSHIP.

The Commercial West: The signs are that Minnesota is to conduct her state campaign this year on a binding twine basis. Governor Van Sant soluded the keynote in the Republican state convention when, in self-laudatory sentences, he proclaimed to the world that as a result of personal and far-sighted management on his part of a prison factory he had saved the farmers of Minnesota the great sum of $300,000 on binding twine.

As there are 160,000 farms in Minnesota, the saving for each farmer is about $2.25!

Shades of Sibley and Ramsey, and Marshall and Cush Davis and Pillsbury! has Minnesota, the great state of the North, fallen so low in her conception of what dignified statesmanship is that she must submit to a campaign based on binding twine, which is alleged to have saved every farmer $2.25.

What has Governor Van Sant done to offset this great achievement? He has driven the office of the Great Northern Railway company out of the state, thus depriving Minnesota of a strong nucleus around which a financial center could be developed in the Northwest; he has accomplished nothing for the people by attacking the merger, because in the very nature of the case he cannot, the merger being in the interest of the people; he has given the state a Populistic leaning and has kept needed capital away because of his unpractical attitude toward business interests as shown by his work to secure the passage of the tax bill.

What could he have done to have given assistance to the farmer that would have lent dignity to his administration? He could have joined hands with the great immigration movement. Instead he attacked railroads and the immigration moved over to the Dakotas and the West. Had 50,000 more people settled in Minnesota the farmers of Northern Minnesota would have made hundreds of dollars on advance in land values, where they have now realized $2.25 as a result of binding twine statesmanship.

When will Minnesota come to her senses and take her place among the states that reach out for industrial development? Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth can develop only as they are made inviting to large business interests, not alone small ones. The large interests will not hurry to do business where the governor boasts of prison competition with legitimate interests and with labor as an achievement; where the governor says he is in favor of a tax bill that, had it been enacted, would have driven more business out of the state than years could bring in.

The farmer loses just in the proportion that he stops industrial development. Governor Van Sant's attitude is hurtful to the best interests of the state because it is in opposition to just the development the state needs.

AT THE HOTELS

"I am carrying a piece of dried fish back to Cleveland with me," said J. B. Cranston, a prominent Cleveland merchant, who is stopping at the Spalding, "as a memento of my fishing trip in the Northwest, and I am going to see if it will not give the Cleveland grocers a suggestion. I have been fishing for muskallonge in the Mantrap country, a chain of lakes above Park Rapids, Hubbard county. Our party had very good luck, and we enjoyed many a blood-stirring struggle with the gamy 'muskie,' by which name all good anglers know the fish. That is another story, however, and I have an aversion to telling fish stories. What impressed me was the manner in which the wife of a settler with whom we stopped for a time put up the fish. She could cook them to perfection, and before we left she took some of them, removed the backbone, salted them and then put them in a smoke house for a time. When they came out they were something new to me in the dried fish line. The flavor was delicious, and no halibut I ever tasted approached it. I am taking a sample back to Cleveland to see if the grocers cannot get up something along that line."

KEEP-A-TRYIN' SIGNBOARDS

"My boy," said Uncle Hiram, "you'll soon be starting out,
To drive o'er life's long rondway, and oft
a bit of doubt
Will puzzle you completely, as to which you'd best pursue
Of branching ways when roads fork out,
as they're inclined to do.
Each bears the equal marks of well-worn travel, like as not,
And so, one's undecided which he'd better choose to trot;
But I have learned the route, my boy,
and this much I'll confess—
The 'Keep a-tryin'' signboards mark the highway to Success."

"Success is such a pretty town—to reach
it, all men strive;
You'll find the crowd, though, growing less the farther on you drive—
For many, seeking shorter cuts through
Dilly-daily lane,
Get so far off the highway that they find it ne'er again.
You'll be allured, as you go on, by finger posts that say—
'Take Chance road, past Waitingville, it's far the better way;'
But I this safer route would fain upon your mind impress—
The 'Keep a-tryin'' signboards mark the
highway to Success."

"The road that runs through Waitingville has prospects bright and fair,
When first you start, but farther on, it leads through swamps of Care,
And, after that, you'll have to climb the weary hill of Debt;
Then, still beyond, there looms in view
the toll gate of Regret.
And so, my boy, when starting on the road of Life alone,
The route your Uncle Hiram chose I trust
you'll make your own,
And heed his plain directions, if you'd quite avoid distress;
The 'Keep a-tryin'' signboards mark the
highway to Success."

They Will Make Extended Investigations Throughout the West.

In All About Fifty Students Will Be Engaged.

Chicago, July 28.—The university of Chicago has just sent out two geological expeditions to make extended trips of investigation through the West. One of these parties, numbering seven persons, under the direction of Professor Rollin Salisbury, has left for the Big Horn mountains in Wyoming. They will be gone until the first of October. The other expedition, consisting of twelve students in charge of Professor R. D. George, leaves the city today for a trip through the Mississippi valley.

Professor Salisbury's party expects to spend its time studying the glaciation of the Big Horn mountains. Professor George's students will investigate the rocks and topography of the Mississippi valley.

A party of seven, under the direction of Professor W. W. Atwood, has been at work for some time among the Uinta mountains in Utah.

Another party of two, accompanied by F. H. Calhoun, is at work now in the hills of Montana.

In all nearly fifty students of the university will be in the field this summer.

MALARIA An Invisible Enemy to Health

Means bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the livér and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself.

The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.

SSS S. S. S. does this and quickly produces an entire change in the blood, reaching every organ and stimulating them to vigorous, healthy action. S. S. S. possesses not only purifying but tonic properties, and the general health improves, and the appetite increases almost from the first dose. There is no Mercury, Potash, Arsenic or other mineral in S. S. S. It is strictly and entirely a vegetable remedy.

Write us about your case, and our physicians will gladly help you by their advice to regain your health. Book on blood and skin diseases sent free.

VESSELS

Built In Ports of United States to June 30.

New York, July 28.—A publication just issued gives the number of vessels built in the United States ports during the year ended June 30 as 1657, of 473,981 gross tons.

In the year preceding there were built 1709 vessels of 489,616 tons gross. This year the sail tonnage aggregated 101,072 tons; last year, 128,099 tons. A substantial increase is noted in steel steamers, which aggregate 275,479 tons, as against 235,255 tons for last year. Canal boats and barges have declined from 88,331 to 57,502 tons.

No new orders of importance are noted on the seaboard, and in this respect the outlook is not as favorable as it was a year ago.

In the great lakes district there is every indication of a volume of shipbuilding in 1903 fully equal to the record year now closing. The lake shipbuilders close their year about midsummer, as their most active period is the fall and winter. In the year now closing they have built 43 vessels, costing about $10,250,000. They already have for the coming year orders for 28 vessels that are to cost about $7,250,000. This summary does not, of course, take into account any of the small vessels. It refers only to large steel ships. In this list of new lake vessels for the year closing as well as the year to come, only two are tow barges. The lone steamer is supplanting the steamer and its consort.

AT CASS LAKE.

Wrestling Match—Cass Lake Ball Team Victorious.

Cass Lake, Minn., July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Noah Beauregard, the champion lightweight wrestler of Cass Lake, and O. V. Gardner, of Minneapolis, contested at the Cass Lake opera house last Saturday night for a purse of $25 a side and the entire gate receipts. Catch-as-catch-can rules governed, best two out of three falls. Beauregard won two falls and the match.

The Cass Lake Spalding baseball club went to Akeley Saturday and contested a game with the junior team of that place. The score was 6 to 5, in favor of Cass Lake. The battery for the Cass Lake team was Rooney and Lunney. A return game will be played here in the near future.

NO SIGNS OF RELIEF

Price of Meat Is Keeping as High as Ever.

Promised Decline In July Has Failed to Materialize.

Advance Instead of Lower Prices---Egg Outlook Serious.

When people were beginning to feel the high prices of meat last May they were told that it was a temporary matter, and that when the range cattle began to fatten for the market in July there would be a change.

Now dealers say that prices are generally considerably higher than they were in May, and that so far from a change being at hand they see no prospects of improvement for some time.

The excuse given now is the high price of corn, which has been run up so that it is too expensive for feed. The high price of corn has made it impossible, according to dealers, to fatten stock, and there has been a shortage of shipments of high grade beef into the market as a consequence. One dealer said this morning that there are not half enough good cattle to go around.

Mutton has gone down in price since last May, but it is about the only thing except fresh vegetables that has gone down. Butter is cheaper, too, but on the other hand eggs and poultry are much higher than they were in the spring, and appallingly above the normal prices for this season.

The prospects are that during the winter eggs will be selling at prices that are almost prohibitive. Dealers have been complaining of a shortage of eggs all summer, and at that the meat trust is buying up all it can get for storage, thus pushing up the price. The production of eggs is small in winter, and most people have to rely on storage eggs. If they are controlled by the meat trust the story is told, everybody knows what the result will be.

The high price of meats forcing many people to eating eggs has in turn affected the price of eggs, and this, combined with the other factors, is making prices higher all the time.

"The drouth of last year started this era of high prices, and those who have control of the prices like it so well they won't stop," said a Michigan street dealer this morning. "They have some color of excuse on for the increases on some lines, and they are working at them for all they are worth. The great trouble with these temporary advances in prices, based on temporary conditions, is that the large dealers fight hard to keep them from going back again, and in general the public never recovers the loss until panic prices set in."

THIRD FATALITY

Resulting From Wreck of Train Near Etter.

St. Paul, July 28.—Another body, that of a man believed to be W. E. Farrell, of Butte, Mont., was found yesterday in the debris of the Milwaukee train wrecked near Etter, Minn., on Friday night. The body was terribly mutilated, but was apparently that of a man about 20 years old. A moulders' union card was found bearing the name of W. E. Farrell, Butte, Mont., while a pocketbook bore the name John M. Farrell, Butte, Mont. A photograph of a young lady with the name "Miss Mattie Elliott, 602 George street, Butte, Mont." was also found in the dead man's pocket. This makes the third fatality resulting from the wreck.

EXPELLED.

Contract Jumping Baseball Players Out of Protective Association.

New York, July 28.—Every man in both the National and American League of Baseball players who has jumped his contract with his manager was peremptorily expelled from membership in the Players' Protective association at a meeting held here yesterday.

Among those present were Hugh Jennings, representing the Pittsburg, Chicago, Philadelphia and Cincinnati clubs of the National league; Tom Loftus, manager of the Washington club; Frank Dwyer, of the Detroit American league; Alec Smith, of the Baltimore American team; Winnie Mercer, of the Detroit team; Joe Fraser, and Henry Hartsel, of the Philadelphia American team; Charlie Irwin, Billy Donnelly and Harry Dolan, of the Brooolyn National league team; George Jittredge, of the Boston National; Harry Davis, of the Philadelphia American; Jack Warner, of the Pittsburgs; Clark Griffith, of the Chicago American team, represented the Boston American club; Frank L. Donohue, of the Chicago American team; Tom Daly, of the Chicago American, and George Bowerman, of the New Yorks.

After the meeting, Frank Donohue, the treasurer, made the following statement:

"Every one of the delegates here today agreed that there was no use in a man joining this organization, getting all the benefits in the way of procuring counsel when he was in trouble and being generally protected in his rights and the interests of his pockets and then jumping his contract.

"There is no one here that will stand for McGraw, McGinity, or any other man who has jumped a bonafide contract.

"In our meeting Hartsel, of the Philadelphia club, made a motion that every man who had jumped his contract should be expelled. The motion was carried by a unanimous vote. That seems to show where the Protective association stands."

The meeting re-elected Tom Daly president and made Harry Davis, of the Philadelphia Americans, secretary, while Frank Donohue was retained as treasurer.

DR. C. K. ADAMS DEAD.

Former President of Wisconsin University Passes Away.

Redlands, Cal., July 28.—Dr. Charles Kendall Adams, formerly president of the University of Wisconsin, died Saturday of Bright's disease. Mrs. Adams, who was exhausted by her month's care for her husband, is prostrated by his death.

Sad as was the death of Mr. Adams, it came as a relief to him and to those near and dear to him. He died, as he had lived, a brave man. During the long period of his illness no word of complaint ever passed his lips, and despite his agony, he seemed to think only of those he loved. Dr. Adams came to California to die. All that he hoped for in coming to this semi-tropic climate was that the end might be deferred until he could complete certain literary works.

The stroke which placed him on his death bed came suddenly, so his relatives thought, not so to him. He had felt the warnings of its approach and had quietly consulted physicians in the hope of warding it off.

While president of the University of Wisconsin he was granted a long leave of absence, going to Europe, where he seemed to recuperate. Shortly after returning to his work at the University of Wisconsin, about a year ago, the ailment which affected him soon told upon his system and at the end of a few months he resigned and came to California.

Dr. Adams was born in Vermont in 1835 and was the second president of Cornell college. He became president of the University of Wisconsin, which place he held until a year ago, when ill health forced him to resign. His work in historical research won him fame as an educator.

SMASHED THINGS.

Big Hoisting Apparatus Broke Away In Storm.

Detroit, July 28.—The big Brown hoist used to lift and carry plates used in shipbuilding lies on the deck of the Michigan Central car ferry transport at the Wyandotte shipyard, a total wreck, while the upper works of the car ferry are for the most part smashed to kindling wood. The Brown hoist is an immense piece of machinery which runs on a track forty feet high and about 500 feet long. Just before the storm broke the hoist was safely anchored about 400 feet up the track with two chains. The Michigan Central car ferry transport lay at the dock directly in front of the Brown hoist track. When the storm broke the chains snapped. The immense hoist ran to the end of the track and jumped thirty feet to the car ferry. The damage is estimated at $50,000. Other towns within fifty miles of Detroit report considerable damage to property, but no lives lost.

Wheat Started Weaker But Kept Within a Narrow Range.

Cables Were Lower and the Weather Abroad Favorable.

Shipping Business Good, the Foreigners Taking Considerable Wheat.

Duluth Board of Trade, July 28.—The wheat market was weaker this morning, but prices kept within a narrow range. Cables were weaker and the receipts of wheat were heavy while fine weather abroad was reported. The slight decline found a good demand for wheat from foreign markets. In the Duluth market about 25 loads were worked for direct export and some c. i. f. wheat was worked to Eastern millers. Chicago reported 35 loads worked. The Liverpool market closed 3d lower and Paris ½@1c lower. The visible supply of wheat decreased 667,000 bus and is now 21,891,000 bus, against 29,261,000 bus a year ago. Primary receipts of wheat were 1,568,000 bus, last year 1,586,000 bus. Shipments 665,000 bus, last year 67,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 630,000 bus. The world's shipments were 6,940,000 bus against 5,663,000 bus last week, while breadstuffs on passage showed a decrease of 1,776,000 bus.

July corn in the Chicago market continued its downward course today, closing 2@2½c lower. September declined 1½c. September oats fell ¼c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

General Weakness In Grains Due to Various Causes.

Chicago, July 28.—General weakness in grains set in at the opening today. Influenced to some degree by the violent depressions of Saturday, cables were weaker both in England and on the continent. Excellent weather was reported from abroad, and this country was subjected to some fairly sharp foreign competition. There were a few rains reported but in general the weather may was not very unfavorable. Movement to this market of much grain caused a very uneasy feeling among the bulls. Wheat was coming in in smothering quantities and the contract stuff was being turned out heavily by private houses to deliver on July contracts, thus cockering that future. July wheat started ½c lower to unchanged at 71½c to 74c, and dropped to 73½c. September opened a shade to ⅛@¼c down, at 71¾c to the and held down near 70¾@73¾c. Local receipts were 236 cars, 12 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 405 cars, making a total for the three points of 641 cars, against 499 last week and 571 a year ago. Kansas City and St. Louis had 767,000 bus, against 761,000 bus last year. The world's shipments were 6,940,000 bus against 5,663,000 bus last week. On passage breadstuffs decreased 1,776,000 bus.

There was some midday selling in both July and September wheat that depressed prices to 2¼ and 70¾c for the respective options. The principal incentive of the bearish turn in sentiment was the big movement of grain. Late there was some covering and September closed only a trifle weak, ¼c lower at 70¾@71c. July closed weak, ¼ down at 73½c.

Corn was sold freely on lower cables and the wheat weakness and as there was little wanted and the trade was light, prices dipped sharply. There seemed to be little fear of a July squeeze and that option eased a trifle. The movement to market was good, 177 cars, 29 of contract grade. September opened unchanged to ⅜c down, at 58¾c to 58¾c, and dropped to 58¼c. July sold ½c lower, at 62¼c.

Continued selling of September and big estimates for tomorrow's receipts—340 cars—pushed September corn to 57¾c and July to a weak close, 2c down at 61c. September rallied on covering by the July bull crowd and closed still weak, 1½@1¾c down at 58¼c.

Oats were weak in spite of their naturally strong position. There were 344 cars rushed to this center today and the total contract grading amounted to 150,000 bus.

This brought a sharp slump in July, one transaction at the opening causing a slump of 6c, with a sale at 61c. There was no early excitement in the pit after Saturday's remarkable price fluctuations. Yet the severe drop on the first sale caused much comment. It had been understood that the bull position was impregnable. Now the crowd does not know what to think. September opened unchanged to ¼c lower, at 58c to 58¾c, and dipped to 32¾c.

After hanging idly without any business for more than hour, July oats began to decline after Saturday's fashion on the offer of a few "lives." Shorts seemed reluctant to cover and the price went down to and 2c at a time, registering a decline of 12c, selling, as on Saturday at 35c. There was little flurry or unwonted interest in the pit and business generally was very light.

July oats closed weak, 9c down at 58c. September closed only easy, ¼c lower at 32¾c.

Provisions were dull and easier early. Hogs were on hand in liberal quantities, but the market hung steady at the yards. Pork was offered freely and declined. Lard held firm on a light demand. September pork opened 15c down, at $17.15, and sold at $17.20; September lard opened 2½c down, at $9.07½, sold at $9.02½, and then eased 2½c. September lard started 2½c down at $10.37½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was very quiet and with the exception of some loss in the July price it was fairly steady. Showers were quite numerous again in the West and continued showery weather is predicted. Speculative operations are small and featureless. Cash demand is the disappointing factor. It continues very poor in the markets although some little export business was reported today. Prices have been dragging for the past three or four days so that short interest has accumulated and a reaction is ordinarily due. There is some talk of bad weather in Europe, but Liverpool prices does not reflect it.

Corn—Liverpool ¾d lower. The further dragging tendency of the market with some selling of the futures on the favorable crop prospects gave the market a weak tone and a downward tendency. Those who own the cash corn in this market are supposed to be heavily short of September. Cash demand at the best is only fair. On the whole we should say the selling is better than the buying.

Oats—The visible increased 176,000 bus, against decrease of 74,000 bus, and is now 684,000 bus against 5,990,000. Another more liberal receipts of oats with a better grading knocked several cents off the July price. The futures were easier in consequence, although the action on the whole is hardly favorable for harvesting and maturing the crop. The legitimate situation is still disturbed by the July manipulation.

Laporte, Ind.: State Statistician Johnson estimates the Indiana wheat crop at 40,000,000 bus, nearly 8,000,000 bus over last year. The corn yield will be greater than last year.

Broomhall cables: The total world's shipments of breadstuffs during the past week were 7,496,000 bus, the previous week 6,356,000 bus, a year ago 10,784,000 bus. Of the above quantity the United Kingdom took the past week 3,448,000 bus, previous week 2,272,000 bus and a year ago 5,032,000 bus. Corn shipments the past week were 4,248,000 bus, against 4,144,000 bus the previous week and 4,084,000 bus a year ago.

EUROPEAN CROPS.

London, July 28.—The Mark Lane Express in its review of crop conditions says that wind and rain threaten serious damage over a considerable portion of the wheat area of the United Kingdom. Barley was benefitted by the weather and oats have suffered. The French wheat yield is above the average in the most important provinces. The total crop being estimated at 42,000,000 quarters. Rye is not above the average, but oats are from 5 to 10 per cent above. A big wheat crop is reported in Hungary and more than an average yield is expected in North Germany, Saxony, Bavaria and Silesia.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, July 28.—Wheat—Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 545 cars. This has a depressing effect upon the market. If we can have good weather in the Northwest so that spring wheat can be cut in good condition we would not be surprised to see wheat sell several cents lower. The export demand is very discouraging and the foreigners are holding off, hoping to get wheat cheaper. The winter wheat is turning out better than expected, although the quality is not very good, but the yield is very large.

Corn—The estimate of corn for tomorrow is 340 cars. September has been pretty weak all day, as well as the deferred futures. I believe after the first of August that receipts of corn will drop down to less than 100 cars a day, as the farmers will be very busy trying to harvest their oats. Of course we have quite a stocek of corn here and it will take no time to work it off. We notice that the clearances, however, last week for Europe were over 1,000,000 bus. This has quite a little excess over what they have been working for a long time.

Oats—The estimate for oats is 670 cars. Everybody is pushing to get outs here to apply on July contracts as they have been paying very high prices for cash country. Soon as the July deal is over and prices are put to 30c in the country for white oats, we believe the receipts will run considerably higher. From many parts of the country we are getting very bad reports principally from Iowa, Wisconsin and a large portion of Illinois, where there have been heavy rains. The oats are ready to harvest, but with these continual rains they present prices. Think they are cheap. The visible supply as you know is down about a million bushels, every bin all through the country is empty and as soon as the prices settles down to normal conditions we look for a very heavy shipping demand.

Provisions opened easy for a moment in spite of reported advances in hogs but later developed great weakness and closed at the lowest prices for months. There seems no doubt but the smaller packers and outsiders have the burden and are in bad position. Stocks of hogs are decreasing. The average weight has gone to higher figures than average years, although hogs receipts are much less than average years. We have reasons to believe that small receipts are due entirely to urgent farm work and believe there is no scarcity and within the next fortnight we will see large receipts here.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

At the Opening Was General, Except Among Grangers.

Market Ran Off Under Influences of Further Gold Exports.

Prices Hardened Later But Close Was Dull and Irregular.

New York, July 28.—The few exceptions to the advancing tendency at the opening were amongst the grangers. Otherwise gains averaged a fair fraction. Shares to the number of 2900 of Norfolk & Western sold at 62¼ to ½, compared with 61¾ on Saturday and Chicago & Alton, Illinois Central, Kansas & Texas and Louisville also showed notable strength.

Gains of about a point in St. Louis & San Francisco and Colorado Fuel, 2¾ in Rubber Goods and 4 in Westinghouse Electric failed to hold the general market in which realizing was very free and widely distributed. Prices fell below Saturday's level throughout and losses reached between 1 and 2 points in the principal grangers, Pacifics, Southwesterns, Southerns, trunk lines and industrials. General Electric lost 3½. A rally was in progress by 11 o'clock.

The market ran off further under the influence of the announcement of further gold exports. A rise in Norfolk & Western to 64 steadied the market, but the downward tendency was renewed when Rock Island slumped 8⅝ with a quick recovery of 3. Prices were not materially lower in getting back to about the lowest. Anaconda jumped 6 points but General Electric lost 4¼. Bonds were irregular.

A sudden spurt in Amalgamated to above 68 and a rise to 64½ in Norfolk & Western gave some character to the market. St. Paul and one or two other stocks rallied about a point, but the general movement was sluggish and irregular. There was an irregular hardening tendency when Norfolk & Western rose a fraction higher than before. Missouri Pacific, Tennessee Coal and a few other stocks recovered all their losses. Unmerciful bear attacks made a gain of 1⅜ and Colorado Fuel 2. Long Island dropped 2½ and Amalgamated reacted a point.

There was a buoyant rise of 4¾ points in Colorado Fuel, and the Minneapolis, St. Paul & stocks continued strong, the common rising 4⅞, and the preferred 3⅜. Amalgamated rose again higher than before and Hocking Valley gained 1½. There was some hardening of prices here and there, but no significant response. The closing was dull and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The advance in the market leaders is over for the present. Before the first day of August the summer bull campaign of 1902 is likely to be history. Take profits on Missouri Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central, L. C. The man who wants to make money in stocks should be ready to change his position quickly when conditions change. These stocks are now high enough. I look for a strong market the next two or three days. Any person bearishly inclined might put out a little short Missouri Pacific, Atchison and St. Paul, but I don't advise it. If you don't mind a moderate reaction hold your Southern Pacific, it will surely sell much higher.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: While such development as the Rhode Island plan and the violent advance in the latter stock are responsible for increased conservatism in financial circles, they have not abated confidence in the situation as a whole or in the outlook of the general market. The talk tonight is that individual stocks will continue to have special movement that will carry them in turn to much higher levels. Atchison continued the favorite bull in the railroad list and its gains again intimated that from 90 up. Powerful interests have increased their holdings of this stock so large that the price will hardly remain melow par for any length of time. Southern Pacific is also expected to make new record figures and the stock being bought not only on its large earnings, but on coming developments that will affect it favorably in the market.

Dickinson to W. H. Laidley & Co.: You can hear nothing but bull talk on all sides, but a little quiet investigation among the acquaintances since Saturday's close discloses the fact that the market is honeycombed with weakly margined accounts, in some cases parties who usually carry from 300 to 500 shares are now carrying from 1500 to 1800 shares. That the general market will eventually go higher nobody doubts, but the facts referred to above are certainly an element of great weakness.

General Electric shows great gains in earnings. Sales for the four months ended May 31 amounted to $10,1-75,379. The cost of manufacturing and selling was $70,801,707, leaving a profit of $2,283,672. Profits on sales of securities of other companies, royalities, interest and dividends, with some miscellaneous profits, brought in $510,254, against which the company paid $10,000 interest on debentures and $499,906 in dividends, leaving the net profit for four months $2,283,921, or almost 5½ pr cent on the present volume of stock, $42,681,900. This is at the rate of over 2¼ per cent a year, and while perhaps it is unreasonable to believe that so large profits can be maintained, it is fair to assume that profits will be fully double the present dividend requirements. Furthermore the company has a surplus of $17,571,061 on which to draw.

GROWING SMALLER.

Yearly Dividends of Calumet & Hecla Decrease.

Boston, July 28.—The directors of the Calumet & Hecla Mining company have declared a dividend of $5 a share. Three months ago $5 was paid. This dividend is the first of the fiscal year, beginning May 1. During the last fiscal year the company paid $45; in the year ending April 30, 1900, $80.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, July 28.—The cotton market opened easy with July 2 points higher and later months 4@5 points lower, after which there was a sharp break in all options but July. August dropped off to 8.21 and the new crop months declined on the basis of 8.58 for January with sentiment very bearish being under weak Liverpool cables and general good crop and weather news. The July position was supported by spot cotton houses and European shippers, the low figure at which this option was selling serving as an inducement for the liquidating orders of belated longs and receive the cotton on contract. It was estimated that some 60,000 bales will shortly disappear from the New York market, and the preferred is to the continent.

Cotton—Spot quiet: mid ups, 9 1-16; do gulf, 9 5-16. Sales, 13,168 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady: July, 8.85; August, 8.17; September, 7.77; October, 7.64; November and December and January, 7.54; February, 7.52; March, 7.51.

GOLD FOR EXPORT.

New York, July 28.—Gold bars to the amount of $1,000,000 have been engaged at the assay office for shipment to Europe this week. The names of the shippers have not yet been announced, but it is understood that the principal shipper is a leading bank.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, July 28.—Close—Money on call steady, 2½@3 per cent; last loan at 2¾; prime mercantile paper, 4½@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm at $4.87⅝ for demand, and $4.85¾ for 60 days; posted rates, $4.86 and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84@4.83¾. Bar silver 52; Mexican dollars, 41½. EXCHANGE TO CLOSE.

Liverpool, July 28.—The cotton exchange here will be closed on Aug. 2, 4 and 9.

HIS ECONOMY.

"Four tickets for the opera!" he exclaimed impatiently, as he entered the house, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"Oh, isn't that delightful!" she cried.

"But, George, how could you afford it?"

"I couldn't," he answered.

"I have wanted to go so much," she went on, "but you told me you couldn't possibly afford more than two tickets, and now you have four."

"Luck," he explained; "pure luck. What's the use of being private secretary to a high-flyer if you can't get his season tickets on an off night? It just happened to occur to him that I might like to go, and he sent them to me."

"It's just too lovely for anything," she asserted; "and I'll tell you what we'll do—we'll pay off our social obligations to the Brownes. Isn't it splendid to be able to do it this way after we had given up all thoughts of even balcony seats in the interests of economy?"

"Well, rather," he replied; it's like finding a mislaid bill in one's watch pocket. Tell them, if they have no other engagement, we'll call for them tomorrow night."

"With a carriage, of course," she suggested.

He looked troubled.

"Do you think that necessary?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, indeed," she replied. "It's the opera, you know, and these are swell seats. I wouldn't think of asking Mrs. Bronson to go without a carriage. It would look so dreadfully cheap."

"Oh, all right," he agreed. "I suppose we'll never have a better chance to square up with them—economically."

"Never," she said positively. "And while we're about it, don't you think it would be just as well to have them to dinner, so that we can go direct from here instead of calling for them?"

His brow clouded and he looked solemn.

"It's always best to do a thing the right way, if one is going to do it at all," she urged. "It seems so awfully cheap otherwise, and this is the opera, you know, and these are swell seats."

"Very well," he acquiesced. "Have them to dinner."

"Will you get the flowers, or shall I?" she asked.

"I'll get them," he said, with a sigh. "Roses, I suppose?"

"Of course."

"They come high."

"But think what we've saved on the tickets. We certainly can afford a little something."

"True."

"And after the opera—what shall we have then?"

"A ride home," he answered, promptly.

"With the Bronsons?" she commented, inquiringly. "When they've been so clever to us and we have such a good chance to do the thing properly? Just think of rushing them right off home after a long opera! Oh, it wouldn't do at all! We must have a little supper somewhere—just a quiet, dainty little one, you know. Remember, it's the opera and we have swell seats, and there are only two ways of doing a thing—the right way and the wrong way, and the wrong way always seems disreputably cheap. One can't afford to be cheap when one is in a position to be economically swagger and generous."

He sighed and nodded a hesitating approval. Then he began scribbling on the back of an old envelope.

"What are you doing?" she asked.

"Jotting down a few figures," he replied. "I want to see just how much I've saved by refusing to buy two balcony seats and accepting four in the parquet as a gift. One's economies should be thoughtfully considered, you know."

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Schooner Golden Rule Comes Near Foundering In Erie.

Was Struck By Squall and Water Filled Hold.

Tug Got Alongside and Put Pumps at Work.

Detroit, July 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Golden Rule came near foundering on Lake Erie yesterday. The schooner was struck by a sudden squall and water began pouring into her hold. Before the boat went down the tug Home Rule succeeded in getting alongside and put a pump to work. This morning the schooner passed up the river with the Home Rule alongside working her pumps constantly with the hope of keeping the vessel afloat until she reached Sarnia. She has a cargo of coal from Sandusky.

EDITORS COMING

Publishers of Newspapers In Northern Minnesota To Be Here.

Plans For Their Entertainment While Here Being Made.

Banquet at St. Louis Saturday Evening and Boulevard Drive.

The members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association, including the territory within the bounds of the old Sixth and Seventh congressional districts, will gather here Thursday afternoon on their annual excursion, and preparations to receive them are now under way.

Including the wives and families of the editors, there will be about seventy people here, and they will leave Friday morning for a trip over the two ranges, and during their stay they will go to Hancock on the Iroquois and take in the copper mines.

The district covered by the association is almost tributary to Duluth, and therefore a little extra care will be taker in looking out for the comfort of the visitors during their stay here. It is regarded as highly important that a friendly spirit should be cultivated between Duluth and the section of the state tributary to it, and this can best be done by making friends of the editor that keep the people of the district posted on what is going on.

Probably few people outside of St. Louis county realize what an immensely rich county this is, and efforts will be made to show the visiting editors something of its wealth. The range towns that are to be visited are preparing to receive and entertain their guests and Duluth is doing likewise.

During their stay in Duluth the editors will be entertained by a banquet to be given at the St. Louis hotel next Saturday evening, and by a boulevard drive to be given Sunday morning. The arrangements, including the gathering of the necessary funds, is in the hands of a committee composed of Millie Bunnell, of the News Tribune; Oscar Lonegren, E. L. Millar, of the Duluth Trade News; and A. C. Weiss, of The Evening Herald.

The banquet will be a very pleasant little affair, and it will take place at the St. Louis hotel Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock. E. L. Millar will be toastmaster, and Mayor Hugo will be present to receive the guests on behalf of the city. Col. Flagg, editor of the News Tribune, will respond for the Duluth newspaper men, and J. L. Washburn and others will speak. There will be a program in addition to the toasts, during which Lansing R. Robinson will give one of his famous monologues, and Miss Rena R. Smith will sing. Flaaten's orchestra will play. The visiting editors will take part in the toast-making, but the names of those who will participate have not yet been announced.

The editors will be accompanied by their wives, and those in this city who desire to take ladies can secure extra tickets at $2 each from members of the committee or A. L. Preston, secretary of the Commercial club.

DANGEROUS.

Belief That Tug Men Should Be Relieved of Fire Arms.

The sentiment about town is that tugmen should not be allowed to carry guns.

The shooting at West Superior last night, which may yet result fatally is not unlikely to be repeated, for there is bad blood.

In fact, at an early hour this morning stones were thrown at the trust tug Excelsior as she passed through the canal, and some person on the Excelsior fired four shots down Lake avenue.

The police report that a non-union tug was chased yesterday afternoon by a tug manned with union men, and that from the latter a number of rocks were thrown.

A tug trust man today said that all the non-union men operating this company's boats weer armed. He said that the corporation applied to the mayor, the police and even the sheriff for protection against the stones and insults from the union men, and as nothing resulted, it was deemed advisable for the men to be armed.

Officer Herman Fritz has been detailed for duty on the dock, near the tug trust office. He reports that everything has been quiet today.

Capt. Taylor of the Abbott, who shot Engineer George Wilson of the tug Raber, last night, was taken over to West Superior this afternoon by Sheriff Summers of Douglas county, Wis.

He will be tried over there in the state court just as soon as the result of his victim's injuries is known.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon a telephone message from the Leslie hospital, at West Superior, announced that Mr. Wilson had entirely recovered from the use of the drugs given him in the operating romo this morning, and seemed in unusually good spirits and condition, considering all that he had gone through. His temperature was normal.

The physicians attending him made another examination at 2:30, and say that he will recover if blood poisoning does not set in. The bullet located in the muscles of the back will not be disturbed at present.

CLOUTTE WINS SCULLS.

London, July 28.—H. H. Cloutte, London Rowing club, won the Wingfield sculls at Putney today, beating R. B. Etherington-Smith, Leander Rowing club, and J. Beresford, Kensington Rowing club, after a splendid race.

CORBETT FOR REFEREE.

New York, July 28.—At a conference here today between Sam Harris representing Terry McGovern and "Young Corbett," representing himself, James J. Corbett was selected as referee for the fight between the two featherwights at New London on Aug. 29. Corbett refused to accept Tim Hurst. Harris then proposed James J. Corbett and the Denver boy promptly accepted him.

FOR ASPHALT.

Board of Public Works Reports In Favor of It.

Asphalt wins.

The board of public works this morning ignored the high bids for bituminous macadam on East Superior street, and tonight will report to the council. The paving of the street with Trinidad sheet asphalt will be ordered as soon as there is money in the permanent improvement revolving fund to pay for the contract.

There have been protests against this action of the board coming from people that are opposed to paying out money for asphalt. The board, however, is advised legally that the asphalt petition has the right-of-way.

There is a report current, but unconfirmed, that the Warren Brothers' company, of Boston, will endeavor to prevent the city from awarding the contract to the Barber Asphalt company.

It is claimed that the city, in good faith, advertised for bids on both asphalt and bituminous macadam for this improvement, and that the macadam paving was $2000 less than the lowest bid for asphalt, and therefore the contract should go to the lowest bidder.

The city officers say that while that is very true, it was expected that the macadam would be $10,000 less than asphalt, and they are still of the opinion that the bituminous macadam can be put down for at least $8000 less than was bid by the Warren company.

The asphalt company had its petition in first and it claims to have precedence over the macadam petition. The asphalt people also claim to be entitled to first consideration from the fact that 60 per cent of the resident owners signed for that particular paving material.

The scheme to pave First avenue west with bituminous macadam has been abandoned, temporarily, at least, formerly is on account of the fact that the Warren Brothers' bid was so much higher than the petitioning property owners had anticipated.

IMPORTANT.

Decision In Insurance Case Cover an Interesting Point.

Insurance men and attorneys are greatly interested in the decision filed by Judge Dibell of the district court last Saturday, a brief report of which was in The Herald.

The court held that the receiver of the company was a legal representative of the same. The case was entitled E. F. Alford, as receiver of the S. J. Thomas Lumber company, against the Consolidated Fire and Marine Insurance company. After the lumber company had become insolvent some of the property that had been covered by the insurance was destroyed by fire and the company refused to pay. Its refusal was based on the ground that the company by having a receiver had changed hands, the same as if the property had been transferred. In case of a transfer the policy lapses, and it was generally supposed that the same rule applied in case of an appointment of a receiver, assignee or trustee. Judge Dibell decided for the plaintiff.

"There is, however, in Minnesota a statutory form in which insurance policies are written. They read that a certain company insures a 'company and' 'its legal representatives.' The case just decided is the first to come up in this state, in his decision Judge Dibell gives the following:

"The ordinary contract of insurance is a contract of indemnity, a personal contract, not attaching to the insured property, nor passing as an incident to the transfer of title. This is the view of our own court, concisely expressed in Culbertson vs. Cox, 29 Minn., 369, although it was there suggested that if the question were an open one much might be said in favor of the view that insurance is a mere accessory which (in the absence of anything in the policy prohibiting it) should pass with the transfer of the principal, unless the parties manifest an opposite intention.'

"By the terms of the policy sued on the defendant, in consideration of the sum of $60, 'does insure S. J. Thomas Lumber company and their legal representatives against loss or damage by fire, to the amount of $1000,' on certain property therein described.

"No case has been cited, and I have been unable to find any, where certain persons, designated 'legal representatives' of the owner, as well as the owner, are insured against loss by fire. It is suggested that the words 'legal representatives' were added to indicate who should be authorized to collect in the event of a loss occurring upon the policy and the subsequent death of the owner.

"Under the policy in suit it could not be questioned that the executor or administrator could recover for the loss by fire while in their hands of property belonging to the decedent. This is the doctrine under nearly every form of policy, and perhaps so whether or not the policy inserted mentions executors or administrators. The only question is whether a receiver has a like right, and that depends, we assume, upon whether the term 'receiver' is included in the term 'legal representatives' as used in this policy. The term 'legal representatives' is more often used than otherwise used to indicate executors and administrators.

"There is no impropriety in holding that a receiver is the legal representative of a corporation. Corporations have legal representatives, and receivers and assignees and trustees in insolvency and bankruptcy are their usual representatives. If it was the intent of this policy to insure a future receiver or assignee or trustee in insolvency or bankruptcy of the owner of the property at the time of the issuance of the policy no words more appropriate than 'legal representatives' could have been chosen; and these words have the added virtue of being sufficiently comprehensive to include the executor, administrator or heir of the individual owner. If it was the intent to insure, in addition to the owner, only the executors or administrators of the deceased individual owner, then the apt and natural words to use would have been 'executors and administrators.' Not only so, but the words suggested are the words so naturally to be used that no construed policy has been referred to where the words 'legal representatives' are used merely to indicat executors and administrators. It is certainly contemplated that corporations may be insured under the standard form of policy."

Alford & Hunt were the plaintiff's attorneys.

ROTHSCHILD.

Prominent Chicago Man Commits Suicide at His Home.

Chicago, July 28.—A. M. Rothschild, until recently head of the firm of A. M. Rothschild & Co., and son-in-law of Nelson Morris, the packer, committed suicide this afternoon at his home at Thirty-seventh street and Michigan avenue.

WILL BE A BIG BOOM

A. H. Smith Brings Rosy Reports of Grain Crop.

Will Bring More Money Than Any Previous Year.

Crop Will Be Beyond Serious Damage In Two Weeks.

"If nothing happens within the next two weeks," said A. H. Smith, of the Smith-Baker Commission company, who has just returned from a trip through the Dakota grain country, today, "the Northwest will have the greatest boom in its history this fall. If something does not happen to spoil the crops within that time, more money will go into the Northwest this fall than in any previous season.

"I have been out along the Great Northern and down the Soo road, and it is the first trip I ever made out there when there was absolutely no complaint about the weather. I can see little chance of anything interfering with this outcome in the next two weeks except hail, and that would be purely local. A wet harvest would simply delay threshing, and would not affect the yield. The people out there are all land crazy. The crops are tremendous, and I do not see how the railroads are going to handle it all. There will be trouble about getting enough labor to handle the harvest, too.

"All grains are doing well. In some places in the Red River valley there will be only an average crop, and some lands will yield less wheat than usual, though the yield of all grains will be as great as usual, and the grain in other parts of the wheat country will more than offset the wheat loss in the Red River valley. The crop is fully equal to that of 1895 in every respect. The storms of two weeks ago did not do so much damage as was reported. Wind did considerable injury to buildings, but not much to crops. The sections around Grand Forks and Crookston were the only ones much affected.

"There is a piece of land up in Bottineau county, on the northern tier of North Dakota counties, that it is worth one's while to go from here simply to look over. It is nearly an mix, and is the grandest country out of doors. The section from Minot to Williston, where only a few years ago nobody dreamed of raising anything, is today a garden spot. From Minot to Carrington, on the Soo road, the country has been there 4 year ago. Flax is fully as good and wheat is far better."

GREAT FOR DULUTH.

Another Engineer Comments on Highland Power Scheme.

W. L. Fairchild, of New York, representing the Stanley Electric Manufacturing company, of Pittsfield, Mass., is in the city looking over the plans of the Highland Canal and Power company for the purpose of submitting figures on the electrical equipment for the plant. Mr. Fairchild was here some months ago and went over the ground. Like all engineers who have investigated the scheme, he is enthusiastic over it. There is no power proposition like it anywhere, he says. He says, too, that it will mean enormous things for Duluth in the line of new industries.

FOR DREDGE.

Capt. Gaillard Again Recommends One--- Money For Piers.

Capt. D. D. Gaillard in his annual report to the chief of engineers regarding improvement in the Duluth-Superior harbor, has recommended that $150,000 be appropriated to purchase a dredge plant to keep the channels open.

The estimated cost of the new piers to replace the old ones at the Wisconsin entry is $825,000. To meet the existing liabilities under the present contracts and those yet to be made for the payment for land and other necessary expenses, to June 30, 1903, exclusive of work on the Wisconsin entry, it is estimated that $282,358 will be required. July 1, 1901, there was an available balance of $887,358, leaving $405,000 available for the rebuilding of the piers at the Wisconsin entry.

The estimated cost of the piers being $925,000, and the amount available being $405,000, left $520,000 to be provided to build the piers.

He therefore recommends a total appropriation of $670,000.

Capt. Gaillard's report also shows that nearly all the lands needed in connection with the Duluth-Superior harbor projects have been acquired and that the dredging contracts will soon be completed. When completed there will be over sixteen miles of dredged chanels, varying in width from 120 to 600 feet and turning basins of an aggregate area of about 360 acres, all safe navigable depth of at least twenty feet.

Capt. Gaillard's estimate for the amount of material that will have to be removed annually from the channels after the dredging contracts are fulfilled, is about 450,000 cubic yards. This material will be deposited in the channels and basins by the running in of banks and flood deposits, and for this reason he reiterates the recommendations of his predecessors for the establishment of a government dredging plant, instead of having the work done by contract.

ANOTHER INJUNCTION

Issued By Judge Jackson Against Miners.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 28.—Judge Jackson issued another injunction this afternoon of the same general character as those for whose violation "Mother" Jones and others were tried. It was issued upon the application of G. Clinton Gardner, receiver for the Flemington Coal company, and is directed against thirty strikers and organizers.

Information of insanity was filed this morning against Sarah Jane Sibbald, wife of James A. Sibbald. The woman is old and has been a resident of this city since 1886. The examination will be held tomorrow.

Parlor theater. Big show this evening.

Charles Dong, a ping-pong Chinaman, blew into the municipal court this afternoon like a breeze from the Orient. An ill smelling breeze at that for Dong is charged with throwing germ breeding garbage about the premises at 25 North Lake avenue. The court could not understand his chop suey monologue and set the hearing for Wednesday.

Mayor Hugo is confined to his bed at his home, 221 Sixth avenue west. His sickness is not considered serious and in all probability he will be up again in two or three days. Although feeling very badly this morning the mayor retained his control of city affairs, directing things from the sick room instead of the city hall.

Don't forget your fez tomorrow morning.

Parlor theater. Don't miss it tonight.

TEMPERANCE MEETING

Held at Lincoln Park Sunday Afternoon.

The monthly union meeting under the auspices of the Scandinavian Christian Temperance committee was held at Lincoln park yesterday. The Salvation Army band gave excellent music.

A paper was read by Alfred Thoren on Temperance Work in Ancient Egypt," showing that during the time of Joseph and Moses the habit of strong drink was common among the people, it being one of the causes for the fall of Egypt.

Rev. Albert Johnson, pastor of the Mission church, was to give an address, but being out of the city, he had secured Rev. John Johnson, of Minneapolis, formerly pastor of the Mission church in Duluth.

Rev. Mr. Johnson made a strong plea for total abstinence from intoxicating drinks. It is the wisest thing not to take the first glass, to absolutely abstain from its use, he said, and told numerous instances where one led to another and caused one to become a slave to the habit.

Rev. Mr. Johnson was followed by a speech by Capt. Rickard Goode, of the Salvation Army. He gave a strong warning to his hearers to abstain from all evils and especially from the use of strong drinks and to agitate against its use.

At the close of the program a Jewish missionary of St. Paul, named Markus, gave a short speech. He recited some experiences during his younger days.

DEATH LIST.

St. Paul, July 28.—A Pembina, N. D., special to the Dispatch says: Hon. Charles E. Cavalier, North Dakota's oldest settler, died at 12:30 this morning after a few hours' illness. Mr. Cavalier was 84 years old and located here in 1851.

New York, July 28.—The Rev. Dr. Stephen L. Baldwin, recording secretary of the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church died today in Brooklyn of typhoid fever. He was 67 years of age. Dr. Baldwin was born at Somerville, N. J., and entered the ministry in 1858. From 1859 until 1880, with the exception of two years, he was a missionary in China. For four years while in China he was superintendent of the Foo-Chow mission, and for several years he edited the Chinese Recorder. He assisted in translating the scriptures the dicipline of the Methodist Episcopal church, etc., to the Fu Kien colonial dialect. For health reasons he returned to the United States with his family in 1882. In June, 1889, he was elected recording secretary of the missionary society, which position he had since filled.

FOUR KILLED.

Tragedy Occurs On Train In Indian Territory.

Joplin, Mo., July 28.—Four men, two white and two black, are reported to have been shot and killed on a Missouri, Kansas & Texas excursion train at a point in Indian Territory last night.

The negroes are said to have been shot down by the whites who were in turn shot and killed by a deputy sheriff who was accompanying the excursion. No names and no further particulars have been received. The excursion was run into Joplin from Muskogee yesterday and several fights occurred in this city among the passengers before the train departed for the south.

STRONG PROTEST

Against Subsidizing Canadian Pacific Atlantic Line.

Montreal, July 28.—The steamship interests of Montreal will make a vigorous protest against the subsidizing of the Canadian Pacific railroad to run a passenger and fast freight line across the Atlantic. They claim that if this is done it will kill all the other steamship lines. Meetings of the board of trade and the corn exchange have been called to devise means to prevent any such subsidy, which it is claimed, should go to a steamship company.

LOOK AT HARBOR

Canadian Officials In City Looking Over Harbor Work.

Minister of Public Works of the Dominion Heads Party.

Favors Better Trade Relations Between the Two Countries.

Hon. J. I. Tarte, minister of public works of the Dominion of Canada, and member of the governmental cabinet, arrived in the city this morning to inspect the harbor and the improvements under way here.

With him are James Howden, at the head of the dredging work of the department, and Louis Coste, an engineer in the government service.

Mr. Tarte has held his position for six years and prior to that time was engaged in newspaper work. For twenty-five years he edited large dailies in Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa.

In speaking of the trade conditions between this country and Canada, Mr. Tarte said:

"You and we should have better trade relations. We want to trade with you, but your tariff is so high that we cannot. You must lower yours or we will have to raise ours." Then he added with a smile, "We will have to fight you with your own weapons. We hope to get a great deal of trade through the Georgian bay and the canal when the conditions are more inviting. What do I think of reciprocity? Well we could hardly have it in effect on everything. We have some industries that must be protected. But I think that we could arrange on certain things."

"Have you ever been to Montreal," Mr. Tarte asked the reporter with a smile.

On receiving a negative reply he said to The Herald representative: "Well, we want you to come, we want the people of America to visit our country. Capt. Wolvin, of this city, and Capt. McDougall, too, have enterprises there. Capt. Wolvin has established a steamboat line running from here to Quebec and I hope that it will be successful."

Mr. Tarte has charge of all of the rivers, harbors and lakes in the Dominion in addition to the public buildings. In speaking of harbor improvements, he said:

"This is a splendid harbor and those piers are a fine piece of work. Tell your people not to use wood anywhere. We have made blunder after blunder by using wood for such kind of work and we are done with it. We are now building some new piers in Montreal, and they are of concrete. We are also widening the St. Lawrence and a number of other improvements to our harbors are contemplated."

Mr. Tarte is a most delightful gentleman to meet. This is his first visit to Duluth. "You have a magnificent site here for a large city," he said. "I have traveled a good deal, but I have never seen a location for a city with greater possibilities. The soil here is the raw material here and a large and handsome metropolis will some day be seen here."

The distinguished party came up the lakes on the Lord Stanley of the Canadian harbor service.

The party will remain here a couple of days. A ride around the boulevard was enjoyed this afternoon, Capt. McDougall accompanying the party.

BIRDS ARE BEE-EATERS.

A gardner complains to me about the loss he sustains owing to the fondness of the pretty little Iluetit for bees, says the Pall Mall Gazette. "You'd never believe the lot that little chap snaps up, right off the board in front of the hive." The spotted flycatcher, a charming summer migrant, whose pretty nesting and feeding habits I have watched with great interest, and whom I have found to be a very confiding bird and one true to his old nesting places, has also been most unjustly libeled and persecuted for the same reason.

The fact is both these birds do take bees but if the complainants followed up the matter they would find that the birds dare not take a worker bee, because of its sting, and they only devour the stingless drones which are being turned out of the hive, or are destroyed by the working bees as no longer necessary to the economy of the hive, just at the time when flycatchers are anting these fat drones to feed their young with. The swarming season is then over. Instead of destroying the useful insects, the birds are actually helping the workers. And so they are the best friends of the beekeeper.

The error of attributing the destruction of working bees to the action of birds is a very old one. In the fourth Georgic, Virgil writes to the following effect: "The bloody-breasted swallow bears away in her beak the bees while on the wing, sweet morsels for her merciless young." A writer in an old number of the Beekeeper's Journal says: "I saw a swallow fly up to another which was sitting on a telegraph wire, and put something in its mouth, and then go away; the other almost immediately dropped it. • • • I found it to be a large drone."

WORLD'S DEEP HOLES.

The deepest continuous vertical shaft in the state is on the Geyser in Custer county, which is over 2000 feet deep, says the Denver Post. But this is eclipsed by the explorations on the famous Virginius mine in Mt. Sneffels, Ouray county, where the workings have been carried down over 3000 feet. The lowest point attained by the Newhouse tunnel under the apex of the divide between Gilpin and Clear Creek counties is about 2300 feet from the surface. The Revenue tunnel under Mt. Sneffels encountered the Virginius vein at a depth of 2200 to 2300 feet, and a shaft has been sunk 1000 feet below the tunnel floor. The deepest miner between Michigan and the Pacific ocean is A. E. Reynolds, of Denver.

While on this subject, to meet a number of inquiries going the rounds, let us carry the investigation beyond the boundaries of Colorado and see what other states and counties have been doing in that line.

There are some shafts in California that have gone down 2300 to 2800 feet. In the Lake Superior (Michigan) copper mines the Red Jacket has a vertical depth of nearly 5000 feet, where good ores are found, but the temperature being 100 degrees the miners find difficulty in breathing. The Tamarack in the same region has a shaft 4950 feet deep. There are eight shafts on the Calumet and Hecla each over 3000 feet. A number of shafts in South Africa are 600 feet deep.

In Amador county, California, the following depths have been reached: 2300 2200, 2100, 1800, 1700, 1400 and several over 1000 feet; in Nevada county they range from 2100 on inclines to 2800 below the outcrop; in Calaveras county from 1200 to 2300, and in Tuolume from 1100 to 4500.

The lowest point attained in exploring the great Comstock lode of Virginia City, Nev., was 3308 feet. On the Consolidated California and Virginia only a little prospecting was done on the levels below the 2000. On the 2700 level the openings from the joint winze sunk, found the Comstock ledge 800 feet wide between the walls.

To digress a moment for the insertion of interesting data, old and mainly forgotten, the Comstock was discovered in June, 1859, a month after the discovery of the famous Gregory lode in Gilpin county, which was the cradle of Colorado. The first shipment of ore to San Francisco from the Ophir claim was made in 1860, thirty-eight tons yielding $112,000, mostly silver. In the ten years following the principal mines on the ledge produced $120,000,000. The big bonanza in the Consolidated Virginia was not struck until 1873. Between that time and 1882 it yielded $111,975,761 in silver and gold. This wonderful body of ore was opened at a depth of 1167 feet. It was the enormous volume of silver bullion taken from the Comstock, supplemented by the discovery and operation of great silver mines in Colorado, which impelled the demonstration of silver by the principal nations of the world.

It is commonly supposed that Nevada is an older mining state than Colorado, which is erroneous. While its admission into the Union antedated ours by thirteen years, the mountains of Colorado, or the Pike's Peak region, were pretty well populated before the Washoe mines were discovered and worked.

On Australia the Bendigo shaft is nearly, if not quite 4000 feet deep. In Europe many shafts are more than 3000 feet down. In Hungary at last accounts, there was one mine shaft 3612, another 3790 and still another 3280 feet deep. In Germany diamond drills exploring for coal measures have been sent down from 4000 to 5740 feet. In the city of Paris there is an artesian well 2260 feet deep.

In Colorado oil wells have been drilled from 2000 to 3000 feet, and it is probable that many others now drilling will penetrate like depths.

Most of the leading mines of Cripple Creek are equipped with hoists capable of raising ore from 2000 to 2500-foot depths, to which the shafts ultimately will be carried unless meanwhile very thick barren zones intervene to discourage deeper exploration. There is little probability that long and costly tunnels will be driven beneath the hills of this district because it would be necessary to go way outside of the district hills to reach a point where a tunnel could be driven to strike 2000-foot depths along the gold belt. Several projects for tunneling under the principal ore-bearing hills of Leadville, chiefly for drainage, have been discussed, but the same difficulty confronts the projectors. In a word, one and would not justify the means, for it would cost more millions in either case than any group of capitalists could be induced to risk. Take, for example, the most stupendous enterprise of its day, the big drainage tunnel driven by Adolph Sutro, designed to drain the Comstock. It was started from the Valley of the Carson river, ran 20,018 feet, and at the end struck the Savage mines at a depth of only 1640 feet. Before its completion many of the mines had been sunk far below that point, hence it afforded them little relief from water. When it was completed one shaft had gone down 3000 feet.

RESPONSIBILITY.

Judicial decisions touching matters of business usage are always of interest. Such a decision has just been handed down by the New York court of appeals, which is of consequence to bank depositors everywhere, says the New York Times. The facts are briefly as follows: A business concern depositing with the Chemical National bank of this city was victimized by its confidential clerk, who systematically raised checks and appropriated the excess to his own use. He had charge of the firm's books, had been accredited to the bank as its representative, and otherwise occupying a relation to it which warranted the bank in assuming that he acted by authority in all that he did. His manipulation of checks extended over a period of some two years, during which time the deposit book of the firm was written up twelve times and the vouchers in the shape of paid checks returned. The alterations were very skilfully made, and as they were presented at the bank by the clerk in question, it is not surprising that they escaped detection.

When the defalcation was discovered the firm brought suit against the bank for the amount of their losses on the raised checks. In this demand they appeared to be protected by old decisions in this state, and got judgments in the lower courts for the amount of their claim. Appeal was taken to the court of appeals, which has reversed the courts below and holds that for the depositor to have made no examination of his accounts and no comparison of returned checks with the stubs, when such examination would have revealed the alterations, was such negligence as excuses the bank for having paid the raised checks and leaves the depositor no recourse. In a letter addressed to the banks of New York, George G. Williams, president of the Chemical bank, says:

"Notwithstanding the lack of precautionary system in handling their finances, the firm made demand upon this bank to refund to them the amount stolen by their chief; and strange as it may seem, notwithstanding their negligence, they appeared to be protected by old decisions of some of the courts of this state. We carried the matter up to the court of appeals, with the hope of being able to demonstrate to the court that a rule laid down half a century ago does not apply equitably to the changed conditions and largely increased volume of business of the present day. We were fighting, not mercly to avoid payment of the money a second time, but with a strong desire to assist in the establishment, by law, of fair business methods."

Under the decision the duty of verifying the balance and examining the vouchers returned, and giving notice to the bank of any discrepancies, within a reasonable time, is placed upon all depositors of banks in this state.

This is now the law of New York, and bank depositors will hereafter be under the very proper obligation of doing what should always have been done by them to aid the banks in protecting their interests. This decision settles many questions which have long been in dispute as to the liability of banks for frauds rendered possible by contributory negligence of depositors.
